Tulloch tapped as interim Police Chief

By TIM FLEISCHER EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Josh Tulloch will serve as Interim Police Chief until a new officer takes over the department. Mayor Skip Blancett appointed Tulloch as the interim chief on Feb. 23, following the resignation of Chief Jack Hensley the week

State law requires that any municipality that has a police force to appoint an interim chief in the absence of a permanent chief.

Aldermen confirmed the appointment at their March 2 meeting and on motion by Frank Coachman and a second from Amber Preston-Dankert.

"Following the resignation of Chief Hensley, we had another officer resign," Chrissy Lee told aldermen March 3 discussing the interlocal agreement with the Bell County Sheriff's Department in which off-duty deputies provide patrol services to Salado at a cost of $35 per hour. The Village pays those officers directly according to the agreement. The officers use the Sheriff's Department vehicles, for which the Village pays Bell County $10 per

Aldermen to consider hiring city admin. in special session March 9

BY TIM FLEISCHER EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado aldermen may take action March 9 to enter into an employment agreement for a city administrator. The Village posted an agenda for a special called meeting of the aldermen for 6:30 p.m. March 9 at the municipal building.

Aldermen interviewed three finalists for the job on Feb. 23: Don Ferguson, city manager in Wimberley, Dennis Baldwin, interim city manager in Killeen and William Lewis, from Arkansas.

Baldwin has served as interim city manager for the City of Killeen since Oct. 2016. He was the Chief of Police in Killeen prior to taking on the interim position. He became a police officer in 1984 and was named Chief of Police in Killeen in 2004.

Ferguson has been city administrator of Wimberley for 10 years. The Wimberley city council voted in February to amend its employment agreement with Ferguson to end his employment as city administrator there in 90 days. William Lewis is a retired City Manager that has worked for cities up to the size of 70,000. Aldermen will go into closed session for discussion

"regarding contract negotiations for the Village Administrator candidate." The board will then consider possible action on an employment agreement for

The Village contracted with Texas First Source in October to provide city administrator services with David Miller as the interim city administrator on a part-time basis.

GLO preserves Texas history

Salado Historical Society learns of Land Office programs

By TIM FLEISCHER EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

It is the oldest agency in Texas, created when Texas was a young Republic.

More than 180 years later, the General Land Office continues to do important work in the state.

It oversees the management of the public lands in the state, including overseeing the mineral resources in order to maximize returns for the Permanent School Fund.

It is responsible for caring for the coast, whether it is through programs such as the Adopt-a-Beach and beach cleanups or being the agency that responds to oil spills in the Gulf of Mexico.

Through the Veterans Land Board, created by the Texas legislature in 1948, the General Land Office provides veterans' services such as the Veterans Land Program, the Veterans Housing Assistance Program, the Veterans Home Improvement Program, the Texas State Veterans Homes Program, and the Texas State Veterans Cemetery Program.

Here in Bell County, veterans are served through the Central Texas State Veterans Cemetery in Killeen and the William R. Courtney Texas State Veterans Home.

Finally, the GLO serves as "the home for Texas History," James Harkins told members of the Salado Historical Society at their annual potluck and awards supper March 6.

Harkins is the director of public services, archives and public records for the General Land Office.

The GLO archives are housed in Austin next door to the flashier Bob Bullock Museum for Texas History. Within are more than 36 million Texas land grant documents and 45,000 maps dating back to 1561. The oldest document on record, according to Harkins, dates to 1720.

The archives are divided by eras and language: Spanish and Mexican Land Grants, Republic of Texas Land Grants and Land Grants to German immigrants written in German.

More than three million of the documents have been scanned and digitized for the use of researchers.

"A lot of the research is done by oil and gas producers and other landmen," Harkins said, adding that the documents are a treasure trove of information for genealogy researchers.

As the first agency created by the Republic of Texas in its infancy, one of the earliest jobs of the GLO was to consolidate all of the land grant documents from regional offices around the state into one central location.

"Texas didn't have any wealth in its earliest days, but it did have a lot of land," Harkins said, "which it gave to the veterans of the Texas revolution and later to immigrants willing to settle here."

The land records are the oldest, largest and most complete record group at the

The records are now housed in acid-free folders under constant humidity of 40-50 percent and constant temperature of 60-72 F. The archives are protected by state-of-the-art fire suppression systems, Harkins said.

When headright grants were awarded to settlers in the days of the Republic, there were multiple levels.

The land was granted by the Texas government to encourage settlement of the new republic.

According to the GLO, First-class headrights were issued to those who arrived before the signing of the Texas Declaration of Independence on March 2, 1836. Heads of families were eligible for one league and one labor of land (4605.5 acres) and single men were eligible for 1/3 of a league (1476.1 acres), according to the GLO.

Second-class headrights were issued to those who arrived between March 2, 1836 and October 1, 1837. Heads of families were eligible for 1,280 acres and single men were eligible for 640 acres, according to the GLO web-

Third-class headrights were issued to those who arrived between October 1, 1837 and January 1, 1840. Heads of families were eligible for 640 acres and single men were eligible for 320 acres, according to the GLO.

Fourth-class headrights were issued to those who arrived between January 1, 1840 and January 1, 1842. The amounts issued were the same as for a third class headright with the added requirement that 10 acres be cultivated, according to the GLO website.

"We are here to preserve and conserve Texas history." Harkins said.

The latest, and perhaps biggest, challenge for the GLO in regards to preserving and conserving Texas history is the Alamo.

For more than a century, the Daughters of the Republic of Texas acted as the caretakers of the Alamo. The DRT were tasked to be the caretakers for the Alamo in 1905. At that time, the DRT purchased the Alamo long barracks from a private owner and then turned over ownership to the State of Texas. The DRT was charged with the day to day operations until 2011 when the state legislature turned over custodianship to the GLO. The GLO contracted with the DRT to continue the day to day operations until 2015 when it terminated the contract and took over the day to day operations of the Alamo under the leadership of George P. Bush, General Land Commissioner.

Phil Collins donated his collection of artifacts from the Alamo, the largest private collection in the world, to the GLO to be housed in the former DRT library on the grounds of the Alamo complex. The Collins collection is valued at $15 million and continues to grow.

The DRT library is now housed at the University of Texas at San Antonio.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Revenge of the Nation-State

The start of the Trump administration has been a vindication of the American nation-state.

Anyone who thought it was a "borderless world," a category that includes some significant portion of the country's corporate and intellectual elite, has been disabused of the notion within about the first five days of the Trump years.

The theme running throughout President Donald Trump's inaugural address was the legitimacy of the nation-state as a community, a source of unity and the best means of advancing the interests of its citizens. The address was widely panned, but early polling indicates the public didn't share the revulsion of the commentariat. The speech's broadly nationalistic sentiments were bound to strike people as common sense.

"At the center of this movement is a crucial conviction: that a nation exists to ve its citizens." Who else would it serve?

"From this moment on, it's going to be America first." Why would anything else come first?

Trump's speech was less poetic, but in one sense more grounded than George W. Bush's call for universal liberty in 2005 or Barack Obama's vision of international cooperation leading to a new era of peace in 2009.

Trump spoke of "the right of all nations to put their own interests first.'

If Bush was a vindicator of universal freedom, and Obama, in his more soaring moments, a citizen of the world, Trump is a dogged citizen of the United States, concerned overwhelmingly with vindicating its interests. His executive order authorizing the building of the wall is an emphatic affirmation of one of the constituent parts of a nation, namely borders.

In general, immigration is an important focus for Trump's nationalism because it involves the question of whether the American people have the sovereign authority to decide who gets to live here or not; of whether the interests of American or foreign workers should be paramount; of whether we assimilate the immigrants we already have into a common culture before welcoming even more.

A proper American nationalism should express not just an affinity for this country's people, as Trump did in his inaugural address, but for its creed, its institutions and its history. These are absent from Trump's rhetoric and presumably his worldview, impoverishing both.

Trump's nationalism has the potential to appeal across racial and ethnic lines, so long as he demonstrates that it isn't just cover for his loyalty to his preferred subnational group.

Finally, Trump's trade agenda also is an expression of his nationalism. Trade deals should have to pass the national-interest test. But protectionism is, historically, a special-interest bonanza that delivers benefits to specific industries only at a disproportionate cost to the rest of the economy.

All that said, the nation-state is back, despite all the forecasts of its demise. It is no more in eclipse than religion, which we also were told would fade away as humanity embraced a more secular, cosmopolitan future. The lesson is that it's a mistake to predict the inevitable decline of things that give meaning to people's lives and involve fundamental human attachments. The nation is one of them, something that Trump, if he gets nothing else, instinctively under-

How to steal from a school district in Texas and not get caught at it By Jon Cassidy litical opponents or even retheir jobs and fi

So, you and a couple buddies have gotten control of a school board or a county commission somewhere, you've got your guy installed as the chief executive, and you'd like to cash in on your opportunity – send some work to a contractor you know, maybe put a few relatives on the payroll.

The specifics don't matter too much, as long as you get a kickback. Just make sure you've got plenty of bond money to play with, so nobody at work notices anything is missing.

Nobody's ever going to catch you actually taking the envelope full of cash from the contractor, as long as you're not stupid about it, but there is going to be a paper trail for the money paid to him. Those are the records you want made as unpublic as possible.

Used to be, you had to worry about gadflies or poporters filing public records requests for these contracts. You'd have to cough 'em up, as everyone knows government spending is the very thing that sunshine laws are meant to cover.

Then two years ago, in a case called Boeing v. Paxton, the Supreme Court of Texas asked the question, but what if you don't feel like sharing? Now, if you or your buddy don't want anyone to know how much he's getting paid, you just have to say that disclosure would be a "competitive disadvantage," and you can keep it secret.

With one move, the court removed money from the things taxpayers are entitled to know about; for an encore, they might as well go ahead and strike "information" from the Texas Public Information Act.

Now, to be fair to honest folk, the decision was so bad that state lawmakers are even talking about doing their jobs and fixing it.

But that's OK, because in January, the Supreme Court came up with an even stronger pro-corruption decision than Boeing, and lawmakers aren't going to touch it, because in this case, they're the corrupt ones.

This ruling in Hall v. McRaven was so pro-lawbreaking that it would be hard to make it any plainer. The court took this principle, "a public officer has no discretion or authority to misinterpret the law," and turned it into the principle of virtually "unconstrained" discretion. In other words, the law is what we say it is, and the courts aren't going to correct us.

The Boeing ruling took care of all the nosey parkers out there, but until Hall, you still ran the risk of getting into a scandal like the one that consumed Beaumont Independent School District. A mess of people went to jail, SEE GETTING AWAY WITH IT. PAGE 3A

Taxation and Disannexation

To the Editor:

Salado residents should be alarmed by the precipitous increase in property taxes over the past three years. Specifically, the Village's tax rate has increased from $0.12 per hundred dollars of valuation in 2013 to $0.54 in 2016 for a 350% increase. The largest part of the increase ($0.34 per hundred of valuation in 2016) is attributable to the passage of the $10,000,000 Waste Water Bond in November 2014 and funded in August 2015. Since there has been no appreciable action (and no actual construction) to date, the taxpayers of Salado are paying $1,500/day in debt service with no related benefit.

The Village Board of Aldermen (BOA) sold the passage of this bond on the basis that increased sales tax revenues would service the debt and not create a tax increase to residential property owners. This obviously has not been the case, and in my opinion will not be the case in the future. In fact, the BOA can triple the property tax rate again to a state law limit of $1.50 per hundred dollars of valuation and reportedly have stated that they will do so if needed.

According to the Tax Appraisal District of Bell County, approximately 21% of the residential homeowners are exempted from increases in property taxes by age or disabilities. So it follows that the remaining 79% of the homeowners must bear 100% of the property tax increases. Property tax exemptions based on age or disability is standard throughout the state so the heavy weighting of taxes on under age 65 homeowners is just a fact of life. What is not a standard practice is the action by the BOA in 2008 to grant a 20% tax exemption to homestead property owners. This placed an undue property tax burden on commercial and non-homestead property owners. In 2008, the village had a nearly non-existent property tax rate so the 20% exemption really was a mute issue. With the current tax rate, this is no longer a mute issue but one that will be costly in terms of prospective second home and commercial property buyers in the village now and in the future. One of the unique things Salado has to offer is a resort type environment that could be attractive to second home (non-homestead) buyers. This punitive tax on non-homestead property owners will discourage this type owner (many of which are seniors that are on fixed incomes and are tax conscious).

Most cities would love to have the opportunity to attract second home owners for the simple reason that they are typically more financially viable (they spend more money), they buy more expensive homes and they do not have children to educate. It seems incomprehensible that the BOA would want to continue to discourage second home owners and the related economic benefits they bring to the community in terms of property values and retail sales. Temple is the only other municipality in Bell County that has such an exemption. Further, Salado is probably one of the few municipalities in the state with such a tax exemption. The placing of this tax burden on non-homestead property owners may have seemed like a good idea in 2008 when village property taxes were nearly non-existent, but now it is very short-sighted and causes many unintended negative consequences. The BOA should move immediately to eliminate this punitive tax.

The most alarming thing about the tremendous increase in property taxes over the past three years is not where they are, but where they may go over the next three years and beyond. There have been no increases in village services to residential property owners that warrant any increase in property taxes, much less the lofty increases we have actually experienced. In fact, we do not have many of the services that other municipalities have that enjoy the same, or lower, tax rates, i.e. a paid 24-hour fire department, 24-hour police department, residential sewer service, city owned residential water service, code enforcement, parks and recreation, an adequate residential street maintenance program and a first class city administration building.

For many reasons, providing sewer service to commercial/retail property owners is a good thing. However, financing the cost of the sewer services on the backs of residential property owners was not a good thing. Again, the rationale for selling the passage of the bond package to residential homeowners was severely flawed. In my opinion, the prospect of increased sales taxes paying for the sewer system was never realistic and certainly is not now that a significant amount of the bond money has been spent with no construction started. A basic tenet of municipal taxation was violated with the passage of this sewer bond: property owners that are provided a municipal service and benefit from that service financially should be the ones that pay for it. This is the case in just about every municipality in Texas. However, in Salado, the startling fact is that roughly 75% of residential homeowners of the Village of Salado will get to pay for the lion's share of the sewer system without any material compensating bene-

To the Editor:

Contrary to some opinions, the disannexation initiative is not about retaliation or retribution. Instead it is intended to inform all citizens of what we consider to be the mismanagement of Village resources as well as personnel management and the ineptitude of the current Board to accomplish anything. It is also an effort to explain where these irresponsible activities are leading our community in terms of future taxes and the pocketbook results for all the taxpayers in our Village. Cogent points are as follows:

- The Village can increase your tax rate from the current .5412 cents per $100 to $1plus. Based on the current debt they will be forced to raise taxes again in the immediate future. After adding all other county taxes you will be paying the same rate as Belton and Temple. Below are noted the services these communities provide that Salado does not.
- Based on the heavy debt that is being created, citizens over 65 will very likely lose the over 65 exemption.
- Since there are several new housing developments coming to Salado, current citizens will likely have to pay the cost to provide them the services they desire. As pub-and there are some others who maybe should have, but got lucky.

The crooks were in charge of the school district, and the board majority turned a blind eye, but somehow, two ornery board members with no political power managed to wreck all the good scams.

What did Mike Neil and Tom Neild do when district officials balked at sharing something?

"We said, 'We know the law," Neil said. "If it wasn't for the statute we used to get the information, Beaumont would still be run by those guys."

Now, statute's not quite the word, but Neil did have the law on his side. He used attorney general rulings like this and this and this and this, all favoring the right of an individual member of a governing body to access agency records.

There's nowhere in statute that we know of that the Legislature spelled out that members of this board or that commission get to actually see the stuff they're supposed to oversee. There's nowhere in law that says you've got to have chairs at a meeting, either. Some things are just obvious.

For nearly four decades, the attorneys general of Texas have consistently told government bodies to share records with their overseers, even the annoying dissent-

In some parts of the law, there's some fairly clear language supporting that. Regents_of the University of Texas, for example, are burdened with a legal fiduciary duty to the university, and fiduciaries by definition exercise dominance and control in a relationship.

Also, duties carry rights. That's why the attorneys general have long upheld an "inherent right of access" for government officials charged with oversight. State law might not use the phrase, but neither does state law confer any explicit authority on a board majority to eviscerate a minority.

Yet the Supreme Court of Texas, without even addressing this principle, just decided that a school board – and by extension, any government oversight body – has the authority under its general rulemaking power to sideline its own dissenters.

In a unanimous decision, the court ruled that Wallace Hall, a regent of the University of Texas, had no inherent right to access records in his individual capacity as a regent.

"That is a dangerous decision," Neil says, but you'd expect that from him.

Like Hall, Neil constantly dealt with officials who saw him as a pest.

"Every time I requested something, they started talking about the cost," Neil says.

They did the same with Hall, of course, even turning that into grounds for impeachment.

Folks would probably catch on to that excuse, eventually, but fortunately, we don't have to use it any more.

Now, when the Neils and Halls of the world ask for information, we can just tell them no. Thank the Supreme Court of Texas.

lished in the local newspaper the Salado city council stated that financing the developers would help pay off the bond on the current sewer mess.

- The Village is now paying $45,000 a month because of the massive debt of the current bond. Where is this money coming from? This is a debt that cannot be sustained by our citizens; the current tax base.
- The Village has yet to determine what the cost will be for connection to the downtown system or what the monthly fee will be.
- Where are the funds coming from to pay for our infrastructure needs such as roads and streets and required maintenance? It seems unlikely current taxpayers will ever be supplied with sewer service.

Some other issues that require consideration which point out the minimal loss of services as a result of de-annexation:

• Ambulance service is not provided by the Village; it is entirely an activity of Scott and White. You are paying for this by the fee established by Scott and White.

- The library is not a Village service; it is an independent service financed with State funding.
- The County Sheriff would provide 24 hour police patrol for people outside the boundaries of the Village.
- The fire department is also a separate entity outside the Village and provide the same service.
- Village franchise fees for trash pick-up, phone service cell and land-line would be avoided.
- Water will still be under the jurisdiction of Salado Water Supply Corporation, again free of Village franchise fees.
- Street maintenance would be provided by Bell County as is currently the case on streets such as O.W. Lowery, West Village Road and Hester Way.

We are all aware of the recent personnel issues which led the dismissal of our former City Manager and Chief of Police and his staff. Can anyone deny the need for a change in light of the debt created by these dismissals and the points cited above.

Throughout our adolescence we understood that Russia was not a friend of the U.S. Today on the national news, it was reported that two Russian fighter jets made a close fly-by to a U.S. aircraft carrier in international waters. The Russians denied it. Perhaps the video of the two jets was fake news. Yet our new president continues to praise President Putin. Our new president denies any connection with Russia, yet refuses to show us his tax returns which might clarify his business connections--with Russia...

His nominee for security chief withdrew his nomination after admitting he had contact with Russians. His Attorney General now admits he had contacts with a Russian, His son-in-law and senior White House advisor had contact with Russians. Is there a trend here? Or is this more fake news? What is fake, the news or the newsmaker?

HOT Air Show includes Thunderbirds

Waco, Texas --- The Heart Of Texas Airshow is proud to announce the United State Air Force Thunderbirds military jet demonstration team will return to bring the Red, White and Blue to the skies over Waco Texas Saturday and Sunday March 18-19 at Texas State Technical College airport in their only performance in Waco, Central and North Texas this year.

"We are thrilled to have the USAF Thunderbirds return to Waco" stated Airshow President Debby Standefer. "No more than 20 air shows in the country receive this honor and we are so proud to share this patriotic opportunity with the people of Central and North Texas as well as those throughout the State, and to further our mission to honor our military and inspire our youth to be involved in aviation and to stay in school and further their education as they reach for their dreams.

Capt. Erik Gonsalves, Thunderbird #8/Advance Pilot/Narrator said, "The 2017 Thunderbirds are so excited to be returning the Heart Of Texas Airshow in Waco! We are looking forward to flying for you as we showcase the pride, precision, and professionalism of YOUR United States Air Force!"

The USAF Thunderbirds are internationally-known their hard-charging demonstration of precision formation flying while pushing their F-16 Fighting Falcons to the limit. Known as "America's Ambassadors in Blue", the Thunderbirds have traveled throughout the world performing before millions of spectators. Their distinctive red, white and blue F-16 Falcon jets along with their precise routines make the Thunderbirds a must see! The Lockheed Martin F-16 Fighting Falcon, which will be demonstrated at Heart Of Texas Airshow, represents the full range of capabilities possessed by the Air Force's front-line tactical fighters. This highly maneuverable, multi-role fighter has proved to be one of the world's best precision tactical bombers and air-toair combat aircraft. The only modifications needed to prepare aircraft for air demonstrations are a smoke-generating system and the addition of Thunderbird colors.

TSTC Waco Provost Adam Hutchison states, "TSTC is thrilled to welcome the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds back to Waco and to our college. With our campus history as a USAF base and our nationally-recognized collegiate aviation programs, TSTC is a unique link to the state's aviation history, and hosting the Heart of Texas Airshow allows us to share it with Central Texas. cision and professionalism, and they're an inspiration to everyone at every show. It's going to be a great event for our community."

The Heart Of Texas Airshow has grown quickly to one of the three top civilian air shows in the State of Texas receiving commendations from state and military officials. The event promises to provide something for all ages and interests in an action packed day of fun. Experience thrilling entertainment with your United States military teams, the iconic B-17 Flying Fortress, A-26 Invader, T-28 formation aerobatic team Trojan Phlyers, Sea Fury Reno Air Race pilot Stew Dawson, Greg Koontz comedy routines including a 15' above the ground inverted ribbon cut and truck top landing and daring feats of aviation that promises edge of your seat excitement! Flights will be available to the public in many of these historic warbirds and helicopters. Don't stay on the ground, get in the Air! Wander through concessions of delicious foods, many exhibits, vendors and activities for kids of all ages including a large kids area and military, warbird and general aviation static displays. There is so much to see and do in the air and on the ground! Bring the whole family, you will love it!

Debby Standefer said "we are so excited to return to Texas State Technical College and their airport, previously James Connally AFB, with a tremendous event this year and to show off the TSTC state of the art Aviation and Aerospace Division as well as many of the departments and programs TSTC offers. Baylor University Aviation Sciences will also be on hand as a sponsor of the Air Show and to celebrate their 25th anniversary and partnership with TSTC. Waco is strongly focused on aviation with its own Aviation Business Alliance. We bring attention to and support aviation and education in Waco."

The Airshow honors our military. There will be many exhibits to experience including the largest Air Force exhibit, Performance Lab, interactive exhibit with many challenges and its own F-16, and static aircraft of all sizes military and civilian. Opening Ceremonies at the start of the air show will be action packed including dignitaries, honor guards and skydivers!

The attendance this event garners not only locally, but from spectators throughout central Texas and from Dallas to Houston gives us the ability to showcase and promote the cities of Waco, Lacy-Lakeview and TSTC while at the same time becoming an important revenue source for the area via lodging, retail and food sales in town through the weekend. Airshows have a tremendous impact on the public and the economy with the ability to reach all demographics and cross all lifestyles," Debby Standefer said. Donations will be made to the TSTC Foundation for scholarships and volunteering non-profits.

Follow The Heart Of Texas Airshow on Facebook, Twitter, or Instagram and visit our website, www. heartoftexasairshow, for information updated continuously. Discounted tickets now available online and many area hotels have special rates for air show attendees. Let's Airshow!

Win a car, dream vacation or cash

Salado, Texas – Golfers playing in the 22nd Annual Denver Mills Golf Tournament on Monday, March 13, at the Mill Creek Golf Course will have a chance this year to win — not one but three hole-in-one prizes: a 2017 Ford Fusion donated by Johnson Brothers Ford; $10,000 to use toward a dream vacation, donated by Journeys by Patti / Dream Vacations; and $10,000 to be split with Tablerock. The tournament benefits Tablerock Festival of Salado, Inc.

"If someone made all three holes in one, he or she could drive away in a new Ford Fusion to a dream vacation destination with $5,000 cash in their pocket," said Denver Mills, a Tablerock board member, dedicated Tablerock volunteer and tournament namesake.

"This year's tournament is shaping up to be the best yet," added tournament cochair Letta Meinen. "We are especially grateful to have new sponsors, such as Johnson Brothers Ford and Journeys by Patti / Dream Vacations, joining us this year. The partnership with these sponsors raises more awareness for Tablerock and reflects well on them too."

Not only are the additional prizes lending a lot of excitement to this year's tournament, said Mills, but "we have more sponsors and players than ever before." So far, he said, 48 area businesses and individuals are sponsors, and 12 to 14 teams are expected to play. Meinen said other new sponsors are T.R. McLaughlin Construction of Belton; The Wood Group of Fairway Independent Mortgage Corporation in Belton; R Bank of Jarrell; Barrow Brewing Company of Salado; Killeen Marble; Golf Ranch of Georgetown: and Artie's Heating and Air Conditioning, Inc. of Killeen.

Since 1996, the tournament has raised more than $67,000 for Tablerock, which provides performing arts, such as Salado Legends and A Christmas Carol for Central Texas residents and visitors. Last year the tournament netted $5,541 to help support Tablerock. Proceeds also helped provide $12,500 in college scholarships to 16 Central Texas students serving on the Legends cast or crew. Tablerock has given more than $158,000 in scholarships to date.

Legends, an outdoor musical drama about Salado's history, will celebrate its 25th anniversary this year. The play, which features more than 120 community actors, is presented each summer at Tablerock's Goodnight Amphitheater. Both Legends and its author, Jackie Mills, have received national recognition from the Library of Congress and the Institute of Outdoor Drama.

Tablerock is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization, and donations are tax deductible to the extent allowed by the IRS. For more information about Tablerock, please visit: http://tablerock.org/

Compassionate Friends group forming March 9 in Temple

Anyone who has suffered the loss of their child, is invited to an informal meeting on Thursday, 6:30 p.m. March 9 at the Family Center across from the Harper Talasek Funeral Home at 500 West Barton (corner of North 9th and Barton) in Temple. The child could have been any age from an infant to an adult.

The purpose of the meeting is to establish a local chapter of The Compassionate Friends, a nonprofit selfhelp bereavement support organization for families that have experienced the death of a child.

When a child dies, at any age, the family suffers intense pain and may feel hopeless and isolated. The Compassionate Friends provides highly personal comfort, hope and support to every family experiencing the death of a son or a daughter, a brother or a sister, or a grandchild and helps others better assist the grieving family.

Today, more than 640 chapters serving all 50 states plus Washington D.C., Guam and Puerto Rico offer friendship, understanding, and hope to bereaved parents, siblings, and grandparents during the natural grieving process after a child has died. The current nearest chapter to Temple is Gates-

First State Bank Central Texas earns 5-star rating

again, Temple-based First State Bank Central Texas has received the highest ranking possible from Bauer Financial, Inc., the nation's bank rating firm. The bank has earned a 5-Star rating from Bauer for financial strength and soundness. "This rating from Bauer Financial puts First State Bank Central Texas right at the top of all banks in terms of strength and reliability and once again affirms the strong health of the bank," said First State Bank Central Texas Chief Executive Officer Don Grobowsky. "We are very proud of that. It's an honor and it says a lot about our bank and our employees. We are most proud, however, of what it means to our customers," said Mr. Grobows-

Bauer Financial's Karen Dorway says the firm recommends only banks and credit unions that have earned a 4-Star or 5-Star rating. "Five Stars is the highest rating we award and indicates that this institution is one of the safest and strongest banks in the United States," said Ms. Dorway. Bauer Financial, Inc. has been reporting on and analyzing the performance of U.S. banks and credit unions since 1983. Bauer Financial ratings are independent and all banks are included. Ratings are based on numerous criteria and measure the strength and soundness of an institution.

First State Bank Central Texas has 31 banking centers offering commercial and personal financial services to the families, businesses and communities in the Temple/Austin metro area and throughout Central Texas and the Hill Country. The bank was chartered more than a century ago and today has assets of more than $1.3 billion, making the bank one of the largest and strongest independent banks in Texas.

SHS films win at state Red Rose of Texas takes first place

Salado High School competed in the 2017 UIL Young Filmmakers State Festival on March 3. Films were screened at the Paramount Theatre in Austin. After three rounds of competition, Salado had four films reach the state level.

"What an experience for high school students to see their film shown at the Paramount Theatre. This is the fourth year in a row we have had student films shown at this venue and it is such a surreal, magical experience. These young filmmakers will remember this for the rest of their lives," said Tim Cook, Director of the Salado Film Squad.

Squad.
Salado won the state championship in Division 1
Narrative with the film The Red Rose of Texas. The film was produced by Kaydee Free, Kelsey Marquis and Jason Armitage. Dollhouse, produced by Kelsey Marquis and Rayne Polkowski, placed 4th. There were 141 films entered in the category.

"When we started this journey, I would've never have thought it would go this far. When the idea of The Red Rose of Texas, first began developing, we never realized the amount of work that was ahead of us. But it was all worth it when they announced Salado as the State Champion. I cannot be more thankful for my team and my sponsors for helping me make my dreams come true," said student filmmaker Kaydee Free.

Narrative film coach Dixie McCollough said, "I am honored to work with these students. Together, we take ideas and grow them and shape them into pieces of art that we can all be proud of. Creation is a beautiful process. No matter how challenging their journey is in life, I hope these kids will look back and remember that in the beginning they started with nothing but an idea, and know that with hard work and dedication, they can accomplish anything."

In Digital Animation, Jacob Reeder's Death of Gun Metal Tom placed second. This is Reeder's second appearance at the state festival. Reeder placed second in 2016.

Jacob Reeder said, "The feeling I got when people responded to my humor at the Paramount was indescribable. I want to keep working to create films that people enjoy in this way."

Sixty-three films were entered in Division 1 Documentary. Salado placed fourth with the film Every Day. The film was produced by Katie McFarland, Rachel Moore and Scarlett Rubio.

Lady Eagles run up hat tricks in shut outs of Academy, Jarrell

Annie Ewton was on fire last week with hat tricks against Jarrell and Academy last week. Salado is 13-4-1 and 9-1 in district as of presstime for this edition and will face Lampasas on March 10.

Lady Eagles Academy

Annie Ewton and Ashlen LaCanne both scored hat tricks as the Lady Eagles crushed Academy 9-0 in a home soccer match March 3.

Salado took a 6-0 lead in the first half.

Ewton scored her first goal after missing a shot on goal and having her second shot blocked by the Academy goal keeper. She took an assist from LaCanne and put it in the net at 5:56.

LaCanne took an assist from Rebecca Gonzales to score at 13:04.

A couple of minutes later, Reagan Morreale scored on an assist by Hannah Reavis.

LaCanne scored her second goal of the match, taking a cross from Gonzales and putting it in the goal at 20:19.

Morreale scored her second goal of the match with another assist from Reavis at 23:54 in the match.

Kirstin Crouch put a corner kick from Ewton in the goal at 36:27 to give Salado a 6-0 lead.

Ewton scored two goals in the second half.

In a relentless attack, Salado scored three goals in a five minute span.

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

It is estimated that even the best bridge players get to their optimum contract only 90 percent of the time. This is perhaps a surprising statistic, considering that the top experts employ many sophisticated bidding devices to help guide them to the ideal contract.

For a good example of how easy it is to miss the mark, take this case where a normal sequence of bids led North-South to a contract that seemed certain to fail. Three notrump was laydown, but was not easy his seemingly useless jack of clubs into a trick.

After winning West's queen of hearts with dummy's ace, declarer immediately led the club three toward his jack! East put up the queen and played the king and another heart to West's ten. West shifted to the queen of diamonds, but South was now firmly in the driver's seat.

He took the diamond with the ace, cashed the A-Q of spades and club jack, and crossed to dummy's ten of spades. He then discarded his two losing diamonds on the A-K of clubs to finish with 10

It is true that South lost a club trick he did not have to lose, but in so doing, he avoided losing two diamond tricks. He realized from the start that his only real chance for the contract was to score three club tricks instead of two, and all his moves were made with that goal in mind.

Collared Lizard

The Collared Lizard looks like a mini t-rex when it runs

Most, if not all, herpetologists can attribute their involvement with reptiles and amphibians with a fascination of dinosaurs when they were young. It was definitely the case with me, and I can remember the summer days of my childhood observing a modern-day dinosaur, the Eastern Collared Lizard, often coined the name "Mountain Boomer" by those who encounter this

The Eastern Collard Lizard (Crotaphytus collaris) is one of two species of "Mountain Boomers" that live in Texas, and by far it has the largest area of distribution. It can be observed throughout the western 3/4 of the state, including the entirety of the Panhandle, Trans-Pecos, and Edwards occurs to the north to southern Nebraska, westward to northern Arizona, and then southward into central Mexico.

The habitats that this conspicuous lizard prefers are arid to semi-arid rocky arroyos, rocky hillsides, and mesas. They prefer open areas with large rocks for basking and hunting and the large rocks strewn along caliche county roads are frequently utilized.

The Eastern Collared Lizard is among the most brilliantly colored and impressive lacertilian species in the United States. The scales on the back are small and granular in appearance and texture, and the background coloration varies from a light tan to gray to greenish-gray, and many small light spots and reticulate lines are often present. There is a very prominent double black collar on the neck on all specimens, giving this animal its common namesake. The head is large and almost disproportionate in size to the body. The front legs are smaller than the back legs, and the tail, which is colored like the back, is extremely long.

During breeding season, however, the animals take on a completely different particularly appearance, sexually mature males. While attempting to attract a mate, the head of the male becomes a bright yellow while the background coloration changes from a light dull color to a brilliant blue, green or turquoise. This double black neck collar and light spots are set off even more by this extraordinary display.

Males are the larger sex, achieving total lengths of up wanders close enough to its basking site. Studies have also shown that it will also occasionally feed on smaller lizards, even ones of its own kind, although apparently this is not a common occur-

The Eastern Collared Lizard is oviparous, which is a fancy way of saying that it lays eggs. After emerging from the winter-long brumation period (reptiles do not hibernate in the true sense of the word), males will search out females to mate. After mating, the female will lay a medium-sized clutch of eggs (between one and fourteen, average six) in moisture retaining soil. Older, larger females can lay multiple clutches of eggs per summer. After approximately two months of incubation, the three inch long young emerge prepared to fend for and care for themselves.

These lizards are gregarious baskers and the higher basking areas are utilized by the larger alpha male. When threatened, it has a habit of lifting its front legs and tail off of the ground in a bipedal motion, running much like a miniature Tyrannosaurus species frequently.
