Work begins on Stagecoach Restaurant shoots for Valentine's opening

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Stagecoach Inn Restaurant may open as early as Valentine's 2017, according to general contractor Mark Rawlings.

Rawlings began work earlier this month on the restaurant, stripping it down to the bare bones.

"We're glad that the bones are in good shape," said Clark Lyda, principal of the Stagecoach 1943, LP group which now owns the Stagecoach Inn.

Nathan Quiring, project architect with Clayton and Little architects, told Salado Village Voice that the first focus on the overall project is "to get the restaurant up and running."

That work will include a complete remodel of the kitchen area, and a reimagining of the building that has been added to and expanded on since the original Salado Hotel and then Shady Villa opened in 1860.

"It seems like it has been added to every decade," Quiring said with a laugh.

The front entry will remain a welcoming place. Dining areas will include the glass-lined rooms surrounding the atrium, the original groundfloor rooms of the old two-story building, the large room immediately behind the entryway. The upstairs of the 1860 building will be used for small meetings and groups.

The large room on the north end of the restaurant will be used for groups and gatherings, according to Jeff Trigger, of LaCorsha, which will manage the property when it is completed.

Once the restaurant opens its doors, the Longhorn Conference Center will continue to serve in its capacity for groups and

Search to begin for new Salado Village Administrator

Aldermen contract interim administrative services with Miller

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

David Miller will begin work as the interim city manager for Salado next week, working three days per week on a contract basis of $50 per hour.

Miller was most recently the deputy city manager for the City of Bedford, a position he held for five years. He was the city manager of Kennedey. He holds a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration. He holds a Master Peace Officer certification and is a certified firefighter and certified emergency medical technician.

Aldermen voted at their Oct. 13 meeting to contract with Texas First Group on a month-to-month basis for city administrator services following an interview with Miller in executive session.

Mayor Skip Blancett told Salado Village Voice that the Village will "begin to immediately advertise for the position."

While the aldermen want to move quickly to find a permanent city manager, Blancett said that "We want to make sure that this time we get the right person and the right contract in place."

The Village will continue to seek guidance from Kerry Sweatt, principal owner of Texas First Group, in its search for a permanent city manager, according to Blancett.

Texas First Group assisted the Village in contracting with Miller for city manager services.

According to its website, "Texas First Group was created to provide interim management services for Texas municipalities."

Aldermen voted at their Oct. 6 meeting to unilaterally sever the employment agreement with Kim Foutz, who was hired in September 2014 as village administrator.

The date of the severance is Nov. 7, according to Mayor Blancett. In the meantime, Foutz will remain on paid administrative leave, a move aldermen took on Sept. 15 when they voted to put her on leave "for a period not to exceed 30 days under terms set by the Mayor, in order for the Mayor or his designees to conduct an investigation into complaints against the Administrator and to determine if the Administrator's employment contract should be terminated for Good Cause."

After appointing aldermen Fred Brown and Michael McDougal to conduct the investigation, Mayor Blancett announced that the city attorney would conduct the investigation.

The Oct. 6 vote to unilaterally sever the employer agreement came on a motion by alderman Amber Preston-Dankert to follow the advice and financial support of the village insurance carriers supporting unilateral severance of the agreement.

The Village is obligated to a severance amount of 12 months of the administrator's salary current ($80,000) plus the value of any accrued and unused vacation and sick/personal leave days. Of the severance obligation, the Village will pay $40,000 and the Village insurer will pay $40,000, according to Mayor Blancett.

Severance Benefits include continued health insurance benefits of $517 per month for up to six months provided Foutz does not take earlier full time employment and benefits elsewhere.

Finally, according to the employment agreement, "In the event of a Unilateral Severance, the parties agree not to make disparaging comments or statements about each other."

FORUM

An Open Exchange of Ideas

The Agony of the Republicans

Less than a month before the election, the Republican speaker of the House says he won't defend or campaign with his party's presidential nominee. The nominee has responded by slamming the speaker on Twitter, and his campaign manager is accusing some (unnamed) elected Republicans of sexual harassment against her.

The Donald Trump campaign and the Republican Party show every sign of entering into an ugly death spiral. The revelation of the Trump "Access Hollywood" tape occasioned a historic rupture, with elected Republicans around the country denouncing Trump and calling on him to step aside.

Any hope of Trump turning a corner with his relatively competent second debate was dashed when House Speaker Paul Ryan told his colleagues that he is concentrating on saving his House majority as a check on Hillary Clinton.

It is a fact that one out of two major-party presidential campaigns fail. Some fail badly. But the GOP may be about to experience an unprecedentedly wrenching debacle because its nominee is an ideological interloper with no impulse control or regard for political norms. No matter how bad or weird the campaign seems now, it could get worse and stranger still.

Bob Dole was a horrible presidential candidate and not a particularly conservative Republican. But he was an honorable man who had a loyalty to things bigger than himself, including his political party. When Republicans had to cut him loose in 1996 to try to save their congressional majorities, he was a good and loyal soldier.

Does anyone expect that of Donald Trump? His investment in the party is nil, and he takes all slights personally, whether they are from Alicia Machado or the speaker of the House.

The "Access Hollywood" tape was a tipping point. In isolation, perhaps Republicans could have looked beyond it. But after so many controversies and interventions and alleged pivots, the dam finally broke.

The split creates the predicate for a GOP internal war until November and beyond. It will pit swing-state Republicans and those who want to save them, like Paul Ryan, against Trump's hard-core base and the balance of ordinary partisan Republicans. The disunity itself will be damaging and dispiriting.

There will be every incentive for Trump to exacerbate rather than try to smooth over, or at least look past, the divide. Hitting back at his party critics energizes his fans, and, if he is headed for a loss in November, it sets up a stabbed-in-the-back narrative after the election. So his party detractors are insiders, quislings and, to believe his campaign manager Kellyanne Conway, sexual harassers.

The period before the first presidential debate, when Trump pulled close to a tie with Hillary Clinton, feels like an eon ago. He had come back with a month of relative discipline beginning in mid-August that now looks like a parenthesis in an otherwise recklessly selfish campaign.

That Trump would become a poisonous wedge issue within the GOP was always a plausible worst-case scenario. Now, it is upon us. Trump supporters in the primaries wanted to "burn it down." They may well be able to point to the wreckage of the post-November GOP as an indicator of their smashing success.

Salado's calendar is full

There is much happening in the Village. Here is an update.

Mayor Skip Blancett

1. Stagecoach continues to work on the Dining Room. Several months ago, the owner gave a presentation to the BOA and it depicted a beautiful dining area for your dining pleasures.

2. Thursday evening, Mr. Sterling Ambrose will give a 10-minute presentation on the Museum-College Hill project. This project will bring these two historic sites front-and-center. The Museum will receive a "make-over" that will attract many people to see the artifacts of historic Salado. Great Holiday plans are in the planning stages.

3. October 19, traffic will shift to the new northbound I-35, and the northbound exit will open. The sidewalks on the southbound frontage road are being completed. The last major part of the project is completing the Thomas Arnold exit.

4. The area under the Salado Plaza Bridge continues on schedule. The sidewalk is being completed. Next will come the designer bricks between the sidewalk and the pillars. After that, crepe myrtle trees planted on the east and west sides nearest the frontage road. The round area east of the bridge will be covered with grass with live oak and cypress trees planted around the perimeter. Irrigation system is being installed for all garden areas. Salado's early spring promises to be beautiful.

5. All permits are received for the Waste Water Treatment Plant. Currently, our engineer is preparing a construction bid announcement for the construction of the plant. Amber Dankert is working with Corps of Engineers and Texas Fisheries and Wildlife for the final laying-of-the-pipe permit. The goal is to have the Waste Water Treatment Plant and sewer system fully operational November 2017. Our engineer says it is achievable.

6. The Holiday season is coming together. All indications are that it is going to be a spectacular celebration.

Reinvigorating the museum

Dear Editor,

The recently announced merger between Salado's two major historical organizations, the Central Texas Area Museum and the Robertson Colony-Salado College Foundation, not only creates a vibrant new history complex but also provides a fresh perspective for the people of Salado to enjoy and support.

For years my grandmother and my mother led the preservation and care of both the museum and College Hill solely with the efforts of our devoted office manager, Mary Mendez, and her husband, Oscar, along with the support of countless volunteers. Now, with the approval of the newly-formed Salado Museum and College Park Board of Directors, we have hired a professional curator from Baylor University, Coleman Hampton, who is working with Mary and our volunteers to implement our mission. Our mission is simple: to preserve and promote the unique history of Salado and its pioneers who came together at various points in time to make Salado what it is today. We want everyone in and around Salado to know that this is your museum and park... and we hope you will show through your participation and support that you are committed to maintaining this very important part of the Salado community.

Your Voice

Anyone who supports this organization in any of a variety of ways will be considered a member. Financial support is always welcomed, but we also ask that you search through your God-given gifts and talents and discover other ways you can support our mission. Some people will have time to volunteer; some will donate auction items or gifts-in-kind services; some may want to endow special exhibits or sections of the museum and park.

We invite Salado to come discover your new museum and park. It is here for you to use, to bring family and friends, and to learn about the deep Texas history that is Salado! Many people are working hard to make this new organization positive and fruitful. We invite you to join us in supporting the success of this important historical and cultural part of your village.

Sterling R. Ambrose

Dear Editor:

Donald Trump will lose, at least it seems so. Perhaps we can prepare for a sigh of relief. However, he has done inestimable damage to our national unity. Shakespeare said it so well, "The evil that men do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones."

In this instance his expected political demise will leave no residue of goodness, but will most certainly leave a lasting national atmosphere of evil divisiveness--of hate, misogyny, bigotry and xenophobia. He has worked hard to create an 'us versus them' chasm. He has tried to instill a distrust of everyone not in total agreement with him.

As an aside, there is a plethora of examples about his campaign that says much about his abhorrent style. Among a multitude of recent topics, he has attacked the other candidate's spouse--but blames her for his dalliances. This campaign isn't about Melania or Bill. They aren't running for office. It is about Donald and Hillary.

Saving the Old Red Schoolhouse

SUBMITTED BY MICHAEL NOVOTNY

Earlier this month, the Salado Historical Society dedicated a new Texas State Historic Commission historical marker at the Salado Civic Center. The marker commemorates the life of Alice Joy Gray Hambleton, who donated the land for a Salado Public School in 1924.

For the following 43 years the "Red Brick Schoolhouse" located at 601 North Main Street was the only school in the district. The student enrollment gradually increased enough to need another building so in 1967 the district opened Thomas Arnold Elementary School. Students in grades seven through twelve remained in the Red Brick Schoolhouse for the next twelve years until the district opened Salado High School (which is now Salado Junior High School). The Red Brick Schoolhouse was vacant starting in 1979 and the building gradually deteriorated to the point of almost being torn down. However, some community members and Salado High School alumni collected over $500,000 in donations to repair and renovate the building in 1992. The building was then renamed the Salado Civic Center.

The school district continues to own the Salado Civic Center and our central office is located there. Several other organizations have rented space in the building over the last 25 years, including the Salado Chamber of Commerce and Visitor's Center, the Village of Salado, the Salado Public Library, the Salado Historical Society, and the Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools (TAPPS). Each of these organizations eventually relocated to another location.

Last month the school district began a seven year lease with Bell County for three of the offices downstairs in the Civic Center. This space is for the five Bell County employees, including Justice of the Peace Don Engleking and Constable Rolly Correa, who were previously leasing space at Horizon Bank.

The Civic Center also has large and small meeting rooms used by many other groups, including the Salado Lions Club, Salado Community Choir, Hidden Springs Homeowners Association, ESL and GED classes, wedding receptions and family reunions. In addition to recognizing Alice Joy Gray Hambleton for generously donating the land back in 1924,

I would also like to thank the following people that helped restore the Red Brick Schoolhouse into the Salado Civic Center:

Gary Bartlett
Kenyon Clapp
Robert H. Cottle
Suzi Epps
Jessie Foster
Egon Friedrich
Hulda Horton
Denver Mills
Lloyd Parks
Pasty Sanford
Lois Shepperd
Wilma Williams

(Or hold it over their head which adds other safety issues, besides being pretty silly to imagine.)

In your opinion, what is the best way to address pedestrian congestion encountered when crossing the Salado Main St. bridge during high traffic times?

Thanks in advance and Kindest Regards.

Tim Rivers

He gets away with statements that would ostracize most men from the coffee gang or the deer camp. But I digress....

The damage he has done can be undone, but it will take time and effort of men and women of goodwill.

George Murphy
Salado

Special events such as the Christmas Stroll, Gathering of the Clans, etc are likewise an important part of marketing Salado as a destination.

There is a safety issue when two families with baby strollers headed in opposite directions meet on Salado's Main St bridge. One of the families must place their stroller in the north bound lane of traffic in order to pass.

Dear Editor:

Hello Mr Bashi.....my name is Tim Rivers and I live in the Salado ETJ.

I got your name from John Simick of Temple.

I have a safety concern for pedestrians crossing the Salado Main St. bridge. Salado businesses largely depend on tourists for their income.

Salado Family Relief Fund serves children/families in the community

Salado Family Relief does more than Back-to-School and Christmas. It helps out many families in Salado throughout the year.

What began more than two decades ago as a loose coalition of volunteers and churches became a 501(c)3 corporation in 1997 after the Jarrell tornado struck that community.

"Money was flooding in and we knew we had to become tax-deductible and incorporate," founding president Marilyn Fleischer said. "The Jarrell tornado was the catalyst."

Since that time, Salado Family Relief Funds has helped thousands in the Salado area through the annual Christmas Project and the annual Back to School program.

It also offers these services:

- financial help with rent/mortgage.
- help with utilities
- help with minor medical expenses.
- contributes to the Salado ISD lunch fund for students who are in need and do not qualify for assistance under federal guidelines.

- provides $25 gas cards for travelers who show need for help.

Recipients must meet one or more of the following criteria:

- reside in the Salado area.
- Show proof of need (must have current Medicaid, SSI Disability, Lone-star or CHIP card).

• Not exceed SFRF guidelines for previous assistant (one instance of assistance within a calendar year, three times maximum).

The Salado Family Relief Fund is supported through contributions from the community. Almost 100 percent of donations goes to assist local residents in need," stated SFRF Renee Oas. "We receive no state or federal support."

Salado Family Relief Fund conducts one fundraiser each year, the Empty Bowl Project, held in November combining soup luncheon with soups from local restaurants and bed and breakfast along with handmade pottery bowls from local artisans and Salado students."

If you would like to support Salado Family Relief, mail donations to P.O. Box 461, Salado, TX 76571.

Tim Cook Named to TFA Hall of Fame

Salado speech and debate coach Tim Cook was inducted into the Texas Forensic Association Hall of Fame at the annual TFA convention in San Antonio on October 6. Cook will join three other inductees as a member of the 2016-17 class of the Hall of Fame.

"Tim is a role model as he leads, teaches and contributes to the community of forensics at Salado High School and the entire state of Texas," Kandi King, TFA Hall of Fame Chair said.

Only 23 speech coaches have been inducted into the Hall of Fame since its inception in 2006.

"When asked the question, 'Who was the most influential person who had the greatest impact in your life?' My answer is always Tim Cook," former student and state champion Jen Dula Macdonel said.

Cook joined the Salado High School staff in 2005 and built the foundation for a speech and debate team that was not only known throughout Texas, but respected nationally.

"Mr. Cook has been a tremendous part of Salado's UIL academic success. He takes students and builds their confidence and skills to the point that they can become state champions and national contenders, J. J. Jonas, Salado Director of Theatre and UIL Academics said.

Salado High School debate coach Tim Cook was recently inducted into the Texas Forensic Association Hall of Fame.

"Mr. Cook is more than a teacher and coach—he changes the lives of the young people who pass through his classroom."

In addition to coaching speech and debate, Cook took on a new UIL event in 2013. When the Young Filmmakers contest was announced, Cook decided to make that part of the opportunities he presented to his students. With no prior experience, he built the team and their skills from the ground up. The first year, they were named state champions.

"Tim Cook is one of the most dedicated coaches/mentor there is," former student and state champion filmmaker Monte Berry III said.

Cook's reputation goes far beyond Salado. Many coaches cite Cook as the inspiration they followed to become great coaches.

"Ask anyone close to me and I've always credited Tim with starting my coaching career. It was an incredible run made possible only by his dedication to the activity and willingness to take a chance on an unproven fellow like me," Josh Aguilar, debate coach at San Marcos High School said.

Cook's college professor had this to say about him: "Tim Cook has worked very hard all his life to be the best competitor and coach," former college debate coach Tony Allison at Cameron University said.

Cook has produced numerous UIL state champions, state medalists, and national qualifiers and serves as a member of the UIL Regional Advisory Board. He regularly assists other schools with contests, volunteers at the state meet, and presents yearly at the UIL Capital Conference.

"Mr. Cook is deserving of the title Hall of Famer because what he brings to his students is enduring and something his students take with them for the rest of their life," SHS junior Hannah Wilson said. "I'm lucky to inherit the legacy he brings to Salado High School."

Salado High School Cross Country teams competed in the District Meet at Lampasas High School on Oct. 12.

Varsity Boys missed out on qualifying for the regional meet. "Hunter Haas ran his best time of the season," says Coach Goos, "which qualified him as an individual at the regional meet." Haas will compete at Regionals in Huntsville Oct. 29.

The Girls Varsity team placed fifth at the meet. "The varsity girls raced well against some tough competition. I am so proud of their effort and hard work." says Coach Baird

The JH XC teams competed Oct. 12 in the district meet in Lampasas. The JH district is a bit different from the high school district to include teams like Fredricksburg and Marble Falls which are both large and competitive schools. "Both boys and girls teams competed well and finished the season strong. These kids have worked tirelessly all season long and deserve credit for their efforts," Coach Erica Meyer said.

All athletes ran together in the 8th grade division so as to not separate the team that has been running together all season long.

The girls team won the 8th grade division along with Jaci McGregor being the individual district champ! Salado won with 45 points, followed by Marble Falls in second with 50 points.

The boys team fell short and ended up 3rd. This is not where they had hoped to finish but they ran hard and were fierce competitors. Burnet won the meet with 28 points, followed by Frericksburg with 39 points.

Ballot Box Bedlam adds performance

After quickly selling out, Ballot Box Bedlam has added a Nov. 6 performance at 7 p.m. at Barrow Brewing Company, 108 Royal Street.

Tickets for this encore performance are $10 and potential customers are advised to reserve early because seating is very limited.

The program promises to be a boofest of a radio melodrama by the seasoned Salado Players entitled, "Ballot Box Bedlam at Barrow Brewing or #SEXIT: The Sinister Salado Secession Scheme" written and directed by Salado's own Gary Askins. Both performances benefit the Public Arts League of Salado (PALS).

Askins, a retired theatre and math teacher, has participated in dramatic offerings in Salado from the first "Salado Legends", "A Christmas Carol" and he also wrote several original plays and directed many productions for the sadly demised "Salado Silver Spur Theatre".

"As I was commiserating with a dear friend over a fine Barrow Brew about the current state of our local and national political scene, KD Hill, the owner of Barrow Brewing, suggested we might be able to do a benefit at her establishment. The thought that we could once again bring our friends and neighbors a fun filled evening of melodrama in the old home of the Silver Spur just seemed too appropriate. We discussed several deserving local charities and decided that the Public Arts League of Salado was doing some really good work in sustaining and promoting our local artists and crafts-people and deserved our help. I have also never turned down the offer of a microphone or an audience so I started planning with my very understanding wife Jody, son Garrett, friends Rick and Denise Thomssen and we decided since there was no longer an actual stage in the old granary we would present our play as a radio show. I wrote the script or more correctly the events of the past few months wrote the script and we put as much humor into it as possible.

I added Sarah Sanderford and Ben Duewall, two employees of the brewery, to the cast and we've begun rehearsing, adding, subtracting and amending up to this date. The show is a throwback anachronistic melodrama with a villain and hero. The audience will be actively encouraged to be part of the action as we cheer the hero and boo the villain in an almost historical hysterical romp through the Village of Salado's latest least great attempt at self-governance."

Root for the hero Tex as he tries to save the day and his beautiful heroine Serena (who loves catfish), watch in amazement as Snidely attempts to take control of the Salado Planning and Zoning Commission to further his own plans for eventual world domination (of course, because that's what villains do). Marvel at the sage advice of Tonkawa Tom, chief of the lost tribe (They were last seen on I-35) and see if you can figure out how all this ends "Happily ever after" (because that's what melodramas do).

If you have any questions about the production contact Barrow Brewing at 947-3544 or purchase tickets on line at <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/ballot-box-bedlam-at-barrow-brewing-encore-performance-tickets-2858583056>.

Performing the impossible

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

When you're playing a seemingly hopeless contract, you can sometimes accomplish your mission by enlisting the aid of the enemy. For example, take this deal where South bid and made six spades.

This overly ambitious undertaking was entirely South's fault. His jump-shift to two spades on only 13 points in high cards, while marginally acceptable, suggested a possible slam.

But having already stretched his initial response by several points, South should not have gone to six unilaterally, which is what he essentially did later. He could have bid four spades over three to indicate minimum values for the jump-shift, or four diamonds over three spades to see whether North was interested in going beyond game.

West led a diamond, and declarer saw that he had two apparently inescapable heart losers. But he also saw he might make the slam if he got phenomenally lucky. So after winning the diamond in dummy and drawing two rounds of trumps, South cashed the club ace and three more diamonds, discarding the jack of clubs from dummy. Then he led the five of hearts.

West went up with the queen, and it was all over but the shouting. East had to win with the king and return a diamond or a club, either of which allowed South to discard his remaining heart as he ruffed in dummy.

West should have realized that declarer could not have the K-x of hearts and play the hand the way he did. Had South held the K-x, he surely would have led a heart from dummy toward his hand at some point. West should therefore have played the ace of hearts rather than the queen on the assumption that East had the singleton king.

The Red-tailed Hawk

Red-tailed Hawks have a large range

While growing up on the plains of the Texas Panhandle I can remember numerous observations of large and majestic birds of prey perched along roadways and soaring up above the cotton fields. Invariably, the raptor species that I was observing was the common Red-tailed Hawk, and observing one of these incredible birds now is just as exciting as it was decades ago when I was just a budding naturalist.

The Red-tailed Hawk (Buteo jamaicensis) is a large bird of prey that is found throughout most of North America, from Alaska southward into southern Mexico. Throughout the vast majority of the continental

Wild About Texas
Michael Price

United States it is a non-migratory species, save for a few populations from the Canadian border that travel to warmer climates during the winter months. In fact, this variety of raptor has the largest range of any diurnal bird of prey in the western world.

This particular species of hawk is a habitat generalist, able to live in just about any type of habitat that supports tree life, including mesquite trees of the Panhandle, the live-oaks of the Edwards Plateau and the pines forests of the Trans-Pecos mountains. But even at that, as long as the habitat includes areas where this visually keen species can nest and survey the landscape readily, such as tall fence-posts and utility poles, that area will be effectively utilized.

Upon initial observation, the Red-tailed Hawk appears to be drab in color. Upon further inspection, however, it is obvious that the colors and patterns are arranged in a very random, yet detailed manner. The under parts, particularly the breast area, are off-white and are marked with an assortment of vertically placed dark brown lines that vary from thin to thick. The upper parts are brown, with an intricate array of dark and light swirls and circles. The underwing areas are white like the belly and are also marked with darker barring.

The head is primarily brown with light lines and the thick curved bill is black with a fleshy yellow area on the top of the upper bill known as the cere. The eyes are large and are muddy yellowish in color. The scaly yellowish legs and feet are feathered almost all the way to the long, powerful talons.

As the name implies, the tail ranges in color from a deep brick red to a pinkish-buff and this coloration sets this species apart from other raptors that also inhabit their range. As stated earlier, Red-tailed Hawks are large, in fact they are the largest of the 8 species of the genus Buteo that occur in Texas. An adult specimen can approach a body height of 25 inches with a wingspan of just under five feet. Large adults can weigh up to 3 pounds.

Breeding takes place in late spring, and it is thought that this species mates for life. The two to three bluish white eggs are laid approximately a month later in a nest built by both parents that is made of sticks and twigs. These eggs are large, nearly 2 1/2 inches in length and are occasionally spotted with brown. The amount of time for incubation varies, but it generally takes about a month. The young stay in the nest for an additional six weeks, and are fed by both parents.

This species of hawk is known for its feeding propensities, consuming large amounts of many harmful mammals such as mice, rats and rabbits. However, it is not limited to such a specific diet as reptiles, amphibians, insects, arachnids, fish, crustaceans and even other birds are readily consumed. Its keen eyesight from the large eyes is capable of seeing prey from several hundred feet above ground level.

Studies of this large bird of prey suggest that populations are holding steady, and although many are killed (illegally) by either poisoning or shooting, as well as by cars, the Red-tailed Hawk is still thankfully a common sight along Texas roadways.
