Aldermen sever Foutz' employ, consider interim manager

Salado aldermen will consider David Miller as Interim City Manager following an executive session 6:30 p.m. Oct. 13. The board, after voting in Sept. 15 to put city administrator Kim Foutz on paid administrative leave "for a period not to exceed 30 days under terms set by the Mayor, in order for the Mayor or his designees to conduct an investigation into complaints against the Administrator and to determine if the Administrator's employment contract should be terminated for Good Cause," voted on Oct. 6 to unilaterally terminate its employment agreement with Kim Foutz.

The vote came on a motion by alderman Amber Preston-Dankert to follow the advice and financial support of the village insurance carriers supporting unilateral severance of the agreement.

While the board voted to sever the employment agreement, it did not announce a severance date in the motion approved by aldermen. Mayor Skip Blancett told Salado Village Voice that the date of severance is Nov. 7. Foutz will remain on paid administrative leave until the date of severance. The Village is further obligated to a severance amount of 12 months of the administrator's salary current ($80,000) plus the value of any accrued and unused vacation and sick/personal leave days. Severance Benefits include continued health insurance benefits of $517 per month for up to six months provided Foutz does not take earlier full time employment and benefits elsewhere.

Finally, according to the employment agreement, "In the event of a Unilateral Severance, the parties agree not to make disparaging comments or statements about each other."

In addition to the vote to unilaterally sever Foutz' employment in Salado, the board also voted to hire Judy King as an administrative assistant.

Aldermen will consider "any necessary action as it relates to the position of Interim Village Administrator" following the executive session Oct. 13.

David Miller was the Deputy City Manager for the City of Bedford, Texas from February 2010 to February 2015.

He was the City Manager of Forest Hill, Texas from April 2006 to December 2009.

He was the City Manager of Kennedale, Texas from November 2002 to April 2006. He was the assistant/interim city manager there from April 2002 until he was hired as the city manager later that year.

Miller worked for the Town of Trophy Club from September 1990 to April 2002, where he became the Director of Public Safety.

He holds a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration. He pursues continuing education through the Texas Municipal League, Texas City Managers Association and International City Managers Association. He holds a Master Peace Officer certification and is a certified firefighter and certified emergency medical technician.

Salado Masonic Lodge hosts open house Oct. 23

Much of the history of Salado is linked to Salado Masonic Lodge #296. Many of the men who founded Salado were Masons.

The Masonic Lodge will mark its 150th anniversary in June 2017.

On Oct. 23, it will join the more than 1,000 lodges under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Texas Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons in hosting an Open House for the community.

Salado Masonic Lodge #296 will open its doors to the community 2-4 p.m. on Oct. 23. There will be representatives of the Appendant Bodies, including the Shrine, the Scottish Rite, the York Rite and the Knights Templar.

The following history of the lodge is taken from the lodge's program during its Century Celebration in 1967 written by the late Charlton E. Johnson.

The petitioners for Dispensation and Charter were: E. Sterling C. Robertson, Harvey Smith,

W.A. Davis, O.T. Tyler, A. Rowland, Robert B. Halley, Jno. A. Tyler, F. A. Bigelow, N.R. Land, H.J. Chamberlain, W.R. Karnes, G.W. Wade, M.W. Adams, Jno T. Flint, Geo. W. McWhirter, Welborn Barton, Jas. Tinnin, A. Tinnin, and Jesse Raborn.

The Minutes of Salado Lodge were destroyed in a fire about 1883 and we are deprived of that source of information as to the early activities of the Lodge, after Dispensation.

We may safely assume, however, that education was one of the principal objectives of the Lodge and a matter stressed in its discussions and proceedings.

Thirty-three percent of the teachers and seventy-seven percent of the Trustees of the College were Masons. The founders (of the College), most of whom have been found to be Masons, also made provision in the Deeds of purchase of lots to prohibit the sale of intoxicating beverages by the drink in Salado.

"It seems," writes Mrs. Felda Shanklin, Salado historian, "that most all of those early Salado men were Masons."

The Charter for Salado Masonic Lodge was granted by the Grand Lodge of Texas on June 13, A.D. 1867, and was signed by Grand Master John R. Freitwell.

The first Grand Lodge Report of Salado Lodge after the granting of a Charter shows the following officers: E.S.C. Robertson, W.M.; Harvey Smith, S.W.; W.A. Davis, J.W.; O.T. Tyler, Treas.; W. Barton, Sec.; J.W. Tinnin, S.D.; I. Raborn, J.D.; R.B. Halley, Tiler. This report also shows a membership of twenty-two M.M. by affiliation, one Fellowcraft, five Enter Apprentices, and one Past Master.

On the back of a Grand Lodge, Report U. D., there is this notation: "The Lodge Room of Salado Lodge is the second story

An Open Exchange of Ideas

The Media Freakout

We are in the midst of an epic media freakout.

It is a subset of a larger liberal panic over Donald Trump's strength in the general election. The mood of the center-left is, "America, how dare you?" The outraged incomprehension is seeping into and, increasingly, driving the coverage of the race.

The freakout began a few weeks ago when Donald Trump started to close the polling gap with Hillary Clinton, and picked up intensity as the race essentially became a tie. The media is going to be in a perpetual state of high anxiety and dudgeon until Election Day.

The press is playing catch-up. It didn't take much foresight to realize that giving Trump $2 billion worth of free publicity in his primary battle might help him win his party's nomination. Still, it was all fun and games as long as the ratings were good and Trump trailed Hillary.

Not anymore. There have been two seminal events in the freakout. The first was the absurdly over-the-top criticism of Matt Lauer for not being tough enough on Trump at an NBC national-security forum. Lauer couldn't have satisfied his critics short of slapping Trump in the face and demanding, "Have you no sense of decency, sir?"

The second was a New

Rich Lowry

York Times "news analysis" on Trump's disavowal of birtherism that was intended as an exemplary act of journalistic aggression -- a rhetorical assault worthy of the poison pen of Maureen Dowd that led the paper with the extremely hostile headline, "Trump Gives Up a Lie, But Refuses to Repent."

Some of the anti-Trumpism in the press has been expressed in pointless and annoying gestures, such as CNN's practice of fact-checking Trump's statements in snarky chyrons at the bottom of the screen.

More significantly, Lester Holt tilted anti-Trump during the debate. Trump got tougher questions than Clinton, who was spared queries on matters such as the Clinton Foundation and Benghazi. And he fact-checked Trump in real time twice, arguably getting his correction of Trump about a complex stop-and-frisk case wrong. Notably, Holt got positive reviews.

Trump is indeed a different kind of animal and has stressed every institution that has encountered him over the past year, from the Republican National Committee to rival campaigns to the press. But the current media freakout is hard to take, and a mistake.

One, it is galling, since the media is collectively deciding to give up on an objectivity that it never had. John McCain and Mitt Romney, upstanding, honorable men who weren't allegedly threats to the republic, were on the receiving end of more negative coverage than Barack Obama.

Two, it speaks to a certain contempt for the media's fellow citizens, who are presumed incapable of rationally evaluating the candidates without its thumb on the scale.

Three, if Trump loses, the press will go right back to its pose of objectivity. Whereas the only good thing about the media's current jag is that it might represent movement toward a more British-style (and traditional American-style) journalism, with outlets forthrightly acknowledging their partisan allegiances.

Nothing is going to dissuade the press from its current course, though. There is no reasoning with fear and loathing.

This is a most coveted award.

Thank you for a great weekend!

Why Our Kids Are Coming in Last Place

GLOBAL RESEARCH LINKS INCOME INEQUALITY TO THE POOR FITNESS OF AMERICA'S YOUTH.

By SAM PIZZIGATI

The United States, anyone could reasonably argue, has the most accomplished elite athletes in the world. The best evidence? In Rio this past summer, young American men and women finished at a comfortable first place in the Olympic final medal tally. But what if we compared nations on the fitness of average young people, not elite athletes? How would the United States stack up then?

Not too well, concludes a global study just published in the British Journal of Sports Medicine. This new research — conducted by a team of academics from Canada, the United States, and Australia — looked at the fitness levels of 1.1 million young people aged 9 to 17, from 50 different nations.

In this competition, young people in the United States didn't finish first. They finished an appalling 47th out of 50.

"If all the kids in the world were to line up for a race," report author Dr. Grant Tomkinson summed up, "the average American child would finish at the foot of the field."

How could the United States, a nation that prides itself on nurturing Olympic champions, have an overall population of young people so unfit?

The new study doesn't answer that question directly. But it does make a fascinating connection. In nations with smaller gaps between rich and poor, young people show higher levels of fitness.

Income inequality, as the study puts it, appears to be a "strong structural determinant of health" in children and youth.

This linkage won't surprise anyone who's been following research on inequality. In recent years, investigators have detailed that people in societies with lower levels of inequality live longer than people in nations with high inequality, like the United States.

Residents of more equal nations also trust each other more, bully each other less, and enjoy better mental health.

But why should social indecency and ill health thrive in unequal places? And, more pointedly, what explains the link between inequality and youth fitness?

No one knows for sure, but analysts have some ideas.

Some lean toward a fiscal explanation. In unequal nations, they point out, wealth and political power tend to concentrate in the hands of an awesomely affluent few. These privileged individuals typically don't use public services and often resent having to pay taxes to help fund them.

In deeply unequal nations, this combination of political power and resentment ends up generating government budgets that gut public services the rich seldom use — everything from public parks to public education.

Amid the resulting fiscal austerity, public parks start closing. Public schools start charging parents hefty fees if their kids want to play school sports.

As a result, fewer kids get to play and exercise. A top-heavy distribution of wealth translates, in effect, into less-active childhoods.

Other analysts take a more physical approach and focus on the stress that inequality inevitably generates. This ongoing stress pounds relentlessly on our immune systems. And the things we take for relief from that pounding — drugs or sugar-packed snacks, for instance — typically leave us less fit.

Both these fiscal and physical explanations have merit. And both help us understand the importance of doing all that we can to reduce inequality.

If we want to see all kids have the chance to become champions in life, we'll need to start adopting, as the authors of the new global fitness study conclude, "policies aimed at reducing the gap between rich and poor."

of a stone building twenty by forty feet." These figures are the same dimensions as those of one wing of the Salado College building and there seems to be no doubt that the College and the Lodge were using the same building in those early days - an arrangement that is not surprising, since both had similar objectives and both had the same man, E. Sterling Robertson, as their highest official.

Later, Salado Lodge secured an interest in the title to the upper story of the Baptist Church in Salado, and for many years met in a Lodge room on the second floor of the church building. In a church rebuilding and enlargement program, the question came up as to how to dispose of the interest of the Lodge in the old building. This problem was solved by literally sawing off the upper half of the building and moving it to, and setting it up as a Lodge room a short distance away on some land donated to the Lodge by Bro. Charlton E. Johnson, Past Master of Salado Masonic Lodge.

Celebrate National Farm to School Month in October

By ELISHA SMITH, ELISHAS@CFRA.ORG, CENTER FOR RURAL AFFAIRS

Sadly, many school aged children do not know where their food comes from. In fact neither do many adults. According to a survey commissioned by the U.S Farmers and Ranchers Alliance, 72% of consumers know nothing or very little about farming or ranching.

But Farm to School Programs are trying to change that. Thirty million kids eat school lunch every day. More than 42,000 schools participate nationwide in Farm to School initiatives reaching an estimated 23.6 million children.

October is National Farm to School Month, a time to recognize the importance of farm to school as a means to improve child nutrition, support local economies, and educate communities about the origins of their food.

"Farm to School" refers to schools serving local, farm-fresh foods ranging from fruits and vegetable to honey and meat. These programs enrich the connection communities have with fresh, healthy food and local food producers by changing food purchasing and education practices at schools. Students gain access to healthy, local foods as well as education opportunities such as school gardens, cooking lessons and farm field trips.

The 2016 National Farm to School Month theme, One Small Step, highlights simple ways anyone can get informed, get involved and take action to advance farm to school in their own communities and across the country. Learn more at farmtoschool.org.

SHS youth leaders train for resilience

By ABBIE JAMES
SALADO YOUTH LEADERSHIP

At the F.R.I.E.N.D.S. Resilience training for teens in Fort Hood, Salado Youth Leadership learned about key characteristics on being a team player.

The students learned the ins and outs about resilience and how to use it in their lives. They were reminded that when life is not going the way you planned to stay optimistic.

The students then got to go through many real life experiences that a soldier goes through every day. During situations that arose the student leaders had to stay positive and work with their team to remain resilient just as a soldier would.

Tablerock Fright Trail brings classic scares to life

Salado's Tablerock Walking Trail will be magically transformed into a Fright Trail on Oct. 15, 22 and 29. From dusk (6:30 p.m.) 'till the approach of the witching hour (9:30 p.m.) Goblins will extract a $3 fee from children and a $5 fee from big children for a walk on the spectral side of Tablerock.

The Bell County Sheriff's Posse will direct traffic, actors will guide and enlighten you with facts about respective authors as they lead you to scenes from Macbeth, The Invisible Man, Dracula, Frankenstein, The Mummy's Curse, Phantom of the Opera, Boo Radley from To Kill a Mockingbird, an excerpt from Edgar Allen Poe by Thom the World Poet from Australia, and more of America's most treasured classics. One section of the trail will portray Alice in Wonderland, Billy Goat Gruff and the Troll who guards the bridge, Dorothy and the Wicked Witch VS Glenda the Good Witch, elves and blithe spirits. Actors will enact scenes from chosen classical tales of terror and from Grimm's Fairy Tales to entertain and educate both the young and the young at heart. Again this year Andy Anderson, Chief Meteorologist for channel 6, will portray The Headless Horseman.

Snacks and drinks will be available at the concession stand to refresh you. Smelling salts will be on hand for the weak of heart. Tablerock Trail is located in Salado at 409 Royal Street, three blocks east of down town. Students earn Community Service hours for their volunteer service to Tablerock Amphitheater. For more information, call Tablerock at (254) 947-9205 or e-mail tablerock1@aol.com. Click MAP on the Tablerock web site (www.tablerock.org) for directions to Tablerock's Fright Trail.

Join the IN.FORM Journey

C J Harbuz, owner of Angelic Herbs and Certified IN.FORM Coach invites you join the IN.FORM Journey to Living Well.

"Like anything else I have recommended in my 20 years of offering natural health options in Salado, I use the products and programs I offer benefiting from the results while I share with others," Harbuz said. "Being a part of the recently completed 13 week journey I coached, I have removed over 20 lbs and reversed over 20 years of metabolic age as a side effect of being on a program scientifically proven to reverse metabolic disorders."

Harbuz says that IN.FORM is not a "healthy bubble" way of life. "It is preparing people to live and flourish in any food environment they encounter," she added. "Choosing the healthiest options when eating out, planning and cooking nourishing foods at home throughout the week, enjoying food at celebration in moderation and re-creating family favorites. It offers alteration not deprivation to flourish for life."

To learn more about how IN.FORM works and how participants are experiencing results, Harbuz invites you to come to a free Introductory Program 5:15-6:15 p.m. Oct. 18 at Angelic Herbs.

KEEP SALADO BEAUTIFUL

The First Annual Keep Salado Beautiful Yard and Garden Tour was a success; the weather was perfect, the gardens were spectacular and our visitors were enchanted. We cannot thank our Homeowners enough for the time and care that they gave to preparing their gardens for the Tour:

Nancy and Owen Messenger, Joyce and CR Pennington, Shirley and Bill Pinkston, Linda and Micky Rawls, and Alice and George Romfh. The KSB Board and Garden Tour Committee was tireless, but special thanks goes to Margaret Williamson, Vickie Kelly, GeorgeAnn Valentine, Miriam Jordan, Lisa Nix, and Yvonne Lane. An "Above and Beyond Award" goes to Joyce Pennington!! Our Village sponsors make our work possible and we especially appreciate the help from First State Bank and the Salado Village Voice.

Our partnerships with Salado Ladies Auxiliary and PALS are further examples of how our Village works together to get things done!

Thank you to all that attended; we'll let you know when the date is set for the second annual Garden Tour.

How the other half lives

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

This deal occurred many years ago in a match between Cadbury's and Waddington's, two English bridge clubs. The deal could be regarded as more amusing than instructive, but it is published here so that our readers will have some idea of how the other half lives.

North was Tony Priday, partnered by G.C.H. Fox, both well-known international players. As to what happened on the deal, No. 13 in the match, we couldn't possibly do better to describe it than did Ewart Kempson, whose witty account appeared in the British Bridge Magazine, of which he was the editor.

"Sitting North and playing Acol, Mr. Priday opened the bidding smartly with one heart. Maybe I'm a bit old-fashioned, but to my way of thinking, one club is a better bid. It is true that the club suit is not as good as the heart suit -- this is probably what influenced Mr. Priday -- but I always think one should prepare for a rebid when opening, and if South responds one diamond, North is free to rebid one heart if the other inmates don't mind. "East had the temerity to bid one notrump, which South doubled. It seemed to the deafened spectators that Mr. Fox was not doubling for takeout. A swift redouble by West allowed Mr. Priday to show his other suit with a corking bid of two clubs. This infuriated Mr. Fox into two notrump, which was defeated by three tricks undoubled. "Why Mr. Fox bid only two notrump on his 17-point hand after Mr. Priday had opened vulnerable is one of those unsolved and unsavoury crimes which will remain in the open files at Scotland Yard probably forever.

"Mr. Priday described it as a gross overbid. 'It should have been obvious, even to Foxy, that I had made one of my very fine psychs,' said Mr. Priday.

"Nothing about your bidding is ever obvious to me," riposted Mr. Fox."

The Great Horned Owl

The Great Horned Owl can see in the dark with its large eyes

A multitude of animals elicit thoughts of mystery and fear among people. These include animals such as spiders, scorpions and snakes. However, one creature that lives in a shroud of mystery is found right here in West Texas. Many people know about the great horned owl, but few are truly familiar with their habits.

The great horned owl (Bubo virginianus) is a large bird of prey that is found throughout most of North and South America, from Canada to Argentina. In fact, it has the largest range of any of the owl family Strigidae, also known as the true owls.

This particular species of owl is a habitat generalist, able to live in just about

Wild About Texas

any type of habitat that supports tree life, including mesquite trees of the Panhandle, the live-oaks of the Edwards Plateau and the pines of the Trans-Pecos mountains. The only requirement is that the trees provide enough cover to support a place to nest and to be a center point for nocturnal forays.

At first glance, great horned owls appear to be drab in color. Upon further inspection, however, it is obvious that the colors and patterns are arranged in a very detailed manner. The under parts, particularly the breast area, are light and are marked with an assortment of horizontally placed black lines that vary from thin to thick. The upper parts are brown, with an intricate array of dark and light swirls and circles.

The face can be a variety of colors — gray, brown and even reddish on some individuals. The face is set apart with an outline of black semicircles on each side of the head. The eyes are large, almost as large as the eyes of a human, and are a deep yellow. The beak is dark, curved and extremely sharp. The scaly legs and feet are feathered all the way to the long, powerful talons.

As the name implies, there are two large tufts of feathers at the top on each side of the head. These tufts are not true horns, nor are they ears. The reason for these tufts is unknown, but their presence enables a quick identification for anyone who observes this majestic bird. As stated earlier, great horned owls are large, and females are the larger of the two sexes. An adult specimen can approach a body height of 28 inches with a wingspan of just over 5 feet. Large adults can weigh up to 3 pounds.

Great horned owls typically breed earlier than most other native birds, with selection of a mate taking place as early as December. In fact, many potential mates are heard calling during the fall months, generally beginning in October. The call is unmistakable, being a low-pitched “who-who-who-who-who”. On rare occasions, this call pattern is five syllables.

Breeding takes place in late January or early February, and the one to five (generally three) eggs are laid approximately a month later. The amount of time for incubation varies, but it generally takes about a month. The young stay in the nest for an additional six weeks, fed by both parents.

This species of owl is known for its feeding propensities, consuming large amounts of many harmful mammals such as mice, rats and rabbits. Its large eyes are capable of seeing into the pitch black of dark nights, and its hearing may actually be a stronger asset than its nocturnal sight.

Great horned owls are capable of swiveling their heads at 270 degree angles, scouring the ground for potential prey. Other than the food items already mentioned, they also have been known to feed on raccoons, opossums, weasels and armadillos. Reptiles such as snakes make up a small portion of their diet, but surprisingly, other birds make up a large percentage of their prey.

Other than man, there are no potential predators of this bird of prey other than members of its own species.
