

Salado Masons to mark 150th at historic Stagecoach Inn

Salado Masonic Lodge #296 will celebrate its 150th Anniversary with a special dinner at the historic Stagecoach Inn on Salado's South Main St. The event will be the first public gathering at the Stagecoach Inn, which will open later this month.

Jerry N. Kirby, Grand Master of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Texas, will come to Salado for the June 12 dinner at Stagecoach Inn, to present the Lodge with a proclamation honoring the Lodge on its Sesquicentennial.

The dinner will be open to the public, but reservations are available through Eventbrite.com keyword Salado Lodge #296. Tickets are $30 per person and includes gratuity.

The menu for the dinner includes a First Course of Tomato Aspic, Baby Spinach, Marinated Olives, Feta Cheese and Chickpea Dressing, a Main Entree of Chicken Fried Steak, Black Pepper Gravy, Garlic Mashed Potatoes and Herb Butter Green Beans and the famous Strawberry Kiss with Vanilla ice cream and macerated strawberries.

The Masons of Texas have an historic connection to the Stagecoach Inn from its earliest days. Brother Sam Houston gave an anti-secession speech from the balcony of the old Salado Hotel. At that time, a young man shouted up to Brother Houston, "We can whip them Yankees with cornstalks." Brother Sam replied, "That may be true, but they have not yet agreed to fight with cornstalks."

The dinner will be held in the Sam Houston room of the Stagecoach Inn.

The Salado Masonic Lodge has a history closely connected to that of the Village and to the Salado College. Col. E.S.C. Robertson, who gave the land on which Salado College was built, was the first Master of Salado Lodge. The first mayor of Salado, Judge O.T. Tyler was an original member of Salado Lodge and his son George W. Tyler was made a Mason in Salado Lodge and went on to become the Grand Master of Texas Masons. Maj. A.J. Rose was also a Grand Master of Texas Masons when he was a member of Salado Masonic Lodge.

According to a brief history written by the late Charlton Johnson, a past Master of Salado Lodge, the petitioners for Dispensation and Charter were: E. Sterling C. Robertson, Harvey Smith, W.A. Davis, O.T. Tyler, A. Rowland, Robert B. Halley, Jno. A. Tyler, F. A. Bigelow, N.R. Land, H.J. Chamberlain, W.R. Karnes, G.W. Wade, M.W. Adams, Jno T. Flint, Geo. W. McWhirter, Welborn Barton, Jas. Tinnin, A. Tinnin, and Jesse Raborn. elevated to the high office, Bro. Rose in 1886 and Bro. Tyler in 1891.

Stagecoach Inn renovation

Renovation work on Stagecoach Inn began in earnest in October 2016. The restaurant, housed in an 1860 two-story building, has undergone a top-to-bottom reovation led by Nathan Quiring, project architect with Clayton and Little architects, and general contractor Mark Rawlings.

The renovation has included a complete remodel of the kitchen area, and a reimagining of the building that has been added to and expanded on since the original Salado Hotel opened in 1860.

"It seems like it has been added to every decade," Quiring said with a laugh.

The front entry will remain a welcoming place. Dining areas will include the glass-lined rooms surrounding the atrium, the original groundfloor rooms of the old two-story building, the large room immediately behind the entryway. The upstairs of the 1860 building will be used for small meetings and groups.

The Sam Houston room on the north end of the restaurant will be used for groups and gatherings, according to Jeff Trigger, of LaCorsha, which will manage the property when it is completed.

The team members put together for this project are no strangers to challenges of historic structures.

In 1998, restoration specialist Mark Rawlings turned his focus to the hotel industry beginning with the restoration of the historic Driskill Hotel in Austin.

According to his biography, other hotel clients followed including the Hilton Austin, Barton Creek Resort and Spa, Lakeway Resort, Sheraton Capitol, Vintage Villas at Lake Travis, Hilton Garden Inn, Doubletree Guest Suites, Stephen F. Austin Intercontinental, Omni Southpark, as well as the historic St. Anthony in San Antonio.

He is also the contractor for The Baker Hotel in Mineral Wells.

Jeff Trigger is the president of LaCorsha Hospitality Group. LaCorsha has developed Second Bar + Kitchen on Congress Ave. in Austin, Boiler Nine Bar + Grill, at the Seaholm Power Plant in Austin, the Hotel St. George in Marfa and Hotel Settles in Big Spring.

LaCorsha is currently developing two more locations of Second Bar + Kitchen (The Domain, Austin-Bergstrom International Airport), as well as The East Austin Hotel; Green Pastures, Austin. and The Baker Hotel & Spa, Mineral Wells.

The team, according to Lyda, has "a clear understanding of the Stagecoach's history, the strength of the brand and people's affection for it, and the potential of the place to once again draw locals and visitors from across Texas."

"Our goal is to re-establish the Stagecoach Inn as a destination venue in Texas for small conferences, special events and weekend tourism travel," Lyda said, adding that the group will capitalize on "the strong brand of the Stagecoach Inn as an authentic place offering gracious hospitality."

Lyda is a lifelong central Texan. He fondly recalls weekend visits from Austin to the Stagecoach Inn with his family. A commercial developer, he was labeled by the Austin Chronicle as the "anti-developer developer" because of his inclinations toward preserving the historical and cultural integrity of the developments in which he has invested.

"It will be definitively Stagecoach Inn," Lyda said. "We are hoping to make Salado proud."

BoA to move on Sewer System

Salado aldermen at their June 1 meeting will consider several actions regarding the sewer system approved in 2014 by voters.

The board will consider issuing a request for qualifications for the development of an impact fee for the wastewater system and an RFQ for construction management services for the system.

The board will also consider issuing a request for proposal for the development of rates for the system.

The actions come as the board awaits the final permit to be issued by the Texas Commission on Environment Quality after the public comment period for the wastewater permit.

Once the final permit is issued, several actions will come in rapid succession, including preparing construction bid documents.

In other business, the board will consider issuing RFP for legal services, setting a time for a goals and priority workshop and amending the budget for improvements to the police station. The board will also consider modifying its master development agreement with Stagecoach 1943 LP.

Lawmakers have unfinished business at end of 85th session

BY RICHARD LEE
TEXAS SENATE NEWS SERVICE

Memorial Day marked the end of the 85th Regular Session, but lawmakers could find themselves in Austin during the summer to deal with some unfinished business. After a bill to extend the Texas Medical Board died due to conflicts between the House and Senate in the waning days, Lt. Governor Dan Patrick wants Governor Greg Abbott to call a special session to deal with two of his top priorities that didn't make it to the governor's desk: property tax reform and the so-called "bathroom bill". Only the governor can call an extra session and only he can set the topics eligible for legislation in it. Abbott said at a bill signing on Monday that he will announce a decision about a special session later in the week.

Over the weekend, the House and Senate passed a final version of the state budget, authorizing $107.7 billion to pay for state services for the next two years. Despite the tight revenue forecast, its author says the budget will fund the state's critical priorities and put more money into education, mental health care and Child Protective Services. "This budget is fiscally responsible," said Senate Finance Committee Chair and Flower Mound Senator Jane Nelson. "It essentially is flat compared with the current one, but it makes progress in several key areas."

Also over the weekend, the Legislature gave final approval to sweeping reforms to the agency that oversees child welfare in Texas. SB 11, by Georgetown Senator Charles Schwertner, would continue the process of privatizing parts of foster care, moving to a community based model that seeks to keep children in their communities and expedite their medical care. There's also $500 million set aside in the budget to hire more caseworkers, in addition to the $160 million spent over the interim to hire more employees and give raises to existing workers.

Here's a look at some of the other key pieces of legislation that passed this session:

- SB 4, by Lubbock Senator Charles Perry, would outlaw so-called "sanctuary city" policies in Texas. These are formal or informal policies set by city officials that preclude cooperation with federal immigration officials. Police departments would also have to comply with federal immigration requests to extend detention for suspected criminal immigrants. This bill has already been signed by the Governor and is set to become law on September 1.

- HB 62, sponsored by Laredo Senator Judith Zaffirini, would ban texting while driving in Texas. This bill still awaits action by the Governor.

- SB 5, by Houston Senator Joan Huffman, would make changes to the state's Voter ID law after a court struck down parts of it. It would allow a person to sign an affidavit stating they have a reasonable impediment to obtaining a photo ID and cast a regular ballot. It still needs to be signed by the Governor.

- SB 8, by Georgetown Senator Charles Schwertner, was amended in the House to become an omnibus abortion regulation bill. It would require that fetal tissue be given a proper burial or cremation after an abortion, would ban a certain type of second-trimester abortion and would reaffirm the ban on partial birth abortions in Texas and give state officials the power to prosecute violators. SB 8 is awaiting action by the Governor

- SB 12, by Dallas Senator Royce West, would create a $25 million grant program to help local law enforcement entities pay for high-caliber resistant body armor. This was signed by the Governor. Before gaveling out for the final time, Patrick praised the Senate for its hard work over the last 140 days. "It's an honor to serve with all 31 of you," he said. "You did great work for the people of Texas, particularly in the area of child protective services and child-care."

Absent a special session, the Legislature will meet next in January 2019.

Until then, the Senate stands adjourned sine die.

Not on Our Soil

The Turkish government is obviously familiar with the concept of “chutpah,” if not necessarily the word.

Ankara summoned the American ambassador to protest allegedly “aggressive and unprofessional actions” by the Washington, D.C., police. Their offense? Intervening after Turkish security personnel mauled peaceful protesters outside the Turkish ambassador’s residence in Washington.

Video of the incident is jaw-dropping. About a dozen people protested Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan -- arriving at the ambassador’s residence after a White House visit -- from across the street, separated by police from Erdogan’s forces. Then guards suddenly rushed en masse past the D.C. cops to beat up the demonstrators.

Press accounts can obscure the truth of what happened. The two sides didn’t really “clash” or “engage in a violent confrontation,” as is often reported. There was an overwhelming aggressor -- the thuggish security personnel of the head of state of, amazingly enough, a NATO country.

Dressed in black suits, the guards repeatedly kick in the face a man who had been thrown to the ground. They put a woman in a headlock. Clearly, assaulting innocent people is a core competency. This incident, which injured 11, is not the most consequential event in the world. It’s not the Syrian war, or a North Korean missile test. We have large national interests at stake with Turkey, especially in navigating the complex currents in the Syria civil war. But it’s not nothing, either. It deserves more than State Department statements of “concern.”

Especially given the context. The guards didn’t lash out on their own. They charged under the watchful eye of President Erdogan, who emerged from a black Mercedes-Benz to observe the assault. Some media reports contend that Erdogan himself may have given the order for the attack.

This is a second offense for the Turks. A year ago, they beat up protesters and disfavored journalists outside an Erdogan talk at the Brookings Institution in Washington. “Never seen anything like this,” one reporter wrote. If you hang around President Erdogan long enough, though, you’ll see it all.

Erdogan is a thug who has bullied, cheated and purged his way to the head of a budding authoritarian state, accumulating powers unparalleled since Ataturk.

Rich Lowry

It speaks to the nature of his regime that Turkish officials insist the guards acted in “self-defense.”

The Trump administration is obviously not putting an emphasis on promoting our values abroad, but it’s another thing to shrug off an assault on the rights of protesters on our own soil. Not only did the Turks carry out this attack, they are thumbing their noses at us by summoning our ambassador over it.

The Turkish goons who punched and kicked people should be identified and charged with crimes. They are beyond our reach, either because they are back in Turkey or have diplomatic immunity. But we should ask for them to be returned and for their immunity to be waived. When these requests are inevitably refused, the Turkish ambassador to the U.S. (heard saying during the incident, “You cannot touch us”) should be expelled.

Erdogan is crushing his opponents with impunity in Turkey. Reacting firmly to this attack at least will send the message, “Not in our house.”

A visit with Salado Lodge

I had never visited a Masonic Lodge until Saturday, when Salado Masonic Lodge, #296, District 48, had an Open House.

As I entered the Lodge, a Mason who greeted me like a friend that he had known for years even though we had not met. Through him, I learned much about the Salado Masonic Lodge by asking questions and observing.

The Salado Masonic Lodge was formed in 1867, 150 years ago. Like many Masonic Lodges, its meeting place was over a church -- in Salado, First Baptist Church. In the 1960’s, the second floor of the Baptist Church was removed from the church and placed in its present location. Other Masonic Lodges were built over schools, not to recruit members for the Lodge but to help citizens that needed assistance. The Masonic Lodge does not recruit; one must request membership.

few Lunar Masonic Lodges with their meetings scheduled by the Lunar Calendar, the Monday on or before the full moon.

Around the wall are pictures of Salado Masons. Many were citizens who had given much of their time, effort, and resources to make Salado the community it is. Clearly Masons are citizens who want to help their community. This year, 5 Salado High School Graduating students received a $1000 scholarship. A Salado organization received $1000 to help children needing school supplies. The Masons place American Flags on special occasions in many Salado yards.

Observing the historic relics and records, I wondered how I could know so little about an organization that does so much.

The Salado Masonic Lodge 150th Anniversary will be held in the Historic Stagecoach Inn. The dinner is open to the public. Reservations are made through Tim Fleischer, Lodge Secretary, 254-458-2643. Jerry N. Kirby, Grand Master of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Texas, will present the Lodge with a proclamation honoring the Lodge on its Sesquicentennial.

Readers on recent Postcard

To the Editor:

I suggest that those who are opposed to the Village of Salado implementing the sewer bond (legally chosen by a majority of voters in the village), should move elsewhere.

It seems in today’s political climate that when the majority carries out its mandate, the losers turn to disparaging, harsh rhetoric and downright lies. We live in a democracy: the majority rules and the majority votes its will in the sewer bond election and in the disannexation election.

The postcard that was sent last week, by someone too cowardly to sign it, is nothing more than an attempt to bully the majority. To them and others who hate where they live, I say, “live somewhere else.” Stop haranguing those who choose to live and work within the legal system. And stop trying to force your minority view onto the majority. Anonymously, publicly slandering the election judge is reprehensible. And threatening elected officials is worse.

If Salado is so full of “dumb” people, perhaps these is a somewhere smart people live and those against the sewer would be happier there. I’ll pitch in $10 to help fund their move.

Dear Editor:

What did Montana win? The party of “family values” lost. The ideology of conservatism lost. The republican candidate choked and body slammed a reporter and continued to punch him after the reporter was down. He broke his glasses.

Greg Gianforte said that

Your Voice

Letters to the Editor

the reporter was aggressive and pushed a recorder in his face. He said he asked the reporter to lower the recorder. He said that the entire incident was the fault of the reporter who grabbed his wrist. Perhaps Gianforte was not aware that there was an audio recording of the entire incident and not aware that there were witnesses.

Those Fox News witnesses said Gianforte completely lied and that the reporter did nothing wrong except ask a question about healthcare. Then the coward went into hiding after he was charged with “misdemeanor assault”. After he won the election, he popped up and said he was sorry to his gathered audience. He apologized for punching the reporter but no apology for lying. Would he have apologized at all if there were no witnesses? He displayed his core values when he did not have the decency to apologize personally to the reporter that he hurt.

Are we to accept and reward violence and lying as the new norm? Is civility dead? Does Gianforte think that he will not face reporters in Washington? Has Montana said no to civility, honesty and decency and yes to bullying, boorishness and violence?

To the Editor:

Neither I nor the Salado FED Up Special-Purpose Committee is the source of fraudulent fliers and mailings citing the names of citizens who signed the disannexation petitions. These mailings are simply continuing political dirty tricks meant to divide the village. The correct response is to dispose of this trash properly. Our Special-Purpose Committee did contact the Secretary of State to act upon credible reports that proper procedures weren’t followed in the 2016 municipal election. Specifically the removal of ballots from the polling place during early voting. The additional instruction the Village received prior to this municipal election was the Secretary of State’s initiative. A group of eligible voters petitioned the Secretary of State for an Inspector for this election, and may do so again for future municipal elections.

If an election official feels this degrades their valuable reputation and integrity, then don’t be an election official.

As for the recent letters to the editor directed at me, here’s what the author’s 2016 Village municipal property taxes are: Dave Gardner ($234.17), Cy Long ($143.05), Eldon Miller ($55.04), Johnny Butler ($20.82). All “frozen” Village municipal property taxes. That’s also the value I assign to their comments; next to nothing. When the bad decisions have to be paid for, they’re off the hook. I’ll continue to advocate for Village property owners who are on the hook.

Sincerely,
John Newman

Who to blame for my Devil's Ink

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Last week, Jan Stalder marked her -30- on a 40-year career in education.

For those who wonder what -30- means, is an old editing mark to note the end of a news story or column.

While Stalder marked the end of career, she does not mark the end of her story.

Jan Stalder — (back in the day she was Jan Ray) — has had more of an impact on my life than any other teacher. I am not alone. There are scores of Beaconites spread across the place who will remember the long hours, laughter, hard work and tough standards under her tutelage.

She was the first to call me on my passive-aggressive, laziness and challenge me. Early in my sophomore year of high school at Copperas Cove, she called me out of Journalism I class. Almost a full six weeks had gone by and I had yet to attempt to write a story or conduct an interview. Out in the hallway, she asked why I was wasting her time and told me that I should drop the class or face a failing grade. I said something to the effect that, "I want to be editor of the paper."

She laughed.
Seriously, she laughed.

When she was done laughing, she told me that it might be a good idea to actually write a story.

So I did.

I can remember the thrill — really, a rush — of seeing the words "By Tim Fleischer" at the top of a story. That was 35 years ago. I still get that rush. It's called the Devil's Ink and once you get in your blood, you'll never get it out.

I became as a junior, the News Editor. Vince and I won Tops in Texas for a news story that year. That was the year the cartoonists for the newspaper got the edition pulled from the shelves. Tom Phelps started what became a tradition of hiding things in cartoons. This one was a skeleton who was pointing a bony finger of indignation. You know the one.

That summer, I got a job with the Cove Leader-Press and along with Jan, covered the Summer of Ross Perot and what eventually became HB72. I got to meet Bob Bullock, Lt. Gov. Hobby, Gov. White and my love of and politics (particularly, Texas politics) was cast.

As a senior, we set out to have the best high school newspaper in the State of Texas. We never missed an edition. Many times Jan and I would leave the belly of the old Cove Leader Press to go to the next class that morning with no sleep.

This was the year I got to yell "Stop the presses!" after an all-nighter. In the days of linotype machines, you fed all the headlines into a machine and it would spit them out the other end for paste-up. Well, we inadvertently left one consonant out of the phrase "Speaks on PUBLIC Education..." It would not have been good for our State Rep's rep to be speaking on PUBIC education.

This was also the year that a new cartoonist almost got us sued. The artwork for a story on Teen Court showed a judge pointing down to a youth, declaring him "Guilty." There were some inflammatory hidden jewels in that cartoon.

Now, you need to know that the cartoon Jan saw — which had none of that in it — was not the final one that went to press. She was as surprised as I was. Lesson learned: NEVER trust a cartoonist.

I am sure that some — if not most of Jan's gray hairs — are due to the classes of 1982, 1983, 1984 and 1985. She earned her stripes.

We did win the award as the best newspaper in the state that year. Blue Beacon and staffers also won several national awards. We were the first of a tradition of strong newspapermen and women who learned from one of the most dedicated journalists and teachers that CCHS has had in its hallways.

Jan hates bullies. She hates wrong-doing. She was.... is... and will always be Quixotic, always tilting at the Black Knight. Sometimes, they were imagined, but the vast majority of the time, they were real.

She always understood the importance of the Press, whether the Press is on printed paper or any other media. She instilled that in her students. The Fourth Estate is more important than ever before.

Thanks for teaching me that, Jan. Thanks for showing me that in your actions more than your words.

Today, I am a newspaperman. I thank Jan Stalder for giving me a calling as well as a career.

Discover the world of buttons

They may be tucked away hidden in a drawer or put together in a wonderful display showing hours of care and consideration.
 But discovering the world of buttons is opening the door to a new world of history and art.
 The Burnet Button Club wants to share their fascination with you.
 "We're offering a free button identification road show to introduce more people to the fascinating world of buttons," said Barbara Hefner, President of Bluebonnet Button Club. "The public is invited to bring in that tin of Grandma's buttons that they may have played with as a child, or simply their household button jar. Even some new buttons are collectible."

The Burnet-based club will present its second Button Road Show at the Fair, but this year they'll be in the Exhibit hall of the Burnet County Community Center, on the corner of East Jackson and Boundary Streets, Friday, June 10, 10:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.; and Saturday, June 11, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.

In a two-step process, Bluebonnet members will sort a fairgoer's buttons into "craft" and "collectible" buttons. Members will then provide detailed information about the collectible buttons and the special qualities that make them collectible.

"Buttons endure for many years and are made of every imaginable material: wood, glass, ceramic, metals, fabric, stone, shell, everything. Some have pictures, or patterns, designs and symbols that you would like to know more about," Hefner said. "Our club is dedicated to enjoying, preserving and learning about these tiny treasures. That's why we want to share our knowledge of their history, origin, construction, and usage."

"Buttons reflect the times when they were made and how they were used. They are beautiful miniature historical records of the Art Deco, Victorian and many other eras. Some have images of opera or theater stars. Some have trains, flowers or presidents. Animals, children, sports and architecture are also popular topics," Hefner added. "We invite fairgoers to explore this remarkable diversity."

The Burnet Button Club is one of the members of the Texas State Button Society, which recently elected three new officers during the society's annual conference and show. The society encourages and promotes collecting buttons for educational and historical purposes; for personal enjoyment; and to preserve for future generations all that is beautiful and historical in buttons.

Austinite Mary Todd, a former director of public sector campaigns for Capital Area United Way, was elected president. "During my two-year tenure as TSBS president, I hope we can increase the visibility of the society and of the 11 clubs throughout Texas," she said. Todd is also a member of the Austin Button Club.

The newly elected vice-president is Barbara Hefner, a Llano resident and, for 13 years, owner of Misty Lady Fashions in Llano. She retired in 2000. Judy Stewart, who previously owned a craft business, was elected secretary. Sadie Jackman will continue to serve as TSBS treasurer. Jackman is also president of Big "D" Button Club.

Hefner said that she and Stewart learned of button collecting when attending a program given by a button collector at their local museum many years ago.

Both Hefner and Stewart attend and compete in TSBS and National Button Society shows, as well as holding offices in Bluebonnet Button Club of Burnet. Both are active members of civic clubs in Llano.

Hefner said, "Focus of the club this year is introducing more people to the fascinating world of buttons."

"We wish to inform the public about the joy of collecting these little pieces of art, of displaying them in a variety of ways, of discovering their history and of meeting others who share our hobby," Todd added.

Active clubs associated with TSBS are in Austin, Burnet, Dallas, Fort Davis, Fort Worth, Houston, San Angelo, San Antonio, Temple, Waco, and Whitewright. For more information: texasstatebutton-society.com.

Resurrection of Faith Tour

There is something captivating about the blending and swelling of sibling harmony. When that is combined with pure talent, and a servant's heart for people, you have the incomparable ministry of The Erwins.

The Erwins started singing as soon as they were each able to talk. Appearing over 270 dates a year with their mother and father, who have been in full-time evangelism for 40 years, they have been traveling full-time their entire life singing in concerts, revivals, and conferences all across the country. Three of the four siblings, Keith, Kody, and Kris performed as a trio until 2013, when the group announced that their little sister, Katie, would be joining the group full-time on stage officially making them a Mixed Group.

Keith says, "Singing is all we know and all we want to do. It's our life and our joy to serve the Lord with the voices He has given us. We will gladly go through any door He chooses to open, no matter how big or small. We know the Lord doesn't need us, but He chooses to use us, and for that we are thankful." And it's with that determination and focus that The Erwins are blazing new trails in Southern Gospel, proving to their industry peers and fans alike, that the future of Southern Gospel music is, in fact, secure with a young group like The Erwins coming on the scene.

Crimson River Ministries spokesman Tony Watson says that this combination has something for everyone. "The incredible singing ability of both of these artists is enough to bless any crowd, but when you add the songwriting, the passion, the communication abilities, the powerful testimonies and their love for Christ and people, this concert is a must-see for those of all ages. The Erwins range from age 16 to mid-20's and Joseph is still a young man himself, but they minister to people of all ages. No one will be disappointed," said Watson.

Tickets are available at stores.crimsonriverministries.com at a cost of $25 for Artist Circle/Reserved and $22 for General Admission. Group rates are available for groups of 10 or more, at a discount of $3 per ticket. For concert information contact Tony Watson at 214-862-1069 or twcrm@aol.com

Hill sisters part of historic ASU season

Former Lady Eagle softball players Morgan Hill and Meagan Hill were part of the historic Angelo State university Rambelles team that finished the season as the NCAA Division II national runner-up falling to Minnesota State 5-1 in game two of the NCAA Division II National Championship Series last week at the Moyer Complex in Salem, Virginia.

The Rambelles conclude the season at 60-7, which is the most wins in ASU history and tied for the most in Lone Star Conference history. ASU won the program's fifth NCAA Division II South Central Regional Championship and seventh LSC title.

Angelo State needed a win in the best of three series after losing game one 5-1 on May 28. The Rambelles started the game by putting runners on in the second and third but were unable to capitalize. The Mavericks struck first scoring an unearned run in the bottom of the third. Two more unearned runs came across in the fourth to make it 3-0 after four.

Kenedy Urbany, playing her final game as a Rambelle, was able get the crowd going in the top of the sixth. The senior crushed a ball down the right field line that went over the fence for a solo home run.

It is the ASU career leader's 16th of the season and the 46th overall during her time with the Rambelles.

Minnesota State added two more runs in the sixth to make it 5-1.

ASU was limited offensively by the national tournament's most outstanding player Coley Ries. She held the Rambelles to three hits and struck out 14 to secure the victory.

Ries finished the year at 41-3 in the circle while Urbany was credited with the loss to finish 21-2. Urbany finished with three strikeouts and set the ASU single season record for lowest ERA at 1.16.

As a Rambelle this year, Morgan Hill made 30 appearances on the pitching mound, where she earned a 10-0 record. She had a 2.24 ERA and struck out 71 batters. At the plate, Morgan batted .250 in eight attempts, scoring two runs and hitting a double for a slugging percentage of .375.

Both girls will return to ASU next year.

About 100 people gathered at Salado Cemetery for the annual Memorial Day Ceremony May 29, honoring those veterans buried there who have served in wars dating back to the Texas War for Independence.

Ret. Col. Stephen Peters read the roll call of veterans buried in the Salado Cemetery and the West Salado Cemetery.

A quintet of musicians including Clayton Capps, tuba, Joshua Stegall, trumpet, Michael Mower, Trumpet, Jennifer Essary, French horn, and Josh Essary, trombone performed patriotic songs before and during the ceremony.

They played songs for each of the branches of the armed forces as Diane Wallin led the audience in songs for them.

Bill Kinnison and Steven Ervin welcomed the audience on behalf of the Salado Cemetery Association.

Col. (Ret) Ben Danner gave remarks to the audience, thanking them as "a minority of Americans who will come together to honor those who have made the ultimate sacrifice."

Davis Mill: Significant & controversial

Local residents complained about his dam on the creek, so W.A. Davis built another, taller one

By CHARLENE CARSON
HISTORIAN

In 1864, President Abraham Lincoln was steering a divided country through the third year of the Civil War. The Confederate flag flew over Texas; and Sam Houston, the Governor of Texas, had recently been replaced for his refusal to take the oath of loyalty to the Confederacy.

Jefferson Davis was serving as President of the Confederacy and many of Salado's sons were on the battlefields; some fighting for the blue, others fighting for the gray. Ultimately, 47 Confederate sons of Salado would be buried in the Salado Cemetery.

During this time, Salado was a small dusty, frontier town. However, there were enough people in the area to merit a post office. Salado's post office was established in 1852 with Dr. Louis A. Ogle serving as postmaster. Research shows that the post office was located about three to four miles south of Salado. Dr. Ogle lived in that area so perhaps the post office was in his home or a separate structure nearby.

By 1859, just before the Civil War, three small stores lined Main Street. They were Armstrong's leather shop; W.D. Copeland's hardware store; and Col. E.S.C. Robertson & Sons' general merchandise store. These businesses met the needs of cowhands, farmers, and ranchers. In order to accommodate overnight travelers, The Shady Villa Hotel, now known as the Stagecoach Inn, was constructed in 1861-1862. The hotel soon became an overland stagecoach stop, carrying mail, passengers, freight, and baggage from Waco to Austin.

Salado was poised for growth. The business climate was good; there was an abundant supply of fresh water, and Salado College, which had been founded in 1859, was drawing families to the area. One of those families was the William A. and Elizabeth M. Davis family. The Davis family came to Salado from Round Rock so their children, Ada, Beatrice, Willia, and William A. Jr., could attend Salado College. Upon his arrival in Salado, Davis built a comfortable two-story rock home overlooking Salado Creek and below his home, Davis built a mill.

While not the oldest of the eight mills on the Salado, the Davis Mill was considered to be one of the most significant. On August 25, 1863, Colonel Robertson was authorized by the Board of Trustees of Salado College to sell land near the creek to John T. Flint and to convey the creek water for milling purposes. It was stated that a dam could be built across the creek and the water was to be used for milling and manufacturing purposes provided no dam was built so high as to overflow the springs along the creek bank from which the people got their drinking water. Flint afterward sold the land to Wm. H. Stinnett and Stinnett sold it to Wm. A. Davis with the same privileges and restrictions.

There is a historical marker in front of a retail store at the northeast corner of Main St. and Salado Creek commemorating the Davis Mill. This, however, is not where the Davis Mill stood. The mill site was located on the north bank of the Salado where the creek curved north and formed what was locally known as the "Blue Swimming Hole." Originally, the marker was placed at the site of the mill, but it was moved to its current location so that it would be more visible to the public, and to prevent the possibility of it's being vandalized.

The historical marker states that Davis built the mill in 1864 and that it was the first stone mill in this vicinity with a carding machine. With the Civil War underway Davis recognized the need for a carding machine to prepare wool for the manufacture of Confederate uniforms. The installation of a carding-machine would expedite this process but it also required additional water power. Therefore, Davis built a log dam across the creek, causing water to back up over two of the springs from which the citizens drew their drinking water. The city fathers declared that the dam was a menace to public health, and stated that the dam must be lowered. Rather than lowering the dam, Davis responded by cutting a notch in the top log, which lowered the water just enough to spare the springs.

In 1866, with the war over, Davis converted his mill to a sawmill and gin. To increase the water power necessary for operating the mill, Davis added another log to the dam. This higher dam backed the water up so that it formed a pond in the heart of the creek, and in due time green scum formed and gathered on either side of the creek, contaminating the springs even further. Again, Davis was asked to lower the dam, but he declined to do so.

Eventually, the log dam was washed away and Davis replaced it with a rock dam even higher than the previous log dam. Davis also built a crude footbridge across the dam. Some people in the community saw this as a benefit for the only other means pedestrians had of crossing the creek was on stepping-stones which were always covered with water after every sizeable rain.

After receiving complaints from the citizens regarding the contamination of the springs, a committee was appointed consisting of Rev. James Ferguson, N.M. Proctor, and D.F. Hair, all living several miles outside of town, to examine the springs and report how far, if at all, Davis had violated the restrictions of his deed. After their examination, the committee reported the springs overflowed from eight to ten inches. Again, Davis was asked to lower the dam to the limit stated in his deed. He responded by building another rock dam further down the creek, which caused an even higher increase in the water level at the springs.

This led to a great deal of contention and lawsuits, which we will examine more closely in the next edition.

THIS HISTORY IS PART OF CARSON'S BOOK "GRISTMILLS OF CENTRAL TEXAS" TO BE PUBLISHED IN JUNE.

Opening lead — jack of hearts.

What's wrong with this picture, you may ask? The answer is that declarer should have made the contract. All he had to do was to play the eight of hearts at trick one instead of taking the king, and he would have been on Easy Street.

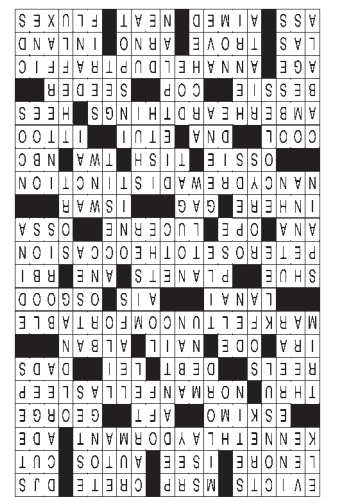

True, the subsequent club finesse would still have lost to West's king, but the big difference is that the defense would have been unable to take more than four tricks, while South would have been assured of nine regardless of how East-West defended.

Of course it takes iron nerves and a vivid imagination to duck the jack of hearts at trick one. But there can be no argument that playing low is the right play. After all, declarer is not in danger of losing the contract if he lets the jack hold the trick, but is in distinct jeopardy if he takes the jack with the king.

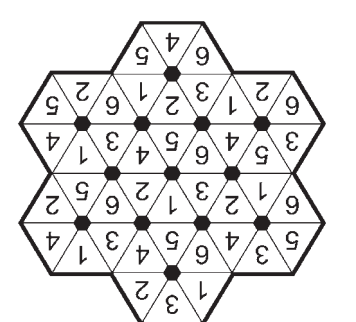

Force of habit may cause declarer to win the first trick and then start thinking of what to do next, but this would be a clear case of putting the cart before the horse. The first step always is to plan the play from the outset, and any declarer who starts thinking at trick two instead of trick one is asking for trouble.

The Variable Skink is an elongated lizard with tiny legs

The Variable Skink (Plestiodon [Eumeces] multivirgatus) is one of eight species of skinks that live in Texas, and it is by far the variety with the most “spotty” distribution. It has been observed in a handful of counties throughout western Texas, including Culberson, Crockett, Irion, Lubbock, Midland, Scurry, and Tom Green; there is no apparent ‘rhyme or reason’ to the isolationism. Just recently, I was able to add Wheeler county to this list. Outside of Texas, it occurs northward through New Mexico, northern Arizona, southeastern Utah and southwestern Colorado.

The habitats that this sleek lizard prefers are grasslands and prairies that have small rocky areas and other surface debris under which it can hide. A secondary habitat would be the cool, moist canyons at higher mountainous elevations.

The Variable Skink is an elongate lizard with exceptionally tiny legs and a long, somewhat slender tail. Adults of this thin skink can reach a total length of nearly 8 inches; however, the body makes up a small portion of this at only about 3 inches. As with all species of this genus, the scales are so slick and shiny that the lizard at first glance appears to be wet. However, like other reptiles, the skin is completely dry and not slimy at all.

The Variable Skink

Wild About Texas

The species name of multivirgatus can be translated literally into “many-lined”, and as expected, most specimens are decorated with alternating light and dark stripes that are set apart from the tan, brown or sometimes yellowish background scales that are edged with black. However, as the common name Variable Skink implies, occasionally individuals will lack the stripes and have just a uniform pattern, save for the black-edged scales. And rarely, there will be individuals who will exhibit traits from both pattern classes. Regardless of what the topside looks like, the belly is patternless and is whitish-buff in coloration.

Juveniles look contrastingly different from the adults, with black bodies and bright blue tails. Many youngsters will also have random amounts of white or orange on the black head, as well as faint striping. As the young animal matures, it begins to change from its juvenile coloration to the one that it will have as an adult – this process is known as an ontogenetic change.

Like other reptile species, the Variable Skink is cold-blooded”, or ectothermic. This means that they do not generate heat from the inside of their body, as mammals and birds do, but rather are dependent on outside sources for heating and cooling. They are active throughout the day in the spring and fall, adjusting their schedules to the morning and afternoon hours during the heat of the summer.

This species of lizard has a very generalized diet. Its preferred choice of food is small beetles, although it will also feed on other small invertebrates such as crickets, grasshoppers, and ants.

The Variable Skink is oviparous, which is a fancy way of saying that it lays eggs. After emerging from the winter-long brumation period (reptiles do not hibernate in the true sense of the word), males will search out females to mate. After mating, the female will lay anywhere from 4 to 12 eggs in moisture retaining soil. The female will remain in the nest area for the entire incubation period, warding off any small predators that would utilize her eggs to fill their appetite. After approximately two months of incubation, the brightly colored 2 inch long young emerge prepared to fend for and care for themselves, although the female will often remain with the young for the first several days after they hatch.

Despite living in these relatively dry areas, this skink must have moist conditions in its microhabitat to thrive, and the way it retains this moisture is by spending vast amounts of time either underground or under debris. For this reason, many people have never had the opportunity to encounter this relatively common (at least where it occurs!) lizard in the wild.

When threatened, the tail of this species can be discarded from the body rather easily, spasming enough to distract a would-be predator while the animal itself escapes to safety. This process is known as autotomy. It is also a difficult animal to grasp, utilizing its smooth scales to writhe and twist away from its captor.
