Ling wants out of race for aldermen

Alderman candidate Jeff Ling contacted Salado Mayor Danney McCort this week about dropping out of the race, but found out that it is too late for his name to be taken off of the May 11 ballot.

The Village of Salado is the only contested race with four candidates vying for three two-year terms on the board: Fred Brown, incumbent Hans Field, Ling and Dr. Michael McDougal.

If the reluctant candidate should by chance win, he would have to resign his seat after being given the oath of office. The board of aldermen would then have to fill his vacancy at a later board meeting after the resignation is accepted. That appointment would be for the remainder of the term.

Head Eagle: Sherman assistant takes over reins of Salado program April 1

Brent Graham will start his new job as Salado I.S.D. Athletic Director and Head Football Coach on April 1. Salado ISD Trustees voted unanimously to hire Graham during a called meeting 7 p.m. March 25.

"I am looking for the opportunity to raise my family in Salado's upstanding community, where I can make a difference in the lives of young people," Graham said. "I have always been intrigued by Salado's rich tradition of academic and athletic success. I have seen the overwhelming commitment to extracurricular activities paralleled with an education that promotes life-long learning."

Graham is the current assistant head coach/defensive coordinator and special teams coordinator for Sherman High School. The Sherman Bearcats have made four straight playoff appearances since Graham went to work there in 2009. They were back-to-back District Champions 2010-11 and three-time bi-district champions 2010-2012.

The Bearcats were state quarter-finalists in 2011 with back-to-back 10 win seasons.

In 2010, on their way to the state quarter finals, the Bearcats allowed just 19 points per game and 191 yards offense per game.

The Bearcats were 37-12 during the four seasons that Graham coached there.

Prior to joining Sherman, Graham was the recruiting coordinator, secondary coach and director of football operations at the University of Tulsa in 2007-09, when the Golden Hurricanes had back to back C-USA West Division championships in 2007-08. The team also posted the most single season wins in Tulsa history with 11 in 2008.

Graham was the Athletic Director and Head Football Coach at Tom Bean High School in 2006-07. Prior to that, he was the Assistant Head Coach/

Defensive Coordinator/Strength Coordinator at Mesquite Poteet High School (2004-06), a position he also held at Canton High School in 2003-04.

He was the sub-varsity offensive and defensive coordinator, as well as a varsity basketball assistant at Allen High School in 2001-03, coaching under Salado alum Tom Wester-berg.

"My prior experiences have enabled me to encompass the tools necessary to build a championship program that Salado ISD eagerly anticipates," Graham said.

"I am eager to establish a positive environment that supports and enhances an exemplary education for young people," he stated.

New Athletic Director and family

"I believe my knowledge, experience and philosophy will complement the needs of the school and allow us to achieve the success that the Salado family wants and deserves."

Graham holds a bachelor of science from Tarleton State University and an associate of arts from Collin Community College. He holds a Texas standard teaching certificate in secondary business administration, secondary health education and secondary physical education.

Graham is a graduate of Mesquite Poteet High School.

He and his wife Amanda have four children: Maddie, Hudson, Jaxon and Berkley.

Fleischers will mark 25th anniversary in Salado with party at newspaper office

Tim and Marilyn Fleischer were married on April 16, 1988 with a handful of family and close friends in attendance. They had just moved to Salado in March of that year, into a tiny two-bedroom upstairs apartment on Salado Creek. The couple operated the Salado Village Voice, which the Fleischer family purchased that spring. The newspaper missed some issues during the negotiations with the heirs of founder Dayton Kelley, but has not missed a weekly issue since.

In the 25 years that Tim and Marilyn have operated the newspaper, they have published through sickness and health, good times and bad. The vows that they exchanged in front of Mary Ann Fleischer's fireplace have been cemented by their daily work together.

It was not until 10 years after being married that Tim and Marilyn were able to go on their honeymoon. That trip was as tag-alongs/chaperones on a Salado school trip to Greece and Italy.

"We've been very fortunate over the years," Tim said. "We have been able to do what we love in a place where we love to live."

The Fleischers will celebrate their 25th anniversary on April 16 2013 by throwing open the doors of the newspaper office and inviting the community to join them for a Chamber of Commerce After Hours.

"We have been working in the past year to renovate our office to make it a little less newspaperly and a lot more inviting and comfortable," Marilyn said.

A one-of-a-kind collection of original pencil drawings, pen-and-inks and watercolors by Salado artist Ronnie Wells are now on display featuring 20 historic Salado homes that have been featured on the front cover of the Salado: A Jewel in the Crown of Texas magazine.

While the Salado Village Voice is not the first newspaper in Salado, it has had the longest life-span, since being founded in 1979. The Fleischer family bought the newspaper in 1988, marking 25 years in Salado this spring.

When historian Dayton Kelley published the first edition of the Salado Village Voice on February 17, 1979, it was the first time in more than 100 years that the village had a newspaper.

The first newspaper known to be published in the village was the Salado Newsletter. Published by E.W. Billings, the first edition came out on August 25, 1874. Only one copy of the newspaper exists at the newspaper collection of the University of Texas at Austin.

The Grange published another newspaper, The Texas Farmer in Salado, but it was later moved to Dallas.

Reference to a third Salado newspaper has been found on a letterhead in the Rose Papers at the University of Texas at Austin. The Salado Sentinel was published by A.S. Hornbeck. No copies of the Salado Sentinel are known to exist today.

Salado Village Voice founder Dayton Kelley was a native of Bell County, a journalist and a historian. He taught journalism at the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor for 12 years before accepting a position as Director of the Texas Collection at Baylor University in Waco. When plans were being made to erect the Texas Ranger Hall of Fame in Waco, Kelley was employed as director.

During his years at the helm of the Salado Village Voice, the newspaper emphasized the history of the village and the area. Kelley later founded the Morgan's Point Mariner and the Bell County Independent.

After Dayton passed away, his sons Dennis and Bill ran the Salado Village Voice, selling it to the Fleischer family in 1988. Tim and Marilyn Fleischer purchased the newspaper outright in the early 1990s.

In the mid-80s, Salado had two newspapers. The late Ken Clapp, executive director to Gov. Dolph Briscoe, opened the Salado Post-Dispatch in the Vickrey-Berry house. The Post-Dispatch, though short-lived, is well-remembered by many in Salado.

The newspaper added full color pages to its weekly editions in its news, sports and Marketplace sections.

Salado Village Voice also publishes the quarterly Salado: A Jewel in the Crown of Texas magazine. Salado Village Voice website, saladovillagevoice.com, is a complement to its weekly newspaper and quarterly magazine. An Open Exchange of Ideas

The beetle and the pipeline

When progressives talk of government, it is in an alluring can-do spirit. Making the case for more spending, President Barack Obama invokes the 19th century as a heroic age that built government-supported railroads. MSNBC hosts pose in front of monumental 20th-century public-works projects and speak of what all of us can do together.

This is all well and good as nostalgia, but is utterly detached from the spirit and the practices of 21st-century government. We don't excel at building things. We excel at studying things, and putting up obstacles to building them. It is not the age of the engineer but of the bureaucrat, the lawyer and the environmental activist.

Consider the proposed Keystone pipeline to connect the tar sands of Alberta, Canada, with the Gulf Coast. The Obama administration has been happy to keep the nation's foremost shovel-ready project in a state of suspended animation for years, so it can be constantly studied toward no end whatsoever except placating people with a theological objection to pipelines.

For a taste of the 21st-century American attitude toward building things, I direct your attention to Volume 2 -- not Volume 1,

Rich Lowry

3 or 4 -- of the Draft Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement, not to be confused with the three prior environmental studies.

Therein is a section considering the pipeline's impact on endangered and potentially endangered animals and plants. It evaluates the effect on everything from the Sprague's Pipit to the blowout penstemon, although special attention is devoted to the American burying beetle. Just like your congressman, the beetle is a "federally protected invertebrate."

It lives in a handful of counties to be traversed by the pipeline in Nebraska and South Dakota. Its habitat could be disrupted. It could be hit by trucks. If the pipeline heats the ground, beetles burrowed into the soil for the winter could be fooled into emerging prematurely. Artificial lighting could expose it to increased predation.

Not to worry. Keystone has been in discussions with federal and state officials about minimizing the impact. Prior to construction, the beetles should be trapped and relocated, in keeping, of course, with the Nebraska American Burying Beetle Trapping Protocol. But not in South Dakota. "Trapping and relocating American burying beetles," the statement explains, "is not authorized in South Dakota."

Vegetation should be mowed to no more than 8 inches tall to render the affected areas temporarily unsuitable to the beetles. Carcasses should be removed, lest beetles return to eat. Lighting should be shielded to avoid attracting beetles. All workers should be trained in beetle protection and issued "a full color Endangered Species Card, which includes a picture of the American burying beetle and a summary of relevant conservation information."

This is the case of only one insect glancingly affected by one project, but it stands for an epoch of red tape and hostility to development.

The betting now is that Obama administration will eventually greenlight the pipeline. If it does get built, it probably won't be in operation until 2016, when the original completion date was 2012. We get ever more adept at the perverse art of not building things.

Turning Medicare into We-Don't-Care Ryan stuck in same old rabbit hole

Apparently, Rep. Paul Ryan missed the outcome of last November's presidential election. Oh, wait -- wasn't he on the ballot in that election as Mitt Romney's running mate?

Well, yes, but less than five months later, the Wisconsin Republican seems to have forgotten that he and the Mittster were soundly rejected.

Maybe the trauma of losing big -- including failing to win a majority of the votes cast in his own hometown of Janesville, Wisconsin -- has his memory slipping.

Whatever the cause, it's embarrassing to see him now trotting out the very same Republican budget proposal that he wrote last year and put at the center of the Romney-Ryan presidential campaign -- the same nauseating budget extremism that induced the great majority of Americans to throw up their hands.

Ryan recently headlined a Washington media event for the re-release of this bucket of right-wing hash. It includes turning Medicare into a "WeDon'tCare" privatized voucher scheme that would deliver seniors into the tender clutches of giant insurance corporations, forcing the elderly to pay more for less.

Also, to save the super-rich from even the slightest tax increase, Ryan again served up a mess of cuts to food stamps, Medicaid, and other vital programs for the poor, while simultaneously jacking up the tax burden on both the working and middle classes.

Then, to make his package even more odious to the general public, he cluelessly re-issued the far right's cry to repeal the Affordable Care Act. Hello, Paul, it's reality calling: Obama thoroughly thumped you and Willard on this issue last year. Remember?

And since the election, Obama's signature health care reform has grown in popularity. Several Republican governors are now seeing the political light and embracing it.

Maybe it's time for his family and friends to pull the gentleman from Janesville out of the rabbit hole where he's gotten stuck.

Battle of the Budgets

Say you're running a business, and you find yourself awash in red ink. You realize it's time to re-tool your approach, and fast. So you ask two different employees to each come up with a budget. You'll go with whoever writes the best plan.

What are the chances that one of them will submit a budget that never puts you in the black? That suggests you raise prices and spend still more money? Practically nil.

Yet that's exactly what the Senate expects the federal government to do. Its recent budget proposal doesn't even attempt to restore balance. Spending would go up right away. So would taxes. And it doesn't even touch entitlement programs such as Medicare -- which, along with interest on the debt, will take up all tax revenues by 2025, when today's kindergarteners go off to college (absent reform).

It's easy to shrug such warnings off, especially when we hear about the problems of deficit spending all the time. But doing so raises the very real risk of a debt crisis that can hurt all Americans, especially the poor and middle class. Growing inflation is one danger, as is higher interest rates. Mortgages, credit cards, consumer loans and business loans would become more expensive for millions of Americans.

Higher interest rates would make it more costly for families to borrow money. That means they'd have to delay purchasing their first home. Their ability to build financial security would be compromised. The economy would weaken, leading to fewer job opportunities and lower wages for workers.

Fortunately, the "other employee" in the scenario laid out above has come up with a smarter approach. The House plan, spearheaded by Rep. Paul Ryan (R-Wisc.) would balance the budget in 10 years, and cut the annual growth in spending from 5 percent to 3.4 percent. Even better, it would repeal Obamacare. And it dares to reform Medicaid and Medicare.

"His signature solution of a premium-support model for Medicare is the hallmark of his budget," writes The Heritage Foundation's Alison Fraser. "Moving to a patient-centered model would free retirees from relying on the unstable and unsustainable government-run Medicare program and restrain costs through competition rather than price-fixing."

The Ryan budget also prevents a series of damaging cuts to our military set to occur under the "sequestration" budget axe. At a time when North Korea and Iran are racing to acquire nuclear missiles, cutting defense is the last thing we should be doing. In fact, we should be spending more, but at least the Ryan budget forestalls the worst cuts.

It's not flawless, though. Its chief failing? Taxes. True, the Ryan budget lays out important principles for tax reform and rightly rejects closing tax preferences ("loopholes") just to raise revenue. Despite repealing Obamacare, however, it keeps the program's higher tax revenues. But these are "the oxygen that fuels the fire of ever bigger spending," Fraser says, "the entire fire needs to be put out." That means repealing all of the president's signature health care law, including its tax increases.

Still, this is a strong plan which deserves serious consideration.

There are six things that each budget from the House, Senate, and president should accomplish (laid out in Heritage's plan "Saving the American Dream):

Balance the budget in less than 10 years, without raising taxes, and keep the budget in balance thereafter.

Swiftly overhaul entitlement programs, including Social Security, to guarantee economic security to seniors while making the programs affordable.

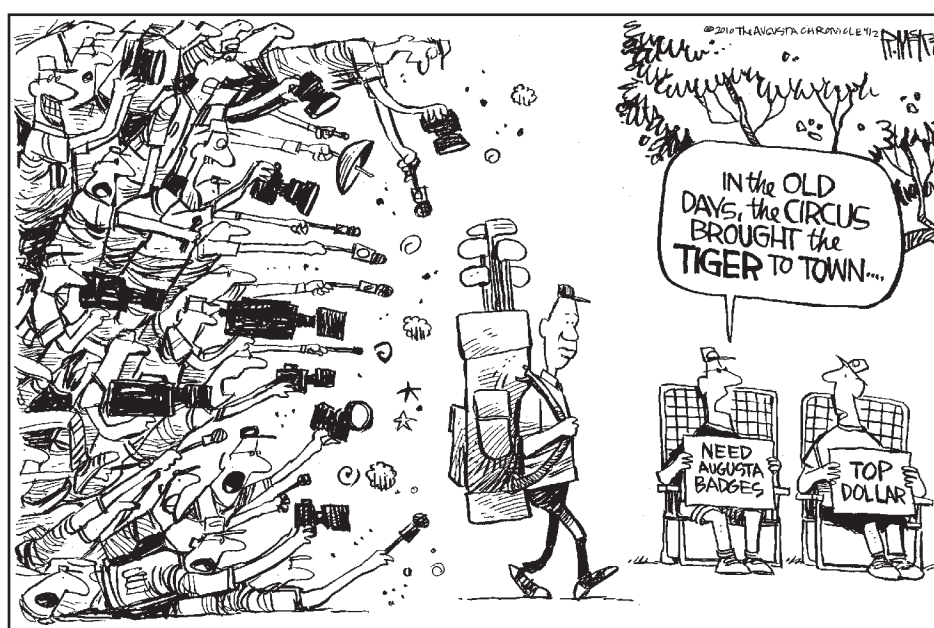

Repeal Obamacare in its entirety.

Fully fund defense. Roll back discretionary spending.

Roll back recent tax increases with a sweeping, growth-oriented tax reform plan and caps taxes at the historical average of 18.5 percent.

The Senate budget is a non-starter. The Ryan budget is a vast improvement. In a time of economic uncertainty, replete with unsustainable budget increases, we need to stop dodging hard choices. We know what needs to be done. It's time to do it.

Time to help Texas families achieve American dream

By FRANCES DEVINEY AND DON BAYLOR JR.

As the Texas Legislature starts drafting a budget and writing laws that reflect the state's values and respond to the state's needs, it should ask: What does it really take for Texas families to make ends meet and have the opportunity to move ahead? What can the Legislature do to help Texas families achieve the American Dream?

Recently, we released the Better Texas Family Budgets, an online tool that measures the ability of households to meet their needs across Texas. It shows that more than ever, Texans need better jobs — jobs that pay enough to support a family and provide quality, affordable health care. This new tool provides a conservative estimate of the necessary income for families to cover their basic expenses. And, it estimates the share of families in each Texas metropolitan area that do not earn enough to get by — keeping them from saving for a brighter future and forcing them to make tough decisions such as between paying an electric bill or a student loan.

For example, in the Austin-Round Rock-San Marcos area, a single parent with two children would need to earn nearly $42,000 a year, about $21 an hour, to generate the necessary annual income to pay for basic expenses, assuming their employer pays for their insurance premium and half the children's premium and that the family saves nothing. Nearly one in three children lives in a single-parent family. About 65 percent of the area jobs don't pay enough for this family to meet its needs at even this most basic level.

Texans work hard, regardless of their income. Only one other state has a higher share of poor families that work. Texans are working hard, but they're not earning enough. One of every seven working families lives in poverty. Nearly one of every two Texas families working full time have no financial cushion and limited financial assets. In some areas of the state, that number is significantly higher. While a job is a critical component for economic stability, many families find that employment by itself is no protection against financial struggle or even poverty.

Certainly, we don't have enough jobs. The job market in Texas is weaker now than it was five years ago, barely adding enough jobs to keep up with population growth. More than 250,000 more Texans are out of work today than five years ago, an increase of more than 50 percent.

But good jobs — employment with family-supporting wages, decent health coverage, and access to retirement savings — are in particularly short supply as wages continue to lose ground to the basic expenses of family life: housing, food, child care, education, and transportation.

Although Texas' family income has grown four percent since 2007, the purchasing power of those dollars fell four percent. That means families are actually able to meet fewer needs because wages haven't kept pace with inflation.

When millions of Texans are working full time and are either stuck or sliding down the economic ladder, what is the role of the Texas Legislature? Is

A Tale of Two Budgets

By RYAN ALEXANDER

It was the worst of times, it was the worst of times.

In a single week, the House and Senate Budget Committee chairs unveiled their budgets for the 2014 fiscal year. According to Democrats, Rep. Paul Ryan's (R-WI) budget was an unmitigated disaster that would destroy Medicare and slash spending in draconian ways. To Republicans, Sen. Patty Murray's (D-WA) budget was rife with new taxes and massive debt increases that threaten to send the economy into a death spiral.

What a bunch of hooey.

In reality, both packages are political markers that are more about public messaging than laying out a plan to finance government next year or setting the budgetary game plan for the next decade. And they seem even more out of context because they came out ahead of President Barack Obama's upcoming budget request. It's already a month overdue and still another couple weeks away.

Instead of providing the short and mid-term road map for the country's future, the two budget proposals map out paths to each party's promised land that don't converge. In fact, they don't even agree on the same baseline: the predicted level of spending that savings or cost increases are measured against.

Ryan's proposal assumes the increase in payments to doctors under Medicare will expire (it won't), and counts the decrease in war spending as savings (it shouldn't do that either). It banks the across-the-board sequester cuts that started March 1, and then calls for protecting the Pentagon budget from sequestration, repealing the Affordable Care Act (Obamacare), mandating revenue-neutral tax reform (with no specifics), increasing means testing in Medicare, and nipping farm subsidies (a paltry $31 billion).

Even according to Ryan's own plan, his much ballyhooed and derided voucher system for Medicare wouldn't start until 2024 — leaving it outside the budget window. Against this highly questionable baseline, Ryan claims his budget would shrink the deficit by $4.6 trillion over a decade.

Murray's proposal assumes the increase in payments to doctors under Medicare will not expire, that the sequester-level cuts will be waived, notes the decrease in war spending (and draws it down more rapidly) but appropriately doesn't count this as savings. From there, the proposal calls for additional revenue by eliminating tax breaks but is silent as to which ones they target. It also cuts some military spending, but these reductions are only half as steep as the current round of sequestration cuts. It calls for small cuts in non-Pentagon spending and health care related savings. And farm subsidies savings are even more meager at $23 billion. Against her baseline, Murray claims her budget would bring on $1.9 trillion in deficit reduction.

So that's what the budgets say they are going to do, but only if we follow the roads each has laid out. So it's the first year that really counts, and it's extremely unlikely that we're going to see a House-Senate joint budget resolution emerge from these two proposals. But lawmakers should still seek any overlaps and work to build those into any final deal.

That deal — if there is one in the end — will be the phoenix that rises up out of the ashes of these two budget resolutions and Obama's budget request. I agree with most observers that the sequester cuts are here to stay (at least until they are replaced by something), but that's just discretionary spending. Other fundamental changes are needed if we are going to make Medicare and Social Security more sustainable. There must be some comprehensive tax reform that yields additional revenue.

Most importantly, the political theater must stop. Our lawmakers need to work harder on solutions than sound bites.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF SALADO

Presbyterian Church of Salado will celebrate Holy Week by remembering the events of the last week of Jesus' life. It will begin with a Maundy Thursday service 6 p.m. March 28 and end with the Sunday Easter service.

On Maundy Thursday, the church remembers the last evening Jesus shared with his disciples in the upper room before his arrest and crucifixion. Derived from the Latin word mandatum, meaning "commandment," Maundy refers to the command Jesus gave his disciples at the Last Supper: to love one another.

Maundy Thursday marks three key events in Jesus' last week: his washing of his disciples' feet, his institution of the Lord's Supper, and new commandment to love one another.

This year, the Maundy Thursday service will be a Tenebrae Service. The Presbyterian Church will be celebrating both Maundy Thursday and Good Friday by conducting communion and a Tenebrae service. Communion will be done informally during a time of light snacks, then congregations move into the sanctuary for the Tenebrae service.

The word 'tenebrae' is Latin for "darkness" or "shadows". The purpose of the Tenebrae service is to recreate the emotional aspects of the passion story. This is not supposed to be a happy service, because the occasion was not happy.

The Tenebrae service is not a new development in church liturgy. It has been observed since medieval times. Originally, the Tenebrae was held in European monasteries on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of Holy Week.

The Tenebrae service always has a somber tone, reflected in the darkness, in the accounts of Christ's suffering, in the music, and in the silence of the congregation as they leave the sanctuary. But underlying the somber feeling is the anticipation of the resurrection, mirrored in the Christ Candle.

The services will have scripture narratives. The service starts out with the church in candlelight. There are eight candles plus a white Christ Candle. As the Gospel Lessons are read, one of the candles is extinguish until only the Christ Candle remains.

Then the first part of Psalm 22, which Jesus quoted on the cross is read and the Christ candle is put out, leaving the congregation in near total darkness. At this point, the service ends. There is no benediction and the people leave in silence.

The purpose of the service is to recreate the betrayal, abandonment, and agony of the events, and it is left unfinished, because the story isn't over until Easter Day.

Rev. Carl Thompson encourages believers to be a part of this service at 6 p.m. March 28.

Taylor Parker honored at Incredible Kids luncheon

A Salado child will be among the "2013 Central Texas Incredible Kids" who will be honored by the Central Texas Youth Coalition on April 11.

The 14th Annual Incredible Kids luncheon will be held 11:30 a.m. April 11 at Bell County Expo Assembly Hall in Belton. The celebration focuses on the positive impact youth exhibit in their everyday lives.

The ten youth were selected from nominations received from local schools, organizations, and individuals. Dr. John L. Boyd III, Chief Executive Officer and Chief Medical Officer of McLane Children's Hospital and Clinics, will serve as guest speaker.

Among those chosen for the awards is Salado Intermediate sixth grader Taylor Ann Parker, daughter of Doris and Ben Parker of Belton and granddaughter of Dennis and Kathey Farr, of Salado.

The other nine "2013 Central Texas Incredible Kids" are: Annabelle Barrington, 12th grade, Gatesville High School; Zari Chipman, 8th grade, Copperas Cove Junior High School; Austin Coulard, 12th grade, Belton High School; Catalina Cruz, 12th grade, Temple High School; Madu Eneli, 7th grade, Union Grove Middle School in Killeen; Nick Hernandez, 8th grade, Lamar Middle School in Temple; Kobe Sanchez, 8th grade, South Belton Middle School; Bethany Shafer, 5th grade, Pirtle Elementary School, Belton; and Evan Smith, 12th grade, Belton High School.

Taylor Ann Parker

Taylor is the big sister to five year old Logan who was born with a rare genetic disease, Pelizaeus-Merzbacher Disease (PMD). She is his biggest cheerleader!

The family has held two fund raisers for the PMD Foundation and Taylor has had a big hand in each of them.

She created her own line of original design jewelry, "Taylor's Cute Creations," to sell to raise money to donate and raised over $1,200 in about three months. She continues to take orders for this cause. She also asked for donations only at her 11th birthday party. She was able to send more than $300 to the PMD foundation at that time.

Taylor recently came up with a plan for higher education for PMD children. She wants to open a college for them so they can continue their education and be successful in life.

She has been her brother's "buddy" for two seasons of Buddy Basketball at First Baptist Church in Belton.

Taylor has participated in many charitable walks and activities in the area for people with disabilities.

She has been featured in local newspaper articles to bring awareness to her efforts for the PMD Foundation and her devotion to her brother.

"She is very loving towards her brother," Kathey Farr said in her nominating letter, "they are often seen holding hands as he rolls along in his wheelchair at the store or any activity the family is involved in."

Taylor is also active in various school activities and gymnastics. She is hoping to become a cheerleader for Salado Jr. High for next football season. She participates in tumbling and cheerleading. She volunteers with AM-BUCS. She plans to attend the University of Texas, and says that she would love to build a special needs college.

Others to be honored

Local adults and organizations that have made a significant difference in the lives of youth will also be recognized at the luncheon. Receiving the "Outstanding Achievement for Youth" award will be: The Honorable John Hull, Mayor of Copperas Cove and former Coryell County Judge; Dr. Susan Kincannon, Superintendent of Belton Independent School District;

Taylor Ann Parker

Abdul Subhani, designer of programs that assist youth to learn internet safety and technology and active youth volunteer in Central Texas; and KCEN-TV, that has initiated and supported programs for youth and families in Central Texas. Accepting the award for KCEN-TV will be Gayle Kiger, Vice-President and General Manager of the station.

The Central Texas Youth Coalition is a collaboration of the Belton Christian Youth Center, Boys and Girls Clubs of Central Texas, CenTex Chargers Homeschool Sports Association, and Ralph Wilson Youth Clubs.

Reservations for this unique, inspiring celebration may be made by calling 254-699-5808, ext. 102, or by mailing name, address, and phone number plus cost for the event to Incredible Kids Celebration, Midtown Youth, 304 West Avenue B, Killeen, Texas 76541. Cost is $25 per person.

the status quo acceptable for Texas families? What do Texas families need to be more financially stable?

For Texas to truly be a state that promotes expanded economic opportunity for all Texans, we need robust policies and strategic investments that strengthen the financial future of working Texas families. For Texas families to thrive, we need better access to key services that promote work and good jobs such as affordable child care and tuition assistance; better health insurance coverage for working adults through expanding Medicaid; better credit access through meaningful payday and auto-title loan reform that promotes consumer success; better financial security through investments in affordable housing and career education; innovative programs to match college savings; and repealing the savings penalty when Texans need temporary assistance.

Our Better Texas Family Budgets have already started a policy conversation — from Amarillo to Brownsville and from El Paso to Beaumont—about what it really takes to strengthen household budgets and build broader prosperity. We believe this conversation will grow louder as income continues to fall behind basic needs and family aspirations. The Legislature has the opportunity to make investments and create policies that expand financial stability and opportunity to more Texans. Together, we can ensure the American Dream remains in reach for all of us.

Track stars excel against 5A schools, break records

Ryan Simmons beat the top discus thrower in the state March 23 at the 49th Annual Jesuit Sheaner Relays, hosted by Dallas Jesuit High School.

Simmons won gold in both the discus and shot put, competing in the 5A school division.

Simmons threw the discus 164'10" to beat Dallas Jesuit's Paden Gatlin's mark of 162'9" and Celina's Tyler Finke mark of 153'02". Simmons' mark of 164'10" was better than Austin Cook, of Overton High, who threw for a mark of 164'2" to win the 4A discus. Overton is the top-ranked discus thrower in the state and threw for 181' a week earlier.

When the iron is hot

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

The opening lead plays a vital role in many hands. Just how big a difference it can make is illustrated by this extraordinary case from a rubber-bridge game where West was Alvin Roth, one of the great players of all time. His double of three notrump was bold as well as imaginative, but it would have failed dismally had he chosen the wrong opening lead.

For example, if he had led a diamond, as many players in his place would have done, South would have scored the first 10 tricks. Similarly, had Roth led a heart or a club, South would have taken the first nine tricks.

But Roth led a spade, and South was a dead duck. In desperation, he played dummy's queen, which lost to the king and, oddly enough, simultaneously squeezed South. He was looking at nine cold tricks, but with the opponents on lead, he was in bad shape. Reluctant to part with a winner, he discarded a diamond. East thereupon returned a diamond to West's jack.

Roth now made the excellent play of the jack of spades followed by a low spade. He wanted to make sure that East would return a diamond when he took the ace of spades. Roth was afraid that, if he led the four instead of the jack, East might suddenly get nervous and return a spade to assure defeat of the contract.

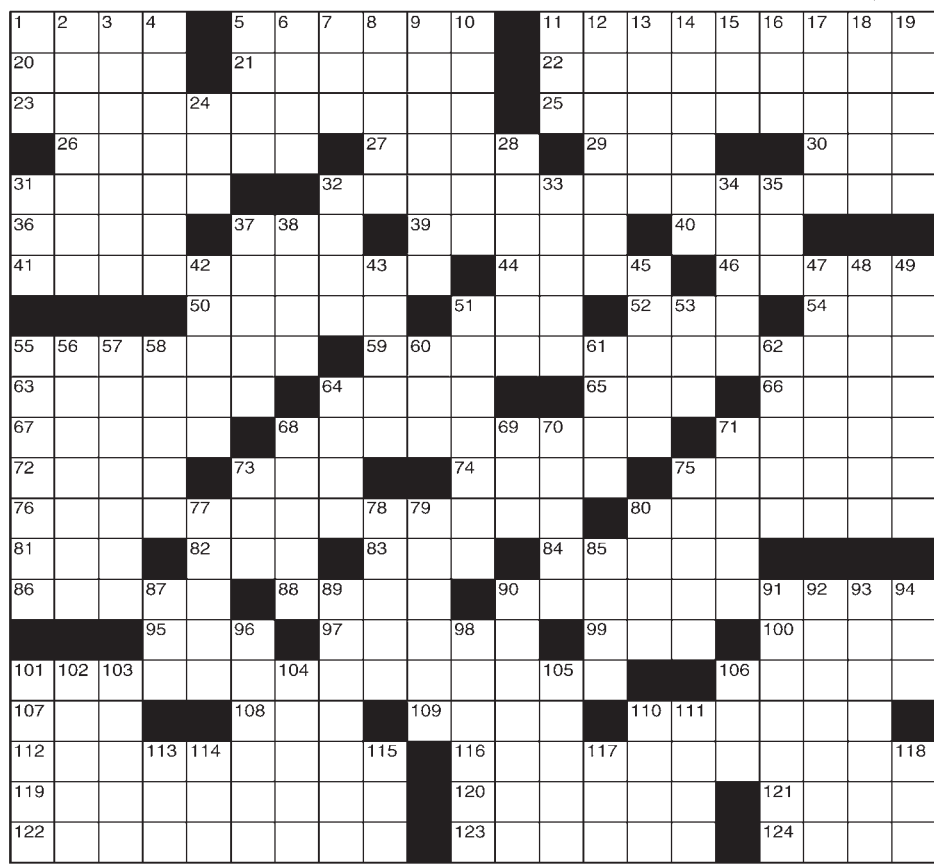

East did return a diamond, and the defense wound up scoring four spades and five diamonds to inflict a 900-point (1,100 today) defeat! All of which can be attributed to a well-judged double and -- lest we forget -- a well-judged opening lead.

Add new flavors to your Easter celebration

WATERCRESS AND GREEN ONION DEVILED EGGS

Put a spring twist on classic deviled eggs by adding some spring greens.

large eggs
1 teaspoon extra-virgin olive oil
1 bunch watercress, stemmed, divided
4 green onions, white and light green parts only, thinly sliced
1/3 cup light mayonnaise
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
1/8 teaspoon salt
pinch cayenne pepper

Place eggs in a large saucepan and cover with cold water. Bring to a boil over high heat, cover pan, remove from heat, and let sit 13 minutes. Drain, tap eggs to crack shells all around, and let eggs sit 10 more minutes in very cold water. Peel and halve eggs.

Meanwhile, pick leaves from watercress until you have 1 cup of lightly packed leaves; set remaining watercress aside. Heat oil in a medium skillet over medium heat. Add watercress leaves and green onions. Cook, stirring, until very tender, 3 to 4 minutes. Set aside to let cool.

In a food processor, combine yolks, watercress and green onion mixture, mayonnaise, mustard, salt and cayenne. Pulse until very smooth, about 1 minute, stopping to scrape down sides of bowl once or twice. Spoon yolk mixture into egg halves, place on a platter and surround with a few of the reserved watercress sprigs.

TANGY BUTTERED BEETS AND BEET GREENS WITH DIJON

Beets are available in purple, gold and candy-stripped varieties, so use whatever looks best to you. Use Dijon, whole grain or even spicy mustard in this recipe.

1 1/2 pound beets, with stems and greens attached
6 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
Salt and pepper, to taste

Roughly chop beet greens and transfer to a small bowl. Cut stems into 1-inch pieces and transfer to a large bowl. Peel and cut beets into 1-inch chunks then transfer to bowl with stems.

Bring water to a boil in a large skillet over medium high heat. Add beets and stems, cover and cook until somewhat tender, 5 to 7 minutes. Uncover, sprinkle greens over the top, cover and cook until beets, stems and greens are tender, adding more water if needed, about 5 minutes more. Remove from heat, toss with butter, Dijon, salt and pepper and serve hot, at room temperature or cold.

CABBAGE AND LEEK GRIDDLE CAKES

Bring these skillet cakes, akin to latkes, to your Easter, Passover or St. Patrick's Day table since they pair perfectly with ham, corned beef, brisket or lamb. Alternately, if you have leftovers from any of those, you can finely chop and use them in this recipe. Feel free to make one big cake instead or, for an appetizer, try goat cheese-topped mini versions.

3 cups thinly shredded organic green cabbage (about 6 ounces)
2 organic leeks, white and light green parts only, cut into thin matchsticks
1/4 cup whole wheat pastry flour or matzo meal
1/2 teaspoon fine sea salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

2 eggs, beaten
Canola spray oil

In a large bowl, toss together cabbage and leeks; squeeze firmly 4 or 5 times to wilt them slightly. Add flour or matzo meal, salt, pepper and eggs and stir until well coated. Heat a large skillet over medium heat and spray generously with oil. Working in batches, drop a generous 1/3 cup of the cabbage mixture into skillet, spreading it out to make 4-inch pancakes. Spray the tops with oil and cook, flipping once, until tender and deep golden brown, 8 to 10 minutes total; transfer to a plate as done.

Budget sequester's impact on the environment; Solar roof shingles

Dear EarthTalk: What does the budget sequester that recently took hold mean for the environment?
 -- Jane Burgos, Los Angeles, CA

The sequester that went into effect March 1 is a budget measure that cuts federal spending across the board to the tune of $85 billion, meaning every federal agency is affected and must reduce discretionary spending. Indeed, the cuts are already having a negative impact on everything from air quality monitoring to extreme weather response capability to staffing at national parks.

Some of the harshest cuts are starting to kick in at the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). On the chopping block there are some critical air monitoring sites that check for dangerous pollutants like ozone and particulate matter, as well as funding the agency has traditionally given states to monitor their own air quality. The agency is also reducing the number of staffers tasked with monitoring compliance with environmental laws, and will do around 1,000 fewer inspections accordingly in 2013.

Meanwhile, sequester-based cuts to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) mean reduced response efforts following weather disasters, which are on the rise due to climate change. Likewise, cuts at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration mean less funding for maintenance and operations of some weather-monitoring systems, including the national radar network used for tornado warnings, and a delay in launching two new satellites designed to help track severe weather events like hurricanes. Also, sequester-based cuts to funding for the repair or replacement of decaying water and wastewater infrastructure are putting local drinking water at risk in communities from coast to coast.

One way we'll feel the pain this summer is via staff cuts and closures at national parks and historic sites. Interior Secretary Ken Salazar says the sequester is responsible for an indefinite delay in reopening the Statue of Liberty after Hurricane Sandy (though as of this writing Liberty Island will re-open July 4 while Ellis Island will remain closed) and for undermining his ability to fight fires and clean up after storms.

The sequester also means less natural resource management. Fewer funds for fishery stock assessments means Alaskan fisheries may remain closed for longer than needed given lack of data on fish runs. And sequester cuts reduce efforts to combat illegal overfishing. Meanwhile, the Department of Agriculture will treat 200,000 fewer acres this summer for "hazardous fuel," meaning a higher risk of wildfires.

On the energy front, outgoing Energy Secretary Steven Chu reports that the sequester jeopardizes ongoing research into increasing automobile fuel efficiency and reducing gasoline consumption, in turn slowing down the country's quest for energy independence. Also, less funding means less oversight of hydraulic fracturing (fracking) for natural gas and research into the environmental impacts of the practice.

Green group leaders are especially annoyed that under the sequester oil companies get to keep billions of dollars in taxpayer subsidies while drastic budget cuts limit the EPA's ability to monitor, limit and clean up the pollution they cause. Perhaps the one silver lining is a slowdown in the issuance of new off-shore oil and gas development permits given cuts at the Department of Energy.

Dear EarthTalk: I'm getting my roof redone and have heard about solar shingles. Are they available—and are they practical for the North-than traditional "bolt-on" photovoltaic panels, and thus were used mainly by those wanting to go solar but maintain a traditional roofline. But more recently solar shingles have become price-competitive with bolt-on panels, and are getting much more popular accordingly. Eco-conscious home and building owners might find solar shingles especially attractive when they are re-shingling anyway since the solar shingles also double as functional, protective and weatherproof roof shingles in their own right.

The biggest name in solar shingles is Dow's Powerhouse line, which uses cutting edge Copper Indium Gallium Selenide solar cells (aka "thin-film" solar) to turn sunlight into electricity via a supplied inverter box. The Powerhouse shingles generate 12 watts per square foot and are "grid-tied," meaning they're designed for structures already connected to the power grid and can send excess power back to the grid. They are wireless, snap together and can be installed by regular roofing contractors just like (or alongside) conventional asphalt shingles (an electrician needs to set up the inverter box).

Recently solar shingles have become price-competitive with bolt-on panels, and are getting much more popular accordingly. On top of that, federal, state and local incentives can bring the cost down considerably more. Pictured: solar shingles from the Dow Powerhouse line.

Dow reports that a typical residential cluster of 350 solar shingles on a roof could slash one's household electric bill by 40-60 percent. Such an installation can cost a homeowner over $20,000, but federal, state and local incentives can bring the cost to half that in some areas. Powerhouse shingles are currently available (from Dow-authorized contractors) in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Texas and Washington, D.C.

Another leader in solar shingles is building products manufacturer CertainTeed. The company's Apollo line of grid-tied monocrystalline solar shingles and roofing tiles offers efficiency similar to larger "bolt-on" photovoltaic arrays at around the same price (and incentives similar to those for Dow may also apply) but with less bulk: Each Apollo tile is less than an inch thick and will integrate with, replace, or lay on top of existing asphalt roof shingles or tiles and generate 12 watts of power per square foot.

CertainTeed says a typical installation will save homeowners 40-70 percent on their electric bills. Their Apollo products are available across the U.S. but the company recommends using one of their authorized roofing contractors to make sure they are installed properly.

Now is an especially good time to go solar—shingles or otherwise—because costs have started to come down and the federal government is still offering 30 percent tax credits with no cap on the purchase of solar electricity equipment. Twenty-seven states and several cities offer additional incentives that can get pricing on solar gear and installations down even lower. For more information check out the Database of State Incentives for Renewables and Efficiency (DSIRE), a free online resource provided by the North Carolina Solar Center and IREC with funding from the U.S. Department of Energy.

Don't Allow Dog to 'Fertilize' Lawn

THIS IS A HAMMER
By SAMANTHA MAZZOTTA

Q: My neighbor walks his dog every day, and routinely allows his beloved pet to eliminate on my front lawn. He almost never picks up the dog's droppings -- it's something I'm left to do when I get home from work. When I confronted him about it, he said that he was doing me a favor because the droppings will fertilize my lawn. How can I get him to stop? -- Carlos G., Phoenix

A: It sounds like you've talked to him already about it, and gotten a pretty unapologetic answer. For the record -- and you probably know this already -- dog droppings and urine are not good lawn fertilizer; they can cause dead spots or yellowed grass.

Many cities have ordinances about picking up after dogs; some will issue tickets to pet owners who are caught in the act of not cleaning up. In other municipalities, enforcement varies.

At any rate, don't get confrontational or pick a fight. Ask him politely one more time to stop leaving dog droppings in your yard. If he doesn't stop, check your options. If you belong to a homeowners association, check its rules or bylaws regarding pets. Check with your city's animal control office or visit its webpage to learn what recourse you have in stopping the daily visits.

Causing a nuisance like letting one's dog soil a neighbor's yard is generally frowned upon. I have a feeling the law will be on your side with this. Stay calm, do your homework, and you should be able to resolve this little dispute.

HOME TIP: Review your homeowners association rules at least once a year to stay on top of any changes and to be familiar with rules that can help solve potential problems between you and your neighbors.

April is Fair Housing Month: Housing choice is your right

Without any television specials or advertising campaigns to remind us, the fact that April is Fair Housing Month can sneak up on you. Promoting awareness of fair housing and educating people on their rights and responsibilities is essential to ensuring that we each have what the Fair Housing Act is there to provide – a choice in where we live.

And because it's Fair Housing Month, April is a good time to highlight the Fair Housing Act and how it can protect you. This is especially important for members of a minority group or anyone whose primary language is not English.

According to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, it is a violation of the Fair Housing Act for an individual to take any of the following actions based on the protected classes of race, color, national origin, religion, sex, familial status or disability:

Refuse to rent or sell a home

Refuse to negotiate for a home

Make a home unavailable. Falsely deny that a home is available for inspection, sale, or lease

Persuade an owner to sell or rent to a particular buyer

Set different terms, conditions, or privileges for the sale or lease of a home

Directing a client toward or away from a specific neighborhood is also a violation of the Fair Housing Act whether intentional or not.

Real estate professionals should avoid offering their personal opinion regarding or performing any activity that highlights the racial, religious, or ethnic composition of a given neighborhood or neighborhood school.

Consider looking for a real estate professional whose territory covers a broad, diverse area, as opposed to one populated primarily by members of a certain ethnic or religious group.

Although not specifically identified in the Fair Housing Act, anyone who shows, sells, owns, manages, or offers mortgage services for housing properties might consider providing reasonable accommodations for persons with disabilities and language assistance for persons with limited English proficiency in keeping with the spirit of the Act.

The vast majority of professionals in the housing industry are honest, law-abiding men and women who are well aware of fair housing issues. But it is important to learn and recognize discrimination.

Ultimately, knowledge is your best tool to avoiding discrimination. There are multiple facets to the Fair Housing Act and all Texans should be familiar with their rights under the laws of this state and country.

But don't wait until you start your housing search. Fair housing violations — just like Fair Housing Month — can sneak up on you before you know it.

Temple Jazz Orchestra with Eric Marienthal concert set for April 7

The Georgetown Symphony Society presents the acclaimed Temple Jazz Orchestra under the direction of Thomas Fairlie. Guest artist for this concert is Saxophonist Eric Marienthal.

Marienthal began his career in 1980 with famed trumpeter Al Hirt and has gone on to record and perform with artists such as Elton John, Barbra Streisand, Billy Joel, Stevie Wonder, Lee Ritenour, The Rippingtons, Dionne Warwick, Burt Bacharach, and many others. Held at 4 p.m. in the GHS Klett Center for the Performing Arts, tickets ($27, $20, $5) are available at both are Georgetown H-E-B stores, the Sun City CA office, and at the door the afternoon of the concert. www.gsstx.org, (512) 864-9591.
