ager of Midlothian (1997-1999) where she updated the comprehensive plan, improved standards and procedures for subdivision and zoning ordinance, implemented 3,500 acre annexation and brought a wastewater plant from non-compliance into compliance.

Park foundation repairs Salado College ruins

Funds from last December's "A Night of Holiday Music" benefit along with donations earmarked for the restoration and repair of the ruins of Salado College are being put to use. Joe Barraza, stonemason, was contracted to perform the work which began on Aug. 25. Repairs will include rock and mortar work, rebuilding the stairs on the north side and capping the tops of the ruins. Completion is expected within a month.

"We are hopeful that our available funds hold out to also begin work on the ruins of the bell tower on the south side", said Dr. Douglas B. Willingham, chairman of the project.

The preservation of the ruins follows an effort 25 years ago by the Salado Historical Society to excavate and rebuild portions of the foundation. At that time, funds ran low before substantive work could be done on the bell tower. Since then, the ruins have seen deterioration and are an unsuitable and unsafe site for Village activities, gatherings and presentations.

Stone mason Joe Barraza and project chair Dr. Douglas B. Willingham look over work that has been completed on the steps at Salado College.

The preservation efforts of the the Robertson Colony-Salado College Foundation are going hand in hand with the development of the Historic Salado College Park which has thus far included a walk trail around the ruins with interpretive plaques that tell the history of the college and the town that sprang up around it in 1860 as a result. Clearing and planting projects have been conducted by numerous volunteers under the direction of Park Committee chair, Bill Kinnison, who is also president of the Foundation.

"Eventually we hope to construct a steel facsimile of the bell tower over the surviving ruins and a steel stairway over the restored north stairs", said Dr. Willingham. Kinnison and the Foundation are exploring grant sources to complete this and further develop the site as a unique park.

SHS ranked as one of top high schools in America

The Daily Beast ranked Salado High School as one of the top performing schools in the nation based on criteria that included graduation and college acceptance rates.

Of the more than 21,000 private and public high schools ranked by The Daily Beast, Salado was ranked at 289.

Salado is ranked at #30 in the state of Texas. Half of those schools in Texas that were ranked ahead of Salado were magnet, private or charter schools. The 15 public schools ranked ahead of Salado were these: Lovejoy, Southlake Carroll, Highland Park, Dripping Springs, Flower Mound, Cedar Park, Alamo Heights, Coppell, Friendswood, A&M Consolidated, The Woodlands, Austin Anderson, Austin Westlake, Houston Clearlake and Houston Memorial.

The breakdown of how each area was weighted and determined was this:

Four-Year Cohort graduation rate (30 percent): This rate, introduced by the National Governors Association (NGA) and required by the Department of Education, tracks the percentage of students who graduate in four years or less. Schools calculated this rate by dividing the total number of graduates in 2013 by the first-time ninth graders in 2009, plus transfers in, and minus transfers out. This formula excludes students who take longer than four years to earn their diploma, and GEDs and other special diplomas.

College Acceptance Rate (30 percent): Schools self-reported the number of students who were accepted to two- or four-year colleges immediately following graduation. Those numbers were divided by total graduates to find the percentage of students who were college-bound.

Rigor/College Preparedness (30 percent):

Three data points made up this category, each weighted equally. First, we looked at the number of students enrolled in AP, IB, or AICE courses, turning that number into a school-wide enrollment rate. Test participation rates were used in those classes to determine the access to opportunity provided by each school as well as the the percentage of satisfactory scores on those tests to measure how successful students were in their endeavors.

College-Entrance Exams (10 percent): The Daily Beast took the average SAT or ACT scores, based on the primary testing method reported by each school. When students took both exams, they were weighted equally.

Rep. Carter sits down for chat with Salado Area Republican Women

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

"When your state is on the border, you're the pig," Rep. John Carter told a room full of like-minded Republicans.

Speaking of national security and border security, Rep. Carter referred to the analogy of a breakfast plate and the chicken and the pig. "The chicken is dedicated," he said, "The pig is committed."

"Well, those of us in Texas are committed to border security," he told the audience.

Rep. John Carter had a sit-down chat with locals during a dinner sponsored Aug. 28 at Tenroc Event Center by the Salado Area Republican Women. Rather than a canned political speech, the Republican Congressman took a seat in front of the group and took questions on a variety of topics including the economy, winning the Senate and Presidency in 2016, national defense, paralysis in Congress and the likeliness of a terrorist attack in the U.S.

Rep. Carter said that much of the sluggishness in the American economy is due to high taxes and regulations by the federal government resulting ultimately in indecisiveness by the business community.

He compared the economic atmosphere of California to that of Texas. "When business does not know what new tax or what new regulation is coming next, he is unable to make decisions about investing in new equipment and hiring new employees," Rep. Carter said. "They don't know what their taxes are going to be next month or next year."

"When we get the presidency in 2016... God, please! ... I hope the first week we are there that it closely resembles the Ronald Reagan presidency," he said, "I hope the new president will step into the middle of these onerous regulations and executive orders and get rid of those things and get Americans back to work."

Rep. Carter said that Congress is paralyzed by the Senate, which has refused to act on the more than 500 bills that the House has passed. "The SEE CARTER, PAGE 5A

Obama's Iraq War

ISIS is a force for evil that poses an imminent security threat to the United States, but please, let us get back to you on whether we are determined to defeat it.

That is the posture of the Obama administration toward the terror group that proudly demonstrated its malevolence by beheading American journalist James Foley in a propaganda video.

For the administration, ISIS isn't merely a dire enemy, it is a dilemma. President Barack Obama must respond to a group that -- with its resources, apocalyptic vision and Western recruits -- is clearly a threat to the homeland, at the same time he wants nothing to do with Iraq in particular or any new military intervention in general.

The default Obama strategy, then, will be to do the minimum necessary not to be accused of allowing ISIS to run riot. If he must launch a few airstrikes to arrest ISIS's sweep toward Kurdistan, he will. If he must make a statement about the beheading of James Foley before hitting the links on his vacation, he will.

But he is loath to commit himself. In his Foley statement, the president sought to sound stalwart without saying anything in particular. He brought down the hammer of History with a capital "H" on ISIS. He said, "People like this ultimately fail." He pronounced a global consensus around the proposition that a group like ISIS "has no place in the 21st century."

All reasonable, forward-looking people agree that genocide has no place in the 21st century, either. Yet the prospective slaughter of Yazidis trapped on Mount Sinjar after fleeing ISIS wasn't stopped by the inevitable progress of international norms, but (to the administration's credit) by American bombs in conjunction with Kurdish fighters on the ground.

If the administration is too forthright about ISIS, it closes off escape hatches for the president, who is an anti-Iraq War purist.

He opposed the surge under George W. Bush that defeated al-Qaida in Iraq, the precursor to ISIS. He had no interest in keeping U.S. troops in Iraq that might have helped preserve those gains. When the Syrian civil war began to rage, he refused to bustly support the relatively moderate opposition, thus ceding the ground to what became ISIS.

Iraq is now doubly reminiscent of the Vietnam War. First, the collapse of American political will to maintain forces in Iraq, even after we had defeated the insurgency, recalled the end of Vietnam.

Now, the administration's de facto policy of graduated escalation -- progressing from a strictly limited mission to protect the Yazidis and American personnel potentially threatened in Kurdistan to something more extensive, yet still amorphous -- recalls the beginning of the Vietnam War.

The administration must fear where the logic of a war against ISIS leads. If it is prosecuted in earnest, it means a bombing campaign against the group on both sides of the Syria-Iraq border, and quite possibly American boots on the ground. In other words, the kind of "escalation" that would have brought howls of outrage from Democrats in the Bush years, and especially from then-Sen. Obama.

He must decide how badly he wants to win his Iraq War.

Old and new spirit of Salado

Please read carefully. This week, at their invitation, 2.8 hours were spent with two long-time, respected Salado citizens. Conversations with each began similarly, "I thought Salado was dead and gone, however, in the last four months there is hope. I am here and I want to help."

What a great attitude! This is the old and new Spirit of Salado.

For a moment, walk with me:

Down Main Street and talk to visitors, some drove 4 hours just to shop and enjoy Salado. "We love this village," they say.

Listen to shop owners. "August was hard, but we believe that it will get better. We're in."

Tour the neighborhoods and see the beautiful yards and improvements -- pure pride. Look at the golf course and see the good it has done for the village.

Cheer Salado Schools winning the Lone Star Cup.

Talk to different developers who are putting money down saying "we believe Salado has a future."

Listen to the Vision Committee, Salado leaders going forward with undefeatable confidence.

Watch the Aldermen: Mike with a road plan for NOW; Frank and Hans working diligently on Ordinances; Fred and his downtown committee doing grant-writing; making progress; Amber taking care of the creek and environment. They are a great team going forward.

Attend BOA tonight and meet your next City Administrator.

What a great future, Salado. Yes, it will cost each home-owner $10 a month in property tax but look what you get -- great property values and a healthy village. A village cannot live in 2015 on a 2005 budget. If you are over 65, do your research. Your taxes are frozen.

The Aldermen are doing what you elected them to do, now give them the support to accomplish it. Salado's best times are yet to be.

Trust me, I'm from the government

To the Editor:

"Trust me. I'm from the government."

Salado's mayor has repeatedly insisted that all facts must generate from local government officials. Coffee shop and kitchen table conversations are "uninformed gossip" and anyone with perspective is strangely reduced to a rotten Thanksgiving turkey. Goodbye first amendment, hello propaganda!

Truth is that with or without a sewer, village property taxes will have more than tripled in the last three years, from 4.9¢ to 18¢. If the bond is passed, we'll be at 65.38¢, 1334 percent more than in 2011 and 545 percent over today's rate. Additionally, village officials just gave themselves the capacity to tax up to $1.50, over 3000 percent the tax rate in 2011.

Your Voice

Letters to the Editor

And what's happened since the last tax hike? Well, we have a city manager who moonlights as school board president. Taxpayers funded an elongated golf cart ("trolley") and worthless "we're open" billboards on I-35. Our roads remain in terrible shape. Crime is more intense and code enforcement has been and remains inconsistent.

The initial tax assessment for the sewer used a retiree-frozen ratio of 10 percent then suddenly that number was jacked to 30 percent. Shouldn't our government information providers have already known this since Salado does assess taxes? And seniors aren't given credit - the over-65's are wiser than simply voting for a sewer because their own taxes might not go up.

Perry Hams It Up

Guv's claims that he was indicted for exercising his veto is hokum

Lawyers will tell you that any good prosecutor could convince a grand jury to indict a ham sandwich.

Well, meet that ham sandwich: Governor Rick Perry. He's a real ham -- only not as smart.

A Texas grand jury indicted Perry, charging the Republican with official abuse of power. Specifically, he's accused of threatening to veto all state funding for a public integrity unit. Among other things, that office was investigating corrupt favoritism in one of the governor's pet projects.

Perry was trying to muscle out of office the woman who is the duly elected head of that unit, presumably to halt its inquiry. Leave office, he publicly barked at her, or I'll take away all your money. She didn't, and he did.

Not smart, for that's an illegal quid pro quo, much like linking a campaign donation to an official favor. This led to the selection of a judge, the appointment of a special prosecutor, the establishment of a grand jury and the indictment of the gubernatorial ham sandwich.

Perry and his Republican operatives quickly denounced and even threatened both the special prosecutor and the jurors as partisan hacks who, in the governor's words, "will be held to account."

Thuggish as that is, the national media have mostly swallowed Perry's hokum that he's the victim, indicted for nothing more than exercising his veto power. It's crude politics, Rick howled, as he turned his courthouse mug shot moment into a raucous Republican political rally.

Perry has hornswo-gled the pundits, but don't let them fool you. This is serious.

Again, the issue isn't Perry's veto, but his linking of a veto threat to his effort to oust an elected public official. His hamming it up about being a poor victim of Democrats doesn't withstand scrutiny. The judge who appointed the prosecutor is a Republican. And the prosecutor himself was nominated to federal office by President George H.W. Bush and endorsed by two Texas Republican senators.

What the CIA is trying to hide

By KATHERINE HAWKINS

Beginning in the 1990s, and accelerating after September 11, the CIA flew terrorism suspects to secret police custody in Syria, Jordan, Egypt, Morocco, and Libya. Many of them were tortured. Starting in 2002, the CIA began operating secret prisons all over the world: Thailand, Lithuania, Romania, Poland, Afghanistan, Djibouti, briefly Guantanamo Bay.

There, the agency subjected detainees to torturous "enhanced interrogation techniques," in a program designed and implemented by two contractor psychologists named James Elmer Mitchell and Bruce Jessen. The Office of Legal Counsel (OLC) authorized a great deal of this brutality—but the CIA made false factual representations to OLC in order to obtain that authorization, and tortured detainees in ways that were never authorized. Two CIA detainees, Manadel al-Jamadi and Gul Rahman, died as a result.

The preceding paragraphs will come as no surprise to anyone who has researched or read about the CIA's rendition, detention and interrogation program. But if I held a security clearance, I could lose my career or face prosecution for publishing them.

The CIA takes the position that the names of countries that helped the United States operate its post 9/11 archipelago of prisons are classified. The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence did not even attempt to have them declassified as it wrote its study on the CIA's use of torture. Instead, the report refers to countries by pseudonyms—"Country A, Country B, Country C" or similar.

Even this proved to be too much transparency for the Obama administration. According to a spokesperson for Senator Dianne Feinstein, the White House and CIA redacted those pseudonyms, and similar pseudonyms used to identify CIA personnel, from the report's executive summary. Feinstein has postponed release of the executive summary to fight these and other redactions.

An executive branch official told Reuters that using pseudonyms like "Country A" would not prevent readers from figuring out where the CIA tortured or transferred prisoners. That is true—but only because the black sites' location has been a matter of public record for years. Human Rights Watch revealed that Poland and Romania hosted CIA prisons in 2005. Official investigations by the Council of Europe and the European Parliament confirmed this. Most recently, the European Court of Human Rights found that there was enough evidence of CIA torture in Poland to order the Polish government to compensate two detainees for abuses they suffered there.

The CIA's use of secret prisons in Afghanistan has been known even longer. The Washington Post first reported on a secret CIA detention site at Bagram airbase in December 2002. One official involved in abuses there told the Post, "if you don't violate someone's human rights some of the time, you probably aren't doing your job." The use of torture at CIA prisons in Afghanistan has been confirmed by U.S. courts, in habeas corpus cases brought by Guantanamo detainees who were held there before being shipped to Cuba.

As absurd as it is to forbid the Senate from revealing CIA prisons in "Country A" and "Country B," when court decisions have identified the countries in question, it is probably not the worst abuse of the classification power concerning the Senate report. While we know the locations of most CIA black sites, the CIA has successfully censored the details of many of the worst things it did there. At the Guantanamo military commissions, at the CIA's insistence, the government prevents victims from describing their own torture in open court. The court room is equipped with a copyright button in case the defendants, lawyers, or witnesses reveals "sources and methods".

This spring, we learned that "sources and methods" could include not only the CIA's authorized "enhanced interrogation techniques", but sexual assault. A physician who had examined Abd al-Rahim al-Nashiri, accused of plotting the 2000 bombing of the U.S.S. Cole, testified that he suffered post-traumatic stress disorder and described physical symptoms consistent with "sexual torture." But she was not permitted to describe what had happened to him.

The CIA has likely tried to censor similar incidents from the Senate report. It has also attempted to prosecute the staffers who wrote it.

If these things happened in a foreign dictatorship, we would be appalled. An out-of-control intelligence service is no more acceptable here. The White House needs to listen to the Senate, and stop letting the CIA conceal the details of its own worst actions. If the President refuses, the Senate should act to disclose the information on its own.

Existing homeowners won't ever see sewer lines anywhere near our homes, but developers, commercial property owners, and affordable housing providers will enrich themselves fantastically off the prop-

Senate has taken up seven of them," he said. "The rest have been put aside and haven't even been put in committee. There are two goals in these for Harry Reid: First, if there is no vote, then the public can't hold them to it. Secondly, it might separate them from their base to act on anything."

One of the things Congress is paralyzed with is immigration reform and border security.

"We have a lot of border security, but we don't have enough. The porousness of our border is a bad situation," he said, adding that the U.S. has no idea who else is coming across besides central and south Americans.

"It is not just south Americans coming across that southern border," he said, adding that national security requires strong control of the southern border. "We are ten times as secure as we were in 2001 but we are not completely secure yet."

Carter said that while the Republican Party must do more to attract younger voters, he did not favor suggestions of forgiving student loan debt. "My kids paid off their student loans. I paid off my loans. I am sure you and your kids paid off their loans," he said. "Everyone knows their rights but they sometimes forget their responsibilities."

He also said the Party must reach out to Hispanics. "We have to show the Hispanics that we are the party that will help them to prosper," he explained. "They work hard, they want jobs, they take care of their families, they go to church and are pro-life. They are decent people, they should be in our party."

Great start crumbles beneath Troy's onslaught

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

A great start for the Salado Eagles' football season ended in an onslaught of touchdowns by the Troy Trojans at University of Mary Hardin Baylor's Crusader Stadium as the Eagles ultimately lost 49-7.

But the start was good as Keaton Mims took the opening kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown, giving the Eagles a 7-0 lead, which the Eagles would hold for most of the first quarter.

Troy tied the lead and then added another three touchdowns in the second quarter to take a 28-7 half-time lead.

Throughout the game, beginning with their first score, Troy took advantage of every opportunity given to them.

Immediately after fumbling the ball to Salado's Tanner Montgomery, Troy's Garrett Qualey scored on a 27-yard run at 3:43 in the first because a defensive penalty against the Eagles allowed the Trojans to maintain possession of the ball and to tie the score.

Burt Smith honored by state ag teachers as top administrator

Former Salado High School principal Burt Smith was named as the Vocational Agriculture Teacher Association of Texas (VATAT) Administrator the Year.

Smith was nominated for the award by Salado High vocational agriculture teachers Lochie Hosch and Tara Beaty.

The selection process started at the CenTex District level (with all the 17 schools in the immediate area we compete against). After being selected the recipient at that round he moved on to the Area 8 level.

"The Area level had many qualified candidates but Smith soared above the rest," said Hosch. "Local Ag teachers chimed in support for him as they have witnessed his contributions not only to the Salado FFA but to the CenTex District FFA chapters."

Smith was named the Principal of the Year by the Region 12 Education Service Center.

He has since taken on the Director of Curriculum and Operations.

Sign up for Texas Tuition Promise to save toward college education

If you or someone you know is looking for an affordable way to save for a child's higher education, the Texas Tuition Promise Fund® could be the answer. There's no better time to discover the program or begin saving because the Texas Tuition Promise Fund is open to enrollment through Feb. 28, 2015. (Enrollment for newborns is open through July 31, 2015.)

The Texas Tuition Promise Fund is designed to help families and individuals prepay for all or some future tuition and required fees at any two- or four-year Texas public college or university. Account holders purchase Tuition Units, which represent a fixed amount of undergraduate resident tuition and required fees charged by Texas public colleges and universities. If a beneficiary uses the units to attend a Texas public college or university, market fluctuations won't affect the future value of those Tuition Units.

If you'd like to learn more about the Texas Tuition Promise Fund or enroll, be sure to visit www.TuitionPromise.org. There you'll learn how the program works, find tips and tools for creating a college savings plan and even discover ways to give the gift of college Tuition Units to someone you love. You can also learn more about the program by calling 1-800-445-4723, Option 5.

By getting a head start, you will be taking one of the most valuable steps to ensuring a good future for your child, grandchild or other loved one.

Reverse raffle slated Sept. 20

Last year, Salado Athletic Boosters donated $115,102 to Salado athletic programs and to graduating senior athletes. The Boosters have fundraisers throughout the year, but the main fundraiser for the group is its annual Reverse Raffle and Auction.

This year's Reverse Raffle and Auction will be Sept. 20 at The Terrace at Salado, located at the corner of I-35 and FM 2484.

Tickets are now available for $125 each with a $25 early mulligan. A mulligan can also be purchased the night of the event for $50. Only 250 tickets will be sold for the event. Tickets admit two people for the dinner, drinks and activities.

The top prize will be a $3,000 VISA gift card; second place is a $1,500 VISA gift card and third place is a $500 VISA gift card.

"The Salado Athletic Booster Club Reverse Raffle raises funds to help improve the athletic experience for every student athlete at every level of competition," said Matt Dunnahoo, SABC president.

You can also support their efforts by joining the club. Membership levels are $35 individual, $50 family, $250 bronze level, $500 silver level, $1,000 Gold level. The group meets on the second Monday of each month.

In addition to the live auction, there will be bucket raffles, as well as a silent auction which will include items from Joe McKeel who specializes in authentic autographed sports and celebrity collectible memorabilia.

Local auctioneer (and SISD parent) Bobby Whitson, of Accredited Auction Services will be the auctioneer for the event. His events include charity events, and Ducks Unlimited.

Tickets can be purchased from Cathy Little, at Salado High School (email cathy.little@saladoisd.org, or call 254-947-6900 ext. 1116, or call/text 254-247-1585) or SABC members.

"Donations are needed and greatly appreciated for our live and silent auctions as well as our bucket raffles," said Little.

SISD Freedom Walk will honor those who protect Salado ISD students shared the road with soldiers from Fort Hood, local EMS, police and fire departments during the 2013 Freedom Walk.

Salado ISD and the 3rd Cavalry Regiment from Fort Hood will recognize the heroes who protect our community with the 2nd Annual Freedom Walk on Sept. 11. The event starts 9:30 a.m. at Eagle Stadium, next to Salado Junior High on Thomas Arnold Road.

Community members are encouraged to participate in the Freedom Walk. All veterans and active duty military, fire, EMS, and police personnel are invited to walk at the front of our parade.

Lieutenant Colonel Larry Croucher, Rear Detachment Commander of the 3rd Cavalry Regiment will speak at the event. Following his speech, a chime will ring 13 times in remembrance of the 13 years since 9/11/2001.

This will be followed by all Salado ISD students and staff parading around the perimeter of the three campuses located along Thomas Arnold Road.

Visitor parking is available at the Junior High and Intermediate school.

Opening lead — three of hearts.

Last nail in coffin

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

Partscore hands may lack the dramatic appeal of game or slam hands, but they can be highly instructive nevertheless.

Consider this deal where East wins the opening heart lead with the king and continues with the ace, on which West discards a club. What should East do next?

It might seem automatic for East to return a heart for his partner to ruff, but if he does this, South makes the contract because his only remaining losers are a spade and a club.

The heart return at trick three is not as automatic as it might seem. In fact, East should work out that a heart return might well hand South the contract.

He knows that his side needs six tricks, and can see that an immediate heart ruff will account for only five. He should therefore look for a means of acquiring another trick, and should conclude that his best chance by far would be to negotiate a club ruff for himself. So, after cashing the K-A of hearts, East should next play the A-8 of clubs.

Declarer is helpless against this maneuver. As soon as he leads a trump, East takes the ace and gives his partner a heart ruff. West then returns the compliment by giving East a club ruff, and South goes down one.

It is, of course, tempting for East to continue with a heart at trick three, but when the matter is examined in the cold light of day, it becomes obvious that there is no real need for an immediate heart ruff. Since East has the ace of spades, he knows West's trumps cannot be drawn before the ace of trumps is dislodged. The heart ruff therefore can wait until East has laid the groundwork for the club ruff that defeats the contract.

Efficiency

that your home is sealed correctly to account for local weather. An architect can advise on how to prevent unwanted drafts. If you have an older home or apartment, use self-adhesive weather stripping to seal cracks in windows and doors, too.

Create a Timetable

The change of seasons means maintenance. Create a checklist of tasks with a timetable so you are never scrambling at the last minute. Small items that often slip between the cracks can be taken care of in a timely fashion -- like changing batteries in smoke detectors or cleaning the pilots of the heating system.

Andreozzi recommends using a professional twice a year to help tick off some of the trickier items, such as sealing windows. To ensure that you're hitting all of the pain points, an architect can help you formulate a full checklist to make the most out of your prep work.

To find an architect in your area, visit <http://ar->

By preparing now, you can save time and money later.
