Village unveils first glance of sewer costs during town hall

By Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

City administrator Jim Reed at a July 22 town hall meeting outlined proposals for a sewer system ranging in cost from $4.9 million to $11.8 million for parts of the Village of Salado but leaving out the majority of homes in the Village's largest housing area Mill Creek.

The proposal of $4,872,450 would service only the Main Street area with a treatment capacity of 64,000 gallons per day (graphic of the service areas can be found on www.saladovillagevoice.com).

A second proposal of $9,408,575 would service Main Street and the west side of I-35 with a treatment capacity of 315,000 gallons per day.

A third proposal would service Main Street, the west side of I-35, Salado schools and properties off Mill Creek Dr. at Salado Plaza at a cost of $10,549,825. Part of this cost could be shouldered by entities benefiting from the extended sewer lines (commercial property at Salado Plaza and the Salado school district), Reed said, lowering that cost to a potential $9,614,825.

A final proposal would include commercial properties at the northern limits of Salado and extension of service south and east on Royal for a cost of $11,787,325.

Reed explained to the audience the tax ramifications for a property with a taxable value of $200,00. For proposal one, the annual increase in property tax would be 18 cents, or $360 per year ($30 per month). For the second proposal, the tax would be 34 cent increase in taxes for $680 per year or $56 per month. The third proposal would be a 34.5 cent increase for $690 per year or $57.50 per month. The fourth, all-encompassing proposal would be 44 cents, $880 per year or $73.33 per month.

"These are the absolute worst-case scenarios," Reed said. "They do not take into any consideration an increase in property values."

Reed said that property values would very likely increase as a result of a central sewer system being available for business expansion and investment.

Each of the proposals includes 10 percent contingency costs and an additional 25 percent engineering fees. The proposals include at least $150,000 for the purchase of property for the sewer treatment plant, which will likely be built about a mile east of Salado proper.

Aldermen will need to call for the bond election by Aug. 15 in order for it to be put on the ballot in November, he added.

Before then, numbers and other particulars will be narrowed down further and explained to the voting public.

Even at a tax increase of 34 cents, Salado will be lower than seven of the eight neighboring cities, most of which provide sewer.

Residents raised questions about tap fees to businesses, the over-65 tax freeze, operating costs for businesses that tap into the sewer, costs of tying into the main line.

"I would not want to do this without doing the west side in order to leverage the great growth potential there while protecting the nature of the downtown historic area," Reed said. "The west side has the potential to grow so much faster and can take some of the burden of sales tax and increase property tax off of Main Street."

You will want to arrive early in Pace Park for the Blue Lapis Light production on July 25 with musical performances by Kim Lamb and a special presentation from the 2014 Silver Spur Arts Academy beginning at 7 p.m. The performance by Blue Lapis Light is slated to begin at 9 p.m. July 25 in the park and is free to the public as a gift from the Public Arts League of Salado. Be sure to bring your chairs or blankets to sit on and enjoy all of the festivities. There will be activities and food for the family, including hot dogs, wraps and snow cones. Activities for children will include balloon sculptures by Adam Trujillo, glow sticks, photo opportunities to appear as Sirena in a painting by Debbie Harrison. At dark, the dancers of Blue Lapis Light will perform among the giant oaks of Pace Park.

Property values increase in Salado

As Salado ISD trustees and Village of Salado aldermen cobble their respective budgets for 2014-15 fiscal years, both got good news this week when they learned that taxable property values have increased from last year.

Taxable values for the Village of Salado are up more than 1 percent while the taxable values for the Salado Independent School District are up almost 4 percent for 2014.

Bell County Tax Appraisal District certified the total freeze-adjusted taxable values for the Village of Salado at $174,040,106 for 2014, up just over $2 million from last year's freeze-adjusted taxable value of $171,691,402.

The approximate levy at the current rate of 12 cents per $100 evaluation will be $236,263.37 for 2014. Last year, the tax appraisal district estimated the tax levy for the Village at $230,286.55.

The total market value of land, improvements and non-real estate property is $283,741,642 for the Village. Of that, $192,470,324 are home-sites. The Village adopted as local tax exemptions a $5,000 deduction plus 20 percent value deduction for all homesteads. In addition, the Village has a $50,000 deduction for homesteads values for those over 65 or disabled in addition to the tax freeze adopted by the state. Local property exemptions result in a loss of $49 million in taxable values for the Village of Salado.

Salado ISD freeze adjusted taxable values increased to $560,760,271 from last year's $540,172,170 to generate at total tax levy of $8,762,501.97 based upon the tax rate of $1.30 per $100 valuation ($1.04 maintenance and operation and $0.26 for debt service).

Aldermen meet July 24

At their 6:30 p.m. July 24 meeting, Salado aldermen will discuss a request to fund Keep Salado Beautiful at $5,000 per year from the waste disposal franchise fees, adding College Hill as an organization under the Village of Salado and a letter of affirmation for the Chamber Vision committee. The board will also consider a donation from Victor Marek during the meeting.

In a workshop session following the regular meeting, aldermen have a plateful of discussion items, including these: discuss maintenance to the pond dam at the low water bridge; discuss Salado salamander and potential conservation actions for the Village; staffing update; village administrator recruitment; wastewater system update; bond election update; code enforcement update; building update; budget update and the Planning and Zoning Board/Zoning Board of Adjustments.

You've seen their signs dotted around the Village: "Volunteers Strike Again." You may have seen them at work, riding their own lawnmowers and using their own lawn equipment to keep Salado beautiful. Jeff Ling, owner of Peerless Enterprises, wanted to be sure that everyone knows who they are, so he bought new Salado Volunteer shirts for the crew of residents who have been working around Salado. The Village also is paying $500 toward the cost of gas for the equipment for the group of men who mow and trim various areas of the Village, including Sherrill Park, the tennis courts on Royal, the planter and sign areas at the entrances of Mill Creek and assisting Mill Creek with mowing the unused fairways at the low-water crossing of Salado Creek. The group includes Joe Oliver, Mel Williams, Bill Pinkston, Alderman Hans Fields, Alderman Fred Brown, Merle Stalcup, Roy Harden and Lawson Grant. Most of the expenses for gasoline, mower repairs and supplies have been paid for out of members' pockets before receiving the $500 from the Village of Salado. If you would like to donate or contribute, contact any of the Salado Volunteers. All donations are appreciated.

Troy Kelley breaks ground on Ft. Hood memorial

Artist Troy Kelley and the city of Killeen broke ground on the November 5, 2009 Fort Hood Memorial July 22 at the memorial site 3601 South W.S. Young Drive. The groundbreaking ceremony is something that the Salado artist has been working toward for the past four years as he has created personal memorial bronzes for each of the 13 shooting victims.

The memorial honors the victims of the tragedy that occurred at Fort Hood November 5, 2009. Thirteen people lost their lives, 32 were injured and countless family members were affected. The memorial will be a permanent structure in Killeen so that our community will forever remember and pay tribute to the victims.

Killed in the shooting were the following: Michael Grant Cahill, a civilian physician assistant from Spokane, Washington; Major Libardo Eduardo Caraveo of Woodbridge, Virginia; Staff Sergeant Justin Michael DeCrow of Plymouth, Indiana; Captain John P. Gaffaney of Serra Mesa, California; Specialist Frederick Greene of Mountain City, Tennessee; Specialist Jason Dean Hunt of Tipton, Oklahoma; Staff Sergeant Amy Sue Krueger of Kiel, Wisconsin; Private First Class Aaron Thomas Nemelka of West Jordan, Utah; Private First Class Michael S. Pearson of Bolingbrook, Illinois; Captain Russell

Gilbert Seager of Racine, Wisconsin; Private First Class Francheska Velez of Chicago, Illinois was pregnant when killed, and the baby also died; Lieutenant Colonel Juanita L. Warman of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and Private First Class Kham See Xiong of Saint Paul, Minnesota.

The Memorial Pavilion will include a pillar dedicated to the memory of each of the 13 victims of the November 5, 2009 shooting.

Each pillar will include an engraved portrait of the victim, as well as a poem, a message, a verse or a scripture chosen by the family to best represent the victim's life. Kelley has also cast a memento from the person's life to capture the victim's essence. The victims, Kelley said, "had a life, a family, a hometown. They should be honored not just by Americans but by all the world."

The total cost of the project is $402,530 including the $269,030 for the memorial pavilion.

Donations may be made through Killeen Volunteers, Inc., taxpayer ID #1-74-600-1504-7, a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization.

Once donations are received, letters will be mailed to the donors to allow them to claim the tax deductions.

Donations may also be made in memory of a family member as allowed by law, and all donations sup-

President Obama's Man-Caused Disaster

As a defender of the nation's borders, President Barack Obama is a hell of a pool player. Obama's recent game in a Denver bar with Colorado Gov. John Hickenlooper was bright and cheery, as one would expect of a president who didn't have any depressing visits to frightened ranchers, overwhelmed border agents or desperate migrants on his future itinerary. The first rule in a crisis for any executive is put on his windbreaker and boots and get out on the ground. President George W. Bush didn't do it soon enough after Hurricane Katrina and, politically, could never make up for it, no matter how many times he visited New Orleans. Obama's bizarre resistance to visiting the border on his fundraising swing out West fueled talk of the influx as Obama's "Katrina moment."

The Katrina analogy is over the top because the border influx isn't a deadly catastrophe swallowing an American city. It also is too generous because Bush didn't do anything to bring on Hurricane Katrina, whereas Obama's policies are responsible for the influx of immigrants. It is, in the argot of his administration, a "man-caused disaster."

According to the Los Angeles Times, the number of immigrants younger than 18 who were deported or turned away from ports of entry declined from 8,143 in 2008 to 1,669 last year. There were 95 minors deported from the entire interior of the country last year. At the same time, the number of unaccompanied alien children arriving from El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras exploded from less than 4,000 several years ago to 40,000 since last October. The White House brushes off criticism that Obama is avoiding the border as mere "optics," in contrast to its highly substantive focus. But it is still not taking the crisis seriously. The nearly $4 billion the president is requesting is not fundamentally about enforcement that will reverse and end the tide, but about managing the influx.

A devastating critique by the Center for Immigration Studies notes that about half of the money goes to the Department of Health and Human Services "for acquisition, construction, improvement, repair, operation and maintenance of real property and facilities." The enforcement portion of the request, according to CIS, "is not truly geared toward removal," but instead to

"recouping costs for temporary detention and subsequent transporting of aliens."

The administration's reaction to the crisis is just another in a long series of acts of bad faith on immigration. It is asking Congress for more money for its priorities at the same time the president is promising, in effect, to suspend yet more immigration laws in response to the failure of "comprehensive immigration reform."

Republicans in Congress should crumple up the president's border request in a ball and start over, with an emphasis on holding migrants near the border and working through their cases quickly to address the short-term crisis, and provisions for interior enforcement to address illegal immigration more broadly.

Of course, even if such a bill were to pass and to be signed into law, that'd be no guarantee that the president of the United States would enforce it. That speaks to an entirely different man-caused disaster.

Cargill's Integrity-Free Soybean Oil

By huge margins, consumers don't want Frankenfoods on their tables.

Can you have your hypocrisy and eat it, too? I don't think so. But Cargill Inc. is doing its damndest to invalidate the old admonition that eating your cake today means not having it tomorrow.

As a leading producer and user of ingredients that contain genetically manipulated organisms, the food conglomerate with $136.7 billion in yearly sales faces a marketing problem: By huge margins, consumers here and around the world don't want Frankenfoods on their families' tables.

So Cargill, the largest privately held company in our country, ferociously opposes every state law and ballot initiative that would mandate the labeling of any product containing these genetically modified foods.

Better that families

be kept in the dark about what they're buying and eating, Cargill says. Better for its profits, that is.

Indeed, the chairman of Cargill's board also belongs to the executive committee of the industry lobbying front that goes all out to kill every right-to-know provision for consumers. Any such label, he scolds, would be "misleading."

But — whoa — what's this?

Fortress Cargill issued a surprising press release earlier this summer. The company is proudly marketing a new soybean oil that — ready? — announces on its label that the product is free of genetically modified (GM) ingredients. Has the Big Ag behemoth had a change of heart?

Excuse me, but corporations don't have hearts. They have bottom lines, period. And the bottom line is that Cargill's terminally hypocritical honchos see dollars lying on the ground that they're not getting.

"Despite the many merits of biotechnology, consumer interest in food and beverage products made from non-GM ingredients is growing," explains Ethan Theis, a Cargill man with the cumbersome title of food ingredients commercial manager. These consumers are "creating opportunities and challenges for food manufacturers and food service operators," he added.

That's the clearest expression you'll ever get of corporate integrity.

What's in it for ME?

This question, "What is in it for me?" is asked frequently when discussing city issues. For instance:

Some say, "we need a sewer system." Others say, "What's in it for me? I may never see it completed. Why should I help pay for something that will not benefit me?"

Some say, "village roads need repairing."

Others say, "What's in it for me? Do what you can but I do not want to pay for what I don't use."

Some say, "historical downtown needs revitalizing." Others say, "Why? There is nothing in it for me. Leave things along. If it is not broken, don't mess with it."

Some say, "It is time to invite the people living in

Mayor Skip Blancett

the ETJ into our village." Others say, "Why? There is nothing in it for me except more taxes. We can use the roads, enjoy the parks, and our property value will increase because of your location and reputation. You don't have enough services to make it worth my cost."

These are just a few issues the Aldermen are addressing now. Please help them by considering the following: (1) sewer systems, roads, and the historical downtown area are directly tied to property values; (2) Salado is special because it has always left things better for the next generation; and (3) whether we live in the village or the ETJ, we as friends and neighbors should pay our fair share if we use some or all of the resources.

What is in it for you? Everything – a great village; superb property values; and at the end of the day, the satisfaction of knowing we left something good for our children, grandchildren, and those who follow us. It is our tradition, our legacy, and the Salado way.

Want to stem illegal immigration? Prosecute businesses using them

To the Editor:

Martin O'Malley, the governor of the state of Maryland, one of the President's staunchest supporters said during a CNN interview that by sending the Hispanic children home, they will meet "certain death." (his exact words). In the same, short interview, Mr. O'Malley noted that neither he nor the state of Maryland wants those children to be sent to Maryland—under any circumstances. Even if they are facing "certain death" at home.

Hmm, Mr. O'Malley, what's it gonna be? Please, oh please 'put 'em anywhere in the U.S., but not where I live...in Maryland.

Seems to me the President has offered the means to a solution--$3.7 billion. If the Republicans find this amount objectionable, they could ask him for a

Your Voice

Letters to the Editor

different amount. Then the two sides could find compromise and send the children home.

But how about adult illegal immigrants? I offer a simple, quick and surefire solution. Pass laws at the state or federal level which fines the bejesus out of any employer (that means house cleaning too.) who hires illegals. Yes, that would increase the cost of dining out, lodging, domestic help, lawn maintenance, health care or manufacturing and virtually every other business that depends on "inexpensive" labor. Simple? Yes.

Realistic, lord no.

So why doesn't this simple and sure solution fly with our Congressmen? It would dramatically hurt businesses AND lose votes. Congress knows we will not fund a walling off of the southern border—and completely stanch the flow. Then the employers aren't at risk. The consumers will tolerate illegals.

Thus Mr. Congressman, find another meaningful topic to address. Stop playing the blame game with this President. Come to think of it just stop pointing fingers at everyone else. Point them at yourself.

Salado Legends proudly proclaims 3rd generation of actors

By JACKIE MILLS

The Billy Lummus family will bring 3rd generation actors to the Tablerock stage for the 2014 performances of Salado Legends July 19, July 26 and August 2.

Billy Lummus, an Army officer, raised his family all over the world and many military bases in the United States. After 20 years in the Army, with his last assignment being Fort Hood, the Lummus family of five settled in Belton, Texas and Billy began his second career as a high school teacher at Belton High School.

In 1994 the Lummus family joined Tablerock productions. The whole family were either assigned actor's roles or volunteered as crew members of the plays. They took roles in many Tablerock productions over the years, including A Christmas Carol, Salado Legends, Hamlet and Fright Trail.

Heather, the oldest daughter in the Lummus clan, and her twin sisters, Erin and Ashley took to the Tablerock stage as if they slept in a vaudeville trunk during formative years. Perhaps it was the constant moving and making their home in so many countries and states that gave them a high polish. The girl's cry of "I can do that" was often taken to heart. One year a little girl playing the role of Emmaline had a death in her family, had to leave a week before the show opened. Erin came to the rescue. She learned the lines at warp speed. For many years Ashley gracefully played the role of the Indian mermaid Sirena and Heather excelled at every role she accepted.

Heather met her husband Josh Harris when they were both in Tablerock's production of

A Christmas Carol. It was another Tablerock romance! Josh, from Belton, became a professional baseball player after college. Heather graduated from college, they married and moved back to Salado when Josh was offered a coaching job at Salado High School. In 2011, when their first son, Nolan, was 5 years-old all three in the Harris family appeared in Salado Legends. Heather took on the role of TEXAS, Josh was Mr. McGregor, Nolan played "Bear Cub" in the Indian Village and Erin spent the summer in Salado and took on the role of Bonnie Belle. This year Heather will again perform as TEXAS! Josh as a backstage hand so he can carry 18 month-old Oakley on stage during crowd scenes. The Harris' eight year-old Nolan and five-year old Haden have roles as school children this year.

Ashley McGinnis lives in Houston and teaches at Magnolia West High School. In 2012 Ashley and her one-year old daughter, McKinley, rejoined the Salado Legends cast and crew as Indians in the Tonkawa Village so Ashley could carry her 8 month-old "papoose" at ease. This year Ashley will resume her old role as Sirena since her 2 1/2 year old is now old enough to take on a child's role in the Indian village.

Erin is married to Christian Rider who is a Site Supervisor for Fluor Construction Corp. and was moved to Orlando, Florida in May. Erin and Christian have no children as yet. Erin has earned a Masters in Psychology and is writing a book. Erin will fly home for one of the performances of Salado Legends this summer.

Darlene Lummus has played many roles in Tablerock productions over the past 20 years. Her continued role as Mrs. Cratchet was her favorite. She has been mother to many children who were friends of her 3 daughters and "mothered" all of the Tablerock children. Darlene taught at Salado High School for many years and was in charge of the Drill Team.

After 13 years at Ellison High School in Killeen, Billy will retire from 20 years of teaching. With two retirements under his belt, he has not made up his mind what he will do next, besides read, play with grandchildren and rest for a few months. For the past few years Billy has played the role of Sterling Robertson in Salado Legends and will do so again this year.

Immunize before you travel

You may need a shot in the arm

Before heading out for that exotic vacation this summer, elderly travelers need to do some homework, according to the Association of Mature American Citizens. For one thing, says AMAC, be sure to check to see if you may need a vaccine.

The Centers for Disease Control has a destination page that tells you whether you will need to be inoculated. Visit <http://www.nc.cdc.gov/travel/> destinations/list to get a rundown of locations around the world where protection may be needed.

example, are childhood memories in the U.S. But, they can be spread to older folks in some foreign countries. So, check to see that your destination is safe and get a shot if your doctor says you need one. Did you know that seniors are particularly vulnerable to tetanus? The majority of cases that are reported occur among those 65 and older.

Trip tips: the meds you need

Be sure you have a supply of the medications you take before you travel, particularly if you are going overseas. The Association of Mature American Citizens suggests that you bring along enough to last you for the entire length of time you'll be away and then some. Take an extra two or three days' worth with you, says AMAC, just in case you are delayed coming home.

Keep them with you and not in the luggage you may be checking during your trip or in your hotel room when you get there.

It's also a good idea to make a list of your meds, and your dosages, in case you misplace your supply. And, be sure to get duplicate prescriptions from your doctor to ensure availability.

Tis the season for crooks

It's summer vacation time, the high season for those who prey on travelers, warns the Association of Mature American Citizens. So be sure to take precautions. AMAC says you should take special care to safeguard things such as cash, travelers checks, credit cards, passports, cell phones, even your airline tickets.

Invest in a money belt, an anti-theft travel wallet, a secure carry-all, for example, to thwart pick-pockets and snatch-and-grab thieves. Search the Internet for these items; there are plenty to choose from and they are not expensive, considering the protection they offer.

Meanwhile, don't leave these items lying around in your hotel room when you go out, even if it's a quick trip to the newsstand in the lobby. Put them in the hotel safe or take them with you. The miscreants who specialize in hotel theft have their ways of getting in and finding those seemingly obscure hiding places.
