Weapons ordinance topic of Town Hall

The Village of Salado will hold a Town Hall Forum on the proposed changes to the Weapons Ordinance at 6 p.m. Dec. 5 at the municipal building, 301 N. Stagecoach Rd.

The principal change to the ordinance will be adding arrows to a list of missiles that are banned in the city limits of Salado.

The use of bows and arrows in the Village has been the source of a great deal of controversy in the past year.

When the deer and environmental committee encouraged hunting of white tail deer by licensed hunters on private property, it was met with much and noisy opposition as superfluous "No Kill Zone" signs sprouted up overnight.

Aldermen are scheduled to vote on the proposed changes to the ordinance at a later date.

Museum hosts Historic Salado Christmas, during second weekend of Salado Stroll

The Central Texas Area Museum will host its first annual Historic Salado Christmas 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Dec. 10, during the second weekend of the popular Salado Christmas Stroll.

Free family activities throughout the day include visits with reenactors portraying figures from the past, historic Christmas scenes and recipe samplings, Christmas shopping in the museum gift shop, photos with Santa, live music, light refreshments, and more.

"As a special treat for visitors, well-known Salado author Elizabeth Silverthorne will be in the museum to share her knowledge of old Texas Christmas traditions," says Coleman Hampton, museum curator. "Ms. Silverthorne will also be signing her book, Christmas in Texas, which will be available for purchase in the gift shop in limited quantities that day."

In addition to the Christmas event on Saturday, the Museum is One thing that a Longhorn fan like Tommye Prater and Oklahoma fans like Billy Helm and Bob Bradley can agree on is this: they are all glad that the cart bridge of Salado Creek has finally been rebuilt. Helm, Prater and Bradley tested out the bridge last weekend. The construction of the bridge, which has been gone since 2010, marks a milestone in the rebuilding of the Mill Creek Golf Course. Helm says that the Mill Creek ownership group will replace the greens that were damaged along Salado Creek and re-seed fairways and greens this spring. The old "Creek holes" that made Mill Creek famous around the state may be opened for play by summertime 2017. (PHOTO BY TIM FLEISCHER)

An Open Exchange of Ideas

The Muslim Registry That Wasn't

The first thing to know about Donald Trump's alleged proposal for a Muslim registry is that it isn't a Muslim registry. This has been lost in a freak-out that has some brave souls already promising acts of civil disobedience to disrupt and overwhelm the prospective registry.

The source of the fracas is a comment from Kansas Secretary of State Kris Kobach, a Trump immigration adviser and (excellent) candidate for Homeland Secretary director, to Reuters. Kobach noted that the administration might reinstate a Bush-era program tracking visitors to the U.S. from countries with active terrorist threats. This suggestion was spun into a first step toward herding our Muslim neighbors into internment camps.

Kobach was referring to the National Security Entry-Exit Registration System, or NSEERS, which placed special requirements on adult male visitors from countries like Saudi Arabia. Implemented after Sept. 11 -- when, you might recall, adult male visitors from Saudi Arabia toppled the World Trade Center -- it collected fingerprints and photographs when visitors from the select countries arrived and required them to check in periodically to confirm that they were abiding by the terms of their visas.

It also required that certain individuals from these countries who were already here go through a process of "special registration," including an interview with immigration officials.

This is a far cry from Franklin D. Roosevelt's notorious Executive Order 9066 setting in motion the Japanese internment of World War II.

It is said that the Bush program didn't lead to the prosecution of any terrorists. According to the Migration Policy Institute, "The New York Times reported in 2003 that, out of roughly 85,000 individuals registered through the NSEERS program in 2002 and 2003, just 11 were found to have ties to terrorism."

Although tracking down anyone here who has ties to terrorism isn't necessarily something to sniff at, the Bush program proved best-suited to identifying visa overstayers. Of the 85,000 initial registrants, nearly 14,000 were put into removal proceedings. For the critics, this is an indictment.

But why shouldn't it be easier to deport visa-overstayers, who constitute about half of the population of illegal immigrants? If we are serious about our immigration rules, our approach to visa-overstayers from all countries should be much more restrictive and hardheaded.

The requirements of the Bush program were watered down over time until it was suspended by the Obama administration in 2011. But the program wasn't illegal or unconstitutional (the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in its favor). Nor was it immoral -- foreign visitors should be subject to any reasonable strictures we impose in exchange for the privilege of coming here.

That the so-called Muslim registry is now a thing, a subject of high dudgeon and hot debate, is testament to how the same media that complains about "fake news" is committed to manufacturing and driving its own narratives only loosely connected to reality. Whether the Trump administration revives a version of the Bush program or not, a similar campaign of obloquy will be directed at all of its immigration enforcement measures. It will have to pursue its agenda against a backdrop of media hostility and constant misinformation.

All exits (on I-35) open to Salado!

Wednesday eve before Thanksgiving, I drove the Salado portion of I-35 three times. Every exit, the roundabouts, bridges, and intersections were working -- every road, open; traffic flowing freely, orange barrels and equipment mostly gone. Remembering the last three years -- the struggles, loss of business, accidents, Austin meetings, Monday tours; Mike McDougal's Tuesday meetings, the promises -- marched across the mind's landscape.

Driving down Main Street, parking near the gas station, and observing the Salado Plaza intersection; I thought, "this is proof that it can be done -- a beautiful contemporary highway and a historic Village complementing each other. Historic and contemporary can exist together.

There is more work to be done -- clean-up, planting trees, grass, and bushes, and Gateway signs -- but 96% OF THE CONSTRUCTION COMPLETED. The promise kept, "every road, exit, and intersection will be open before Thanksgiving."

And, the work continues for the Board of Aldermen/Lady -- managing growth, economic development, sewer and water treatment plant construction, roads, sidewalks and street lights, parks and trails, deer, ordinances, to name a few 2017 projects. Many must be completed by next year's end. A January "State of Salado" Town Hall planned. Do not miss this one.

Even though 2016 has not ended, 2017 has begun. Stagecoach construction underway, 13 December; Sanctuary's update; the Biological Assessment of Salamanders and Salado Creek completed; and

"When Pride Still Mattered" by David Maraniss, rests on my library desk. The title says it all. Drive down Main Street, see the cars, observe our friends and neighbors returning, see new businesses; notice Christmas decorations and beautiful yards, talk to new Salado families that selected Salado as their home and watch our schools. Pride still matters in Salado. We are just fine and getting better.

Thanks for the help!

Bipartisan unity in a deeply red state

A POLITICALLY DIVERSE COALITION FIGHTING PREDATORY LENDERS IN SOUTH DAKOTA OFFERS HOPE FOR ALL OF US IN A DIVISIVE TIME.

By SARAH ANDERSON

A couple years ago, two South Dakota men on opposite ends of the political spectrum got into a nasty fight over marriage equality. But after one offered the other an olive branch, they wound up forming a bipartisan alliance that won big this election year.

Their story offers important lessons for our divided country.

It all began with a Twitter feud between Steve Hildebrand, a gay former Obama campaign adviser, and Steve Hickey, a conservative pastor and former Republican state legislator. To defuse the tension, Hickey decided to invite Hildebrand out for coffee.

Eventually, the two men realized they had something in common: a deep concern about poverty and homelessness. They also agreed that the payday loan industry in their state was making these problems much worse.

Payday lenders give customers short-term cash advances, typically for two weeks, against their paycheck or Social Security check. But most borrowers can't pay back the loan when it comes due -- which is exactly what the lenders want.

According to the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, the majority of all payday loans are renewed so many times that borrowers end up paying more in fees than they originally borrowed. In South Dakota, the average interest rate on such short-term loans is 574 percent.

In a show of bipartisan unity, Hickey and Hildebrand resolved to work together to crack down on these loan sharks. They formed a coalition, South Dakotans for Responsible Lending, to take the issue of predatory lending directly to the voters. Their goal: a 36 percent interest rate cap on short-term payday loans.

The coalition's first step was to marshal a volunteer army of all ages, income levels, and political stripes to collect almost 20,000 signatures to get the proposal on the ballot. To build support, they held prayer vigils, gave talks at churches and Rotary and Lions clubs, and wrote letters to the editors of newspapers across the state. For Halloween, they painted pumpkins with their campaign slogans.

Children's Health Systems Integral to the State's Health Care Delivery

By STACY E. WILSON, J.D.

As lawmakers convene in January for the 85th session of the Texas Legislature, no decisions will be more important than those that impact the thousands of Texas children and their families who are cared for by children's health systems across our state each year.

These systems are working together in new and innovative ways to increase the quality of care for Texas children and to provide that care closer to their families' homes, all while improving the value and efficiency of care delivery.

Texas is experiencing explosive population growth, and this is especially true for children. According to the 2015 U.S. Census, more than seven million children live in Texas. Between 2000 and 2015, the number of children in the U.S. increased by two million; more than half of this increase was due to the increase in the number of children in Texas.

The seven nonprofit children's hospitals in Texas represented by the Children's Hospital Association of Texas (CHAT) are already dealing with the challenges of serving this growing population as they treat children from nearly every county in Texas. We will be asking the legislature to adequately fund children's health care in the state during the upcoming legislative session.

It is important for the Texas Legislature to invest in children's health systems for a number of reasons. Children's health systems save lives every day, regardless of a child's family income or health insurance coverage. Medicaid covers more than half of the patients served by Texas children's health systems, so support for this safety net is especially critical.

As patients, children have highly specialized needs. The staffing levels, equipment, training and other resources required to appropriately address the needs of children can only be found at these unique institutions. Because of this, children's health systems provide care to our state's sickest children—specialized care that they cannot receive elsewhere for congenital heart conditions, neurosurgery, transplants, cancer, sickle cell and other serious conditions. Our members provide the complete range of services from genetics counseling to palliative and hospice care. In many instances, the only way for a child to get access to life-saving specialty care is through a children's hospital.

CHAT members are proactively working collaboratively to improve the quality of care, reduce errors, improve patients' satisfaction with the care they receive, and lower the cost of care. Through CHAT, children's health systems share data, best practices and other information to meet these goals. For example, CHAT's member hospitals recently formed a quality collaborative to look specifically at asthma, the leading cause of emergency room visits and hospital admissions among kids in Texas. This effort resulted in a decreased length of stay in asthma-related emergency department and inpatient areas as well as a more than 70 percent reduction in six-month readmissions. This means that kids don't miss school, parents don't miss work, and, with more than 3 million Texas children enrolled in Medicaid, the state saves money. Quality collaboratives focused on other serious childhood conditions, including sepsis and bronchiolitis, are also underway.

These collaborative efforts have the potential to change, and even save, the lives of many Texas children. They also, not incidentally, lower costs and improve efficiencies in our state's health care system.

At CHAT we also believe that no child should ever experience serious harm while receiving medical treatment. Our members are dedicated to finding collaborative solutions for patient safety, reducing potential patient harm in hospital settings. CHAT is part of a nationwide effort in this area, and as a result, 6,000 children in the United States have been saved from serious harm since 2012, at a savings of more than $100 million. As of December 2015, instances of patient harm had declined every month since 2012.

Children's health systems are a critical piece of the health care puzzle in Texas. Healthy children tend to become healthy adults, so Texas has a brighter future when we provide the state's children with appropriate health care through adequately funded children's health systems.

Stacy E. Wilson, J.D. is the president of the Children's Hospital Association of Texas. CHAT members are Children's Health (Dallas), Children's Hospital of San Antonio, Cook Children's Health Care System (Fort Worth), Covenant Children's Hospital (Lubbock), Dell Children's Medical Center of Central Texas (Austin), Driscoll Children's Hospital (Corpus Christi), and Texas Children's Hospital (Houston).

spite being outspent 16 to 1 by industry opponents, the coalition won a crushing victory. More than three-quarters of South Dakota voters supported the rate cap measure.

Reflecting on their success, Pastor Hickey said, "Knowing that today in America we have reached perhaps the apex of hyper-partisanship, our efforts here of working together across the party lines is really a breath of fresh air, and we believe this is the way forward."

Hickey also made clear that the coalition's fight isn't over. They're worried the loan sharks may pursue new legal tricks to keep exploiting the poor, and they're looking for ways to make credit more affordable for low-income South Dakotans. One option they're looking into is using a fraction of the state's reserves to guarantee affordable loans through credit unions.

But even though there's more work to be done, this coalition's bipartisan ballot box success is an inspiring example of how we can still make progress in our polarized nation.

December Star Party focuses on M15

The Central Texas Astronomical Society will host free public star parties 6-9 p.m. Dec. 3, at Overlook Park near Belton and the Hubbard City Lakes Park in Hubbard. CTAS members will provide telescopes to view the visible planets and a selection of star clusters, nebulas, and galaxies.

Mercury reaches greatest elongation in December, making it easier to view. Elongation is the angle between the Sun and Mercury as seen from the Earth. Mercury appears 60 percent lit through a telescope. Mercury is followed closely by brilliant Venus, a waxing crescent moon, and Red Planet Mars. Planets between the Earth and the Sun (inferior planets) go through phases, just like our moon. Blue Neptune and blue green Uranus round out the list planets that can be viewed during the star party this month.

Messier 15 is a rich globular cluster in the constellation Pegasus, the winged horse. M15 is 33,000 light years away and 175 light years in diameter. It contains over 100,000 stars and is one of the most densely packed globular clusters in the Milky Way. Bright stars Scheat, Alpheratz, Markab, and Algenib form the easily recognized Great Square of Pegasus asterism.

Salado ISD provides a free half-day prekindergarten program for three-year-old and four-year-old students.

“Our two prekindergarten teachers, Vickie Frazier and Kristen Finch, do an excellent job of preparing these students for kindergarten,” SISD Superintendent Michael Novotny said.

To be eligible for prekindergarten, a child must fit at least one of the following criteria:

- Be unable to speak and comprehend the English language
- Be educationally disadvantaged, which means a student eligible to participate in the national free or reduced-price lunch program

- Be homeless, as defined by 42 United States Code (U.S.C.) Section 1143a, regardless of the residence of the child, of either parent of the child, or of the child’s guardian or other person having lawful control of the child

- Be the child of an active duty member of the armed forces of the United States, including the state military forces or a reserve component of the armed forces, who is ordered to active duty by proper authority; or is the child of a member of the armed forces of the United States, including the state military forces or a reserve component of the armed forces, who was injured or killed while serving on active duty

- Be in, or have been in, the conservatorship of the Department of Family and Protective Services (DFPS) following an adversary hearing held as provided by Section 262.201, Family Code.

“We also allow employees’ children to attend our prekindergarten program, even if they don’t fit any of the five eligibility criteria,” Dr. Novotny stated. “This is a very nice employee benefit that has helped with employee recruitment and retention.”

A school district is required to offer prekindergarten for four-year-old students if the district has 15 or more eligible children who are at least four years of age. However, most districts do not offer a prekindergarten program for three-year-old students.

SISD started the prekindergarten for three-year-old students during the 2014-2015 school year.

“We are now able to provide these students two years of preparation for kindergarten and the program pays for itself with the additional state funding we receive based on the increased enrollment,” Dr. Novotny added.

SISD also received a state prekindergarten grant of $10,206 for the 2015-2016 school year and $10,610 for the 2016-2017 school year.

Any families with a child three or four years of age that fits any of the five eligibility criteria are welcome to start the enrollment process by calling Keyla Sebek at Thomas Arnold Elementary School at 254-947-6925.

Jr. High Girls Basketball

Salado junior high girls began district play before the Thanksgiving break, playing against Burnet. Prior to district play, the eighth grade girls won the Salado basketball tournament while the seventh grade girls placed second.

Burnet Games
7th A 28
Burnet 26
Leading scorers: Eishen Young, 14 pts; Lainey Taylor, 7 pts.

8th Grade A team:
Salado 37
Burnet 38
Leading scorers: Amanda Cantu, 15 pts;

Amy Manning, 10 pts; Lorena Perez, 8 pts.

"This was a hard way to start district play. We were down 9 points at half and came back in the 3rd to go up 32-30," Coach Jodee Preston said. "In the fourth, we just couldn't get any shots to fall and missed many much needed free throws. The girls played hard until the end and I think this loss will help motivate them."

Salado Tournament Results
7th Grade A team placed second in the tournament with these results:
Salado 30
Lake Belton 10
Salado 21
Academy 12
Championship game:
Salado 36
North Belton 43

8th grade A team won the tournament with these results:
Salado 41
Lake Belton 9
Salado 27
Academy 16

Championship game:
Salado 31
Lorena 29
"The girls played very heads up this game. We went into overtime with Lorena...you couldn't have asked for a better championship game!" Coach Preston said. "I was very proud of the way the girls kept their composure and continued playing their game. I was throwing of-fenses, defenses and press-es that we haven't practiced since last year. They left it all on the floor and if this is any indication as to how they are going to play this season...man, they are going to be fun to watch!"

The Bullsnake (Pituophis catenifer sayi)

The Bullsnake is non-venemos

As a general rule, large snakes bring about emotions in people that are generally not healthy, especially for the snake. However, one species that is found in west Texas is almost revered, not only for its size, but more so for what it does. That snake is the large and ordinarily common Bullsnake.

The Bullsnake (Pituophis catenifer sayi) is a large non-venomous serpent, with most adults reaching sexual maturity between four and five feet in total length. The largest specimen recorded in Texas, however, was almost a whopping nine feet, making this species the second longest snake in the state behind the Indigo Snake.

Wild About Texas
Michael Price

Like other members of the Gopher and Pine snake genus, this species superficially resembles a venomous rattlesnake in that it has large, squarish dark blotches appearing down the back that stand out from the yellow or tan background coloration. Along its side are smaller dark blotches that appear to have no particular pattern. The tail blotches are more or less dark brown or reddish rings that are set apart from the yellow background color. The head is also yellowish, sometimes speckled with dark spots and there is often a dark bordered pale line connecting the eyes. There is also a dark line that extends from the eye to the back portion of the mouth. The belly is cream colored and is marked with indistinct dark splotches, particularly along the outer belly scales. The pupils, like other large, non-venomous serpents, are round in appearance.

Bullsnakes have a large range, occurring in a line running through the midsection of the United States from central Mexico northward to southern Canada. In Texas, they can be observed from roughly I-35 westward to the Pecos River. The closely related and virtually the same subspecies Sonoran Gopher Snake occurs throughout the Trans-Pecos. Having such a large range, Bullsnakes are habitat generalists, meaning they can and do thrive in a variety of habitats. Dry, arid spaces are preferred, although they are common in the rocky canyon areas of the Edwards Plateau, as well as the high-elevation pine-forested areas of the mountainous areas of west Texas. Cultivated fields are a favored habitat, mostly due to the abundance of small mammals in such places.

As with almost all other reptiles that reside in temperate climates, they undergo a period of inactivity during the coldest months of the year, allowing sexually mature adults to generate the sperm and eggs necessary for successful reproduction in the spring. Like most other harmless snakes found in Texas, Bullsnakes are egg-laying creatures. Mating occurs primarily during the months of April and May with egg deposition happening in late June or early July. Egg clutches vary in size from three to twenty-two, depending on the size and age of the female. The eggs are large, almost the size of small chicken eggs and are buried beneath debris to hold the humidity levels at a premium to avoid desiccation.

The neonates hatch from the eggs roughly two months after deposition and average fifteen inches at hatching. The young are carbon copies of the adults in appearance, and like other snake species, they require no assistance from the parents as they are capable of fending for themselves at birth.

This species is forages for food during the morning and evening hours during the spring and fall, becoming nocturnal during the heat of the summer months. Bullsnakes prefer small mammals such as mice and rats over any other prey, and one study estimated that an adult male Bullsnake can devour nearly one thousand field mice in one season. The benefits of such a feat are overwhelmingly convincing as evidenced by the fact that most ranchers and farmers who ordinarily have an aversion to snakes will leave the Bullsnake be. Many people also believe that the Bullsnake will consume other snakes such as rattlesnakes, but this is not the case.

Although they are completely harmless, this species puts on a display when threatened that rivals that of any rattlesnake species. When it feels in danger, it will coil its forebody up in an s-coil, rattle its tail incessantly, and produce a hissing sound that sounds amazingly familiar to that of a rattlesnake rattling. This display, while fending off other natural predators, tends to have this snake mistaken for a rattlesnake and sadly killed by unknowing persons.

Homeownership Remains a Priority for Most Americans

By PATRICK JOHNSON
President, Temple Area Builders Association
Even as housing markets continue to recover at different rates around the country, the American Dream of homeownership remains strong. In fact, an overwhelming four-out-of-five Americans believe that owning a home is a good investment, according to a recent poll commissioned by the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB). "Most Americans believe that owning a home remains an integral part of the American Dream and that policymakers need to take active steps to encourage and protect homeownership," said Patrick Johnson. The survey responses highlight the many benefits of homeownership, including the solid investment opportunity. Indeed, 82 percent of respondents rate

"a home for you to live in" as a good or excellent investment (the highest of six choices), far ahead of the second option, retirement accounts, at 67 percent. They recognize the fact that homeownership is a primary source of net worth for many Americans, and is an important step in accumulating personal financial assets over the long term. And, contrary to some concerns about Millennials rejecting the idea of homeownership, 81 percent of 18-29-year-olds want to buy a home. Some Millennials may be taking longer to purchase a home as they work to overcome the primary hurdles to homeownership. Among those polled, 55 percent said the biggest obstacle to buying a home was finding a home at an affordable price, followed by 50 percent who cited insufficient savings for a down payment and 41 percent who reported difficulty getting approved for a home loan. Perhaps that is why 72 percent of respondents support the government providing tax incentives to encourage homeownership. Tax benefits, particularly the mortgage interest deduction, which has been included in the tax code for more than 100 years – have been key in developing the American Dream and supporting the aspirations of countless families at all income levels who want to become established homeowners. You can learn more about the homeownership survey at www.nahb.org.
