Incumbents dominate filings in first week

In the first week, incumbents and former incumbents have been the predominant ones to file as candidates for election to the Salado Independent School District Board of Trustees, Village of Salado Board of Aldermen and the Salado Public Library District Board of Directors.

Two three-year terms on the Salado I.S.D. Board of Trustees will be filled in the May 9 election.

Melanie Kirchmeier filed for re-election to the seat she has filled for one term on the school board.

Jim Reed, who completes his third term on the board, announced that he will not seek re-election.

Chris Seaton, who previously served three terms on the school board, filed to run in the SISD race.

Regardless of the number of citizens who file for the race, the top two voters will be elected to the SISD Board.

Three two-year terms on the Village of Salado Board of Aldermen come up for election.

As of presstime, incumbent Michael McDougal and David T. Williams have filed for election to the board.

Hans Fields, who has not yet filed for re-election told Salado Village Voice on Feb. 3 that he has not decided whether he will seek a third term on the Board of Aldermen. He is the longest-serving member on the current Board of Aldermen.

Fred Brown, who has served one term as an Alderman, told Salado Village Voice on Feb. 3 that he will file this week for re-election to the Board.

All three incumbents on the Salado Public Library District Board of Directors will seek re-election to the board. They are Maurine Nathanson, Sara Pettijohn and Diane Hodyniak.

The last day to file as a candidate for election in these races is 5 p.m. Feb. 27. This includes filing as a write-in candidate in any of the races. Applications are available during regular business hours at each of the political subdivisions offices: the municipal building for the Village of Salado, the administration office at the Salado Civic Center for the Salado ISD and the Salado Library on N. Main for the Library District.

If there are not enough candidates to justify an election, the governing bodies of those political subdivisions can vote in early March to cancel the elections.

Thom Woodruff returns to the backstage theater of Tablerock for the annual Poetry and Prose Festival beginning at 7 p.m. Feb. 5

Poetry, Prose Fest Feb. 5 at Tablerock

Thom Woodruff returns to Salado for the annual Central Texas Poetry and Prose Fest at Tablerock's backstage theater beginning at 7 p.m. Feb. 5.

He is one of the several invited poets and writers of prose who will be lending their voices and their works to the readings. Other invited readers are these: Nancy Fierstien from Dripping Springs, Richard Egg from Salado, Barbara Carr and Jack McCabe from Austin, Phillip Abbott from San Antonio, Donna Bowling from Temple, TX, Barbara Sorge from Belton, and the three Salado High School Poetry Contest Winners from Terri Seaton's English class on Poetry.

An open microphone at 8:15 p.m. encourages new poets and writers to read two minutes of their work.

Guest Poet for the evening will be Thom Woodruff, originally from Australia and a hardy transplant to Austin.

Woodruff tours England and Australia Poetry Festivals when possible and in his adopted city of Austin he can be seen improvising with improvising musicians, at open mics, or hosting open mic venues in Austin and towns all over Central Texas.

Thom, the tireless poet, is the co-founder of the Austin International Poetry Festival in 1993. His tour of Poetry Festivals all over the world and writing poetry every day keeps him in tune with the times and in demand at lectures and gatherings.

His appearance at High Schools, in English classes, and at Libraries has students composing poetry and reading aloud, even the football players. Thom was also instrumental in renewing interest in and rejuvenating the Temple Live Poets in 2010.

All participants in Central Texas Writers of Poetry and Prose must read from their original work or have a designated reader. The writer's works may be published or unpublished. A table will be provided for writers to display published works, sell books or tapes.

Poets wishing to add their poem to the Tablerock Poets Annual Anthology, "Animal Tales" may submit three poems about animals to tablerock1@aol.com for consideration.

Please use Tablerock's submission guidelines. For a copy of submission "Guidelines" see our web site: www.tablerock.org

There is no admission fee for the Poetry and Prose Festival on Feb. 5. Refreshments will be available for purchase.

uations, promotions, and organized record-keeping as well as equipment procurement, tracking, and management.

During his military career, Hansen served as a translator at the U.S. Embassy in Korea and in Afghanistan, translating to Korean military officials there.

He retired from the Army as a First Sergeant in 2008.

He worked as a contractor on Fort Hood for six years as the Senior Enlisted Manager, First Cavalry Division Human Intelligence Section of G2X.

HOT tax for Expo, codes, new subdivision top agenda

Bell County Commissioner Tim Brown will discuss with Salado aldermen at their 6:30 p.m. Feb. 5 meeting a proposal for a county-wide hotel/motel occupancy tax of two percent that will be dedicated to proposed expansion of the Bell County Expo Center.

The presentation is one of several items on the agenda, including a hearing on changes to the building codes ordinance and review of a concept plan for Amity Estates, a 194-lot subdivision in the extra territorial jurisdiction of Salado.

Aldermen will update the Village building permits and building codes following a public hearing on the matter.

The Village currently has the 2009 versions (with local amendments) of the International Existing Building Code, the International Residential Building Code, the International Mechanical Code, the International Energy Conservation Code and will maintain those with the revisions.

The Village will add the 2009 International Fire Code with local amendments; and the 2009 International Fuel Gas Code. The proposed changes will also replace the 2009 International Electric Code with the 2011 National Electric Code.

The changes to the ordinance will also amend the plan review and inspections and permit applications sections of the ordinance to provide authority to the Village Administrator to oversee these processes.

A hard copy of the revised ordinance can be viewed at the municipal building or online at www.saladotx.gov.

Aldermen will consider and take action on the Concept Plan of Amity Estates, a proposed subdivision in the ETJ of the Village. Amity Estates is a five phase subdivision of 177.473 acres at the southwest corner of the intersection of FM 1670 and West Amity. When completed, it will have 197 lots.

The board will also hear a presentation on controlling the buzzard population.

AD finalists named, trustees make choice Feb. 9

Salado I.S.D. Trustees will meet 6 p.m. Feb. 9 to consider Superintendent Michael Novotny's recommendation for hiring a new Athletic Director for the district.

After a process that has involved three separate committees and interviews of seven finalists, Dr. Novotny will make that recommendation.

The seven finalists are these: Russell Anderson, Glen Jones, Marvin Rainwater, Yancey Sanderson, Kendall Smith, Jared Wingfield and Matt Wolfe.

Russell Anderson is the AD/HFC at Kerens High School, a position he has held since 2007 posting a record of 51-35. He was the special teams coordinator at Corsicana in 2002-06. He was the AD/HFC at Wortham High School in 1997-2002. He has held coaching/teaching positions at Gainesville, Kerens and the University of North Texas. He holds a

He was AD and Head Football Coach for more than six years at Brady High School. He began teaching and coaching in 1979.

Marvin Rainwater worked for 40 years in Killeen ISD as an elementary teacher, coach, high school counselor, assistant principal and principal. He retired from KISD after 22 years as principal of Ellison High School. After a year off, he returned to KISD to take on a low-performing elementary school and was then invited to open KISD's $28.6 million Career and Technology Center as the Executive Director. He has a master's degree from East Texas State and bachelor's degree from Southwest Texas State University and is certified as a counselor and principal.

He holds a master's degree in educational leadership and policy studies from University of Texas at Arlington and a bachelor's degree from University of Texas at Austin. He coached and taught chemistry at Copperas Cove High School for 12 years before taking the assistant principal position in 2014 at Gatesville

He was girls' athletic coordinator for seven years at Boles ISD and for a year at Center ISD. He holds a superintendent certificate from UT-Permian Basin, a principal certificate from East Texas and a master's degree in chemistry and a bachelor's degree in agriculture education from East Texas State University.

Jared Wingfield holds a master's degree from Lamar University and a bachelor's degree from Texas A&M. He is the AD/HFC at Mabank, a position he has held since 2012. He has coached and taught at Port Neches-Groves ISD, Westlake High School, Caldwell High School and College Station ISD.

Matt Wolfe holds a master's degree in education from Texas A&M Commerce and a bachelor's degree from University of Oklahoma. He is the assistant athletic director and principal intern at Ferris High School, where he is also the offensive coordinator and head baseball coach since 2001. He was assistant AD, head baseball coach and defensive coordinator at Tom Moore High School in Ingram. He has taught and coached in Texas schools since 2004.

The final interview committee was comprised of Dr. Novotny (who sat on all three committees), Bill Collier, junior high school coordinator, Kem Kyburz, parent, Buddy McBryde, head boys' track coach, Cindy Mewhinney, head girls' cross country coach, Burt Smith, director of curriculum and operations and Ross Sproul, high school principal. Last week, it was decided to extend the list of finalists from five to seven.

The interview committee for the first round were these: Dr. Novotny, Paul Baird, junior high school principal; Brent Graham, head football coach; Rachel Lee, high school assistant principal; Drew Pittman, parent; Heather Shannon, head volleyball coach and Nuni Venegas, head girls' track coach.

The Application Screening Committee included Dr. Novotny and Smith, and these: Kory Craddick, head softball coach; Michael Goos, head soccer coach; Diane Konarik, head girls' basketball coach; Chad Kremplin, head baseball coach and Jim Rosebrock, parent.

Once hired, the AD begins work this summer.

The White House's Emily Post moment

The White House has now become a stickler for protocol, especially when it comes to relations between the two political branches.

The new persnickiness arises from House Speaker John Boehner's invitation to Israeli Prime Minister Bibi Netanyahu to speak before a joint session of Congress in March. The invite is being denounced as a major breach and new low in Washington because he didn't, as had been the traditional practice with such invitations, coordinate with the White House.

As far as violations of the separation of powers in the Obama era, it's hard to see how this even comes close to registering. Maybe Emily Post wouldn't approve, and with a different administration it would be worth honoring every courtesy, but we are far beyond that now.

President Barack Obama has a notoriously piratical attitude toward Congress. He deliberately and gleefully trampled all over its role as the law-making branch, and cast aside his own as the executor of the laws. He has distorted the constitutional order to suit his whim, and now his allies are peeved that John Boehner made a wayward speaking invitation?

Rich Lowry

According to David Rogers of Politico, the speaker's office had tried to coordinate with the White House on a prior 2011 invitation to Netanyahu and got no response. More to the point: The speaker leads a coequal branch of government.

He can invite or not invite anyone he wants, up to and including the president, who is only invited to give the State of the Union address before a joint session of Congress as a matter of tradition. He can invite Phil Robertson or Neil deGrasse Tyson, the archbishop of Canterbury or the pope, just as he pleases.

The speaker shouldn't have to wait for White House sign-off for his invitations to address the House any more than the White House should coordinate with him whom it invites into the Oval Office.

The context of Netanyahu's visit is, of course, the nuclear talks with Iran. The administration is in a panic to get a deal with Iran, any deal. At this point, it doesn't want to hear a discouraging word from anyone, least of all Netanyahu, who is such a powerful communicator. It's not as though the White House opposes on principle interventions by foreign leaders into our Iran policy.

The legislation in question is bipartisan, and reasonable enough. Sponsored by Sens. Robert Menendez, D-N.J., and Mark Kirk, R-Ill., it would restore sanctions that have been loosened on Iran in the event there is no deal by the new June deadline for negotiations. And it would steadily tighten them thereafter. The White House is worried that the prospect of more sanctions will destroy its delicate dynamic with Iran, although Iran has continued to extend its tentacles in Yemen, Syria and Iraq without any fear of spooking us.

In a congressional hearing last week, Sen. Menendez lambasted the administration line on the sanctions bill that "sounds like talking points that come straight out of Tehran." That is from a leading foreign-policy voice of the president's own party. At least the unwelcome guest, Bibi Netanyahu, will be more polite.

Does Rep. White require all visitors to her office to declare their allegiance?

To the Editor:

Texas state representative Molly White, R-Belton made state headlines this past week by requiring Muslims who visited her office to declare their allegiance to America. She further noted on Facebook that she displayed the Israeli flag in her office. She was quoted that "We will see how long they stay in my office."

At the same time "hundreds of Texas Muslims visited the Capitol to meet lawmakers and learn about political engagement" From what I gather the Muslims were orderly and respectful during their visit.

And when the Muslims gathered on the steps of the Capitol, a small group of protestors, some of which labeled themselves as Christians, urged them to "go home."

What is wrong with these pictures?

Does Representative White require all visitors to her office declare allegiance to America? Does she check their religious affiliation? What about atheists? What about a Timothy McVey? What about any Bell County resident whose religious beliefs are different from Ms. White's?

But there is a more immediate concern. Aren't Ms. White's actions contrary to her responsibility as a public servant? Isn't what she said and did blatantly discriminatory?

There are many Bell County citizens who would be at odds with Ms. White's actions. In a nation of immigrants does "all men are created equal" just apply to us, but not them? Many residents of Bell risk their lives for our rights and freedoms.

Salado volunteers turn out despite cold, rainy day

It was cold, rainy day; a guilt-free reason to stay in and and enjoy life.

Not these folks. They worked in the rain removing Christmas Decorations and storing them for next year. All morning, they moved heavy metal angels, took down lights, and decorations without one complaint or comment of "where is everyone else?"

Not these folks. They started at 8 A.M. working in quarters with no heat. They painted, painted, and painted some more. The new Police quarters came to life. The Municipal Building glowed with new paint and a fresh look. These folks were on their knees, laying on the floor, and climbing ladders like experts on a mission and saving the village money.

Mayor Skip Blancett

Then, unexpectedly Horton doughnuts arrived for breakfast and Walsh pizza for lunch.

And, in the midst came a man, Eric Stewart owner, Window Gene, Killeen. A couple of months ago, he joined Salado's Chamber of Commerce even though his business and home are in Killeen. He said, "I am here to help my Village." And began washing every window in the Municipal Building. It was his birthday, but instead of "getting" he gave a wonderful present to us.

This is Salado. wonderful people who love their village.

Thursday, 5 February, Board of Aldermen. Part of the BOA will be State of Salado report -- where we have been, where we are now, and where we are going w. There is other business so it will not be long, but it will be thorough.

Tuesday, 17 February, 6:30 P.M., a critical Town Hall with TXDOT and James Construction. Even though work continues on Holland Bridge and other areas, it is not completed. Please come. It is time for straight-talk.

Also the 17th, road construction bids will be opened.

The weekend rainy weather hurt our shops. Please shop them.

Not Lovin' it

McDonald's is in the hot seat for retaliating against workers seeking higher wages.

McDonald's is scrambling, and I'm not talking about eggs.

Your know your business has what image consultants call "quality perception issues" when your public relations team is fielding such questions as: "Does McDonald's beef contain worms?"

Thornier yet for the world's largest burger machine is its boneheaded response to the remarkable, ongoing rebellion by fast food workers demanding a $15-an-hour wage and the freedom to unionize without corporate retaliation.

McDonald's responded by — guess what? — retaliating.

Its McManagers illegally reduced the hours (and therefore the pay) of hundreds of those who joined the "Fight For 15" campaign. Many also spied on workers, interrogated and threatened them, and imposed restrictions on their freedom even to talk about unions or working conditions.

The corporation now faces upwards of 100 federal charges of labor law violations — as well as rising customer anger over its ham-handed tactics. Naturally, McDonald's responded by apologizing and raising wages.

Ha! Just kidding.

Instead, it's running a new series of TV ads that, astonishingly, tries to tap into people's emotions about such tragic events as 9/11, as well as linking its logo to people's positive feelings about veterans, birthdays, and even "love."

Mickey D's corporate marketing director Deborah Wahl explains that the ads are all about the Golden Arches shining brightly in every community, being with us through the good and the bad.

As she puts it, "Who better to stand up for lovin' than McDonald's?"

Huh? She should ask protesting workers about the "love" they're getting from McDonald's.

Oh, to be fair, the bosses did make one change for workers. They got new uniforms.

That's not just boneheaded. It's pathetic.

Free and open internet needed for innovative, competitive economy

By MAC CLEMMENS

If you're reading this online, thank net neutrality.

Net neutrality is the principle that all Internet content must be delivered equally. This article shouldn't be transmitted more slowly than another one. Your cat video shouldn't be given priority over a TED Talk. More importantly, your small business' website shouldn't be loaded slower than Amazon's. Put it this way: Net neutrality prevents preferential treatment; it is freedom from interference.

That freedom is crucial to businesses large and small. According to Fast Company, Amazon calculated that just one more second of page loading time could cost $1.6 billion in sales each year. Amazon could probably handle that loss, but most small businesses probably couldn't, and some might not get off the ground. Imagine if Hulu or Netflix had, in their infancy, been forced to pay high fees or face tortoise-like loading speeds.

So when the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) released a proposal that would have allowed Internet Service Providers (ISPs) to slow down traffic and charge a fee for higher speeds, small businesses took notice.

My company serves nonprofits—churches, domestic violence groups, educational institutions—groups that cannot afford to pay for faster speeds. Yet without Net Neutrality, commercially-sponsored content would be streamed in no time, while groups like these which are dedicated to helping people could see their speeds slow to a crawl. Our mission is to empower people who do good in the world. This proposal would be devastating to that goal, and the groups we work with.

As many as four million people commented on the proposal, with the vast majority supporting net neutrality and less than 1% opposed. Business groups like the American Sustainable Business Council (ASBC) joined in, helping to make the business case for net neutrality: too many businesses simply can't afford to have their communications slowed.

The FCC should understand that there's a sure-fire way to protect net neutrality: reclassify broadband to fit under Title II of the Telecommunications Act, thereby giving the FCC the power to ensure that consumers be protected.

The reclassification argument has support from none other than President Obama. "For almost a century," he explained, "our law has recognized that companies who connect you to the world have special obligations not to exploit the monopoly they enjoy. It is common sense that the same philosophy should guide any service that is based on the transmission of information—whether a phone call, or a packet of data."

Small businesses need net neutrality—as does the economy as a whole. We can't have a system where established companies with deeper pockets play by a different set of rules. That runs contrary to the American entrepreneurial spirit. That's why net neutrality has strong support on both sides of the political aisle.

ISPs have argued that reclassifying broadband under Title II will harm consumers—that too much regulation would snuff out investment and innovation, and lead to larger bills. It is understandable that the industry would not want additional regulation. But in reality, reclassification would simply legally enforce the status quo. The Internet now is a place where content gets distributed equally, without forcing people to pay for the privilege. That's the way it should stay.

Yes, ISPs would lose a potential revenue stream. But, considering ISPs have already created an artificial scarcity in broadband by locking up a large percentage of metropolitan fiber in agreements with municipalities, that's a poor argument.

ISPs in many parts of the country already benefit from a near-total lack of competition, and our Internet speeds are slower—and cost more—than in many other countries. Letting ISPs interfere with traffic will only make matters worse—the Internet that works best is the one that works with the least interference.

We need an Internet that's open and free to all, and we must ensure that all American businesses can remain competitive, both domestically and globally. Covering broadband under Title II may not be ideal, but it's currently our best hope to ensure the Internet remains a place for innovation.

Love Letters was a finalist for the Pulitzer Prize. It captures a 50-year relationship through letters between Melissa Gardner and her childhood-friend-turned-love-interest, Andrew Makepeace Ladd III. It is a perfect show for Valentine's lovers.

Fans of the Silver Spur will remember Sharon Smith and husband Steve Smith, who will perform on Valentine's night Feb. 14. Sharon portrayed the young Grace Jones in the Spur's presentation of "Oh Grace!" She also portrayed Patsy Cline in "Always Patsy Cline." Steve played Grace's husband Jack Jones in "Oh Grace!"

Parking and access to The Venue is from College Street, off of Royal St.

Texas Prepaid Tuition Program enrollment deadline approaches

Texas families seeking to lock in the cost of undergraduate tuition and required fees at Texas public colleges and universities are urged to enroll their children in the Texas Tuition Promise Fund® prior to the close of the current enrollment period, which ends on Feb. 28.

The Texas Tuition Promise Fund, the state's prepaid college tuition program, allows participants to purchase tuition units based on current prices and avoid future increases in the cost of undergraduate tuition and school-wide required fees at Texas public colleges and universities.

"Prepaying tuition and most required fees at Texas public colleges and universities through the Promise Fund can give peace of mind to countless Texas parents concerned about the rising cost of college and the future success of their children," Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar said. "Families can feel secure knowing they are locking in today's rates for tomorrow's tuition and fees at Texas public colleges and universities. The plan's range of options gives budget conscious Texas families the flexibility needed to provide future opportunities for their children."

Under the plan, families can prepay tuition and school-wide required fees for a four-year degree, two years of community college or just a few semesters at Texas public colleges and universities by purchasing tuition units.

Enrollment in the program at 2014-15 prices will close Feb. 28. This deadline extends to July 31 for children younger than 1. The next annual enrollment period begins Sept. 1, with new contract prices based on Texas public college costs for the 2015-16 academic year.

Complete plan information, current prices, enrollment forms and more are available online at www.TuitionPromise.org, or call 1-800-445-GRAD (4723), Option 5.
