A public display of classic and antique Lincolns will be at Stagecoach Inn on April 20.

Lincolns gather here April 19-21

The 25th Anniversary Lincoln and Continental Owners Club meet will be held in Salado April 19-21.

A quarter of a century ago, the three Texas Regions of the Lincoln & Continental Owners Club joined for the first time to put on a car show in Salado.

Don and Micki Ellis, longtime residents of Salado from The Lone Star Region, Sonny Gray and Ron Stein from the Gulf Coast Region and Ed Green from the North Texas Region organized the show.

Doc Ellis made arrangements with the historic Stagecoach Inn. For the first few years, the group shared the hotel on the first weekend in April with the Packard Club, but they soon grew so large they had to have the Stagecoach all to themselves.

"We then moved to the second weekend in April and partnered with the Buick Club and that tradition continued until 2009," according to the group's secretary Dean Forbes.

The Lincoln group then began meeting on the third weekend of April here in Salado so that it could accommodate holding the Mid-America meet in Salado for the National LCOC. The regional LCOC clubs have continued to meet together the third weekend in April at the Stagecoach Inn ever since.

The welcoming party on Friday began in the hospitality suite at Stagecoach Inn, but now gathers at the City Garage, owned by Don and Micki Ellis. The City Garage houses the Elises collection of vintage automobiles and memorabilia from the golden era of the roadside garage.

While there is judging and awards presented, the cars are also on display at the Stagecoach Inn for the public to view on Saturday, April 20.

Salado knife maker Bill Smith hand-crafted a historically-accurate Bowie knife that is now on display at The Alamo in San Antonio. Smith presented the knife to Alamo historian and curator Dr. Richard Bruce Winders. The knife is now on display with others like it in a display at the Alamo museum in San Antonio.

Village Aldermen set hearing to annex part of I-35

Salado aldermen will conduct a public hearing on the annexation of I-35 and its service roads during their regular meeting 6 p.m. April 18 at the Municipal Building, 301 N. Stagecoach Rd.

In other business, the board will conduct a public hearing before considering renewing the Village Burn Ordinance.

Aldermen will also consider appointing Josh Bratton to the Village Planning and Zoning Commission.

The board will also review Emergency Operations Plan Annexes and the year-to-date financial and quarterly reports.

The meeting is open to the public.

Happy Anniversary

Pending legislation could quickly bring sewer service to Salado

A bill has passed the Texas House that may allow the Corn Hill Regional Water Authority (RWA), which provides wastewater services in the Jarrell area, to expand to include Salado as a service area.

House Bill 701 passed the House April 11. Senate Bill 1844 was introduced on March 20, but has not yet passed that body.

The bills amend the Special District Local Laws Code to allow for a municipality, county or other political subdivision to petition the RWA board to add that municipality, county or other political subdivision as a member entity.

HB 701 and SB 1844 further amend the Special District Local Laws Code to allow the authority to issue bonds or other obligations payable wholly or partly from revenue of the authority's water system, sanitary sewer system or drainage system, including revenue from contracts with member entities or customers.

Under contract with the RWA, a member entity (such as the Village of Salado or a Municipal Utility District formed in an area of Salado) may make payments from any of the member entity's sources of revenue, including ad valorem taxes, impact fees, grants, sales and use taxes and any other source to provide for the administrative and operating expenses of the authority.

If both houses pass the bill by a two-thirds majority, the bill will take immediate effect. If it passes by less than the super majority, the law will go into effect on Sept. 1, 2013 after being signed by Gov. Rick Perry.

Golf Club to meet with owner

The Salado Golf Club directors will meet 11 a.m. April 23 with Morris Foster to discuss the purchase of the local Mill Creek golf course property and operations.

The Golf Club has raised more than $710,000 towards the purchase price of the golf course, according to Bruce Bolick, certified public accountant.

Bolick added that the Salado Golf Club continues to pursue other funding avenues toward the purchase of the golf course.

If the group is able to purchase the golf course, it will then actively pursue funding the work to restore the holes damaged by floods in recent years. Getting those holes open would be a priority of the Salado Golf Club.

That money could be match to the money that the Salado Golf Club has raised.

Rumors had been circulating around the village that a large investor was going to purchase the golf course and develop the property for housing. However, no contracts have been signed for the purchase of the golf course.

The mission of the Salado Golf Club is to make the golf course a member-owned entity with all profits returned into the facility.

Masons lay walkway around College ruins

Masons were fundamental in laying the groundwork for the establishment of a college here when Salado was still very much a frontier community. Masons such as Col. E. Sterling C. Robertson, Orville T. Tyler, Maj. A.J. Rose and Dr. Welborn Barton were among the early trustees of the Salado College.

Col. E. Sterling C. Robertson went further, donating the 100 acres of land that was sold in lots for the establishment of Salado, the sale of which helped to fund the creation of Salado College.

Last weekend, Salado Masons reconfirmed their long connection with Salado College by laying a walkway around the ruins of the 1860s building.

Working on behalf of the Salado College Foundation, three Masons brought their personal contractors: Doug McNeese and Conrad Hinkle, of Salado Masonic Lodge #296 and Ty Tulloch, Master of Belton Masonic Lodge #166. The three were assisted by Truitt Bradley, Master of Salado Lodge and members Brian Arnett, Jim Cumby and Tim Fleischer.

As the Masons were moving dirt, Bryan Jameson, archeology steward with the Texas Historical Commission and Art Tawater, volunteer archeological steward, sifted through the dirt in search of artifacts. Among those identified were pieces of glass, a button and a piece of a school desk.

Meanwhile, local Boy Scout Alan Sirois, Parker Umpleby and Monroe Moore worked to clean up the entrance to Salado College. Last year, Sirois repaired the walkway and steps leading up to the ruins as his Eagle Scout project. He continues to volunteer at the Salado College.

Chet Sutton (CBS Construction) finished the work with his equipment to roll out the crushed gravel.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Your kids aren't your own

The TV cable-news network MSNBC runs sermonettes from its anchors during commercial breaks. They are like public-service announcements illuminating the progressive mind, and perhaps none has ever been as revealing and remarkable as the one cut by weekend host Melissa Harris-Perry.

Harris-Perry set out to explain what is, by her lights, the failure to invest adequately in public education. She located the source of the problem in the insidious idea of parental responsibility for children.

"We've always had kind of a private notion of children," she said, in the tone of an anthropologist explaining a strange practice she discovered when out doing far-flung fieldwork. "Your kid is yours and totally your responsibility." So long as this retrograde conception prevails, according to Harris-Perry, we will never spend enough money on children.

"We have to break through," she urged, "our kind of private idea that kids belong to their parents or kids belong to their families."

Her statement wasn't an aside on live television. She didn't misspeak. The spot was shot, produced and aired without, apparently, raising any alarm bells. No one with influence raised his or her hand and said, "Should we really broadcast something that sounds so outlandish?"

The foundation of the Harris-Perry view is that society is a large-scale kibbutz. The title of Hillary Clinton's best-seller in the 1990s expressed the same point in comforting folk wisdom: "It Takes a Village."

As the ultimate private institution, the family is a stubborn obstacle to the great collective effort. Insofar as people invest in their own families, they are holding out on the state and unacceptably privileging their own kids over the children of others. These parents are selfish, small-minded and backward.

"Once it's everybody's responsibility," Harris-Perry said of child-rearing, "and not just the households, then we start making better investments."

This impulse toward the state as uber-parent is based on a profound fallacy and a profound truth.

The fallacy is that anyone can care about someone else's children as much as his own. The former Texas Republican Sen. Phil Gramm liked to illustrate the hollowness of professions to the contrary with a story. He told a woman, "My educational policies are based on the fact that I care more about my children than you do." She said, "No, you don't." Gramm replied, "OK: What are their names?"

The truth is that parents are one of society's most incorrigible sources of inequality. If you have two of them who stay married and are invested in your upbringing, you have hit life's lottery. You will reap untold benefits denied to children who aren't so lucky. That the family is so essential to the well-being of children has to be a constant source of frustration to the egalitarian statist, a reminder of the limits of his power.

If the left wants to equalize the investments in children that matter most, it should promote intact families and engaged parents, even if it means embracing shockingly old-fashioned private child-rearing.

Texan Turf War

Authorities in Dallas demand that homeowners plant "traditional" grass

Turf wars can be the silliest of all scuffles, and no place does silly with more zeal than Texas.

For example, the fine people of Dallas recently fell into a doozy of a turf tussle between the natives and foreigners — and the foreigners are winning. The out-of-staters, hailing from such distant lands as Bermuda and St. Augustine, Florida, are not people, but turf grasses.

Many homeowner associations, realtors, chambers of commerce, and city officials applaud (and even mandate) the use of such outliers to give a community that uniform, well-manicured, lush lawn look.

The natives, on the other hand, are tufts of tenacious prairie grasses, prickly cacti, and rough rocks — local elements that were "landscape" ages before lawns were invented, and way before there was a Dallas.

Enter Burton Knight, owner of a modest home in the city's Junius Heights neighborhood. In the interest of water conservation, and in the interest of nature's own beauty, he ripped up his lawn and went native, creating a xeriscaped yard.

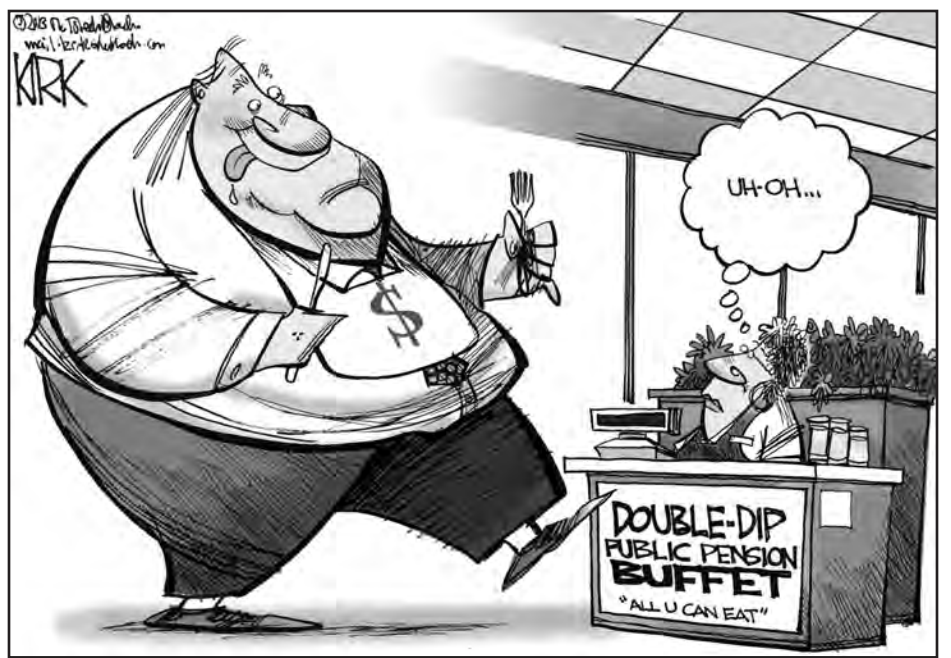

It's beautiful, but not in the eyes of the lawn lords who rule the local landmark commission and city planning office. Knight's problem, sniffed a planner who oversees the Junius Heights historic district, is this: "The lack of lawn. There's none. Zero."

She cited an ordinance that sets standards for such things, but all it says is, "Landscaping must be appropriate." Well, wonders Knight, in this land of constant drought and a critical water shortage, how appropriate is it to keep landscaping with water-guzzling, chemical-demanding, imported turf grasses? Besides, he adds, "How can you say that cactus is not historic?"

This is, after all, Texas, the natural home of prickly pears and scrappy people. Loosen up, Dallas — go native, or give up your Texas passport.

By AMY DEAN

Moments of consensus between left and right don't come frequently in Washington, and we should heed them when they occur.

Right now, that means breaking up the banks.

Until recently, the idea that the biggest banks have gotten too big and ought to be divided was pooh-poohed as an unworkable fringe proposal. The Obama administration has avoided even whispering about the possibility of breaking up the banks, preferring to tinker with existing rules for how banks do business.

In recent months, however, an interesting development emerged: advocates on the right have joined voices on the left that have grown hoarse calling for an end to "too big to fail" banks.

Former Reagan speechwriter Peggy Noonan wrote in a January Wall Street Journal column, "The megabanks have too much power in Washington and too much weight within the financial system." In February, conservative columnist George Will wrote: "By breaking up the biggest banks, conservatives will not be putting asunder what the free market has joined together. Government nurtured these behemoths by weaving an improvident safety net, and by practicing crony capitalism."

Will further denounced the "pernicious practice of socializing losses while keeping profits private."

It isn't just Beltway pundits who are calling for intervention: tea party Republicans were angered enough by the bank bailouts that in 2010 they went after members of Congress who had approved these handouts.

The push to break up the banks is drawing support from both ends of the political spectrum for a simple reason: The biggest banks now unquestionably dominate the U.S. economy. Their size gives them an unfair advantage over community banks. They use their clout in Washington to thwart any attempt at regulation while gambling in shady derivatives markets with ordinary Americans' bank accounts and retirement funds. And they demand public support when their risky bets go bust.

So while progressives and conservatives may approach the issue from different vantage points, we should welcome a joint effort to eliminate financial players that are "too big to fail."

The conservatives who support breaking up the banks may not share liberal values. Some merely see this issue as an opportunity to steal populist thunder from Democrats. Moreover, agreement about this issue does not mean that government should never be involved in supporting struggling industries.

Will and other conservatives were wrong in opposing the Obama administration's efforts to save the Big Three auto companies. Economists now widely acknowledge that this allowed hundreds, maybe thousands, of small auto parts manufacturers to stay afloat during an acute crisis, helping restore our economic stability.

In contrast, the big banks are purveyors of instability. The 2008 financial crisis clearly showed that their reckless schemes should not be underwritten with public guarantees of solvency. In this case, liberals and conservatives have a set of shared interests. That has created an opportunity for Washington to learn from its mistakes and take action to preempt future banking disasters.

Recognizing that the political climate is conducive to reform, Senators Sherrod Brown (D-OH) and David Vitter (R-LA) have teamed up to produce a bill — now moving on Capitol Hill — that, among other things, would require the biggest banks to have much higher cash reserves on hand. This would reduce the likelihood that their reserves would dip so low that taxpayers would have to bail them out in the event of a bad gamble. Brown sounded a populist call for ending the too-big-to-fail system, saying that doing so would "help Main Street community banks compete with Wall Street megabanks."

Other financial experts, like former FDIC chair Sheila Bair, see existing laws like Dodd-Frank as the best tools for downsizing the financial titans.

Whatever policy tools are best for the job, this is a rare moment of agreement between progressives and conservatives over a bold proposition. The biggest banks need to be broken up, and there's no better time to begin than now.

We miss you Chief!

To The Editor:

I appreciate Mr. Reihsen's letter (April 11) regarding former Fire Chief, Charles Young. I too have wondered about the sudden departure of Charlie, as he was such a visible, helpful and neighborly fixture here in Salado for so long. Last Summer, when I had a serious medical emergency, Charlie was the first one on the scene. His calm and capable demeanor went a long way towards allaying my fears while we waited for the ambulance to arrive. I can't begin to tell you, how welcome a sight he was walking through my front door that morning. I felt truly grateful to live in this wonderful little Village, where the first face you see in an emergency is one you know well and trust. I agree with Mr. Rei-hsen, that we all deserve some sort of closure as to why Chief Young was so inexplicably dismissed.

Charlie, if you're reading this, please know that you were and are very much appreciated and missed!

Askins of Salado, features 12 performers who dramatizing the written word from sources such as Aesop's Fables, children's classics and contemporary writings. A highlight of the evening will be Patrick Howard who has written and will read a short testimonial of his experiences as a student in the TLC literacy program.

Returning to the stage will be Paxton Howard, Marjie Rynearson, Karen and Merle Stalcup, D. Kirkland, Bill Jones, Grainer Esch, Bill Gaetano, Lanell Mikeska and Askins. A non-profit organization, the Council trains, places and supports 31 active volunteer tutors who are working with 40 active students in Temple and the surrounding area. Lady Eagles (#23 Salado and #5 Rogers) separate themselves from competition

In district softball, there are the #5 Rogers Lady Eagles and the #23 Salado Lady Eagles. And then there is everyone else. Salado proved this with crushing victories over Rosebud-Lott and Jarrell last week to hold on to their second place position in district.

Lady Eagles 13
Rosebud-Lott 0

Jenna Franz pitched a one-hitter and walked two as the Salado Lady Eagles mowed down the Rosebud-Lott Lady Cougars 13-0 on April 9. Franz struck out 11 batters in five innings on the mound.

Meanwhile, the Lady Eagles beat up the Rosebud pitcher with 13 hits, including four for extra bases.

Salado scored five runs in the first. After the first out was recorded, CeCe Cantu singled and moved two second when Malory Schattle walked. Shyenne Hicks scored both runners with a double and moved to third when Franz was thrown out at first by the second baseman for the second out. Chyenne Vaca walked to put runners at the corners. Morgan Hill tripled to deep right field to score the runners. Kristen Oakes singled to bring in Hill for the fifth run as Salado went through the order in the inning.

Cantu, who went three-for-three, doubled with one out in the second and moved to third on an error by the first baseman that allowed Schattle to reach first. Hicks singled, scoring the runner at third, and moved to second to try to put Schattle out. With runners at second and third, Franz singled scoring them both. She scored on a single to deep right field by Morgan Hill.

With a 9-0 lead, Salado added four more in the fourth inning. Maddie Suhling led off with a walk and Morgan Hill bunted. An error by the third baseman allowed Taylor West to turn a short grounder into two runs. West scored on a triple by Josie Norman. Norman scored on a single by Grace Tauferner before the final two outs were recorded.

Franz threw 74 pitches in the game, going through 18 batters and allowing only three to reach base.

Lady Eagles 15

Salado Lady Eagles collected 17 hits and 15 runs in their lopsided win (15-2) on the road against the Jarrell Lady Cougars on April 12.

The girls scored six runs in the second inning. Morgan Hill led off with a single and stole second base. She scored on a Josie Norman double. With two outs, CeCe Cantu doubled to score the runner at second. Malory Schattle followed with a double to bring Cantu across the plate. Schattle scored on a single by Shyenne Hicks. Jenna Franz doubled to score Hicks and she scored on a single by Vaca. Six Lady Eagles got hits in the inning, four of them for doubles.

The third inning followed pattern as six girls got hits and five crossed home plate. Kristen Oakes led off with a single. Norman singled to put runners at first and second. After an out was recorded, Cantu singled to score Oakes. Schattle singled to score Norman and Hicks knocked in two runners with a double. She scored on a single by Franz. The third out was finally recorded with runners at the corners.

Reagan Best led off the scoring in the fourth inning, hitting a one-out single. Cantu and Schattle walked to load the bases. An infield fly kept the runners on the bases and Franz hit to deep left for single, but an error on the play allowed all three runners to score and Franz to reach third, where she was left stranded.

Oakes scored Salado's only run in the fifth. She walked and eventually scored on Cantu's single.

Jarrell's only run came in the fourth inning, thanks to the only two hits of the game. B. Wright doubled and C. Sloan singled to score the runner.

Hicks faced 19 batters, striking out six of them. She allowed four walks and two hits.

Lady Eagles JV 16
Jarrell JV 1

Salado Lady Eagles

JV took advantage of six walks, a hit batter and five errors to overwhelm the Jarrell Lady Cougars JV squad 16-1 on the road April 12.

With only one hit in the first inning, a single for an RBI by Sommer Sloan, Salado was able to put four runners across the plate, thanks to three walks and two errors.

The sloppy play continued in the second as Salado added five more runs on just two hits. Jarrell walked and committed two errors to allowed runs to score. Grace Tauferner hit an RBI single and Sommer Sloan hit a single, but was left stranded at third base when the inning was called.

In the third, Jenna Wagnon and Tauferner both had RBI singles and Meagan Hill hit a two RBI double and stole third base, scoring on an error by the third baseman. Salado scored five runs in the third inning.

Sloan doubled to lead off the fourth. Walks were issued to load the bases and Sloan and Taylor West were forced to home on issued walks before the game ended on time.

Asleep at the Wheel comes to Salado April 26

Asleep at the Wheel will bring their Grammy award winning, Texas swing to Johnny's Outback April 26.

Texas swing band continues four decade journey on the road

Asleep at the Wheel has seen miles and miles of Texas. They got their kicks on Route 66. And, in 2010, the band clicked another milestone on the odometer – their 40th anniversary. Now in their 43rd year, the band continues to introduce the western swing genre to a new generation on tour and takes audiences on the ride of a lifetime with a recent documentary film “Then and Now.”

“It’s been an amazing ride. From Paw Paw to San Francisco to Austin, we’ve seen it all,” says Wheel front man Ray Benson. “But, rest assured, there is still so many exciting projects in the works. The Wheel keeps rolling!”

The Texas swing band will bring their sound to Salado for an outdoor concert at Johnny's Outback on April 26. Tickets are $15 per person and are available at the door and through the website, www.johnnysoutback.com.

The Wheel Gets Rolling “there’s some relatively unknown group around that I really dig. Asleep at the Wheel plays great country music.” Van Morrison in a Rolling Stone interview (1973)

It all started when Ray Benson, Floyd Domino, and Lucky Oceans, along with a Vermont farm boy named Leroy Preston; Virginian Chris O’Connell; and Gene Dobkin, a bass player and fellow classmate of Benson’s from Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio, joined forces. They began with a simple goal: to play and help revive American roots music.

Asleep at the Wheel landed a gig opening for Alice Cooper and Hot Tuna in Washington, DC in 1970. At the height of Vietnam, many Americans were using their choice of music to express their stance on the conflict in southeast Asia. “We wanted to break that mold,” said Benson. “We were concerned more with this amazing roots music, which we felt was being lost amid the politics. We were too country for the rock folks and we were too long-haired for the country folks. But everybody got over it once the music started playing.”

A year later, they were coaxed into moving to California by Commander Cody, leader of Commander Cody & His Lost Planet Airmen. But, the band’s big break came when Van Morrison mentioned them in an interview with Rolling Stone. The record offers started coming in and The Wheel got rolling.

80+ But Who’s Counting?

“We’re a dance band. That’s what we’re about. And that’s plenty.” Ray Benson

The musicianship of Asleep at the Wheel has become the stuff of legends. Reuter’s pegged The Wheel as “one of the best live acts in the business.” Taking a page from Bob Wills’ book, the band has constantly toured at a national level throughout its history; with anywhere from 7-15 of the finest players Ray Benson could talk into jumping in the bus to play a string of dates. The alumni roster is well over 80+ members, and includes an impressive list of musicians who have gone on to perform with artists such as Bob Dylan, Van Morrison, Lyle Lovett, Ryan Adams, and many more. A quick scan of awards, such as “Touring Band of the Year” (CMAs, 1976) and “Lifetime Achievement in Performance” (Americana Music Awards 2009), not to mention near dominance of the GRAMMY “Country Instrumental” category over the years, reflects the reputation of the band’s musicianship. Ray Benson fell in love with western swing because of its unique combination of elements of American blues, swing and traditional fiddling but also for its demanding musical chops. Western swing is what Benson calls “jazz with a cowboy hat,” is a thrill to hear live, and thanks in large part to the Wheel’s 40 years of promotion, is a living and creative genre of music today.

On the Records

“Everything this act has ever released is simply spectacular.” Billboard Magazine (2010)

Over their history, Asleep at the Wheel has garnered nine GRAMMY Awards and released more than 25 studio and live albums, and there is no sign of slowing down any time soon. Just last year they earned a Grammy nomination in the newly minted Best Americana Album category for their critically acclaimed Willie & The Wheel, on Bismieux Records. Most recently, another collaborative project paired the band with the legendary lead from Bob Wills & The Texas Playboys, Leon Rausch. The distinguished velvety vocals that voiced the King of western swing partnered with “post-modern kings of Texas Swing” on It’s A Good Day, which USA Today called, “swing from the heavens.” It was Leon who first suggested to Ray in the 1970’s that The Wheel record Get Your Kicks (on Route 66). The Wheel has now recorded the hit 4 times in 4 different decades, with this latest version featuring Leon.

From Dance Halls to Concert Halls

“A Swinging Symphony” -Fort Worth Star Telegram
Any band that spends upwards of 250 days on the road each year is more than likely to have seen its fair share of dives, gin joints, biker bars, clubs, auditoriums, dance halls and the like. The Wheel is no exception. Another place Wheel fans have more recently discovered the music has been in symphony halls. Originally debuted in collaboration with the Austin Symphony, the Wheel has since gone on to present their pops program in select performances across the country, and even released a CD in 2006 of their performance with the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra.

Throughout their four decades the Wheel has driven the genre to the edge, explored new territories, picked up new passengers along the way and crisscrossed the country to the delight of fans and critics alike. And, even though they’re doing “forty,” there’s no chance of slowing down now.

Paint the Ranch Red Annual event at Tenroc April 20 raises funds to fight heart disease

"Paint the Ranch Red" at Salado's Tenroc Ranch will benefit the Bell County Division of the American Heart Association on April 20. Tickets and sponsorships are still available for the event, which raises money for the nation's oldest and largest voluntary health organization, dedicated to fighting heart disease and stroke, the American Heart Association.

The aim of the American Heart Association is to build healthier lives by preventing, treating and defeating heart disease and stroke, which are America's No. 1 and No. 3 killers.

With a performance by Brian Gowan, Paint the Ranch Red promises to be a "Night Under the Texas Stars" gala event. Members of the committee are finalizing this year's Texas Chic party that will again be held at Tenroc Ranch in Salado. The event, sponsored by Scott & White Healthcare, is scheduled in the Blue Heron Room on April 20. The silent auction and cocktail hour will begin at 6 p.m. Guests will enjoy a delectable dinner prepared by The Range of Salado.

The night will conclude with an intimate performance by singer/songwriter Brian Gowan.

Live auction items will include a weeklong stay on lovely Gaspe Peninsula in Quebec and an Appaloosa Foal. Silent auction items lined up for the evening include a native stone table and benches, a Hilton vacation getaway, scenic aerial tour, custom designed jewelry pieces, Hill Country golf package, and many more.

The proceeds of the event will go toward the American Heart Association to advance its not-for-profit mission of building healthier lives, free from cardiovascular diseases and stroke. These dollars will fund research, advocacy efforts, professional and public education, community service programs and support services. Approximately 75 percent of the money raised stays within the local community. "It is vital for us to continue to raise money for the American Heart Association and get our community involved in the fight," states Chairwoman of the event Susan Holmes.

Sponsorships and tickets are still available and can be obtained from any of the committee members. Individual tickets to the event are $125 or $225 for a couple. Or you can secure a sponsored table of 8 for $1,000.

The Presenting Sponsor is Scott & White Healthcare. Leading sponsors for the event include: Metroplex Cardiac and Vascular Center, Tenroc Ranch,

Little strokes fell great oaks

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

Choosing the best line of play sometimes requires exceptionally fine judgment. In most cases, however, the correct approach is clear-cut, although not necessarily apparent.

For example, suppose you're in four spades on this deal and West leads a diamond. You win with the ace, and the question is how to proceed. It seems obvious that you should try to ruff a club in dummy to acquire a 10th trick, but this is much easier said than done.

Let's say you lead a low club at trick two to pave the way for a club ruff in dummy. In that case, East would win with the nine and return a trump. He does not have to be a genius to figure out what you're planning to do. Your best bet would be to finesse, but West unfortunately wins with the king and returns a trump. Eventually you go down one.

However, this is the wrong way to play the hand. The right play at trick two is the king of clubs, not a low club! Observe the effect of this play if West has the ace, which would happen about half the time. In the actual case, West takes the king with the ace but is helpless.

He can return a trump, which you'd win, but when you next led a second club, West would find himself stymied. If he won the trick, he would then be faced with the unhappy choice of letting you ruff a club in dummy or sacrificing his sure trump trick by leading a second trump. And if East won the club instead, he would have no trump to return.

The king-of-clubs lead at trick two is not something that springs readily to mind, but it nevertheless less substantially increases your chances of making the contract.

THIS IS A HAMMER

By SAMANTHA MAZZOTTA

Q: Hi, first-time painter here. My dad offered some advice to my roommate and I on painting our apartment, such as putting down dropcloths and stirring the paint really well. Is there any other key information we need so we do a good job? The landlord won't be happy if we mess it up! -- Keri C., Tallahassee, Fla.

A: Preparation is the biggest part of painting. It can be maddening getting everything ready to paint, but if you do it right, putting down each coat is really satisfying. You'll doubtless hear much more advice from friends and relatives on how to do the best job, but here are some key points:

--Get clearance from the landlord or building management before painting. Just as importantly, pay attention to and follow any specific instructions, such as which colors to use.

--Prepare the room(s): Remove as much furniture and stuff as possible. Move what remains to the center of the room and cover with dropcloths or old sheets. Cover the floor or carpets with overlapping dropcloths.

--Prepare the walls: Take down pictures and carefully remove nails and screws; fill the small holes with spackling compound and let dry for 24 hours before sanding smooth.

--Remove cover plates from wall switches and outlets; cover window and door hardware with plastic or remove the hardware (if it's easy to put back on). Cover light fixtures with plastic shopping bags and secure with masking tape.

--Brush away loose plaster, cobwebs, dirt and peeling paint. Sand bumpy areas smooth using fine-grit sandpaper. Wash the walls with a sponge dampened in a light soap-and-water mix or wall-cleaning product, and let dry.

--Use blue painter's tape (which is less sticky than masking tape) to mask off window and door trim, and other areas where you don't want paint to go.

--Assemble all the stuff you need to paint: Not just an assortment of brushes and rollers, but paint trays, stirring sticks (usually available free with paint purchase) and old rags or towels for cleanup.

--Save money not by picking the cheapest paint, but by purchasing the exact amount you need. How to do that? Measure the square footage of each wall (length times height) and total the numbers.

--Use primer if you don't know what type of paint is currently on the walls, or if you're covering glossy paint with matte paint or vice versa, or if the old paint is darker than the new paint.

Once prepped, you're ready to paint! Follow some tried-and-true methods for laying down paint: Start high and work on one wall at a time. Use a foam edger or a brush to paint a border about 3 inches wide where the wall meets the ceiling. Then start rolling on paint, using a "W" pattern in various directions until the wall is covered. Once the walls are done, paint the trim, windows and finally the doors, if you're painting them.

HOME TIP: To prevent tracking paint out of an area, wear a pair of old shoes while painting; step out of them and into clean shoes at the edge of the paint area when leaving.
