Mainlane closure slated for I-35 at NB exit #286

On Thursday May 29 I-35 north will have a full main lane closure. The closure will begin at 7 p.m. May 29 and will open the following morning at 7 a.m. May 30.

This will allow the contractor to place the remaining striping to relocate northbound mainlanes to the new roadway.

Traffic from the existing IH35 northbound mainlanes will be placed on the new IH35 mainlanes from FM 2484 to FM 436.

On the morning of May 30, traffic will flow directly onto the new northbound mainlanes on the south end of the project (FM 2484) and follow the new mainlanes under Amity, Tahuaya, Shanklin, and Loop 121 and be transitioned back to the existing northbound mainlanes south of FM 436.

During the closure:

I-35 north bound – traffic will Exit #286, FM 2484, and re-enter the interstate north of FM 2484. It will remain in one lane on new IH 35 Northbound mainlanes through Lp 121 until both south and north tie-ins are completed.

I-35 south bound – will not be affected

FM 2484 – traffic across FM 2484 bridge will be closed to allow free flow of detoured northbound mainlane traffic.

Look for announcements on www.saladovillagevoice.com concerning this and other closings. If inclement weather causes the closing to be delayed or canceled after press-time, we will announce changes and updates on the website.

Academic team wins 9th State Crown

Salado High School won its second straight UIL Academic State Championship last week, running its total to nine state championships. Of more than 1,500 schools in Texas, only one school has won more Academic UIL State Championships than Salado.

Salado won the Championship with a strong performance by its speech and math teams and its One Act Play, which was second overall in state. Together, Salado competitors tallied 159 points, ahead of second-place Mount Vernon with 96 and Holiday with 74 points.

Other top 10 teams in state were Abernathy, 66, Callisburg 64, Chapel Hill, 58, Henrietta, 56, White Oak, 50, Lago Vista, 47 and Alpine, 43.

Salado's speech team captured the Speech Team Championship with 81 points, enough points to place them third overall as a school.

Defending their state titles were Sydney Walters in Persuasive Speaking and Abigail Sullivan in Informative Speaking. Walters was the only student at the meet to receive straight ones.

Additionally, Rachel Evans placed second in Persuasive Speaking and Walters placed third in Lincoln-Douglas Debate.

The Speech Team was coached by Tim Cook and Travis Cook. The Speech Team will compete next at the National Speech and Debate National Tournament in US Extemporaneous Speaking June 15-20 in Overland Park, Kansas.

Salado's One Act Play returned to state and placed second overall.

Individual awards in One Act Play competition included the Best Technician Award for 2A to Bryce Blair, All Star Cast to Hayden Ebeling and Honorable Mention All Star Cast to Casey Williamson.

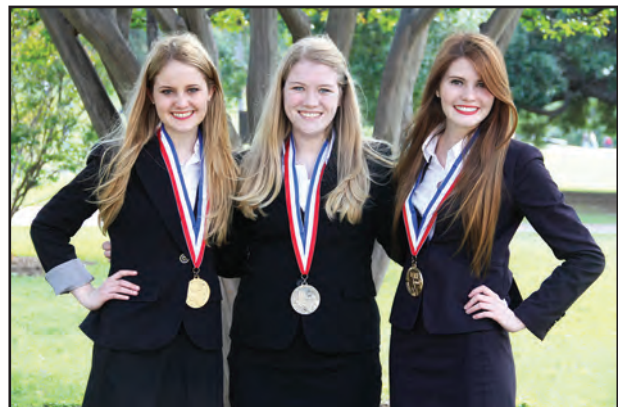

The Mathematics team took first place in state. Individual competitors were Isaac Hopkins, first place, Sammy Nguyen, third place, Dane Hankamer and Sean Clement.

The Number Sense Team also won first place at the state tournament. Competitors were Nguyen, fifth place, Robert Cortes, sixth place, Hankamer and Ellis Van Sickle.

Also competing at the state tournament for Salado were Clement in Calculator Applications and Kyle Heiner in Spelling.

The coaches for the Salado High School Academic UIL team are Jill Baumgart, Ron Byrd, Dennis Cabaniss, Tim Cook, JJ Jonas, Kyra Mann. Travis Cook assists coaching the Speech Team.

The win takes SHS one step closer to repeating as the 2A UIL Lone Star Cup champions.

Volunteers from around the community came together to thank the workers who have been expanding the interstate through Salado during a special lunch in town on the north end of Main Street on May 23. Road construction workers got a break from work and enjoyed barbecue and fixings along with smiles and words of thanks from local citizens. Don Engleking organized the event.

“Reagan at Reykjavik”: Breaking The Ice

It is, perhaps, fitting that the Cold War finally began to crack apart in a place called Iceland.

It was October 1986, and President Ronald Reagan flew to Reykjavik to meet Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev. Our side didn't expect much from the talks. They were intended to give the leaders a chance to get to know each other better and lay some groundwork for future talks, planned for Washington. But that's not what ended up happening.

Ken Adelman was there, as the president's arms-control director. His new book, Reagan at Reykjavik, tells the story of a weekend that changed the world.

Gorbachev came to the summit prepared to bet big. He offered sweeping reductions in ballistic nuclear missiles and even agreed to work on human rights issues, which had always been hidden far behind the Iron Curtain. But before he would sign any agreements, he demanded that the U.S. stop its work on Reagan's dream: the Strategic Defense Initiative missile-defense system. Reagan wouldn't budge.

After hours of talks between the two leaders, the summit ended, “with no joint statement, no date set for the summit in Washington, no telegenic smiles or perfunctory pleasantries,” Adelman writes.

Those who'd been there immediately painted it as a failure. Secretary of State George Schultz expressed a “great sense of disappointment.” White House Chief of Staff Don Regan told reporters, “there will not be another summit in the near future that I can see at this time.” Gorbachev sounded pessimistic. “If we had a third meeting in Washington that would have no results, I think that would be a scandal, unacceptable, impermissible,” he told reporters.

Reader questions new Village procedures and mayor

Dear Editor,

After reading the editor's May 22, 2014 front page article “New leaders bring new procedures for Village staff,” questions come to mind.

Did the citizens of Salado vote for a mayor who does not have the time to even be mayor?

If the new mayor can work at the office over the weekend, does he expect others to be there with him? Or will he be at the office by himself?

If the new mayor will make contact in the morning, at lunch, and again in the late afternoon, does this suggest that the new mayor has a full time job that is not in Salado? Will the residents, not only of

Letters to the Editor

Salado, but out of town, only be able to reach the mayor around his work schedule? The same schedule as their work day?

Was Mr. Reed's suggestion that the workshop be moved to occur after regular business sessions, (from before business sessions), to accommodate the new mayor's schedule, or for the betterment of the business sessions?

There are even more questions. Does the new mayor support the village by volunteering in any organization in the village? Does he attend a Salado church, promote history, art, or businesses of the village?

Does he practice his civic duty by voting? What can the citizens expect from a man who fails to participate in the political process by not voting since 2008?

God moves in a mysterious way, his wonders to perform.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Rove Is Right

It was inevitable that attacks on Hillary Clinton would be deemed sexist. We now know that they will be called ageist, too.

A report in the New York Post's Page Six that Karl Rove told a recent conference that Hillary Clinton might be brain-damaged after a 30-day hospital stay during her illness at the end of 2012 caused a volcanic eruption of denunciation aimed at the Republican strategist. Rove was accused, among other things, of dealing the age card from the bottom of the deck.

Rove denies saying “brain damage,” and the Page Six report didn't put quote marks around that phrase. He tells me he's not sure whether he actually said she was in the hospital 30 days (it was three), but regardless, he meant to refer to the entirety of the 30-day episode when she was dealing with a virus, a fall and a subsequent concussion and blood clot between her brain and skull.

If we take Rove's interview on Fox News the day after the Page Six item as the best explanation of his view, his basic points are unassailable -- the state of Clinton's health will play into her decision whether presidential politics is that people use it against you. U.S. News & World Report had an item in April 2008 titled “Obama Campaign Plans to Hit at McCain's Age.” The Bill Clinton reelection campaign in 1996 feasted on contrasts between the new and old in its lopsided bout with the septuagenarian Bob Dole. Of course, age is hardly dispositive. Ronald Reagan was the oldest president at age 70 in 1981 and embodied an invigorating optimism despite his years. But age was an issue for him in 1980 and 1984.

Hillary can potentially trump all this with openness about her medical records, and with an energetic and future-oriented campaign, should she run. Her supporters, in the meantime, hope to deflect any questions with cries of ageism and sexism. It will be a nice change of pace to move on from racism as the Democratic rejoinder of choice to other “-isms” neglected during the past eight years.

But Rove is right: Hillary will have to deal with these questions.

LETTING THE SUN SHINE ON THE KOCH BROTHERS, AN OTHERWORDS CARTOON BY KHALIL BENDIB

Koch Brothers Rev Up High-Octane Hypocrisy

LOBBYISTS FUNDED BY CHARLES AND DAVID KOCH WANT TO PUNISH HOMEOWNERS FOR INSTALLING SOLAR PANELS ON THEIR OWN ROOFS.

Hypothetical conundrums can provide valuable learning experiences for students of corporate management and ethics.

Consider this one: Suppose you're a corporate chieftain who's a free-enterprise fundamentalist, despising government regulation, taxation, and intervention in the purity of the holy marketplace. But — whoopsie daisy — suddenly a new competitor to your old-line product pops up, and more and more of your customers are switching to the alternative.

That's the conundrum: You're being out-competed. What else can you do besides try to compete better?

Well, if you're the reigning princes of anti-government extremism, you find that something else.

This is no hypothetical situation. It's a real one faced by the Koch brothers, the fossil-fueled duo. They feel threatened by the steady increase in the number of middle-class families installing solar panels on the roofs of their own homes.

Not only is this free, non-polluting sun power

slashing families' utility bills, but families can also make money from this investment in climate solutions.

Today's efficient solar cells can produce more electricity than a home needs, and 43 states allow these rooftop energy producers to sell their excess production back to the grid. It's free enterprise at its most free-and-enterprising best.

Naturally, the Kochs and the utility monopolies hate this trend.

sending their lobbyists across country: to demand that state governments intervene in the marketplace to stop these pesky rooftop competitors from, uh, competing in the energy marketplace.

Their hypocrisy doesn't stop there. They also want states to tax solar-powered homeowners to punish them for becoming innovative energy producers with some independence from their local utilities.

It sure isn't the American way. But it is a page from the corporate playbook. As the comedian Lily Tomlin says, “No matter how cynical you get, it's almost impossible to keep up.”

Why Tea Partiers Should Back Minimum Wage Raise

By: JOHN STOEHR

If tea-partying Republicans want to force the GOP establishment to stand for principle, they have to make the party's big-business faction feel pain.

If tea-partying Republicans were politically strategic animals, they'd support President Barack Obama's call to raise the minimum wage to $10.10 an hour. I know that sounds insane.

But as that GOP faction struggles against the Republican Party's establishment, perhaps it's time to stop using the primary as its weapon of choice. If you want to beat the GOP establishment, challenging incumbents is just one way to do it. Another way is to hit big business where it hurts.

In economic terms, the tea party's roots go back to Thomas Jefferson.

The founding father envisioned a decentralized government serving regional economies built by independent and self-reliant farmers, artisans, and merchants. Today, we call these folks entrepreneurs and small-business owners. To the tea party faithful, these people make America great.

Jefferson couldn't have predicted a world transformed by an industrial revolution after which corporations dominated a national economy and employed legions of workers. Nor could he foresee large corporations bending government policy to their will to the detriment of small businesses.

Tea-partying Americans say they believe that releasing the working class from wage slavery and welfare and forcing corporations to compete fairly would fix the economy. They think the best way to achieve that is by starving the federal budget to preclude handouts to the poor and corporations.

So how would raising the minimum wage help achieve that goal?

The conservative Jeffersonian worldview makes room for government "interference," as long as it helps those who help themselves. Yes, raising the minimum wage increases worker pay. More importantly, it helps small businesses. As a small business owner said in a new survey conducted by

Advocates for Independent Business: "We need to raise the minimum wage to get the economy growing again."

Indeed, the people most concerned about raising the minimum wage to $10.10 an hour are the owners and managers of large corporations because higher wages eat into their profits. And millions of Americans employed by large companies earn so little that they rely on government benefits to eke by. It's costing Uncle Sam $7 billion just to cover the public assistance costs associated with the fast-food industry's rock-bottom wages, according to Bloomberg Businessweek.

If Republicans in the tea-party wing want to force the GOP establishment's hand, they have to make the Republican Party's big-business faction feel some pain. To do that, they should threaten to join Democrats in raising the minimum wage. Higher wages are among the things big business fears most.

This wouldn't just be a wise political move. It's a position entirely consistent with principles first laid out by one of the founding fathers.

Clearly, there's a catch. If tea-party Republicans did disentangle themselves from big-business benefactors, they'd jeopardize the backing of deep pockets who have exploited their energy to achieve their profit-preserving objectives since 2010.

Obviously, nothing of the sort is going to happen. Congress is bound to remain gridlocked until November — or even later than that — on many important priorities.

But if tea-party Republicans were as principled as they say they are, they'd support a minimum wage hike.

HERITAGE FOUNDATION CONTINUED FROM PAGE 2A

The media agreed. "Tonight, when the summit was over, a somber mood," ABC's Peter Jennings reported. "No banter, and no progress." Or as The Washington Post put it, "The summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev collapsed tonight." Reporter Lou Cannon pointed the finger at the president. The sides, he wrote, "deadlocked on the crucial issue of restricting the U.S. space-based missile-defense program widely known as 'Star Wars.'"

But all this was, as they say, the rough first draft of history. Far more had happened in Reykjavik than anyone knew at the time.

First off, the summit was crucial simply because it put Reagan and Gorbachev face to face. "Each felt free to speak his mind," Adelman writes, which allowed them to move forward. Back home, "both men felt that their own bureaucracies were blocking, not just their goals, but even an enunciation of their goals." By meeting with no bureaucrats present, they made real progress.

The summit was also notable for what was happening on the floor above the direct talks. Adelman recalls "American and Soviet officials talking informally, asking each other about their families, sharing information and impressions, even laughing together."

lished relationships with "every leader who mattered under Gorbachev," relationships that would continue long after the weekend ended. "In a small way, it helped end the Cold War by helping to thaw the cold ways we dealt with one another," Adelman writes.

Finally, it was important because of what Reagan stood for. At Reykjavik, he fought for SDI because he believed it would help eliminate the threat of nuclear weapons. The limited systems we have today aren't as comprehensive as they should be. But the fact they exist at all is due to Reagan's leadership, especially his stand in 1986.

A few days after the talks, The New York Times editorialized that "Reykjavik produced a roller coaster, first of hope, then disappointment, and now confusion."

Over the 25 years since the meeting, the actual records and first-hand notes from both the American and the Soviet participants have been declassified and are now available. We now have a much better appreciation for what actually happened at the summit.

Adelman, a professional historian, tells the story for all to see, and we now know that these talks sped the end of the Cold War and the dissolution of the Soviet Empire.

Not bad at all for a rainy weekend in Reykjavik.

DRT awards Mescher first place in essay contest

Several Salado seventh graders from Barry Kemper's Texas History class participated in the 2014 Daughters of the Republic of Texas essay contest with Corban Mescher winning the contest.

The topic for 2014 for seventh graders was William Barrett Travis and the impact of the letter "Victory or Death."

Each student researched the topic and described Col. Travis and the impact his letter had upon the Texans who received it after the Alamo fell.

Seventh graders participating in the essay contest were Mescher, Aunnika Deen, Savannah Reeder, Nathan Cahoon, Rayne Polkowskie, Davannah Trapp and Elizabeth Flynn.

"We were very impressed with the depth of accurate information and the sources these students used for their essays," state Lynn Kennedy, Vice-President of the Village of Salado Chapter of the DRT.

Mescher's essay was chosen as the winner "for its level of accuracy and excellence in documenting the events that happened at the Alamo. Mescher's essay also won first place in Region 5. "Our DRT chapter was very proud that Corban won first place in our district," Kennedy said.

Each student who participated in the local essay contest was given the book "History of Salado. Mescher also received the book "Voice of the Alamo" for her first place win in Region 5.

Kemper received a framed copy of Travis' "Victory or Death" letter to hang in his classroom.

"We appreciate Coach Kemper's help," Kennedy said, "and his willingness to allow his student to participate in the DRT essay contest."

Constable Precinct 2 Correa graduates Leadership College

Constable Rolly Correa of Bell County Precinct #2 graduated from the 10th Class of the Texas Constable's Leadership College on May 9.

"We strive to strengthen public confidence, develop and maintain positive relations with the community and to promote a safe and friendly community through enforcement and education," Correa said. "Training is an investment in my duties as an officer and my office's future. The training can also be a factor in the future of our community and courts of Bell County."

The 10th class graduates completed three modules of training, included all aspects of modern law enforcement management techniques, styles and philosophies. The program is highly interactive and requires each participant to create a personal leadership philosophy paper reflecting their views on leadership, leadership practice, vision for the organization and community and plans for professional growth.

All 25 Constables from 25 different precincts throughout Texas were awarded a diploma and insignia of the professional designation.

The good old days

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

This deal occurred during the famous Culbertson-Lenz match in 1931.

Josephine Culbertson opened one diamond, and Oswald Jacoby made a weak jump-overcall of two hearts. Ely Culbertson bid three spades -- a jump-shift indicating a powerful hand -- and Sidney Lenz passed. Mrs. Culbertson then bid three notrump.

This might have been the right bid in those days, but by modern standards four diamonds surely would be regarded as preferable for two reasons: First, hands with 6-4-2-1 distribution don't lend themselves well to notrump play. Second, three notrump did not express the slam possibilities suggested by a hand with 17 high-card points facing a jump-shift.

Nevertheless, several rounds of bidding later the Culbertsons found themselves in six diamonds. It was an unsound contract, of course, but it had a good chance of succeeding -- depending on the opening lead.

Jacoby had no clear-cut lead. The Culbertsons had bid all four suits, and where to attack was by no means obvious. It seemed to him there was a good chance that North had the A-Q of spades for his three-spade bid, and that a later finesse would trap his king.

So Jacoby decided to put Mrs. Culbertson under immediate pressure by leading the six of spades. He thought she might read the lead as a singleton and go up with the ace.

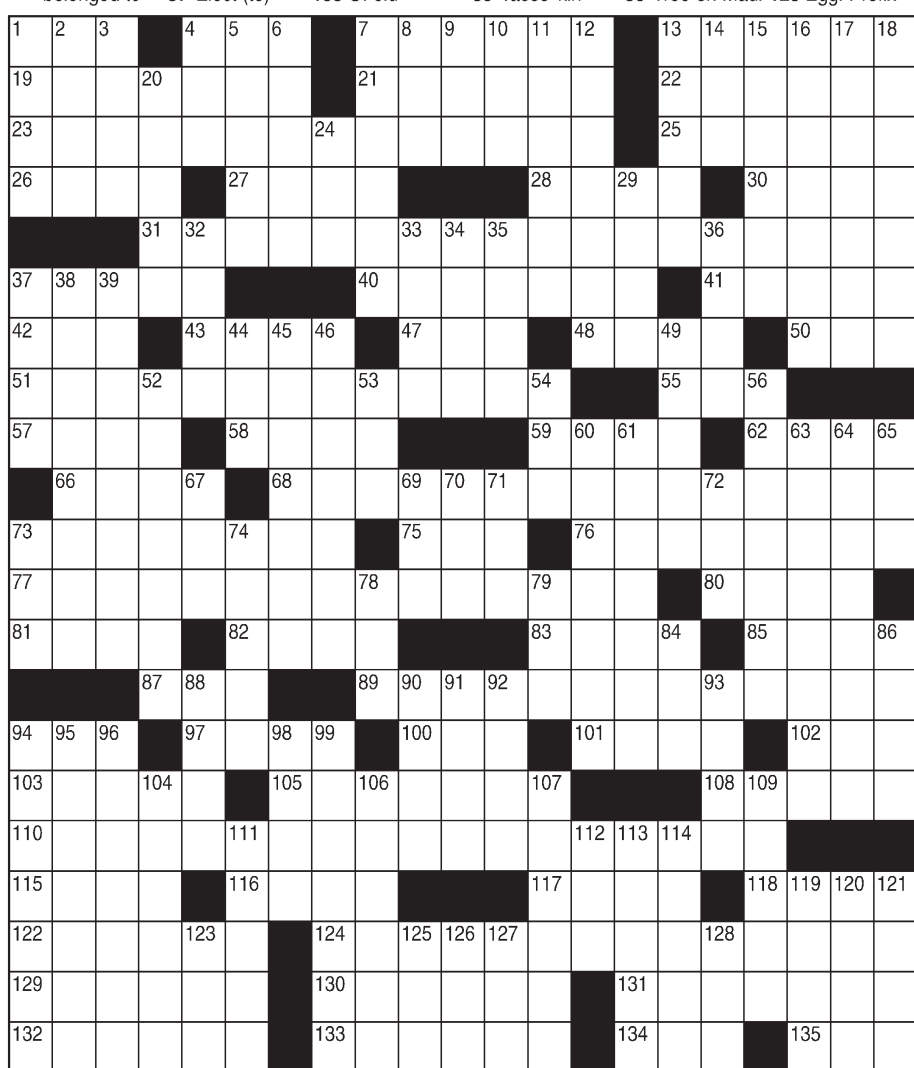

Jacoby's plan succeeded beyond his wildest dreams. Lenz won the trick with the ace and returned a spade, quickly nipping the slam in the bud. Had Jacoby led any other suit, Mrs. Culbertson would have scored all 13 tricks!

Top 10 Tips Every Renter Should Know

The number of U.S. renters has expanded significantly since the burst of the housing bubble, and renters now represent 34 percent of all households, according to government statistics. Meanwhile, rents climbed 3.2 percent last year.

Now that the rental market has gotten more crowded, the better prepared you are, the more likely you are to secure the property you desire. The real estate experts at Homes.com, along with partner ForRent.com, have created a comprehensive checklist for stress-free renting:

- Preparation: For a smooth approval process, be prepared with a completed rental application, written references from a previous property owner

- or employer, and an apartment hunting checklist to remember everything from fees to appliances.

- Budget: No more than 25 to 30 percent of income should be spent on housing, say experts. Create a budget that considers extras like your commute and lifestyle amenities. Confirm who bears responsibility for utilities and maintenance, as costs can vary by lease.

- Amenities: Many amenities will be enticing, so be honest about what's essential to you. Compromise may result in finding a home in a better location.

- Location: Use free search features on real estate sites like Homes.com to easily search for rentals by zip code. You'll ensure you don't miss your dream home in your dream neighborhood.

- Search outside the box: Extend your search to single-family homes and townhomes. There are deals to uncover, especially if you're splitting rent. Also, review for-sale listings. Some people may be willing to rent instead.

- Walk-through: Do a walk-through of the entire space before signing any paperwork, ensuring all faucets and appliances work. Open cabinets and closets, and be aware of issues that need to be taken care of prior to moving in.

- Review the lease: Understand all lease terms before signing. Pay attention to details such as termination. Ask the leasing agent or property owner plenty of questions to make sure you have a solid understanding.

- Renters insurance: Your personal belongings aren't necessarily covered by the property owner's insurance policy. Renters insurance covers you and your belongings in most instances of theft and damage, and protects you

BBB warns consumers to be cautious when renting a summer vacation home

Renting someone else's home, condo or apartment can be a fun and comfortable alternative to staying in a hotel or motel. (BBB) Better Business Bureau serving Central, Coastal, Southwest Texas and the Permian Basin warns consumers of scammers who may see vacation plans as an opportunity to rip people off.

There are many ways rental scams work. In most cases, con-artist create rental listings that may contain fantastic appealing photos to attract customers. Once the potential renter has fallen in love, the phony landlord collects an up-front deposit, leaving the vacationer to find out they've been cheated when they show up at the address weeks later.

Bait-and-switch is another way scammers may appeal to vacation home hunters. The scammer may show them a home that isn't actually available and at the last minute change the location to a much less appealing property.

Today, there are more secure ways of renting a vacation home rather than just finding an online ad. Legitimate websites exist to protect renters by providing secure payment solutions, visitor comment sections and rating systems. However, even legitimate sites are not immune from dishonest cons.

BBB warns consumers of the following red flags when searching for a vacation rental property:

The deal sounds too good to be true. Scammers will often list a rental for a very low price to lure victims. Find out how comparable listings are priced. If the rental comes in suspiciously low, consider walking away.

The landlord is located elsewhere and prefers to communicate via email. Scammers might say they have just relocated out of the country for a job or missionary work. If the landlord is truly overseas, there is also no way to get a copy of a lease or keys.

The landlord cannot provide additional photos or information. Request more photos of the property, or ask to be given a virtual tour via webcam. Ask for specific details about the house. Legitimate property owners will be happy to oblige.

The landlord asks the renter to wire money. Money sent via wire transfer service is extremely difficult to retrieve. Once the scammers have picked it up, there is little recourse, if any, for getting any money back.

Bell County Conservation Expo

The Bell County Conservation Expo will be held June 12 at the Bell County Expo Center-Assembly Hall.

This program will cover a wide variety of topics with quality presenters from several state and federal agencies. Registration is $25. RSVP with payment to Texas A&M AgriLife Bell County, 1605 N. Main St. Belton, TX 76513. Make checks payable to "Bell Crops Committee".

The program will begin at 8:30 a.m. and conclude at 4:30 p.m. with lunch provided. There will be 3 CEU's provided for Pesticide Applicators and Commercial Exhibits available for visiting.

Natural resource management is critical for both large and small acreage land owners. Land fragmentation and population growth is expanding the cities and small acreage landowners in the suburban areas. The small acreage and/or new landowners are now managing much of the rural-urban interface areas. Each landowner has different goals and objectives for their land, but all have an effect on the area natural resources which ultimately affect everyone. Soil and water health is critically important regardless of the size of property. This workshop will look at the "Big Picture" of natural resource management and yet make it relevant to each individual landowner.

Some topics on the agenda for this program are as follows:

- Soil Health by Charles Kneuper-USDA-NRCS
- Land Management Operations and Water

Resources by Lori Hazel-Texas Forest Service

• Fuels Mitigation and Prescribed Fire by Andy McCrady-Texas Forest Service

• Wildlife Tax Valuations by Derrick Wolter-Texas Parks & Wildlife

• Oak Wilt Management and Tree Health by Dr. Dave Appel-Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service

• Firewise and Native Landscaping by Bell County Master Gardeners

Individuals with disabilities who require an auxiliary aid, service or other accommodations in order to participate in Extension sponsored events are encouraged to contact the County Extension office at least a week in advance to determine how reasonable accommodations may be made.

Rent Tips

from anyone claiming to have been injured in your rental due to your negligence. The average cost for renters insurance is about $12 per month to cover $30,000 worth of property, according to Independent Insurance Agents & Brokers of America.

• Security deposits: Take pictures the day you move in and the day you move out. Document repairs and modifications made while you're living there. When your lease ends, insist on a final walk-through with the leasing staff or property owner. Know the terms of your lease.

• Use space efficiently: Use temporary décor ideas to turn your rental into a home, making you feel renewed and unique without making significant changes or spending a fortune.

More tips for renters can be found at www.Homes.com.

For the best experience possible, be a savvy renter.
