Buzzard abatement sits atop aldermen agenda

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Noise. And a lot of it. That's what Salado residents can expect if the United State Department of Agriculture comes into Salado to help rid it of Turkey Buzzards and Black Buzzards.

"Sounds like a 12-gauge shotgun going off," Adam Henry said of the hand-held explosives that will be used repeatedly during the hours of dusk to keep the buzzards from returning to their roosts in dead trees near Salado Creek and Center Circle.

Salado aldermen discussed at their Feb. 5 meeting a buzzard abatement program through the USDA Wildlife Management division. The board has set it for an action item at its Feb. 19 meeting.

If an agreement with the USDA Wildlife Management division can be reached, work can begin shortly after and would take about two weeks or early March to complete.

Henry told aldermen Feb. 5 that this annoyance program has had some success in other places in moving the buzzards from areas where they are a nuisance (generally in populated areas or in areas where their feces may cause problems to water or cell towers).

The USDA works with private property owners "who give us permission to start abatement on their properties," he said, adding that the program is paid for by the county and will be done at no cost to the city.

Because the USDA Wildlife Services team will be coming into the city limits to operate, they will require an agreement signed by the Village in order to start. Part of that agreement will likely have to include a waiver of the Village Noise Ordinance, which does not allow fireworks, firearms or the like to be discharged in the city limits except for during Salado Legends.

In addition to the hand-held pyrotechnics, Henry said, wildlife officials may also hang effigies near the roosts, as well as helium balloons with flashing lights and noises "to run off the birds."

The program generally takes about two weeks, with the wildlife team setting up before dark. "This way we won't be waking up the kids and working folks at sunrise," Henry said.

The program may include cutting down the dead trees that have become roosts for the migratory birds, which will be leaving the area this spring.

Temple resident Dwight Peak told aldermen that he felt "the vultures needed an advocate. What vultures eat makes me sick, literally and figuratively...

Because they eat rotten meat, it protects me and you from disease. If the vultures leave, what will dispose of the dead animals they eat?"

He said that vulture removal in India ended up having an economic cost of $50 billion.

"Is the expense of moving or killing them justified," Peak said. "They are magnificent animals when you watch the fly. They have their own beauty and place in nature and we should respect it."

Amity Estates Concept Plan Approved

Aldermen approved the Concept Plan for Amity Estates, a 173-acre subdivision at the southwest corner of FM 1670 and West Amity Road, in the Extra Territorial Jurisdiction (ETJ) of Salado.

Amity Estates is a five-phase residential subdivision that will have a total 197 lots.

The Village engineer confirmed that the concept plan conforms with all requirements for this stage of review.

There are no new thoroughfares planned for the area. The plan provides for four entrances into the subdivision: Bozon Drive connects West Amity and FM 1670; Day Drive connects into FM 1670 and Few Oaks connects to West Amity.

SISD hires A.D., tapping retired Killeen principal

Salado school trustees at a called meeting Feb. 9 hired Marvin Rainwater, former teacher, coach, counselor and principal from Killeen ISD, as the new Athletic Director for the district.

Rainwater worked for 40 years in Killeen ISD as an elementary teacher, coach, high school counselor, assistant principal and principal. He retired from KISD after 22 years as principal of Ellison High School. After a year off, he returned to KISD to take on a low-performing elementary school and was then invited to open KISD's $28.6 million Career and Technology Center as the Executive Director. He has a master's degree from East Texas State and bachelor's degree from Southwest Texas State University and is certified as a counselor and principal.

Two separate committees interviewed applicants and Rainwater was the unanimous choice of both, Dr. Michael Novotny told trustees when making his recommendation.

During the interview, Rainwater "demonstrated a calm voice of reason and wisdom as well as frankness and sincerity; he immediately established a feeling of trust and proved that he was truly listening to what people were saying," committee member J.J. Jonas said.

"He has tremendous experience working successfully with all groups of stakeholders involved in a school system including teachers and coaches, student/athletes, parents and the community as a whole," said Burt Smith, Director of Curriculum and Operations.

Rainwater will begin work for Salado n July on a 12 month contract with a salary of $75,000.

Measles outbreak renews vaccination debate

By JOHN MICHAELSON
TEXAS NEWS SERVICE

AUSTIN, Texas - Doctors, parents and politicians across the country are involved in a heated debate over vaccinations, following a measles outbreak that began at Disneyland in California.

Top health leaders link the outbreak to children who were not vaccinated for the disease.

Dr. Lainna Callentine, a pediatrician in Illinois, says it's crucial that parents discuss with their pediatricians their reasons for or against choosing to vaccinate their children.

"As a pediatrician, my role is to educate and to empower parents to make healthy decisions on behalf of their children," she states. "But I have to respect that a parent has a right ultimately to make that decision and that is not my personal right on their behalf."

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), more than 100 people from 14 states, including Texas, were reported to have measles in January, most of them linked to the Disneyland outbreak.

Parents may choose to not vaccinate, or delay vaccinating, for religious beliefs, medical issues, poverty or a lack of access to medical care, but regardless of the reasons, some doctors refuse to accept patients whose parents are anti-vaccine. Callentine says that sends the wrong message.

"I see a problem with physicians who do not allow healthy dialogue and questions," she says. "When you push them out of your practice, you're really pushing them into the arms of perhaps some of the charlatans out there who are feeding a lot of misinformation."

According to a Pew Research Center report, about 68 percent of Americans say vaccines should be required, and 30 percent say vaccines should be a matter of personal choice.

Callentine adds that there is a lot of information available about vaccinations, and parents should be fully educated before making a decision for their child.

"It's important for parents to understand the information they are looking at and where that information comes from. It's also important to understand how those illnesses are transmitted," she stresses. "There's a lot of other factors that they need to look at as far as risks to the vaccine, or risks to contracting that illness."

County seeks support for Expo expansion through HOT

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Bell County Commissioners are seeking support for proposed legislation that will allow the County to levy a two percent hotel occupancy tax to benefit expansion of and improvements to the Bell County Expo Center.

Commissioner Tim Brown, who has represented Salado for the past two decades, spoke to the Salado Board of Aldermen Feb. 5 seeking their support through a local resolution for the implementation of the county-wide HOT.

Part of the proposed expansion, partially funded through the HOT revenues, will be the construction of an equestrian center and an air-conditioned exhibition center.

The proposed expansion is estimated at $25 million, according to Brown. It would address limitations of the Expo Center that were identified in a 2008 study by Conventions, Sports & Leisure (CS&L).

That study process included a local market visit, in-person interviews with Bell County area individuals, analysis of local market conditions as well as regional and national trends, analysis of facility data from 26 comparable and competitive facilities, analysis of the socioeconomic data of those competitive regional facility markets, telephone interviews with event producers, including 100 equine, livestock, agricultural and convention events and 700 surveys of attendees at recent Expo Center events.

The survey concluded that Bell County Expo has several strengths, including a centralized location in th the state, proximity to Dallas, Austin, San Antonio, Houston and Waco, interstate access and Ft. Hood and growth characteristics.

Weaknesses pointed out in the survey were the modest size of the metro area, driving distance to largest regional cities, hotel inventory within close proximity to the center, lack of visitor amenities near the center, impressions of event producers regarding the area's "destination appeal" and competitive in-state environment in terms of facility products.

Physical limitations of the Expo Center include the lack of an indoor dirt arena, significant limitations in RV hookups, proximity issues to stalls, warm-up and loping areas, and lack of climate control in large facilities.

According to the study, a new Multipurpose Facility would free up dates in the existing Main Arena for events better-suited for the concrete-floored, spectator-oriented venue, match the needs/requirements of more equine/livestock/agricultural events, reduce relative costs for both events and attract new events and new visitors to Bell County.

The 2008 study calls for construction of the Multipurpose Arena with these considerations: a dirt floor, ring size targeting 45,000 sq. ft. (300 by 150 feet), bleacher seating for 2,000, climate controlled and connected to the existing center, 30,000 sq. ft concrete floor exhibition space plus added stall/pen space under same roof and additional storage and temporary pen space.

While the initial 2008 study called for a minimum of 200 RV hookups for competitors and attendees of these events, Brown told aldermen that the new plan scales it back to fewer than 30 hookups.

Alderman Hans Fields asked Brown if he could see those plans and was told that they would be made available to them. He asked if the study had been updated and Brown told him that the county was not going to spend another $50,000 to study the issue further.

The study estimates that the expansion would

The Kochs Ride Again

It was interesting while it lasted, but the 2016 election is now officially "bought." The purchasers are the Koch brothers, and the price, a cool $889 million.

The news that the network organized by David and Charles Koch plans to spend roughly $900 million in the 2016 cycle has freaked out Democrats, outraged so-called campaign-finance reformers and inspired hand-wringing about the future of the planet Earth.

The despair is misplaced. One sign it is still a free country is that a band of like-minded people, devoted to principles they consider essential to the country's thriving, can get together and try to affect them in public policy.

For all that campaign reformers hate the Kochs, the brothers' network is, in part, their creation. "This is the natural consequence," campaign-finance reformer Lawrence Lessig griped about the $889 million, "of a regime with essentially no contribution limits."

Actually, it is the inevitable consequence of contribution limits. The campaign-finance reformers kneecapped the political parties with malice aforethought and then are stunned that, in a free country, political activity has found other outlets.

Rich Lowry

If Reince Priebus and Debbie Wasserman Schultz are limited to raising $32,400 per donor annually, they will inevitably lose ground to outside groups.

Rather than freeing up the parties, advocates of greater regulation want to make it as difficult, or perhaps even impossible, for everyone else to raise and spend money on politics. The only obstacle to this ambition is -- damn you, George Mason -- the Bill of Rights, specifically the First Amendment.

That is why Democrats like current House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi hope to amend the First Amendment to allow the government the latitude to further limit political speech. Until such time (and may it never arrive), the Kochs and their allies get to run free.

The left always wants to paint the Koch brothers as self-interested, to better fit the stereotype of the robber baron distorting government for his own ends.

But they are the rare breed of businessmen who don't seek special favors from government, who in fact oppose them on principle. They are capitalists who hate crony capitalism. In the libertarian paradise that they seek, the Kochs would be freer of government regulation -- but so would everyone else.

The $889 million figure is not quite what it seems. It encompasses all the Koch spending, including support for academic programs and think tanks. Nor is "buying" an election all it is cracked up to be. The Kochs spent some $400 million on the 2012 election, and came up empty.

The brothers are arch-villains, regardless. The left is invested in trying to find a way to squeeze them out of the political process, because it instinctively hates anything being unregulated, including political activity.

Also, its attitude is "influence for me, but not for thee." The left, by and large, owns the media, academia, the big foundations and Hollywood. Compared with all of that priceless political and cultural influence, the spending of the Koch network is a pittance.

The Koch brothers will nonetheless remain targets, so long as they continue to so prominently represent and advocate for a free society.

Are buzzards symbolic?

To the Editor:

"For all things there is a season." Mr. Mayor, Aldermen, Alderwoman, Fellow Citizens: Perhaps the flocking buzzards have a double meaning. All nature lovers recognize that buzzards are nature's cleaning crew. With the hue and cry "if we build it they will come" ringing in our ears, the wished-for developers are here in force. Unknown pit falls lie ahead! The recently passed bond issue falls on some but not all. Growth explosion will require additional school tax. Perhaps the explosive buzzard population is natural law's early warning for the Village fathers to proceed with caution.

Uncontrolled rapid growth may well produce many troubling and unintended consequences directly related to the ravenous developers now circling, as are the buzzards, over the Village of Salado. "Beware the Ides of March."

Maurice Striegler
Salado

750 acres of development

It almost seems like Baca Valley. In 18 months -- 750 acres of development begins; I-35 Construction, endless; and Business is slow. "Salado on the rocks" seems more descriptive than an event.

Think so? Ever listen to Village Visitors? Here is one from Saturday: "We've been reading about you and we came to see for ourselves. With your challenges, most Villages would have died. How do you do it?" Good question.

Time for a "cheerleading pill?" Forget it. The challenges are too big for cheerleading. Let's try fact.

The great movements in history are the sum of visionaries -- generations of uncompromised lives, and non-negotiated truths. They dreamed unflinchingly, worked unceasingly, and loved unquenchably.

Mayor Skip Blancett

Sound familiar? It's your history, Salado. Your founders were visionaries who refused to accept "impossible." No bragging, just fact.

Today, new visionaries are taking their place. Ask the questions and listen to their balanced, well-articulated answers. They do not flinch, wringing their hands in despair, proclaiming defeat.

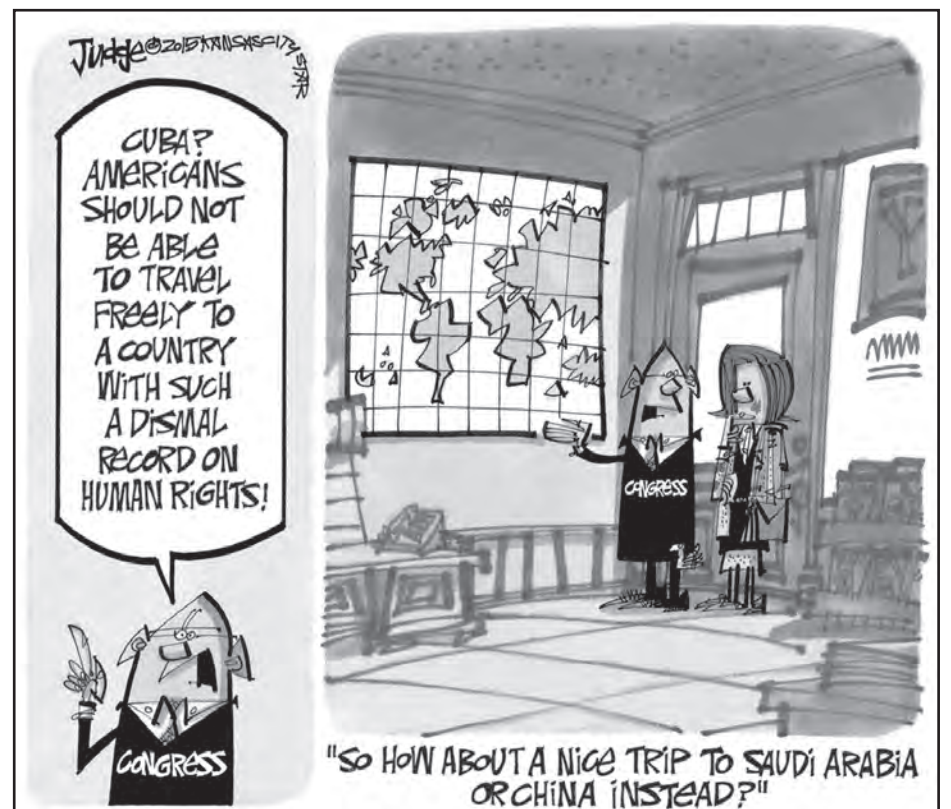

These visionaries volunteer to serve on the critical economic and development; water treatment; and Annexation/ETJ committees. They are intense, and well-informed. As one said this week, "We may be struggling to catch up with development, but not for long. We will not gamble with the future of Salado."

Listen Tuesday, 17 February, 6:30 P.M., Middle School Cafeteria, in the TXDOT/James Construction Town Hall. These visionaries are not loud and obnoxious. They ask the hard questions and challenge half-baked answers with balanced comments. Come and see. It is time for straight talk.

The Aldermen/Alder-Lady and the Chamber of Commerce are not fair-weather friends. They serve on two-or-more committees and often work into the night to address needs. Not easy but they do it because they love Salado.

Got the message? Salado is powerful because of visionaries like YOU. No cheerleading; just fact.

Bailed-out banker dares to lecture us about fairness??

JPMorgan honcho Jamie Dimon should count his millions and be grateful he's not in jail

Jamie Dimon is annoyed. He's fed up with the populist attitude that's sweeping the country. He's not going to take it anymore.

That's why he recently bleated to reporters that "banks are under assault."

Well, not every bank. He was talking about JPMorgan Chase -- America's largest Wall Street empire, which Dimon heads.

Government regulators, he snarls, are pandering to grassroots anger at Wall Street excesses by squeezing the life out of the JPMorgan casino.

But wait -- didn't JPMorgan score a record $22-billion profit last year?

And didn't those Big Bad Government Regulators provide a $25-billion taxpayer bailout in 2008 to save Dimon's conglomerate from its own recklessness?

And isn't this Wall Street popinjay raking in over $20 million in personal pay to suffer the how American that is," he lectured reporters, and "how fair that is."

Golly. One reason JPMorgan has half-a-dozen regulators on its case is because it doesn't have just "one issue" with regulators.

It has beaucoup issues -- including deceiving its own investors, cheating more than two million of its credit card customers, gaming the rules to overcharge electricity users in California and the Midwest, overcharging active-duty military families on their mortgages, illegally foreclosing on troubled homeowners, and...well, so much more.

Dimon should ask himself "how fair" all that is. Then he should shut up, count his millions, and be grateful he's not in jail.

Yes, yes, and yes. Still, Dimon says regulators are piling on JPMorgan.

Hotel Tax

increase usage of the center by 35 events, including 29 equestrian events. It could increase event days to 600 from the current 493 days and increase event attendance from 406,189 to 497,774.

This would also increase the annual operating budget for the Expo Center from $2 million in revenues and $2.7 million in expenditures to $2.8 million in revenues and $3.4 million in expenditures.

"No facility of this type operates at a profit," Brown said, "They aren't intended to be profit-centers." Instead, these facilities bring "people into town who spend money in the local hotels, restaurants and other businesses."

The study estimates the expansion could drive an additional $9 million into the Bell County economy annually. Of that, almost $2 million would be in added hotel revenues, $2.8 million in added restaurant revenues and $1.1 million in other areas.

Salado area business owners are not convinced, at least those who spoke during the public comment section of the meeting Feb. 5. In earlier attempts by Bell County Commissioners to garner support for the county tax, Salado has been neutral at best and more likely in opposition to it.

Jill Shipman, who owns Stonecreek Settlement with her husband Johnny, said that in the 15 years of operating Stonecreek, she has rented one cottage due to an event at the Expo Center. "This does not benefit us in any way," she said, adding that if the dirt facilities are expanded, "it will be in direct competition with Wildfire Ranch."

Creta Ferrin, owner of Salado Creek Jewelers, said that the added tax "will put a hardship on all of us."

Will Lowery, owner of Inn on the Creek. The Venue and The Shed properties, said that in the past occasions that this proposal has come up, local businesses and lodging properties have asked the County for a protocol to make it easy for these properties to see that there are opportunities for additional lodging in Salado when there are events at the Expo Center. He said that for many of the lodging properties, those opportunities do not exist. "In the past decade at Inn on the Creek," Lowery said, "the number of guests staying with us from the Expo Center has absolutely been inconsequential."

According to Brown and County Judge Jon Burrows, the 2 percent HOT would generate about $1 million annually. The county plans on remitting back to the municipalities about 15 percent of the revenues "to target their marketing to enhance the lodging industry," Brown said. For Salado, that could mean $9,100 per year, according to Judge Burrows.

Aldermen will discuss the topic at their Feb. 19 workshop meeting. By then, the City of Killeen, which has stood in opposition to previous attempts at the county HOT tax, may have brought the proposal to a vote. The Killeen City Council decided on Feb. 3 that it would bring the topic to a vote at a future meeting. Greater Killeen Chamber of Commerce President John Crutchfield told the Killeen city council that the public policy committee was in opposition to the proposal, adding that his priority for the Killeen Chamber was getting a third building on the campus of the Texas A&M University-Central Texas.

Among local bodies that have endorsed the Bell County HOT are the Chambers of Commerce, Economic Development Corporations and City Councils of Temple, Belton and Harker Heights, according to Burrows.

The state hotel occupancy tax is 6 percent. It is governed under Chapter 156 of the Texas Tax Code and the state hotel occupancy tax is administered by the Texas Comptroller's office, largely used for the general governmental operations of the State. According to the Comptroller's office, A portion of the state hotel occupancy tax revenue also goes toward funding tourism promotion through Texas's ad campaign. Most Texans know this successful ad campaign by its famous tag-line, "Texas, it's like a whole other country."

According to the Texas Hotel and Lodging Association's guiding document "What Cities Should Know to Administer the Hotel Occupancy Tax," metropolitan areas in Texas such as Houston and San Antonio have some of the highest hotel occupancy tax rates in the nation with a combined rate of 17 percent and 16.75 percent respectively.

If the Bell County HOT is authorized by the state and then adopted by resolution of the Bell County Commissioner's court, the HOT tax rate for the Village of Salado and its ETJ will be 15 percent (6 percent state rate, 7 percent municipal rate and 2 percent county rate).

HOT revenue is strictly regulated by state legislation for its usage by counties and municipalities. It may only be used to promote tourism and the convention and the hotel industry, and that use is limited to specific projects.

According to the THLA document on HOT expenditures, HOT tax revenue may be seen on these items: Constructing, maintaining and operating a convention or visitor center; Furnishing facilities and personnel for the registration of convention delegates; Advertising and promotional programs to attract tourists; Encouragement and promotion of the arts; Historical restoration and preservation projects and advertising to encourage tourists to visit historic sites and museums; Sporting events where the majority of the participants come from out of town; Sports facilities that routinely host regional or national tournaments; Coliseums or multi-use facilities; Signage directing the public to sights and attractions frequently visited by tourists; and Transportation to tourist attractions.

There are currently 73 Texas counties authorized by state law to collect county hotel occupancy taxes. Of those, two dozen counties collect the county HOT in addition to the HOT levied by the municipalities of those counties. In these counties, the county-wide HOT is affected by an overall HOT ceiling. For example, in Harris County, where the county HOT is 7 percent, it is only 2 percent in Houston, where the city's HOT is 7 percent.

Of the 73 counties levying a HOT, 11 counties are rural and have no municipalities within them that administer the hotel occupancy tax.

CHRISTY'S OF SALADO HOST FASHION SHOW

Thomas honored as Baylor Alumni Woman of 2015

For twenty-one years the Baylor Women of Central Texas have held their brunch to raise funds to enhance the Central Texas Endowed Scholarship, awarded to students in this area. This year's event will be held from 9:30 a.m.- noon, Feb. 21, at the Wildflower Country Club in Temple. A Silent Auction will be held prior to the brunch. Christy's of Salado will host the style show.

A special attraction will be entertainment by Baylor's own Holly Tucker, who competed on The Voice and made it to the top six out of 40,000 hopefuls. She is majoring in Speech Communication.

Honored as Distinguished Baylor Woman for 2015 is Amy Aldrich Thomas, a Temple native. Her parents were Elbert and Dorothy Ann Cox Aldrich who owned Elbert Aldrich Real Estate. She attended elementary, junior high and high school in Temple, and was a 3-year member of the Polyfonics and the Pepperettes. Both Amy and her sister, Ann, are Baylor graduates, with Bachelors in Business Administration. She met Lloyd Thomas at Baylor and they married in the sanctuary of First Baptist Church of Temple in 1997. Thomas went to work in the real estate firm.

They have two daughters, Lauren Ann and Meg, both Baylor graduates. Lauren's husband, Scott Maggard, who has both bachelors and masters degrees from Baylor. Meg married Jerry Prince Solomon and is currently a candidate to receive her Master of Science in educational Psychology in August of 2015. In later years, Amy returned to the family business. The Aldrich-Thomas Group was selected as the Baylor Hankamer School of Business First Family in 2006.

She and her husband have been active members of First Baptist Church of Temple for many years where she is a member of the Sanctuary Choir and the Ladies' Handbell choir. She is Past President of the Junior League of Temple (now Bell County) and has served as Chairman of the Holly Day Express, President of the Temple High PTO, President of the Central Texas Orchestral Society Wildflower Guild, and President of the Cultural Activities Center. She opened Zooty's Retail shop in 2009.

The other award given at the brunch is Baylor Woman at Heart. This lady is chosen for her support and allegiance to Baylor, even though she did not attend Baylor. This year's recipient is Patricia Ann "Pat" Hoxworth, born in Belton, but who attended Killeen public schools, graduating from Killeen High School. She is a Baylor Bear by Choice. Her desire for Christian ideals and mission, drew her to claim Baylor as her school. She married Bobby Hoxworth, a 2001 graduate of Baylor with an MBA degree. Their niece, Dr. Nicole McAninch, is a lecturer at Baylor and their nephew, Richard Hoxworth, is a student at Truett Theological Seminary.

Pat has served on the Board of the Viva Le Arts Society of Killeen and is active in the Central Texas-Ft. Hood Chapter of the Association of the United States Army.

Reservations may be made by calling Pam Dial Taylor at 254-760-8855 by Wednesday, Feb. 18. Tickets are $35 and may be paid for at the door.

Bell County Museum Celebrates Black History Month

In honor of Black History Month as well as honoring their traveling exhibit, For All the World to See: Visual Culture and the Struggle for Civil Rights, they have a special program planned! On February 14, from 2-4 p.m. Rev. Roscoe Harrison, Jr., a Bell County treasure and active participant in the Civil Rights movement will present, "A Bridge Across the Racial Divide." Rev. Harrison pastors at Eighth Street Baptist Church and is a former community affairs director for the Scott & White healthcare System's Center for healthcare policy. A Belton native and graduate of Prairie View A & M, Rev. Harrison went on to work for Jet magazine and participated in the coverage of Several Major news events including the death and funeral of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. This coverage won a Pulitzer Prize in 1969. Roscoe brings a great deal of information to this community and is an ardent supporter of civil liberties and equal rights for all. Refreshments will be served at this free event.

For All the World to See: Visual Culture and the Struggle for Civil Rights is on view through March 14. This powerful exhibit comes with a book by the same name; it retails for $39.95 plus tax. Begin your Spring 2015 with an uplifting concert by Gershwin!

The time has come to honor one of America's best known song and stage composers George Gershwin at the Family Pops Concert hosted by Temple Symphony Orchestra 7:30 p.m. March 7.

The Prologue will begin at 6:30 p.m. to discuss the life of the musician. at the Mary Alice

Marshall Performing Arts Center Temple College 2600 South First Street Temple, Texas www.TempleSymphony.org to purchase tickets or at the door the night of the concert

Along with his brother Ira, who wrote most of his lyrics for his songs and plays, most well known is "Porgy and Bess".

"Celebrate spring, and celebrate the musical talent of George Gershwin. We will have our Prologue by Steve Pettit, who stated "More than any other American composer, George Gershwin's music has influenced and helped to shape our culture. He died at the too-young age of 39, leaving a scattering of orchestral compositions and scores of popular songs that are original, contagious and definitive. Unlike most of us, he lived "not for diversions - but for work." And the fascinating life of George, his brother Ira, and the times they thrived in are the subject of our next TSO Performance Prologue."
