Salado wins UIL Lone Star Cup -- again

Salado High School has won the Unievrsty Interscholastic League (UIL) Lone Star Cup for the second year in a row. UIL announced the winners June 12 and Salado has repeated as Lone Star Champions.

The Lone Star Cup ranks schools on how they fare in all UIL competitions, awarding points for playoff appearances and state championships in athletic, music and academic competitions.

Salado schools will receive the Lone Star Cup trophy along with a $1,000 check during a special presentation in August for the annual Meet the Eagles.

"Congratulations to the students, employees, parents, and community members of the Salado Independent School District for this amazing accomplishment!" Superintendent Michael Novotny said.

The Texas Lone Star Cup is awarded to the high school with the best overall academic, athletic, and fine arts programs in each of the five divisions (1A-5A). Winners for 2013-14 school year are Salado in 2A, Weimar (1A), Argyle (3A), Friendswood (4A) and Southlake Carroll (5A).

Salado High won the 2A Lone Star Cup by scoring a total of 82 points in the following activities this year:

Girls' Basketball = 2 (qualifying for playoffs)

Girls' Soccer = 2 (qualifying for playoffs)

Boys' Soccer = 6 (qualifying for playoffs, district champions, winning one round of playoffs)

Boys' Basketball = 8 (qualifying for playoffs, district champions, winning two rounds of playoffs)

Girls' Golf = 8 (state runner up)

One Act Play = 8 (state runner up)

Boys' Golf = 10 (state champions)

Softball = 10 (qualifying for playoffs, winning four rounds of playoffs)

Baseball = 10 (qualifying for playoffs, winning four rounds of playoffs)

Academic UIL = 18 (district champions, regional champions, state champions)

Salado High School tied the all-time UIL Lone Star Cup record for the point total (82) for 2A high schools. Salado also tied this all-time point total record when the Eagles won the UIL Lone Star Cup last year.

With this third Lone Star Cup, Salado is in elite company. Of more than 1,000 high schools in the state, less than 10 can boast three Lone Star Cups. Only Salado and Holliday in 2A can boast three or more Lone Star Cups.

Out of the 235 high schools in the 2A classification, below are the final standings for the top 10 schools.

Furry Friends

Salado Chamber of Commerce invited pets and their owners to the Furry Friends Festival in pace Park on June 14. The Park was filled with fur and even a few feathers as owners and their pets converged for the day-long event that culminated in the Duck Race. A pet parade showed off furry friends in costumes and themes. The Military Dog Demonstration Unit from Ft. Hood showed the skills of the canine soldiers who detect explosives or drugs and who serve beside their trainers. (PHOTOS BY MARILYN FLEISCHER)

Sales taxes drop

Sales tax rebates to Salado were down again while the county and state saw increases for the June rebates.

The Village of Salado payment was down by 18.5 percent compared to last June's payment. The Village received $25,882.11 from the State Comptroller's office, compared to $31,758.88 last June. For the year, rebates are down slightly, two percent. Thus far the Village has received $188,143.39 through June compared to $192,050.17 paid through June 2013.

Salado Public Library District is also down for the month and remarkably down for the year. The Library District received $22,512.44, which is two percent less than last June's payment of $22,981.80. For the year, however, the District is down 21 percent. So far the Library District has received $143,597.75 in 2014. It received $181,108.02 through June 2013.

Bell County is up considerably in June, receiving $1.36 million compared to $1.20 million last year, an increase of 13 percent. For the year, the County is up three percent, receiving $8.17 million compared to $8 million paid through June 2013.

Texas Comptroller Susan Combs said that state sales tax revenue in May was $2.45 billion, up 8.5 percent compared to May 2013.

"Sales tax growth was evident across all major economic sectors," Combs said. "The growth was led by the retail and wholesale trade sectors, the oil and natural gas mining sector, and the services sector. This marks the 50th consecutive month of increased state sales tax revenues, and brings the fiscal year-to-date growth to 5.4 percent."

Combs sent cities, counties, transit systems and special purpose taxing districts their June local sales tax allocations totaling $621.5 million, up 11.6 percent compared to June 2013.

BU law professor discusses Constitution with GOP women

Baylor Professor David Guinn will present a program on the U.S. Constitution to the Salado Area Republican Women and all interested parties 6 p.m. June 26 at the Stagecoach Inn Dining Room.

Guinn, who is in his 49th year of teaching at Baylor University was selected as the 2013 Baylor Lawyer of the Year. A wide influence he has had on state policy and generations of Baylor Lawyers. During his years at Baylor Law, Guinn has assisted in the drafting of the Texas Administrative Procedures Act and has served on numerous committees at Baylor University. Along with Professor Mike Morrison, Guinn has been involved in the redistricting process at the state and local level. An Open Exchange of Ideas

A costly way to limit speech

Heritage Forum

by Edwin Feulner

Imagine if Congress passed and the president signed a law making it a crime to utter “false, scandalous and malicious” statements “against the government.” Think that would violate your right to free speech?

Of course it would. So it’s startling to realize that such a law was, in fact, enacted at one time. In 1798, to be specific. The Alien and Sedition Acts were signed by President John Adams, no less. If you can’t trust an actual Founding Father to oppose such an unconstitutional law, who can you trust?

Jump to 2014, and you’ll find the same impulse to quash speech we disagree with is alive and well. All that’s changed are the tactics. Frontal assaults are out. Today’s politicians are savvy about how they propose to limit speech.

Hence Sen. Tom Udall (D-N.M.) has introduced a constitutional amendment that would allow Congress to limit fundraising and spending on election campaigns.

It’s dressed up in rousing calls to get so-called “dirty money” out of politics. We need to “level the playing field,” proponents of Udall’s amendment insist. Their goal is allegedly to make it so rich donors can’t “rig the system” and “buy elections.”

Don’t fall for it. It’s a new way to play an old trick.

Supporters of the proposed amendment point out that the amendment says nothing about speech. Go talk all you want. You won’t be thrown in jail like those who violated the Alien and Sedition Acts, so what are you complaining about?

But this is semantics. Free speech doesn’t just refer to when you literally use your voice. Good thing, too, because how can you make your views known if you don’t spend money? Most Americans support the candidate they favor with a financial contribution, of course, but almost every other activity involved in campaigns calls for money, from printing brochures and signs, to buying airtime for political ads.

In short, an essential part of your free speech is the ability to spend your money as you see fit to express your views. As Hans von Spakovsky, a former member of the Federal Election Commission, has written, “Bans on spending are bans on speech.”

That’s why the Supreme Court, in a landmark 1976 decision known as Buckley v. Valeo, struck down federal limits on campaign expenditures. Such limits, the Court said, restrain “the quantity and diversity of political speech.” We need the broadest possible protection of speech to guarantee an “unfettered interchange of ideas for the bringing about of political and social changes desired by the people.”

More recently, the Court struck down a federal ban on independent political speech by corporations, unions and associations. In 2010’s Citizens United v. Federal Election Commission, the justices called free speech “an essential mechanism of democracy” that is “the means to hold officials accountable to the people.”

But some incumbents don’t like challengers. And they don’t like the fact that voters can freely use their money to make their voice

For people who use the word "science" as a bludgeon and trumpet their strict commitment to fact and reason, the Obama administration and its supporters are strangely incapable of rational analysis of new climate-change regulations.

President Barack Obama's Environmental Protection Agency released draft rules earlier this month to create a vast new regulatory apparatus with no input from Congress -- in other words, to govern in its accustomed highhanded, undemocratic manner. The goal is to reduce carbon emissions from existing power plants, in particular coal-fired plants, to 30 percent below 2005 levels by 2030.

The rhetoric has involved self-congratulation about how they are the inexorable result of taking climate science and the reality of dangerous global warming seriously. "Science is science," President Obama said in an open-and-shut tautology about global warming during an interview with New York Times columnist Tom Friedman. By the same token, math is math, and the new regulations make no sense.

While the regulations are stringent enough to impose real economic costs -- especially in states that produce coal or heavily use coal power, or whose economies have grown relatively robustly since 2005 -- they have almost no upside in fighting global warming. That's because the U.S. is only part of the global carbon-emissions picture, and a diminishing one at that.

We account for roughly a sixth of global emissions, and our emissions have fallen the past few years more than those of any other major country. In fact, we've already achieved about half of the administration's 30 percent goal, in part through the boom in natural gas.

The regulations aim to cut carbon emissions by 700 million tons by 2030. That sounds like a formidable number only if it is abstracted from the context of the rest of the world. As Robert Bryce of the Manhattan Institute notes, carbon emissions increased worldwide by about 700 million tons in 2011 alone. China increased its emissions by 3 billion tons from 2006 to 2012. Even accepting the assumptions of the so-called global-warming consensus, the regulations will have an imperceptible effect on global temperature by 2100.

The regulatory fight against global warming runs up against this reality: Anything we do on our own short of returning to a subsistence economy is largely meaningless, while we can't force other countries to kneecap their economies based on a fashionable cause with no immediate bearing on the well-being of their often desperately impoverished

Upper-class, über-rich Brits pay a price. In exchange for being blessed with wealth and social standing, they're expected to be at least slightly amusing to the general public, offering some combination of doofus, daffy, and scandalous.

Crispin Odey fits this bill.

He was born to old money, but most of it was lost by the time he came of age. So Odey set out with old-fashioned drive (and the help of some very wealthy, old-school back-ers) to make a new fortune.

As a London hedge fund huckster, he has scored big during Europe's ongoing financial crisis by making cynical investments -- such as betting that British banks would collapse. When he won that wager, ordinary Brits suffered and the hedge fund genius became a billionaire.

Of course, Odey now resides in a proper British mansion. But he isn't satisfied to wallow selfishly in the wealth he raked in from his bets on the misfortunes of the masses. Rather, he is boosting the local economy by hiring architects, artisans, construction crews, and designers to build a snazzy $250,000 house on his estate.

In so doing, he is also boosting the spirit of an entire nation caught in an economic slump — indeed, Odey has ignited the fiery spirit of populist outrage in merry olde England. Why? The quarter-million-dollar house he commissioned is a chicken the roof, it's a poultry palace. Adding to the merriment, a chicken and an egg are carved into one wall, with a Latin inscription asking: "Who came first?"

Like billionaires everywhere, Odey always puts citizens.

Supporters of the new EPA rules say they are an exercise of American leadership that will encourage other countries to crimp their economies, especially the world's biggest emitter, China.

Why will China be shamed by our pointlessly self-flagellating new policy on power plants into adopting economically harmful regulations of its own based on speculative models showing a far-off threat of higher temperatures?

The best policy for the U.S. is not command-and-control regulation, as economics writer Jim Manzi points out, but maintaining an environment favorable to technological innovation. No one would have predicted the fracking revolution of the past few years that has both displaced coal and benefited the broader economy. But the self-declared adherents of "science" prefer the satisfaction of pointlessly self-defeating gestures.

es heard. So they're pushing Udall's amendment, which would not only give Congress the power to limit what you can contribute to candidates, but limit the amount that the candidates could spend on campaigns.

Worse, they've carved out exemptions for the media. "Thus, The New York Times and MSNBC could continue to spend as much money, newsprint and airtime as they want supporting their preferred candidates -- or attacking those they oppose," notes von Spakovsky. The rest of us would be out of luck.

Udall's amendment is plainly an end-run around the Supreme Court, which has so far held the line on the First Amendment. "Virtually every means of communicating ideas in today's mass society requires the expenditure of money," the Court noted in Buckley.

What was true in 1798 and 1976 remains true in 2014. Bans on money are bans on speech, and every American's right to speak freely should be given the fullest protection possible under the Constitution. Limit campaign spending, and we'll all pay the price.

The sweet smell of success

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

Lee Hazen and Sam Fry were playing in the Vanderbilt team championship many years ago when this hand arose. Fry, South, opened one heart, and West jumped to four spades.

West's overcall posed quite a problem for Hazen. He certainly had reason to believe there might be a small slam, and he also could not dismiss the possibility of a grand slam.

At the same time, though, Hazen couldn't even be certain that there was more than a game in the combined hands. It all depended on the nature of Fry's opening bid.

Hazen finally chose the bid that was most likely to cover all contingencies: four notrump. Fry read this as Blackwood -- even though there had been no agreement on which suit was trump -- and he bid five diamonds, showing one ace.

Hazen now had a new problem. He realized that the opponents had an ace, probably in spades, but he had no way of knowing whether they also could cash a second spade trick. He decided -- all factors considered -- that there was a good chance Fry had either the king of spades or a singleton spade. He therefore bid six diamonds, despite the risk attached to that bid.

Fry did not let him down. First of all, he had the good sense to pass, though he could hardly have felt comfortable winding up as declarer with only the 10-2 of trumps. But even more importantly, Fry had the decency to have the king of spades, and so made the slam.

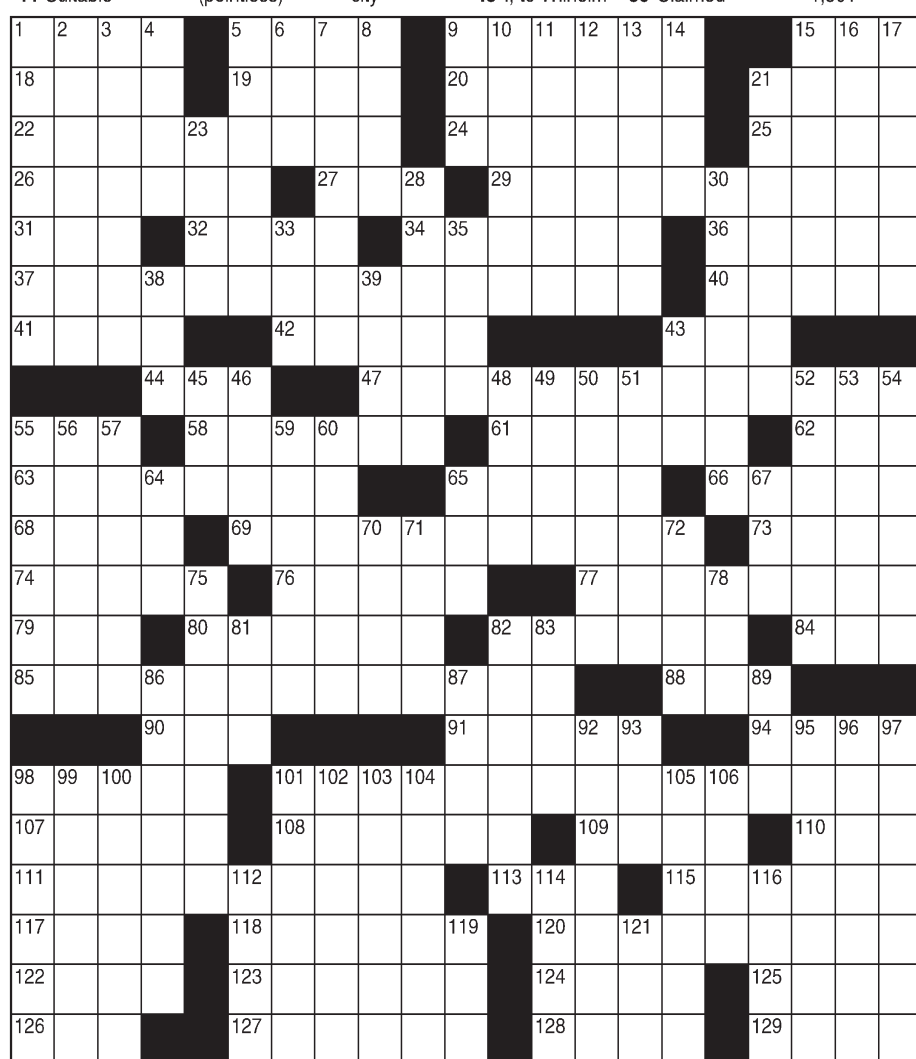

Had Hazen played the slam from his seat, the contract would have gone down quickly with a spade lead.

Small Touches Can Make a Big Impact on Your Home's Interior Design

For homeowners looking to make a big interior design splash while staying on-trend, it's all about focusing on little touches, say experts.

"You may not think much about the knobs and handles on your kitchen and bathroom cabinets, credenzas and other furnishings, but these small touches can be the jewelry of your home and are an inexpensive yet important design remodel," says acclaimed designer, Eric Cohler, who has been listed as a top international designer by House Beautiful and Elle Décor magazines.

Want to update or coordinate the entire look and feel of your home? Cohler is offering some tips:

- Think Metal: Metals are a hot trend -- from artisanal coppers to sassy bronzes and from cool nickel to sharp stainless steel. While metallic finishes may already be peppered throughout your home on appliances, plumbing fixtures and even textiles, don't forget that you can subtly follow the metal trend by including the look on cabinetry door pulls, furniture hardware and even hinges. It adds just the right amount of polish and elegance to a room without being too opulent.
- Warmth: Copper, along with its chromatic cousins -- brass, bronze and gold -- brings a sense of warmth to the home.

Pair it with natural wood, leather or glass to create a calm, elegant impression in any environment. Avoid mixing copper too much with primary colors.

For example, if you're looking for a warm and rustic surface with dark undertones, Cohler recommends considering knobs, handles and hinges with a Brushed Copper finish, available from such cabinet hardware brands as Amerock Hardware. A copper finish has the versatility to blend with both modern and traditional décor.

• Layered Look: Combining a range of finishes can give you a layered effect, which is visually interesting. Avoid fittings that are identical or match everything in the room, says Cohler.

• Cabinets: When it comes to decorative hardware for cabinets, a coordinated look is still the most popular among homeowners. For the more adventurous, try a modified mixing of hardware. For instance, you can have all your wall cupboards fitted with brass and all the base cabinets and drawers with copper hardware.

• Don't get bored: Fashion conscious homeowners should consider keeping two sets of cabinet hardware on hand and change them every other year to keep the look fresh. Swapping them out is simple, and just requires a screwdriver.

• Make it Easy: For many people, choosing cabinet hardware can be confusing and arbitrary. However, narrowing your search to a curated collection can make the process easier. For example, AmerockNOW curated by Cohler, captures regional style trends across the country, with refreshed styles and new finishes that blend with both traditionally styled interiors and more contemporary decors.

More information about new products, as well as design tips and regional trends can be found at www.Amerock.com.
