

Sewer debt, ETJ, green wall discussed

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

"Because the voters did approve a bond and because bond funds have been issued, then those properties that have been disannexed will still be assessed their pro rata portion of that debt service."

Municipal attorney Alan Bojorquez said this to a room full of Saladoans April 4 in response to the first question asked during a town hall meeting on the subject of disannexation.

"The Village is required to, number one, figure out what that portion of the pro rata share is; number two, notify those owners, in case they want to prepay that amount, and number three, enter into an inter-local agreement with the tax appraisal district to still collect those funds."

"Because they were a part of the Village when the bonds were approved, when voters approved it, when attorney general's office approved it, when the bonds were issued, basically there is an encumbrance, the Supreme Court has described it as almost as a lien on those properties until the debt is paid off."

Bojorquez answered questions about whether residents would be required to pay the sewer debt even if they never received the 'direct benefit' of it.

"That language (direct benefit) is only in regards to the tax refund. It is not applicable to the part I mentioned earlier to the properties' pro rata share of debt service, whether or not the property is hooked up to the sewer."

"The Village is not required to show that a parcel is getting sewer in order to collect the pro rata share of the debt service," Bojorquez said.

"The case law that exists, which is a U.S. Supreme Court Case, they said the property values in the municipality when the debt is issued continues to be obligated to service that debt even if, for whatever reason, they are no longer in the municipality," Bojorquez said.

"The bond lawyer is 100 percent sure of this," he added.

Bojorquez addressed issues of municipal boundaries, Extra Territorial Jurisdiction (ETJ), annexation and municipal services.

He quickly told a questioner that even though much of the property in the disannexation part was part of the original part of the Village of Salado they could still disannex from the Village through the petition and election process.

"As a home rule city, it (Belton) has a larger ETJ than we were allowed as a general law city," he said. He recalled how many properties voluntarily requested to be added to the Village of Salado ETJ when the City of Killeen expanded its ETJ from three miles to five miles (because its population then exceeded 100,000).

Bojorquez reviewed how home rules cities can annex within their own ETJ. The only limitations are the ETJ, being contiguous to the city limits and meeting a municipal services plan.

However, he added that municipal service plans do not have to include offering sewer to all properties that are to be annexed.

He addressed a question about whether Belton could annex property that is not contiguous and whether it could annex without offering services.

"Contiguous is defined as adjacent or next to," Bojorquez said. Where it gets interesting and one reason I love this part of the law is that city limits are not always in one chunk."

He reviewed examples of when city limits were not in single chunks and could result into "island annexation, you establish an island and then annex off of it."

"The city can buy it, annex it and then annex off of it," he said.

"Strip annexation is not illegal," he added. "If you are going to annex against someone's will, you have to annex at least 1,000 feet wide, if you are going to annex voluntarily, you can annex a foot wide or 10 feet wide.... It happens all the time."

"When a city annexes a portion, it must have a municipal services plan," he said. "When it is voluntary, the property owner and city can agree when and if the municipality will ever provide services."

"Full municipal services does not mean that every piece of property in the city limits is going to receive the exact same level of service as every other piece," he said. "It is going to vary based upon what part of town you are in, the topography and geography."

"The courts have determined septic systems are sewer and that cities are not required to add sewer to neighborhoods where they have septic systems," he said.

Cities do not have to provide municipal utilities to an area that already has the utility or another entity has a CCN (Certificate of Convenience and Necessity) in that area, such as the Salado WSC CCN.

He also discussed what has been termed by proponents of disannexation as a "wall of green" protecting Salado from possible annexation by Belton.

"I don't think it will take long for Belton to come south if they want to come south."

He said that the green wall term was "a fantastic description of a barrier. I don't know what it would actually stop.

"If a piece of property currently has tax status as an agricultural property or wild-life management property, a city can't just annex it," he said.

"If the property takes that deal, there is not annexation at that time," he said, adding that "I do not see those property agreements happening" without an agreement in which the property owner gives a strip of property.

He described that strip of property as an umbilical cord to reach other properties for

His book about the rise and fall of the Comanches, Empire of the Summer Moon, will be the topic of his lecture entitled "Finding the Last Frontier." The book spent four months on the New York Times top 10 Bestseller list. It was a finalist for both the Pulitzer Prize and the National Book Critics Circle Award and won the

His most recent book, The Perfect Pass, tells the incredible story of two unknown coaches who revolutionized American football by changing the way the game is played at every level to include an emphasis on the passing game. Both The Perfect Pass and another best-seller, Rebel Yell, will be discussed at the lecture as well.

Besides writing five non-fiction best sellers, Gwynne has had a parallel career as a magazine journalist. He has spent most of the last fourteen years writing for Texas Monthly, where he was Executive Editor from 2000-2008. His award-winning work included cover stories on White House advisor Karl Rove, NASA, the King Ranch, football player Johnny Manziel, the University of Texas, and Southwest Airlines. ## On Obamacare, a Partywide Failure

There's stumbling out of the gate, and then there's what Republicans just did on health care.

They came up with a substantively indefensible bill, put it on an absurd fast track to passage, didn't seriously try to sell it to the public, fumbled their internal negotiations over changes -- and suffered a stinging defeat months after establishing unified control of government.

There has been a lot of finger-pointing after the collapse of the bill, and almost all of it is right. This was a partywide failure.

House Speaker Paul Ryan has -- faint praise -- thought more about health care policy than almost any other elected Republican. He rose to prominence with thoughtful policy proposals buttressed by PowerPoint presentations. This was his moment to shine as a wonk. Instead, with an eye to procedural constraints the legislation would face in the Senate, he wrote a mess of a bill that got failing grades from analysts across the political spectrum.

The operating theory wasn't that the merits of the bill would get it over the top, but speed and sheer partisan muscle. The House wanted to pass it in three weeks, which would be a rush for a bill naming a courthouse. Ryan gambled that he could get his fractious caucus to rally in record time because -- unlike his frustrated predecessor as speaker, John Boehner -- he had a president of his own party at his back. And none other than "the closer," a President Donald Trump whose calling card is his skill at dealmaking.

For their part, Ryan and Trump are united in blaming the House Freedom Caucus, the recalcitrant group of conservatives that destroyed Boehner's speakership and have made a good start at ruining Ryan's. The Freedom Caucus is certainly prone to self-defeating purity, but in this case when they said the bill wouldn't fully repeal Obamacare or do enough to reduce premiums, they were correct. The bill shed support on both the right and the left because of its underlying weakness (it's hard to get anyone to back a bill with a 17 percent approval rating, per a Quinnipiac poll).

Perhaps most unforgiv-ably, the White House and congressional Republicans now have decided to move on. Tax reform beckons. Republicans tell themselves they will get better results on taxes because it is more natural terrain for the party, an implicit concession that the GOP -- even after electing a populist president -- still can't bring itself to engage on kitchen-table issues that don't involve tax cuts.

Perhaps the initial tax legislation will start in a better place, the process will be more deliberate, and President Trump will get immersed more readily in something (the tax code) central to his business dealings. But tax reform is more popular in theory than it is in practice. It requires painful trade-offs and is vulnerable to the political critique that it favors the wealthy and corporations over working people.

If tax reform is going to pass and get signed into law, Republicans will have to perform much better than in the foreshortened health care debate. On the bright side, they can't perform much worse.

What is a Policeman? Officer is a minister, social worker, psychologist, tough guy, peacekeeper

Paul Harvey's father was a Policeman killed when Paul was 3. Years later, Harvey wrote:

"What is a Policeman/woman?"

They are the most needed, and sometimes the most unwanted. They are servants who are "Sir" or "Ma'am" to their face and "fuzz" to their back. They are multi-national diplomats that can settle differences and make each side believe they won.

If a Policeman/woman is neat, they are arrogant. If they are sloppy, they are bums. If they are pleasant, something is wrong. If not, they are a grouch.

They must make instant decisions that require lawyers months to make.

If they hurry, they are careless. If they are deliberate; they are slow.

Mayor Skip Blancett

They must be first to accidents and infallible with evaluations. They know how to start breathing; stop bleeding; tie splints; and be sure the victim walks without a limp. Or be sued.

The Police Officer must know guns, draw on the run, and hit where it does not hurt. They must be able to fight two persons twice their size and half their age without being brutal.

If they are peaceful, they are cowards. If they hit, they are bullies.

A Police Officer must know where sin is and not partake. They must, from a single strand of hair, be able to describe the crime, weapon, and criminal . . . and know where the criminal is hiding. If they catch the criminal, the Officer is lucky. If they don't, the Officer is useless.

If the policeman/woman is promoted, they had political pull. If not, fire them.

The Policeman/woman is a minister, social worker, psychologist, tough guy, and peacekeeper.

And, a Police Officer is a financial wizard that feeds a family on their salary."

Salado is building a strong Police Department. May our appreciation, respect, and support be expressed frequently to our Officers.

Our views shouldn't be diminished just because our taxes are frozen

To the Editor:

I've lived in Salado since 1980 and yes, my taxes are frozen. It is important to recognize that established folks over 65 have paid city, county, and school taxes for many years. In my case, I have paid taxes locally for almost 30 years. Just because our taxes are now frozen, and we currently pay less than the generations that follow, doesn't mean our views, constitutional liberties, and rights to speak/petition should now be diminished. It is those of us who have been here for awhile who built Salado into what it is today. Older people have ideas, and dreams for ourselves, our children, our grandchildren, and our community.

Don't misunderstand, I am very happy that young talented, creative people have found a home here. I am impressed with not only their talent but their opinions. Without families moving into Salado, Salado would wither and die.

I just don't want to be considered a lemming who will blindly follow the dictates of anyone. I still have my God given brain and want to be able to think for myself and not be told how to vote on issues. Honestly, I believe every voter wants to be able to weigh all sides of the issues and personalities before they cast their precious vote. So, I beg those who continue to coerce the senior voter to stop it and trust in our brain power. Just a reminder, the

Dear Editor:

The 22nd Annual Denver Mills Golf Tournament on March 13 was the most successful ever! The tournament, which benefits Tablerock Festival of Salado, netted $7,198 this year. That's a 27.8 percent increase over 2016's total of $5,631. The tournament also had more sponsors and more players than any time in its history.

No one won made a hole in one and took possession of the car, the vacation, the $5,000.00, golf clubs or any of the lesser prizes, but spirits were high in the attempt to do so. Seven new sponsors added to the excitement plus the many loyal sponsors who have supported us year after year. In particular, Mill Creek Golf Club, which has hosted our event from the beginning. This year, 15 teams played. The team fielded by T.R. McLaughlin won the Tablerock first place prize of $400 cash. Bruce Bolick's team won the Tablerock second place prize of $200 cash. David Williams hit the Longest Drive; Larry Roberson hit Closest to the Pin, and Chris Carpenter hit the Straightest Drive.

Since 1996, the tournament has raised more than $74,000 for Tablerock, which provides performing arts, such as Salado Legends, Gospel Festival, Shakespeare play, Fright Trail and A Christmas Carol for Central Texas residents and visitors. Tournament proceeds not only support Tablerock but also help provide college scholarships to Central Texas youngsters serving as cast or crew for Tablerock productions. Last year, 16 youngsters received $12,500 in college scholarships, and Tablerock has given more than $158,000.00 in scholarships to date.

Salado Legends, an outdoor musical drama about Central Texas and Salado's history, will celebrate its 25th anniversary this year. The play, which features more than 120 community actors, is presented each summer at Tablerock's Goodnight Amphitheater. Both Legends and its author, Jackie Mills, have received national recognition from the Library of Congress and the Institute of Outdoor Drama.

Thriving communities depend on smart public investment in libraries

By LING HWEY JENG, Ph.D., DIRECTOR OF THE SCHOOL OF LIBRARY AND INFORMATION STUDIES AT TEXAS WOMAN'S UNIVERSITY AND INCOMING PRESIDENT OF THE TEXAS LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

Libraries are changing. While traditional activities such as borrowing books or reading still dominate use of libraries, Pew Research Institute studies show the American public today relies on libraries to teach digital skills, provide working spaces and address the disparity among citizens who have or don't have broadband internet services at home. Libraries also are breaking physical boundaries as they become more embedded in shopping malls, community centers and student unions on college campuses.

Librarians are champions for literacy of young children, adults seeking workforce readiness and seniors who are lifelong learners. They provide freedom of imagination through books and help curious minds cross the distance of the globe and experience different cultures and perspectives without leaving their chairs — using the latest technology.

The expansion of information and technological skills make librarians effective contributors to our local communities. Their skills and expertise are highly valued in the business world as well as the public sector. An increasing number of graduates with library and information science degrees are being chosen for unconventional careers. For example, recent Texas Woman's University graduates have been selected for positions such as a law librarian of a U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, a research analyst in an intelligence agency, a records manager for a municipal government office, a knowledge manager in a financial services firm and a curator of an arts foundation, to name a few.

Even within our community libraries, today's librarians also find themselves more valued than ever.

The librarians we educate are fierce freedom protectors. They defend citizens' rights to access information, and safeguard their privacy in choosing what they read and information they seek. They help people get the best information, when they need it. And they often help citizens present this information using current technology and digital communication channels. In today's confusing public discourse, librarians know how to separate factual information from fabricated news, and help people determine what is current, relevant, authoritative, and appropriate information for their particular purposes.

But that's not all.

Libraries are a safe haven for the community. Librarians in Ferguson, Baltimore, Dallas and other cities were "second responders" who welcomed students into their libraries when schools were closed, facilitated the space for meaningful civic dialogues among residents, and worked alongside neighbors to restore the physical and mental health of their own community. At times of crisis, libraries are welcoming oases where citizens can clear their minds and nurture their brains.

Librarians are among the strongest advocates for our local communities. They are trusted and resourceful, and they identify community assets to build coalitions with colleges, schools, business and other organizations.

For example, librarians reinvest nearly $11 million of federal library funding annually to help Texas communities. Funding from the federal Institute of Museum and Library Services alone helps more than 500 public libraries in Texas improve the quality of technology, keep children reading through summer months and

The Ramirez Family Ground Breaking – 71st build for local Habitat for Humanity

Killeen, TX- Fort Hood Area Habitat for Humanity is excited to announce the Ramirez Family Ground Breaking on Saturday, April 8, starting at 10 a.m., located at 3204 Valencia Ave, Killeen, TX. Anita Ramirez and her four children are so excited to move forward towards their new home.

Ms. Ramirez is originally from the San Antonio, TX area and came to Killeen to provide a better life for her and her 4 children. "I cried when they told me I am approved to be a Habitat family", stated Nita. "I'm glad I was sitting down when they called, or I would have fallen over on the floor".

Nita is no stranger to Habitat for Humanity. Her father, Ron Gregory, retired from Habitat for Humanity International, in Georgia. Nita had an opportunity to take a photo with President Jimmy Carter, while holding her oldest child and pregnant with her second. "It was great to meet, and get a picture with, one of the best volunteers Habitat has", Nita expressed. I am still amazed, pinching myself to see if it's really real!"

I began visiting Salado in the 1940's and 1950's as a child, often coming to Stagecoach Inn and Grace Jones' with my family. After marriage, my wife and I continued coming to art fairs and Scottish Clan gatherings. When considering retirement, we knew we wanted to return to central Texas and Salado was a natural fit.

I would like to use my finance, business, purchasing and personnel experience to help better the practices and operation of our village. I believe our greatest challenges and opportunities are in front of us. We have a beautiful and historic village passed down to us. Let's keep it and improve it for those that will follow us. Together we can accomplish tremendous things for the future of Salado!

Out Run Rare Cancer 5K May 20

Out Run Rare Cancer 5K run/walk will be 9 a.m. May 20 starting at the Salado Civic Center.

Proceeds from the 5K will go directly toward the assistant, research and treatment of cancer, according to Sherri Moreno, who is hosting the 5K run.

Moreno was diagnosed in 2015 with Adrenal Cortical Cancer, which afflicts fewer than 300 people per year in the USA.

"It is known to be very aggressive and many across the world have lost their lives to this disease ranging in 6-70 years of age," Moreno said. "In Austin and the surrounding communities, there is a higher than expected number of patients with this type of cancer. Fortunately, I was diagnosed and treated relatively early which has optimized my future survival."

After removal of the cancer, she was treated with an aggressive chemotherapy regimen for six months.

"I am currently on oral chemotherapy, which I will be on for a minimum of two to three years," she said. "I am so blessed and proud to say that I am currently in remission."

"One of my hopes and missions is to raise awareness about Adrenal Cortical Cancer and cancer in general," she said.

provide free internet services to those who otherwise might not be able to afford the basic technology.

Federal and state funding for libraries is an essential public tax investment for our local communities. A study by the Bureau of Business Research IC2 Institute at the University of Texas at Austin found that Texas public libraries provide a return on investment of $4.64 for each dollar invested. This data-intensive research determined that, collectively in FY 2015, public libraries provided $2.628 billion in benefits while using only $566 million of public tax investment.

Along with arts, humanities and cultural programs, libraries continue to be the soul of our communities. Librarians are smart investors who facilitate technology innovation, safeguard the freedom of information, and contribute directly to the economy and the quality of life in each of the large cities and small towns across Texas.

It is the collaborative efforts of librarians working with residents to care for our communities that keep Texas strong. It's the collective voice of all who stand together to protect the soul of our communities that makes America great. Libraries deserve our continued support.

Disannexation questions

annexation. In addition, "The contract becomes an annexation agreement if the property is ever developed or subdivided in the future."

"All the city has to do is offer the development agreement," he said. "If the property owner refuses, then annexation can proceed."

"This notion of a green wall is not the impediment that some people are making it to be," he said. "If people are thinking this green wall is going to buffer and protect, I would argue that this argument is flawed.

Bojorquez recalled when Killeen, Temple and Belton began to expand ETJ around Salado that it caused a flood of ETJ annexation requests from property owners. "Temple and Belton were growing south," he said, and "Killeen wanted frontage on I-35."

Bojorquez told the audience that he has advised the Village on approaching properties that are in the ETJ of Salado and bordering the ETJ of other area cities to convince them to come in voluntarily.

These properties are blocking the growth of these larger cities that can annex at will.

"Corporations, business, restaurants want sewer," he said. "Cities that have sewer to offer have the largest economic development tool that a city can offer."

The Village of Salado can "threaten to release them to another city that is bigger and worse and more expensive than Salado or you give them an incentive such as sewer or you do both."

Bojorquez also addressed issues with the metes and bounds description in the petition.

"The metes and bounds don't close. They don't connect at all points," he said. "There are gaps. Some gaps are small, some gaps are considerable. Is a broken metes and bounds a metes and bounds at all?"

"Annexations have been voided after the fact if the property doesn't close," he added.

"When you look at the map circulated with the petition and compare it to the map with the metes and bounds description," he said, "there are entire rooftops that are not in the metes and bound."

He continued that this raises legal questions, such as "Did the petitioners themselves know what was in and what was out when they signed it and will the voters know what is in and what is out when they are asked to vote on it."

Bojorquez told the audience that property owners who might be disannexed by the election, could voluntarily annex back into the city limits, however their property tax exemptions or freezes would not be grandfathered

"I think the answer is no. I think whatever the current tax rate is for maintenance and operation and debt service would come into play."

I spoke with Bojorquez after the meeting to clarify if a property is disannexed from Salado and then annexed by another municipality would it then be liable for the sewer debt as well as the new city property tax. His answer was "yes."

If that property is annexed by another municipality, the property would then be assessed at the market value at the time of annexation. The homeowner could then apply for any exemptions at the time that it is brought into the municipality. The property would be taxed at the current tax rate at which time the taxes could be frozen for those 65 and over or disabled veterans (if those tax freezes are offered by the municipality. The property would also be liable for the assessment for the sewer debt of Salado until that debt is paid in full.

Bojorquez will also attend the April 8 meeting sponsored by the Mill Creek Community Association.

SHS Student Leadership class meets with State Senator

By GRACE BARKER & BEN SUNSHINE
SHS STUDENT LEADERSHIP

The members of the youth leadership program traveled to Austin to learn how the Texas state government functions. They toured the capitol and learn some unique history about the building. The students had the amazing opportunity to be recognized in session in the House of Representatives. The SYL members and sponsors were also recognized in the Senate. After being recognized in the House of Representatives and in the Senate, they ate in the capitol building at the delicious Capitol Grill.

Senator Dawn Buckingham met with the students as did Representative Scott Cooper.

After the students met with their representative and senator, they met with the Advocate for Veterans. He talked with the students about the benefits that are given to veterans in the state of Texas and how the veterans are helped through his department.

Alexander's Distillery launches new menu

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

The new menu at Alexander's Distillery, designed by Chef Brian West, primarily features the flavors of two of Texas's six regions of cuisine: the Gulf Coast and the Old South of southeast Texas.

Alexander's is the first of six Signature Restaurants for West, who has recently published a new manifesto on Texas cuisine.

West is well-known throughout Texas. His culinary career is now in its third decade. Most recently, he was the executive chef of Smoke, the Restaurant in San Antonio.

A graduate of the Art Institute in Houston, West has worked at several hotels and restaurants in San Antonio, including the Hotel Contessa.

He opened and operated his own restaurant Cafe Paladar before becoming a chef instructor at the Culinary Institute of the Americas in San Antonio.

He is now working with Texas restaurants to relaunch and reimagine their brands.

His distinct use of local ingredients and Texas regional styles of cooking is reflected in the new Alexander's Distillery menu which launched this week as an expression of pure Texas.

From southeast Texas comes Old South comfort foods such as Fried Green Tomatoes topped with pimento cheese to Acadian Blackened Shrimp and Grits.

"People take their shrimp and grits pretty seriously," West said. The Alexander's shrimp and grits is made with Gulf Shrimp, white hominy grits, pimento cheese, bacon and a topping of roasted pepper salad.

The menu also reflects the flavors of the Gulf Coast, particularly in the Texas Gulf Coast Platter of fried shrimp, blue cornmeal oyster, crab cake, hush puppy and a Tito's Vodka cocktail sauce.

The menu also emphasizes comfort, such as the braised beef short rib "pot roast" or the barbecued meat loaf.

"It is a very approachable menu," West said. He added:

"I wouldn't call it fine dining, that sounds too much like white tablecloths. It is elevated dining."

The new menu adds a comprehensive wine list that has labels from California, Italy, France, Oregon, Washington, Argentina, New Zealand and Texas.

In fact, in the coming weeks, Alexander's will reopen the upstairs bar as a wine bar featuring more than 130 different wines with a limited service of appetizers.

The bar will also serve unique takes on classic cocktails, featuring barrel-aged whiskies.

In addition to being open for dinner and happy hour Tuesday through Saturday, Alexander's recently began offering Sunday brunch.

The brunch menu is a three-course offering for $20 per person with main dishes such as Eggs Benedict, spicy Fried Chicken and Waffle and Crab-Stuffed Omelets.

With the milder temperatures of spring, now is a perfect time to rediscover the tiered deck and porches of Alexander's and its unbeatable views of Salado Creek.

Alexander's Distillery, 602 Center Circle, open Tues-Sat evenings, Sunday brunch.

A matter of timing

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

The right time to win a trick is crucial in many deals, and this applies just as much to the defenders as it does to the declarer. Consider this deal from a team-of-four match. At both tables the final contract was three notrump, but the contract was made at one table while it was defeated at the other.

Both Wests led a diamond. At the first table, East won the queen with the ace and returned the nine to the king. South had eight sure tricks at this point, and in an effort to gain a ninth he led a low spade to the ten. West took his queen but had the king. West took his ace and cashed the jack of diamonds, which he would otherwise have lost, and South made exactly three notrump.

At the second table, the defense was more effective. On the opening diamond lead, East signaled with the nine instead of winning with the ace. Declarer could not prevail against this thoughtful play. After the queen held, he also led a spade and finessed the ten, but West won with the queen and returned a diamond.

East took dummy's king with the ace and returned the five, allowing West's J-8 to score two tricks over South's 10-7. Thus, the defenders at this table scored three diamonds and two spades to put South down one.

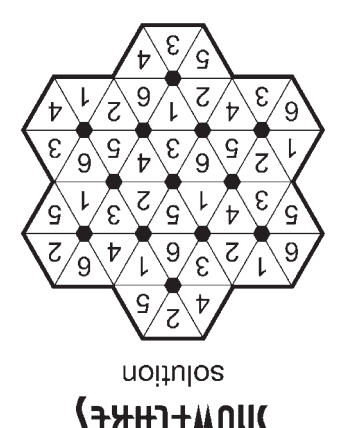

At the second table, East recognized that it would be better to take the ace of diamonds later in the play, when he could more effectively lead through whatever holding South might have in diamonds.

Western Diamondback Rattlesnake

Western Diamondback Rattlesnakes are Texas largest venomous snake

There are times when I write this column that the information about an animal is scarce and hard to come by. However, at other times the material that is available is almost overwhelming. There is so much information (true and false) that I would like to present that a column like this would quickly take up more space than is allowed, and such is the case with the Western Diamondback Rattlesnake.

The Western Diamondback Rattlesnake (Crotalus atrox) occurs from central Oklahoma through the western two-thirds of Texas westward to the southeastern border of California south to the state of San Luis Potosi, Mexico. In Texas, it is the most commonly encountered venomous snake in the Trans-Pecos eco-region, as well as the Tamaulipan thornscrub of south Texas. It is a habitat generalist, occupying a variety of habitats ranging from desert scrub near the Permian Basin to high elevation pine-oak forests of the Davis Mountains.

Western Diamondbacks are the second largest venomous snake in the United States, slightly exceeded in size only by the Eastern Diamondback Rattlesnake of Florida and other east coast states. It is by far the largest venomous snake that occurs in Texas. Adult Western Diamondbacks can achieve lengths of up to seven feet in length, although the average is much smaller than this. Most individuals max out at a length between four and five feet in total length.

The body coloration of Western Diamondbacks can vary (depending on the soil type where it occurs) from a chalky gray to a dull reddish brown. Along the spine is a series of darker diamond-shaped markings that are bordered by a black and white border, hence the name diamondback. A common nickname among those who encounter this serpent frequently is coon-tail which refers to the black and white banded tail. These tail bands are of nearly equal width, one characteristic that is used to determine this animal from the more dangerous Mojave Rattlesnake that inhabits the Trans-Pecos area of Texas as well. The head is distinctly wider than the neck, giving this animal the famous "diamond-shaped" head. The pupils are elliptical, and the rattle is large and is capable of being heard from several yards away.

Diamondbacks, like other snakes, do not hibernate in the true sense of the word, but rather employ an activity known as brumation. This means that the snake's metabolism, heart rate and breathing all slow down to a near stop, but they are quite awake and aware of their surroundings. They will often congregate in large numbers in "dens" to spend the long periods of inactivity of winter and once temperatures achieve a level of warmth that the snake finds tolerable, usually in early to mid-March, then the males begin leaving the dens in their quest to mate. Females release a pheromone that attracts the males, and many times more than one male will encounter a female that is receptive. During these encounters, the males will participate in a dramatic "dance" as they intertwine their bodies together in a wrestling match style event. The winner is the one who is able to pin the other to the ground, and mating ensues upon the dominant male's victory. Diamondbacks are oviparous, which means they give birth to living young, and the foot-long neonates (which number from 4 to 25) are typically born in late summer and early fall. Other than having a "button" on the end of the tail, they are exact replicas of the adults and are fully capable of fending for themselves, including having fully functional fangs and venom apparatus.

Western Diamondbacks defend themselves in a variety of ways, with the main defensive mechanism being that of camouflage. Even with the gaudy patterns and colors, this snake blends in well with its primarily brushy habitats. The second defensive plan is that of crawling away from a potential predator while rattling its tail slightly. If this does not deter its assailant, then it will begin to curl up in a defensive "s-coiled" stance and aggressively vibrate it's tail, causing the rattling sound to get louder. This behavior is typically a final stand so to speak, and many times an encounter with a diamondback does not come to this point. Out of the 300 or so diamondbacks that I encounter each summer, less than 10 percent resort to this tactic, with most being satisfied to avoid any confrontations. The last defensive mechanism is that of biting and injecting a deadly venom into a would-be attacker. This venom, depending on a huge variety of factors, can be lethal to humans, although few human fatalities actually occur.

Despite these venomous propensities, the Western Diamondback is actually beneficial in the fact that it preys primarily on small mammals such as mice and rats.

When participating in outdoor activities, the risk of encountering a Western Diamondback is slim, although it can and does happen occasionally. If such an encounter occurs, remember that this animal, despite its harmful capability, is more afraid of you than you are of it and it would prefer to be left alone. Most bites from this species occur when people make an attempt to either capture or kill this snake. The best course of action is to walk, don't run, in the opposite direction, making both you and the snake more at ease.
