Resurfacing of Main St. starts soon

Construction of I-35 through Salado continues to meet with delays, this time due to what has been defined as an issue that has caused James Construction to be “unable to construct in accordance with the plans provided by TxDOT.”

“We experienced an issue with the temporary shoring on Wall V. The TxDOT design had an error and it required additional soil nails to be placed below the existing temporary shoring. TxDOT worked with James Construction to resolve the issue in a timely manner,” Ben Engelhardt, of TxDOT, wrote in an update to local officials.

The update removes the end-date that had previously been given as October 2016. “We will continue to evaluate the progress and will provide a new date as we get more comfortable with an anticipated date,” Engelhardt stated.

“Recently we experienced an issue with the temporary shoring,” Engelhardt stated. “The TxDOT design had an error and it required additional soil nails to be placed below the existing temporary shoring. TxDOT worked with James Construction to resolve the issue in a timely manner. TxDOT will work with James Construction to determine if this task is a critical path activity and to measure the impact, if any, this issue had on the completion of the project.”

As of July 22, the contractor has charged 1,225 days of work. The days allowed by the contract is 920. James Construction has exceed that by 33.2 percent (as of the last update July 22).

Liquidated damages stand at $854,000 for 305 days and road user costs stand at $1.83 million.

The next major milestone in the project is to have the northbound mainlanes on the new northbound pavement with two mainlanes in each direction. The previous date for the new NB main lane pavement and the frontage road was Aug. 30. As of presstime, there was no new date for this milestone.

One month after this milestone is met, all mainlanes will be opened in each direction, bringing the contract to “substantial completion.”

Despite these delays, TxDOT informed the Village last week that the contractor will begin work on the resurfacing of Main Street this week, weather permitting. The weather has not permitted work to begin, as of presstime on Aug. 16.

The contractor (James Construction) anticipated beginning the seal coat of Main Street the week of Aug. 21. This would seal off the cracks on the existing roadway.

Prior to the seal coating, the contractor will repair bad spots and remove the existing surface from the bridges on Main Street.

The contractor anticipated beginning the hot mix overlay of Main Street the week of Aug. 28. Striping and crosswalks will follow. According to the contractor’s announcement, this work will take approximately two weeks. Much of the work will occur at night, but lane closures for Main Street have not been announced by TxDOT.

In addition to the Main Street paving, TxDOT will pave Van Bibber from Main Street to the frontage road and Blacksmith from Main Street to the frontage road.

The existing crosswalks at Old Town Salado and Rock Creek Bridge will be replaced during the project. A new sidewalk at the intersection of Royal and Main St will be added, according to an announcement from City Administrator Kim Foutz.

“They will not pave the parking, driveways, and improved shoulder areas to the right of way line,” Foutz stated in an announcement late last week.

Businesses who wish to pave any remaining right-of-way for purposes of driveways and parking that are not included in the overlay project should contact Billie Tweedle at the Belton TxDOT office and request a driveway permit. His contact information is: Billy Tweedle, Utility Inspector, Texas Department of Transportation, (254) 939-3778 Office, (254) 217-0192 Mobile, Billy.tweedle@txdot.gov

Aldermen mull budget

In addition to committee reports, aldermen will address the following in the business session:

- Presentation, discussion, and possible action on a revised Concept Plan for Mill Creek Springs, Phases V through XVI, a ±178.15-acre, 12-phase (prior phases not included), 234-10t, residential subdivision, located at the northwest corner of Royal and Blackberry Street located in the Extraterritorial Jurisdiction of Salado.

- Presentation, discussion, and possible action on an alteration to a building in the Historic District, sign design, located at the corner of Thomas Arnold Road and North Stagecoach Road as per Section 3.15K, Permitting Process (First Baptist Church College Ministry).

Residents concerned about use of chloramine in treating water

BY TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado Water Supply Corporation will conduct its next board meeting at the Salado Civic Center at 4:30 p.m. Aug. 25, where they will address the concerns of several residents in the northwest service area who have complained about rashes and other reactions to the water since the provider switched over to chloramine to disinfect the water in July.

Any Salado WSC customers wanting to address the board of directors at this meeting must complete a registration form available at the Salado WSC office on Salado Plaza Dr. no later than 8 a.m. Aug. 22.

One resident reported to Salado Village Voice that he immediately broke out into a rash after showering in the chloramine-treated water.

“I hadn’t paid that much attention to the details of the change-over of the water supply - although I thought it fairly odd that you would be reaching way out to Kempner for water when there are other much closer sources. I just figured that you knew what you were doing, although the reasons behind the switch were fairly vague,” Ben Lyles, Jr. stated in a letter that he sent to Salado WSC.

“The first time I paid any attention was when I took a shower on Monday morning and wondered where the very offensive smell was coming from. It wasn’t long in determining that water from the faucet was the culprit as I shaved. Then about two hours later, I noticed a rash appearing on my arms and legs, a rash I have never had before and couldn’t imagine where it came from,” he added.

The next morning - Tuesday - the smell from the tap water was as strong as the day before and during the day the rash on my arms and legs grew even worse. That was when I got out the most recent note from you and discovered that the change-over to the Kempner water took place on July 11, instead of July 15. The coincidence was too strong to ignore.”

Salado WSC informed users that on June 15 it would be changing the disinfectant that it uses from chlorine to chloramine.

“This change is intended to benefit our customers by reducing the levels of disinfection byproducts in the system, while still providing protection from waterborne disease,” Salado WSC manager Ricky Preston stated in a May 6 letter to customers.

“The change to chloramines can cause problems to persons dependent on dialysis machines,” Preston further stated.

The Environmental Protection Agency states on its website that, “Using chloramine to disinfect drinking water is a common standard practice among drinking water utilities. A number of utilities have made this switch from chlorine to chloramines to enhance water safety and compliance with drinking water health standards.”

“Because the chloramine residual is more stable and longer lasting than free chlorine, it provides better protection against bacterial regrowth in systems with large storage tanks and dead-end water mains,” the EPA states.

“Chloramine, like chlorine, is effective in controlling biofilm, which is a slime coating in the pipe caused by bacteria,” according to the EPA. “Controlling biofilms also tends to reduce coliform bacteria concentrations and biofilm-induced corrosion of pipes.”

While no studies of chloramine have shown negative impacts to healthy individuals, there is anecdotal evidence that the chemical may contribute to skin rashes, digestive and intestinal troubles.

Salado resident Mary Kelch reported to Salado Village Voice that she noticed “that my skin was breaking out in rashes. Mostly my face felt extremely windburned and chapped, although I do not typically spend time in the sun. Nothing in my skin regimen changed... My eyes burn horribly for several hours after showering.”

Kelch equates the feeling to swimming in a highly-chlorinated pool.

“The water has a completely different smell,” Kelch added. “We have had some days with discolored water. Since before July 15, I had no problem with the water.”

“The water smells strongly of chemicals,” she added. “No amount of setting it out or boiling it changes this.”

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Obama's Parting Shot

The Obama administration is entering its final months, but it's never too late to further diminish U.S. influence and dis-comfit our allies.

President Barack Obama is considering adopting a policy of "no first use," i.e., declaring that the United States would never use nuclear weapons except after a nuclear attack on itself or its allies. From Obama's perspective, this change would have the dual advantage of being something he can legitimately do on his own and representing a radical departure in the country's nuclear doctrine.

For 70 years, presidents of both parties have maintained a posture of nuclear ambiguity. We wanted enemies to have to contemplate the possibility of a U.S. nuclear response to acts of aggression. This added an extra element of uncertainty and risk to potential attacks on us or our friends, in the hopes of deterring them in the first place.

Advocates of no first use urge that we get beyond "Cold War thinking," a favorite line of President Obama's as well. The end of the Cold War indeed changed the strategic environment, but it didn't make nuclear weapons obsolete, or render age-old concepts like deterrence inoperative, or eliminate international conflict.

Declaring no first use would kick away an element of our nuclear deterrent. Yes, we no longer have to worry about deterring a massive Soviet army facing west. But Vladimir Putin has already changed the borders of Europe through force, and there's no reason to think he's necessarily done. A RAND Corporation study says that Russian forces could reach the capitals of the Baltic States in less than 60 hours.

Why would we make Putin's calculation any easier, or ease the minds of other potential aggressors like China and North Korea? We might never use nuclear weapons in response to a conventional attack, no matter how brazen. Obviously the risks in resorting to nuclear weapons would be mind-boggling, but taking the possibility off the table serves no purpose. If we are going to have nuclear weapons, we should take advantage of their deterrent effect.

Relying entirely on conventional forces for deterrence would require more military spending and more forward-deployed assets by us and our allies. Of course, the analysts and activists who argue for no first use tend to be the same ones who think we spend too much on defense. One of these things does not go along with the other.

Our allies are freaked out about the prospect of no first use. They have long relied on our nuclear umbrella, and if it is being pulled back, countries like South Korea and Japan will need to reconsider their decisions to forswear nuclear weapons. This is why no first use would contradict President Obama's opposition to nuclear proliferation, and make Global Zero -- the disarmament movement's goal of a world free of nuclear weapons -- even more of a pipe dream.

In short, there is nothing to recommend no first use unless you are a lame-duck president heedless of strategic reality and looking to make a gesture of anti-nuclear righteousness. No first use would make the world, at the margins, a more dangerous place -- and be a perfect parting shot for President Obama. Rich Lowry is editor of the National Review.

More "Noels" on the way for our Village

One year, a Christmas card was received with a cryptic greeting on the front cover: ABCDEFGHI JKMNOPQRS TUVWXYZ

The explanation was found inside the card: "It's simple. No L."

Fifteen or so minutes was spent trying to make sense of alphabet soup and thinking unkind words about the sender . . . and then it became clear: "It's simple, NO EL."

NOEL in French is "joyeux Noel" meaning "Merry Christmas." In other languages, NOEL is associated with a joyful pronouncement.

Here are a few Salado "Noels" (joyful announcements):

1. Main Street is getting an overlay this week that includes the ragged sides of the road, striping, and maybe even the paving of the two side roads north and south of the Municipal Building. Village cost: Nothing.

Mayor Skip Blancett

2. Touring the construction Monday, the regional engineer asked, "Do you know what that lower concave wall next to the main wall at the base of Holland Bridge is?"

"No." Then it occurred, "It's the enclosed garden area where trees and shrubs will be planted. There's another one at the foot of the 2484 Bridge."

"Good" said the engineer. "It comes with a water sprinkler system, too." Village cost: "Nothing."

3. Question to Engineer, "Are you going to finish I-35 construction by October, 2016? Answer: "that's the goal. Finishing the Salado Plaza wall by August 30 means we are on target."

4. The Salado Creek at the low water crossing is incredibly beautiful since being cleaned and people are enjoying it. Next year, the other side.

5. The sewer lateral lines across Main Street are complete.

6. The first test report for boring under Salado Creek to lay sewer lines: "You have chosen the best location to bore under the creek without damaging it."

By week's-end, there will be more "NOELS." Stand by.

Leaving no trace isn't easy

By JILL RICHARDSON

I just got back from hiking 95 miles in the Sierras. (Yes, just like that Reese Witherspoon movie Wild, only far fewer miles.)

I returned from my trip with something eating at me. Backpackers are supposed to "Leave No Trace." It's not just a nice concept, but a specific set of rules we follow -- even when we go to the bathroom.

You dig a hole at least six inches deep before doing your business, and you bury it. And you do that far enough away from lakes and streams to prevent contamination of the water we all drink.

You're even supposed to take your used toilet paper with you when you leave, because nobody wants to feel like they're hiking in a bathroom. Obviously, you clean up and pack out your trash, too.

Serious hikers are fastidious about doing those things. Some go so far as to hide evidence of their campsites before leaving by scattering twigs and stones over the spot where their tent was.

And it's not uncommon at all for hikers and backpackers to police one another. Don't ever tell anyone else you didn't pack out your used toilet paper unless you want to catch hell for it.

But Leave No Trace seems to extend only to the easily visible: trash, toilet paper, bodily functions, and so forth. Anything you can't see with the naked eye -- like sweat, detergent, sunblock, mosquito repellent, pesticides, and other chemicals -- seems to get a pass.

Again and again, I saw hikers bathing and doing their laundry and even washing dishes in lakes and streams. And this is the water that we all drink. Sure, we filter it, boil it, or chemically treat it before drinking it. But those methods are designed to kill off microbes, not to remove the chemicals in consumer products.

What's more, all of the plants and animals rely on that water too. The insects, which provide food for birds, reptiles, and other animals, need that water. The trout, that hikers like to catch and eat, live in it.

I want to eat trout with butter and lemon as seasoning, not with pesticides and detergent.

Many conscientious backpackers at least go to the trouble of packing biodegradable soap. But your clothes carry residue of your laundry detergent from home, as well as your sweat. Some treat their clothing with pesticides to help with the mosquitoes. Others treat gear with waterproofing chemicals.

Then, of course, everyone slathers bug spray and sunblock all over themselves.

The bugs were bad this time, and the sun is intense at high altitudes. I understand using those chemicals. But don't rinse them off in the stream.

The alternative to bathing and washing in the stream is only slightly more work. You gather some water, haul it a few hundred feet, and use it to do your washing where it won't contaminate an entire river.

The reason why I share this, presumably with many who will never backpack in their lives, is because it seems to reveal a more general truth about humanity: We underestimate or ignore what we cannot easily see.

Between the chemicals rinsed off in the streams and the toilet paper so carefully packed out, the chemicals harm the environment more. But it's the toilet paper, which we can see, that gets the attention.

Back in the "real world," with trash service and running water and flush toilets, our interactions with the environment are easier to ignore. Here, we never have to worry that going to the bathroom in the wrong place could result in contaminated drinking water.

But whether in the wilderness or in the city, it's dangerous and harmful to discount the impact of what we can't see, just because we can't see it.

Trump Buddies Up to Putin

Please, people -- stop denigrating Donald Trump as a foreign policy ignoramus.

After all, he's a global real estate tycoon with special insights into U.S. adversaries, like Vladimir Putin of Russia. "I got to know him very well," The Donald has assured us voters. Only, it turns out, by "very well" he meant "not at all." He later conceded that he's never actually, you know, met Putin.

Still, Trump says he's taken measure of the authoritarian Russian president from his corporate perch atop Trump Tower, concluding admiringly that Putin is "a lot stronger than our leader."

Sure, if by stronger he means violently suppressing any opposition, stealing billions of dollars from the public for himself and his chosen oligarchs, or invading neighboring Ukraine.

 putin-trump

Picky-picky-picky, says Donnie, who's so enamored with Putin he publicly pleaded with the foreign strongman to hack into Hillary Clinton's computers in order to interfere with the U.S. presidential election.

"Russia," Trump called out during a July press conference, "if you're listening, I hope you're able to find the 30,000 emails that are missing." No need for Putin to outmaneuver the United States when clueless Donald would willingly surrender our people's democratic sovereignty to him.

Amazingly, while top Republican officials say they're horrified by Trump's twisted and traitorous invitation to Putin, they still say he should be president, shrugging it off as Donald being Donald. Imagine their scathing derision if the Democrats had invited Putin to intervene.

It's time for people to stop writing off Trump's dangerous shallowness as "entertaining." After all, "Bumbling Bumpkin for President" wouldn't even make a good TV show.

Tips to avoid Zika

By STEVE BYRNS
AGRI LIFE SERVICE

The mosquito-transmitted Zika virus is a potential threat to the health of unborn babies in Texas and other states, and the Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service has stepped up efforts to educate the public on ways to protect themselves from this new menace, said agency entomologists.

"While people enjoy outdoor activities and travel this summer, it's important to remember that our first line of defense against Zika is to avoid being bitten by mosquitoes," said Dr. Sonja Swiger, AgriLife Extension entomologist at Stephenville. "The Aedes aegypti and A. albopictus mosquitoes that transmit Zika occur commonly in our backyards where their eggs are laid and larvae live in standing water. Like other mosquito species, they are active at sunrise and sunset, but commonly bite throughout the day as well."

Swiger said it's important to remember the "Four Ds" as a first line of defense. They are:

- Drain: Empty standing water, thus eliminating mosquito breeding sites.
- Dress: Put on long sleeved shirts and pants when going outside.
- Defend: Apply mosquito repellent when going outside.
- Dusk and Dawn: Avoid outdoor activity during these two most mosquito-active periods.

Swiger said simple steps such as repairing screen doors and window are critically important to keeping mosquitoes out. Managing landscape water features is another key area in the fight against the spread of the Zika virus.

"Mosquito dunks, commonly sold in garden centers for mosquito control in home water features, can be used to treat water that cannot be readily drained," she said. "The dunks contain insect growth regulators or mosquito-specific bacteria to effectively control mosquito larvae. Neither approach is harmful to fish or other aquatic organisms."

Dr. Mike Merchant, AgriLife Extension urban entomologist at Dallas, said that fighting Zika will be much different than fighting West Nile virus. Aedes mosquitoes infected with Zika are not easily detected, so health officials have to rely on actual human cases to identify hot spots.

"In addition, city and county truck-mounted sprayers are less effective at killing Aedes mosquitoes, so stopping these mosquitoes in each and every backyard is even more important. Everyone will need to pitch in," he said. "Anything that holds water should be dumped or treated. Breeding areas can include sites as benign as containers under potted plants and bird baths. Other trouble areas are old tires, empty cans and bottles, kiddie pools, buckets, boat tarps and even clogged gutters.

"It doesn't take much water for them to reproduce," he said. "Small containers can hold enough water to breed mosquitoes. Aedes mosquitoes don't travel far from their larval habitat, so if you've got them, chances are you unknowingly raised them."

Swiger said there are many mosquito repellents available, but all approved formulations share two commonalities. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency registration of these repellent products means that the active ingredient has been tested and is safe for people to use, and that it's effective in repelling mosquitoes.

Why a Teacher: Becoming a teacher was a necessity during my military career, and often part of my job description. Welding was always part of my life and I became a certified professional in 2012 immediately after retirement from the United States Army. Initially I became a professional teacher in the welding field to help my friend and mentor, Mr. Ron Turner launch a transition program specifically designed to help soldiers leaving Active Federal U.S. Army Service to the civilian sector at SHS, Jr. High

through his program at Central Texas College. I enjoyed teaching very much in the professional arena, and was solicited by the Salado ISD for an AG Sciences position as a non-certified teacher; with my specialty in welding. I enjoy passing on my skills to younger generations and helping students develop a skill that will last them their lifetime.

Steel Magnolias present Gospel concert in Holland

On Sunday evening, 6 p.m. Aug. 21, The Steel Magnolias from San Marcos, will present a fully choreographed, upbeat concert of Southern Gospel Music at First Baptist Church, Holland.

The Steel Magnolias are filled with "electric excitement" for the Lord. These ladies are the epitome of Christ-like grace and love. They share a bond few people will ever know. Their choreography is exciting and their enthusiasm abounds as they glorify the Lord in their music.

The Magnolias have traveled all over the United States taking them as far north as Niagara Falls singing along the east coast 43 times through 15 states covering 4600 miles. They presented 13 "Flash Mobs," including New York City at Radio City Music Hall, Rockefeller Center, Times Square, Liberty Island Ferry, the new One World Trade Center, and were invited to sing at the Billy Graham Library and Samaritan's Purse in North Carolina. The highlight of that trip just last October was to sing at the Calhoun County Jail in Anniston, AL, where 63 inmates had recently given their hearts to Jesus and were baptized. On that same tour, the ladies presented five concerts at the 3-Day Virginia Beach Gospel Music Festival in Virginia Beach, VA.

When the ladies sing in Holland, they will have just returned last month from their 2016 Summer Tour through four states: Arkansas, Tennessee, Alabama, and Louisiana.

"Your life will never be the same after experiencing the dynamic witness of The Steel Magnolias. The program they present is a true anointing of the Lord and your heart will be blessed," says Pastor Evans.

Evans invites the public to hear The Steel Magnolias in concert on Sunday evening 6 p.m. Aug. 21. The church is located at 506 Dixie Drive, Holland. There is no admission charge.

2016 Property Tax Rates in VILLAGE OF SALADO

This notice concerns 2016 property tax rates for VILLAGE OF SALADO. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:

Last year's operating taxes	$344,723
Last year's debt taxes	$240,737
Last year's total taxes	$585,460
Last year's tax base	$161,955,582
Last year's total tax rate	0.339500/$100

This year's effective tax rate:

Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$550,463
+This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$166,988,106
=This year's effective tax rate	0.329600/$100

This year's rollback tax rate:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for any transferred function, tax increment financing, state criminal justice mandate and/or enhanced indigent health care expenditures)	$324,373
+This year's adjusted tax base	$166,988,106
=This year's effective operating rate	0.194200/$100
×1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	0.209700/$100
+This year's debt rate	0.342000/$100
=This year's rollback rate	0.551700/$100

Statement of Increase/Decrease

If VILLAGE OF SALADO adopts a 2016 tax rate equal to the effective tax rate of 0.329600 per $100 of value, taxes would decrease compared to 2015 taxes by $ 4,608.

Schedule A: Unencumbered Fund Balances:

The following estimated balances will be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
Maintenance & Operation Tax Fund	808,232
Interest & Sinking Fund	123,057

Schedule B: 2016 Debt Service:

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

Description of Debt	Principal or Contract Payment to be Paid from Property Taxes	Interest to be Paid from Property Taxes	Other Amounts to be Paid	Total Payment
Permanent Improvement Bonds, Series 2015	335,000	241,080	0	576,080
Total required for 2016 debt service				$576,080
- Amount (if any) paid from funds listed in Schedule A				$0
- Amount (if any) paid from other resources				$0
- Excess collections last year				$0
= Total to be paid from taxes in 2016				$576,080
+ Amount added in anticipation that the unit will collect only 100.000000% of its taxes in 2016				$0
= Total Debt Levy				$576,080

This notice contains a summary of actual effective and rollback tax rates' calculations. You can inspect a copy of the full calculations at 411 East Central, Belton, TX 76513.

The winning edge

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

The conscientious declarer continually seeks ways of improving his chances, even if the improvement amounts to a seemingly trivial percentage point or two.

Such a minuscule addition to one's chance of success might seem hardly worth the effort, but over a period of time it can make all the difference between winning and losing.

Consider this deal where South was in four spades and West led a heart. Declarer won with dummy's ace and promptly led a spade to the jack, losing to the king. West cashed the jack of hearts and shifted to a diamond. South won and, when West next showed out on the queen of spades, had to concede down one, losing two spades, a heart and a club.

South bemoaned his bad luck in losing a trick to the singleton king of spades, but the outcome was really his own fault. Had he considered his approach to the trump suit

South dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

2♦	Pass	3♠	Pass

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

more carefully, he might have seen the wisdom of playing the ace on the first round of spades rather than the jack. This would have felled the king and limited South to one trump loser.

The play of the ace is not based on a peek at West's hand, but on simple probabilities. Declarer should reason that if the opposing spades are divided 3-2, he cannot lose more than one trump trick no matter how he plays the suit. Similarly, if the spades are 4-1, with the king guarded, two spades will have to be lost regardless of how South plays.

There is, however, one 4-1 division where declarer's play matters -- and that is when the king is singleton in either opponent's hand. If East has the singleton king, it will appear when the first spade is led from dummy. But if West has it, the ace must be played to avoid losing an extra spade trick.

The chance of West's holding the lone king is slightly less than 3 percent -- not a very high number. But it is approximately that small percentage that enables casinos the world over to show millions of dollars in profits every year.

Cicada

Male cicada make that noise

Ahhh, summer is here. The sights are here, the smells are here, the heat is definitely here, and a familiar sound has arrived. Summer in west Texas announces its arrival with an insect songster that has a unique life history that many people will find intriguing.

One species or another of the cicada (family Cicadidae) is found throughout North America, including at least six kinds in west Texas. While some of these varieties have minute differences from each other and others have obviously different characteristics, they all have several things in common that can be used to describe them.

Wild About Texas

Cicadas are insects, and like others of this group, they have three body parts: the head, the thorax, and the abdomen. Each one of these body parts has a specific purpose, with the head being the area where the eyes and feeding appendages are, the thorax is where the legs and wings are attached, and the abdomen is where the majority of the internal organs are housed. Also like others in the insect group, the skeletal structure is on the outside of their body. This structure is known as the exoskeleton. They have six legs, as well as two pairs of wings that are utilized for flight. The body size ranges from just over one-half inch in one endemic species to over two inches in another. The clear wings are about twenty percent longer than the body. The eye placement is on each side of the head and they are known to have particularly good vision.

Cicadas are well known for their noise-making capabilities, and this noise production is either utilized for defense, or more commonly, for love. Males are the songsters, often carrying on incessantly while perched on the side of a tree, usually during the hottest part of the day. The females of this family are silent, being incapable of making any such music that the males make. These rhythmic songs are one way to differentiate one species from the next and are performed by males to attract females. A secondary use for this noise is self-defense. When a cicada is captured by a bird, it will emit a high-pitched shrill, and occasionally this will startle the predator enough into opening its beak and allowing the insect to fly away to safety.

Cicadas have a very unique life cycle. After mating, the female cicada will lay her eggs along tree branches; then after fulfilling her reproductive duties, she dies. Upon hatching, the young, known as nymphs, drop from the tree limbs to the ground below, where they bury themselves. They develop underground, drinking liquids from roots. The time frame of this development varies by species, but regardless of what kind it is, time is the issue. Some species develop quickly, only taking three years to reach the point of maturity. Other kinds can take longer, up to seventeen years in one species! After this time of development, they nymphs will dig to the surface, usually at night, leaving hollow black holes in the ground from whence they came. They will then find a tree or other structure to dig their enlarged front claws into, split the back of their temporary exoskeleton open, and emerge as a winged adult. The wings are wet upon this "hatching" and it can take several hours for them to dry enough for flight use.

So, the next time you see a strange, empty exoskeleton left on a tree or a house, allow your mind to imagine the time frame of this boisterous insect. The bug that left it might be longer-lived than some of the momentous occasions that we celebrate in our lives.

I asked her if she had already passed the Holiday Inn and Days Inn. She told me yes it was after that. I advised her the crash did not occur in the city of Salado but I told her I did not want to keep passing her around and arguing where it occurred. There was minor damage to her vehicle and it was drivable. I asked her what the suspect vehicle looked like. She advised me it was a Chevy Tahoe possibly gold or tan in color. The plate she gave me and dispatch returned to a Ford. I asked her if the vehicle had anything that would stick out like a bumper sticker, logos, stickers, etc. She told me no. I had no other leads and the damage was minimum so I issued her a blue form, business card and event number. The driver had already left when dispatch advised me DPS was out with a vehicle matching description given by her at the Valero gas station next to the rest stop and FM 2115. I met with DPS and the vehicle did not have matching damage and was not the vehicle. Cleared scene, no further information.
