John Newman turned in a petition on Feb. 9 containing 77 signatures calling for an election for Disannexation of a portion of Salado.

Salado aldermen, at their Feb. 16 meeting, will vote to Call for the Election for May 6 after the signatures were verified as valid and belonging to qualified voters residing within the proposed area of disannexation.

Salado Village Voice incorrectly reported in its Feb. 9 edition that the deadline had passed for the petition to be filed with the Village to call for the election. This was based on a statement from Mayor Skip Blancett that "According to our lawyer yesterday (Feb. 6) was the last day to turn in petition."

The petition turned in by Newman is more than 60 pages in length and contains a description of the proposed area for disannexation using metes and bounds, as required by law. It also contains a visual map of the proposed area for disannexation.

The following signatures were on the Petition:

Judy Fields, Hansford Fields, Richard Worrall, Saeko Worrall, Anthony Wise, Thomas Kelley, John Weaver, Doris Stanley, Barbara Nesloney, Reneé McManus, David Apichino.

Monarch numbers down again

By KEITH RANDALL
TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 14, 2017 – After rising surprisingly last year, Monarch butterfly numbers appear to be down once again this year, a trend that has seen declining numbers of the colorful creature over the past decade, says a Texas A&M University expert.

Craig Wilson, a senior research associate in the Center for Mathematics and Education and longtime butterfly enthusiast, says early figures show fewer Monarch numbers for 2016-17. Last year, about 100 million Monarchs were estimated – almost double the amount from the previous year – in their breeding grounds in Mexico, but this year it appears another decline is likely.

"Their breeding grounds were hit by late winter storms that blew down trees and damaged their habitat severely, enough to kill many millions of them," he explains.

"That means fewer made it to the breeding grounds last year and so fewer made it to Mexico in the fall of 2016."

Monarchs have had a rough time of it in recent years.

Wilson says their numbers are less than one-tenth of what they were in 1996, when it was estimated that 1 billion Monarchs would be present. A low point occurred in 2013-14 when only 34 million Monarchs were estimated.

Wilson says that Monarchs overwinter and breed in Mexico and then have three more generations as they travel north to Canada.

"Texas is a crucial place for them – they have to pass through the state on their way

I-35 rest stops south of Salado to get Monarch Waystations

The I-35 rest stops south of Salado will soon have Monarch Butterfly Waystations through a cooperative agreement between the US Fish and Wildlife Service (US FWS) and the Native Plant Society of Texas (NPSOT).

The agreement provides funding and technical assistance to NPSOT for the planning, establishment, and maintenance of Monarch butterfly waystations and interpretive signage on Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) safety rest areas between Austin and Dallas.

Two matching rest areas in Bell County, in Salado, will be the sites of NPSOT Monarch waystations. These Monarch waystations will be established in 1,000 sq. ft. of existing landscaping beds near the Visitor's Center.

The Tonkawa Chapter of the NPSOT will have several work days in February and March to prepare the waystations at the Salado rest stop areas.

They invite local groups and volunteers to help with the bed preparation and planting days.

Volunteers will work on preparing the beds on the northbound rest stop on Feb. 19 and Feb. 22-26.

Planting on all of the beds will be done on March 9-12 and March 14-18.

Waystations are places that provide resources necessary for monarchs to produce successive generations and sustain their migration (MonarchWatch.org).

Monarch waystations feature native milkweed plants to feed the successive generations of butterflies during the spring and summer migration to the north U.S. and Canada and fall nectar-producing plants to feed the adult Monarch butterflies as they migrate to their overwintering grounds in Mexico.

To offset the loss of milkweeds and nectar sources from development and changes in agricultural practices within the migration corridor, we need to create, conserve, and protect milkweed/monarch habitats.

"We can help reverse habitat loss by creating Monarch waystations in home gardens, at schools, businesses, parks, zoos, nature centers, along roadsides, and on other unused plots of land," said Kay Jenkins, Vice President of NPSOT. "A garden as small as 100 sq. ft. in area can qualify as a Monarch waystation if the right native plants are used."

To find out more about this program, contact Jenkins at kay-jenkins@sbcglobal.net.

Personnel top BOA agenda

Salado aldermen will tackle personnel issues in executive session on Feb. 16. The board will meet at 6 p.m.

Among the items for discussion in executive session:

- Discuss the appointment, employment, and/or reassignment of the following position: Police Chief.

- Discuss the appointment, employment, and/or reassignment of the following position: Executive Director of Chamber of Commerce and Tourism Bureau.

- Discuss the appointment, employment, and/or re-assignment of the following position: Code Enforcement Clerk.

- Discuss the appointment, employment, and/or reassignment of the following position: Village Administrator.

In other business, aldermen will discuss renting a temporary tank to be used to prepare for repairs on the Stagecoach Sewer Plant.

The board will also discuss the following in workshop: conveyance of Smith Circle, Pace Park agreement, environmental ordinance and update on Zara studies.

Filing deadline is Feb. 17 for local races

Four residents have filed for election to the Village of Salado Board of Aldermen. The final day to file as a candidate is Feb. 17.

Filing for election to the Board of Aldermen are: David T. Williams (incumbent), Linda Reynolds, Michael McDougal (incumbent) and Andy Jackson.

Filing for Salado ISD Board of Trustees are Kim Bird (incumbent), Troy Smith and Nate Self.

New interim city manager to start work Feb. 19

Raymond Dale Brown will begin duties as interim city manager on Feb. 19 according to Mayor Skip Blancett. Brown will work under the contract that the Village has with Texas First Group. David Miller left his duties as interim city manager to take on full-time employment.

Brown will serve until the Board of Aldermen hire a city administrator. According to Mayor Blancett, the Village is interviewing two candidates for city administrator: Don Ferguson and Dennis Baldwin. Aldermen will interview those candidates, according to the Mayor.

Most recently, Brown was the interim city administrator in 2014-15 for the City of Huntington, where he was responsible for administering all department of the Type A General Law city of approximately 2,200 resident.

The city owns and operates its own water, sanitary, sewer and gas distribution systems. Brown worked through Texas First Group.

He served as interim city manager of Brady in 2012-14. He was responsible for all departments and operations of the home-rule city of 6,000 residents. Brady is a full-service city which owns and operates its own water, sanitary sewer, gas, solid waste and electric utilities. While there, he revised many city operations and policies to conform to current law, reorganized city operations to change from 15 departments to six; implemented new budgeting procedures to bring more council involvement and transparency to the system; hired new, more experienced employees in several operations. He also assisted the council in advertising, interviewing and final selection of permanent city manager.

Brown was the City Manager of Palestine in 2005-2010, responsible for administering all departments and operations of a city of approximately 18,000 operating under fire and police civil service, which serves as a regional retail center. Extensive experience in budgeting and finance, organizational analysis, economic development, strategic and infrastructure planning, employee development, employee/community/intergovernmental relations, and capital improvements.

Brown holds an M.S. in Community and Regional Planning for University of Texas and a B.A. from Sam Houston State University.

Wilson says more milkweed is needed for the Monarch's long-term survival. "There are still plenty of reasons to be concerned, mainly because the number of milkweed plants – the one plant that is vital to their existence – has been decreasing in the past decade," he notes. "There are new programs to establish milkweed planting, and the public is urged to become involved and to plant milkweed. The Monarch's miraculous migration depends on it."

"The mayors of numerous Texas, cities like College Station and Bryan, have committed to the Mayors' Monarch pledge to plant Monarch friendly habitats within city limits with milkweeds to feed the nascent caterpillars. They are supporting efforts to help Monarchs along with citizen scientists."

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Gorsuch is the Anti-Trump

If President Donald Trump is a budding authoritarian, as his critics allege, one of the safeguards is Judge Neil Gorsuch.

For all that Trump has flouted norms and gotten off to an at-times amateurish start in the White House, his pick of Gorsuch was extremely normal and highly professional. The Gorsuch nomination is exactly what everyone should want from a President Trump, especially those who most fear and loathe him. Yet Trump's fiercest opponents began denouncing Gorsuch immediately.

This is the dilemma for Democrats: Either Trump is a threat to the republic because he doesn't appreciate the Constitution and is bound to violate it with excessive assertions of executive power, or Gorsuch is a threat to the republic because he has an overly punctilious view of the Constitution that entails, among other things, a dim view of executive overreach. Both can't be true.

If Democrats really believe that Trump is as dangerous as they say, they should think of Gorsuch as the equivalent of Gen. James Mattis. He is a responsible choice from what they consider an irresponsible president, and they should embrace him on those grounds. Gorsuch is the opposite of Trump in every way that should matter to the president's enemies.

If they hate Trump because he's anti-intellectual, Gorsuch is a Harvard-educated lawyer who is widely admired for his acute analysis and writing.

If they worry that Trump has shown little regard for the Bill of Rights, Gorsuch is a stickler for it, including the Fourth Amendment that will be the foremost obstacle if Trump's law-and-order agenda goes too far.

If they fear federal power under Trump overruling the prerogatives of states and localities, Gorsuch is a devoted friend of federalism.

If they are anxious about the Trump executive branch trampling on the other branches of government, Gorsuch calls the separation of powers "among the most important liberty-protecting devices of the constitutional design."

Why won't Democrats follow the logic of their anti-Trump reasoning and support Gorsuch?

First, there is sheer partisanship. They believe the Antonin Scalia seat has been "stolen" from them because Senate Republicans refused to act on the nomination of Merrick Garland.

Second, Democrats don't truly oppose Trump on procedural or constitutional grounds, and so have no use for the likes of Gorsuch. Liberals didn't object to President Barack Obama's executive orders unilaterally rewriting immigration law, or recoil when he was repeatedly shot down 9-0 by the Supreme Court.

Third, the left cares about social issues more than anything else, particularly the judicial imposition of the current abortion regime. If Gorsuch isn't on board, it doesn't make a difference whether he will be a presumptive check on the president or not.

Finally, Democrats are getting sucked into the politics of the primal scream. They are heading toward all-out war against Trump, in which case all that matters about Gorsuch -- or anyone else -- is that he is associated with the president. The best way for Trump to overcome this unhinged opposition is to make choices as sound as he did with Judge Gorsuch -- an unassailable pick being assailed by people who profess to yearn for sobriety and traditional norms, even as they reject both themselves.

Remembering Mr. Hutchens

To the Editor:

Thanks for a copy of your publication. The article on Mr. Hutchens brought back a lot of good memories. He was a kind and gentle man -- always gave us kids a wave and hello as we walked by his house.

Mr. Hutchens, Stege Russell and my Dad were all in France in WWI. Mr. Russell and Mr. Hutchens were victims of mustard gas and it curtailed their activities for life. I remember the three of them on a bench in front of my Dad's store telling stories of WWI experience in France. They never mentioned the bad times, only good memories.

My Dad built Mr. Hutchens' home in 1921. He said he finished it the day before the 24 hour downpour that caused the "Flood of 1921" that locals referred to for many years. Water got up to the building now occupied by the Museum. The Salado telephone switchboard was on the second floor of the building for many years.

The article mentions the vacant lot between the Norwood and Hutchens properties. The Church of Christ was on this lot from about 1900 until 1945. The building was moved onto the lot across the road (Highway 81 then) from the Norwood home when the brick church was built, the frame church building was sold to Alfred Smith. He converted it to his home. Mr. Spruell's blacksmith shop had been on the lot many years until his death about 1945.

Dear Reader:

Thanks so much for the nice note and your reminiscence of growing up in Salado. The Salado Historical Society is working to preserve that particular piece of history by restoring the Hutchens Writing Cabin. According to Sandi Wicker, president of Salado Historical Society, "This is a small cabin, 8'x10, with some unusual architectural features: a fireplace, a built-in ice box, small windows, etc.. Some of the work has already been done and it can probably be finished in less than a week. With permits, electrical hook-ups, furnishings, signage and lumber I estimate the cost to be approximately $10,000 to restore it and I am hoping that you can help us with this. We need construction helpers as well as monetary donations. (any amount would help and be appreciated) Donations are tax-deductible. If you have any questions about this project, feel free to call 254-760-9655. Donations can be mailed to Salado Historical Society, P.O. Box 251, Salado, Texas 76571."

Pipeline Populism: Complete, Build

By ROBERT L. BRADLEY JR.

President Donald Trump is about to give the U.S. economy a power-up. He just approved the long delayed construction of two megaprojects, Keystone XL and the Dakota Access pipelines.

This means more domestic energy, more economic growth, and more jobs for Americans. But it also means more theatrics from environmental extremists. The new president and his team should hang tough and ignore their doomsday predictions.

Keystone XL will transport oil from Canada to Nebraska. The Obama administration blocked Phase IV, claiming it would "undercut" America's role as a leader in the fight against climate change.

The Dakota Access pipeline will carry 500,000 barrels of oil a day. The Obama administration stopped construction when it was nearly complete. This came after protests promoting the baseless claim that the pipeline would harm the drinking water of the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe.

President Trump, in his first full week in office, brought both pipeline projects back to life. He promised to streamline "the incredibly cumbersome, long, horrible permitting process" and cut unnecessary environmental regulations. This is good news.

Green Hysteria

To say that the reaction from extreme greens was overwrought would be an understatement.

"Keystone XL is a carbon bomb that would cook the planet," cried the environmental advocacy group 350.org.

"Donald Trump has been in office for four days and he's already proving to be the dangerous threat to our climate we feared he would be," squealed Michael Brune, executive director of the Sierra Club.

Such hyperbole and misdirection are at least a half-century old. In the 1960s, Paul Ehrlich et al. warned us about mass starvation from the population

The Anchor of Over-Regulation

"If I could paraphrase a well-known statement by Will Rogers that he never met a man he didn't like," President Reagan once quipped, "I'm afraid we have some people around here who never met a tax they didn't like."

Instead of "tax," he could just as easily have said "regulation."

Consider the reaction to our new president's determination to cut regulations by 75 percent. "Trump's unpopular deregulation agenda will permit corporations to rip off consumers, poison our environment, cheat and mistreat workers, and more," wrote Public Citizen, a liberal non-profit group, predicting "disastrous consequences" would follow.

They and other pro-regulation groups often accuse conservatives of counting only the costs of regulations and none of the benefits. This charge might resonate a bit more if they didn't do the opposite and act as if cost wasn't even an issue.

Unfortunately, our economy is awash in regulations. "There is virtually no aspect of our lives over which laws and ordinances do not reign," regulation expert Diane Katz writes. "Congress and federal bureaucrats routinely ignore regulatory costs, exaggerate benefits, and breach legislative and constitutional boundaries."

According to independent estimates, regulation costs us more than $2 trillion an-

by Edwin Feulner

nually. Yes, "trillion" with a "t" -- 12 zeroes. That's more money than the IRS collects in income taxes each year. In just the past eight years, the Obama administration issued more than 22,700 rules, with just the biggest ones increasing the annual regulatory costs by some $120 billion.

Add in the regulatory burdens imposed during the last Bush administration, and the annual cost of red tape has increased by at least $200 billion in the past 15 years.

The cost to taxpayers of government administering all that red tape is high. Fiscal year 2017 figures put it at $70 billion, an amount that has almost doubled since 2000. Much of that increase is what we pay the regulators, all 279,000 of them.

Put another way, we're paying regulators plenty to enforce regulations that cost us more than ever.

With good reason did President Trump say that his deregulation agenda is intended to "remove the anchor that's weighing us down."

That anchor has been growing for a long time. Prior to World War II, notes Washington Post columnist Robert Samuelson, regulations were confined mainly to a few large industries, such as railroads, banks, and the electric and phone utilities.

"Now regulation is pervasive," he writes. "It touches air and water pollution, pensions, vehicle fuel efficiency, the Internet ("net neutrality" rules), home mortgages, political campaign contributions ... and much more."

And there's no end in sight. As the Competitive Enterprise points out, in fiscal 2015, the Federal Register (which lists final and recommended rules) totaled 80,260 pages.

Given not only the size of the regulatory state, but the exponential pace of its growth, who can really blame the president for wanting to cut regulation "massively"?

And, as Katz points out, the problem goes beyond the number and cost of regulation. The problem also lies with the approach.

"Conventional wisdom has long held that government controls of industry are the best and only way to protect the public," she writes. "We now know better. Forty years of command-and-control regimes have led to massive, ineffective, and unaccountable bureaucracies."

There are several steps the Trump administration can take. One is to rescind the numerous executive orders President Obama issued to sidestep Congress, especially on labor, immigration and environmental issues.

Another is to review all pending litigation and designate cases for settlement, including challenges to President Obama's Clean Power Plan; his transgender bathroom directive; and the Environmental Protection Agency's egregious waters of the U.S. rule, which affects property rights.

"If you have 10,000 regulations, you destroy all respect for the law," Winston Churchill once said. Well, we have a lot more than 10,000 these days. It's high time we restored respect for the law -- and began taming our out-of-control regulatory state.

Now, climate-alarmist smears are being recycled to drum up fundraising dollars for environmental groups.

Eco-friendly, Economical
Histrionics aside, there are good reasons why the new president is moving forward with the pipelines.

Pipelines are the safest way to move oil -- safer, in fact, than rail or road. The great majority of energy transported via pipeline -- 99.999 percent -- reaches its final destination safely.

That's because pipelines are carefully constructed and monitored. The industry constantly upgrades its systems to include the most advanced safety technology.

What's more, federal and state governments alike have reviewed Keystone and Dakota and concluded that they are safe for the environment.

Even the Washington Post Editorial Board recently acknowledged the overreach by environmental activists.

Dakota Access poses no threat. The pipeline will be placed deeper and farther away from existing infrastructure than mandated by government regulations.

To ramp up fears around these pipelines, activists are pointing to two oil spills. Neither is cause for alarm. The more recent of the two caused no injuries and did not get anywhere near drinking water supplies. The other did not even take place in the United States.

Pipeline to Jobs

The pipelines are not only environmentally friendly, but also economically beneficial. Keystone XL would involve 42,000 jobs in construction and add $3.4 billion to U.S. GDP.

Dakota Access, which has already involved 12,000 jobs, will produce $55 million in taxes. It will spur millions of dollars in investment.

President Trump should be applauded for his decision to kick-start the construction of the Keystone XL and Dakota Access pipelines.

One can only hope that the Democratic Party returns to its roots as the party of the small person, now known as the forgotten man and forgotten woman. Fossil-fuel populism, not environmental extremism, is winning politics.

Robert L. Bradley Jr. is the founder and CEO of the Institute for Energy Research.

Star Party at Overlook Park will focus on Orion Feb. 18

The Central Texas Astronomical Society will host free public star parties 6:30-9:30 p.m. Feb. 18 at Overlook Park near Belton and the Hubbard City Lakes Park in Hubbard. CTAS members will provide telescopes to view the visible planets and a selection of star clusters, nebulas, and galaxies.

Orion, the Hunter, is arguably the most beautiful constellation in the night sky. Red supergiant Betelgeuse and blue-white Bellatrix form the shoulders, with Saiph and Rigel at the feet. Three evenly spaced stars Alnitak, Alnilan, and Mintaka make up the Belt of Orion. Extending from the belt is the Sword of Orion, formed by stars Nair al-Saif, and Hatsya. The best part of the sword is at the center, the Orion Nebula (M42), a diffuse nebula 30 light years across and visible to the naked eye on a dark night. An open cluster of four young stars, called the Trapezium, illuminate the bright center of M42.

Blue-green Uranus, Red Planet Mars, and brilliant Venus adorn the evening sky this month, all less than 15 degrees apart. Neptune is also up, but too close to the

Salado Museum looking for new curator

Salado Museum board of directors will meet Feb. 16 to consider hiring an interim curator after Coleman Hampton announced that he will be the new director of the Bell County Museum.

During the last year, Hampton worked to catalogue the collection of items given to the Museum over the years and to develop a new display and approach for the Museum.

In 2016, Central Texas Area Museum and Salado College Hill Park merged in an effort to concentrate on presenting the history of Salado at the Museum

Prior to coming to Salado, Hampton worked with the Dallas Heritage Village on a massive research project in their archives and collections that culminated in his creation of a mobile app to help enhance visitor experience at the Village. He has also worked with the Texas Sports Hall of Fame, the Mayborn Museum Complex at Baylor, and the Baylor University Institute for Oral

Museum presents Susan Wittig Albert March 4 to kick off Texas Writers exhibit

The Salado Museum and College Park will host a talk by New York Times best-selling author Susan Wittig Albert on Sat., 6 p.m. March 4, in the Museum Event Hall, 423 S. Main St. in Salado.

The event marks the opening night for the traveling exhibit, Texas Writers, which will be on display at the museum March 3-31.

The exhibit and Albert's appearance are made possible by grant funding from Humanities Texas, state affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities, and by funding from the Salado Public Library. Both events are free and open to the public.

Albert's lecture will focus on her experience as a writer in Texas, amongst other topics. Donations for Albert's honorarium are made to her charity, Story Circle Network. The panel exhibit features information on Texas writers from the mid-20th century to the present day (www.humanitiestexas.org). Salado's ties to arts, culture, and education make this exhibit relevant to the Village's past, present, and future. The exhibit also features items on loan from the Salado Public Library.

Albert has been a full-time novelist since she left her career as a university English professor and administrator in 1985. Her books include memoirs, biographical fiction, historical fiction, the popular China

Bayles mystery series; the Cottage Tales of Beatrix Potter; and mysteries written with her husband, Bill Albert. Working together, the Alberts also have written over 60 young adult novels. She is founder and current president of the Story Circle Network and a member of the Texas Institute of Letters. (www.susanalbert.com)

The mission of the newly formed organization is to promote and preserve the pioneer history of Salado, Texas, through educational programs and the exhibition of artifacts, books and papers that document the settlement and heritage of this area. The Museum is located at 423 South Main Street in Salado across from the Stagecoach Inn. College Park is just south of the museum. www.saladoscottishfestival.com

 Opening lead — jack of spades.

West follows with the seven, and the queen wins as East shows out. Prospects for the slam, which appeared a moment before to be a near certainty, suddenly change to a near impossibility. No finesse against West's potent holding is possible, and the contract seems doomed.

Standard procedure in such situations calls for declarer to picture a hand West might have that would allow the contract to be made.

West follows with the seven, and the queen wins as East shows out. Prospects for the slam, which appeared a moment before to be a near certainty, suddenly change to a near impossibility. No finesse against West's potent holding is possible, and the contract seems doomed.

Standard procedure in such situations calls for declarer to picture a hand West might have that would allow the contract to be made.

South should conclude that his only chance lies in attempting to arrange an endplay that would snuff out one of West's two seemingly sure trump tricks.

The plan can succeed only if West has a hand where he has to follow suit as the winners in each side suit are cashed. At the same time, South must reduce his trump length to equal West's.

Accordingly, at trick three the ace of hearts is cashed, and a low heart is ruffed. Three rounds of clubs are taken, and the jack of hearts is ruffed. Two high spades are then cashed, ending in dummy.

Ten tricks have now been played. Dummy has the king of hearts and K-3 of diamonds, while South has the J-9-6 of diamonds and West the A-10-8.

The king of hearts is led next, and South trumps it with the jack. If West overruffs, he has no safe return. If he under-ruffs, he scores only his ace of trumps. West has no recourse, and his second trump trick vanishes.

Spotted Salamander

The Spotted Salamander spends most of its life underground

Most folks are very familiar with the two most common types of amphibians that reside in this state. Nearly everyone has heard a frog calling, or seen a toad in their own backyard. Yet most people are not aware of four-legged and tailed amphibian that dwells here as well, and that is the Spotted Salamander.

The Spotted Salamander (Ambystoma maculatum) belongs to a genus of salamanders that are categorized as Mole Salamanders. This genus has five representatives in Texas, and this particular species arguably has the smallest range of the faction. This plain, but pretty species occurs in the easternmost portions of the state. It is in this

Wild About Texas

eco-region that it resides almost exclusively underground in woodlands and forested areas, almost always near an ephemeral body of water. Outside of Texas it may be observed eastward to Georgia and then northward to Canada. It happens to be the state amphibian of both Ohio and South Carolina.

As the family name implies, this group of salamanders is well suited to living life underground, much akin to moles. It rarely makes an appearance above ground save for just a few days annually. Being a cold-tolerant species, its above-ground activity is generally induced by a warm front during the winter and early spring that stabilizes the temperatures enough to encourage emergence.

While the old adage "everything is bigger in Texas" holds true with this species close relative, the Tiger Salamander, this particular variety is not nearly as long or "beefy" as it aforementioned cousin. Adults can range in size from 5 1/2 to 7 inches, although eight inch-long individuals are not uncommon. The water-dwelling larvae often achieve a total length of four inches or so.

This homely salamander variety is quite plain, but still attractive. The dorsal coloration is typically black, and most individuals have a series of bright yellow spots that run lengthwise the backside, the reason that it bears the common name Spotted Salamander. In some individuals, the spots on the head and neck are orange, giving the animal a more stunning appearance. However, at the other end of the spectrum, occasional specimens will be totally unmarked, being just a dark salamander. The water-bound larvae are generally colored a mediocre olive-brown with large, limb-like gills on either side of the head.

The breeding cycle of this magnificent amphibian is a bit unusual, not only for the time of year that it generally takes place, but also in the reproductive habits as well. Unlike most other arid-living amphibians, who wait for the summer rainy season to emerge to reproduce in shallow pools, this unique amphibian will often congregate in areas of water during the winter months when the air temperatures are considered to be too low for other "herptiles" to be active. Most specimens have been observed in temperatures too cold for me - which just happens to be any temperatures below 50 degrees!

Males will enter the breeding pools first, awaiting the arrival of the females. Once the females arrive, the males will begin to deposit spermatophores (a small capsule containing spermatozoa). Once the males make the deposit, they will then begin to nudge a receptive female to "pick up" the capsules in their cloaca.

The females will then proceed to lay the large fertilized eggs, numbering up to 150, in clumps of vegetation. The larvae that hatch will attain a total length between 4 and 6 inches before they begin the transformation into land-dwellers. This process, depending on how long it takes to achieve this size, may take several months. On rare occasions, the larvae never achieve the appropriate size and will remain in the larval state permanently.

Although they are rarely seen, the Spotted Salamander can be quite common in certain areas and the population densities are somewhat stable across their range.

Mother Earth News Fair returns to Expo Center Feb. 18-19

BELTON, TEXAS. (February 18-19, 2017) — The Mother Earth News Fair will be returning to the Lone Star-State next month.

Mother Earth News, the largest and longest-running publication about self-sufficient lifestyles, will once again host its Texas edition of the Mother Earth News Fair Feb. 18-19 at the Bell County Expo Center, 301 W Loop 121. The Fair runs from 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. on Sat., and from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Sunday.

"Bringing the Fair to Belton makes perfect sense for us, given Mother Earth News' large subscriber base

Fairgoers can attend more than 150 hands-on workshops that cover organic gardening, food preparation and preservation, natural health, renewable energy, homesteading, small-scale livestock, green building, green transportation, and related topics. Local and national experts on sustainable and rural lifestyles will lead the sessions.

In addition, the Fair will host children's activities, vendor and livestock demonstrations, hundreds of exhibitors, and local, organic food options.

For a reduced price, attendees will be able to pre-order a weekend wristband closer to the event. Wristbands at the gate will cost more. Children 17 and under get in free. A limited number of VIP lanyards are available for purchase as well. VIPs receive perks such as priority seating at workshops and catered meals.

To purchase wristband passes, inquire about exhibiting or check programming, visit our website or call toll-free 1-800-234-3368.
