50¢ ty management approved

Beginning Aug. 1, Salado will have city management through a contract signed by Mayor Danney McCort and Central Texas Council of Governments executive director Jim Reed last week.

The board of aldermen reviewed the contract, scope of work and job description during a workshop session after legal review by the City Attorney Alan Bojorquez and finalized the agreement by directing McCort to sign the contract.

On a motion by Shannon Ashe, aldermen voted 5-1 to accept the contract that has been reviewed and approved by attorney with CTCOG and have sign it. Hans Fields voted against and Mayor McCort ioined Ashe, Fred Brown, Bryan Fritch and Michael McDougal voting in favor.

By the contract, CT-COG will provide a contract city manager to the Village of Salado for eight hours weekly in the village office. CTCOG would open a satellite office in the Village of Salado for 40 hours weekly in the village office. An economic development planner who is currently a CTCOG staff member would man the office 40 hours per

The Contract City Manager will attend all Board of Aldermen and Planning and Zoning meetings unless prior notification is given the mayor.

Reed would be authorized by adopted resolution to represent the Village of Salado and carry out the duties of a City Manager.

The contract would be for six months and renewable after that. The first six month period would be $28,800 payable to CT-COG. Monthly payments of $4,800 per month would be made for the second six month period.

In other business, aldermen approved an interlocal agreement with CTCOG which will provide a generator at no cost to the Village to provide electricity to the municipal building during emergency outages.

Service nounced nearly $32 million in grants to 20 states to help advance their collaborative efforts to conserve America's rarest species. One of those grants will go to Solana Ranch to provide proection for Salado salamander, which is likely to be added to the Endangered Species The cooperative grants will provide vital support to efforts by partnering state wildlife agencies and conservation organizations to improve the health of the land and water that supports these species and scores of communities across the nation.

One of this year's grants will provide the Solana Ranch Preserve with

This funding will allow the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to acquire a conservation easement on a 256-acre tract located in Bell County to benefit the Salado salamander.

The acquisition will provide protection for the species in three of the seven springs in which it is known to occur.

Acquisition of the Solana Ranch Preserve will protect an area of 75 percent of the proposed critical habitat units for this species in the Service's Southwest Region.

The acquisition will also protect the quality of cave and spring water, minimize ground water pollution, protect groundwater and spring flow, and exclude cattle and feral

Almost football season

Salado students and coaches turned out this week for the Salado summer football camp, a prelude to the coming of fall and the football season. This week's camp was divided into two sessions each day, morning sessions for the younger students and afternoon sessions for seventh through ninth graders. Next week, volleyball camp will be held in the Salado High gym. Camps will be July 29-Aug. 21 9-11 a.m. for incoming fifth through seventh graders; and 1-3 p.m. for incoming eighth through ninth graders. For information call 947-6900, ext. 1075. The week after that, two-a-days begin for SHS football players on Aug. 5. (Photos By Royce Wiggin)

Midnight Madness

Annual run will raise money for sneakers for students

Salado will again be a chance to give a running hosting the coolest 5K in Central Texas - the Midnight Madness Down Main 5K run. This race gathers at 11:30 p.m. Aug. 2 with the firing pistol starting the race at 12:01 a.m. Aug. 3 in the Brookshire Brothers parking lot.

Over 180 have already signed up for the midnight run down Main. Only those who pre-register will be guaranteed to receive a T-shirt for the event.

As part of the Midnight Madness, the Salado Chamber of Commerce is proud to present "Sneakers For Students."

Sneakers for Students is start to the school year for school aged children that cannot afford new PE shoes in the Salado School District. Partnering with Communities in Schools, the Salado Chamber of Commerce Midnight Madness will take a portion of every sponsorship and participant to buy new athletic shoes for the kids that cannot afford new

This is the third installment of the extremely popular 5K run, in the middle of the night, down beautiful Main Street Salado. The streets are lined with volunteers and a "cheer squad" staying up late to encourage runners and walkers alike. Main Street will glow like a landing strip, lighting the way for the competitors.

The entry fee for the Midnight Madness Down Main 5K is $25 for adults and $15 for students, active duty military/dependents and veterans. Registration is open until time of race; no late fees will be incurred. However, registrations after the due date of July 26 may not receive an event t-shirt. Find the application online at www.salado.com or call 254-947-5040.

Plaques tell story of historic Salado College

By TIM FLEISCHER EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Robertson Colony-Salado College Foundation members have placed seven narrative plaques along a walkpath around the ruins of Salado College as one more step towards its goal of operating and maintaining the ruins of the 1859 Salado College as a public park.

The narratives, written by the Foundation members Bill Kinnison, Dr. David Yeilding and Nancy Kelsey, were designed and manufactured by Sign-Craft in Nashville, a company owned by Sterling Ambrose.

Ambrose is a direct descendent of Col. E.S.C. Robertson, who donated the 100 acres that was divided into lots and sold Doris Kemp, president of the Robertson Colony-Salado College Foundation looks over one of the seven narrative plaques that have been placed on the walkpath on the grounds of the Salado College ruins on South Main St. The plaques help tell the story of the Salado College rise and fall and of its connections to Texas history, including educating a future Texas governor James Ferguson. for the town of Salado. The sale of those lots helped generate money to build the frontier college.

The College had a rollercoaster history that included being the first location for Salado Masonic Lodge meetings (Robertson was also the founding Master of Salado Masonic Lodge in 1867), a private high school called Thomas Arnold High School and a part of the public school system.

The third fire caused the community of Salado to abandon its hopes of using the old College as a public school. At that point, the Hamblen family donated the land that the "old red schoolhouse" was built on further north on Main St. For many years, the Ruins declined until the Robertson Colony-Salado College Foundation was formed in the 1970s with the purpose of securing the ruins and making the 6.5 acre property suitable for use as a public park and historical site.

That Foundation, without funds or support, also dwindled to the point of near extinction. For many years, the ruins of Salado College were under the protection of the Central Texas Area Museum.

In 2011, the Robertson Colony-Salado College Foundation took responsibility for the ruins once again and a board rededicated itself to the original purpose of the Foundation.

The Robertson Colony-Salado College Foundation, under the leadership of its president, Dr. Doris 365 days have past since you all went to live with Jesus.I think of you and the boys every day and I always will.

I want you to know that even though you are not physically here with me, you continue to live on in my heart. And in my heart you will remain until we embrace at heaven's gate.

I love you my daughter and grandsons, always and forever.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Wendy Davis, Abortion Extremist

Wendy Davis is the country's most prominent defender of late-term abortions. What Rosa Parks was to desegregation, what Eunice Kennedy Shriver was to respect for the disabled, what Elizabeth Cady Stanton was to women's suffrage, the Texas state senator is to abortion after 20 weeks of fetal development.

Texas just passed a law banning abortion after that point, a measure supported by the public and by common sense, but not by the stalwart Davis. For her trouble, she has been accorded fawning media coverage and showered with $1 million in donations, showing that abortion radicalism sells in America -- so long as it is pro-abortion radicalism.

A ban after 20 weeks, near the end of the second trimester, represents a minor restriction on abortion by any reasonable standard. Many European countries, which we tend to consider laxer on such matters, ban abortion well before 20 weeks. In Belgium and France, abortion is banned after 12 weeks.

Davis likes to say that than 1 percent of abortions in Texas take place the 20th week or later, without realizing how that damns her own case. By her own admission, she is not even willing to give up 1 percent of abortions.

The 20-week benchmark isn't arbitrary. By Rich Lowry then, the latest research suggests that fetuses feel pain, respected University of Utah expert Maureen Condic recently testified before Congress. It is her view that fetuses "deserve the benefit of the doubt regarding their experience of pain and protection from cruelty under the law."

The public basically believes the same thing. In Texas, a University of Texas/Texas Tribune poll found 62 percent of people support the ban. Nationwide, even a recent HuffPost/YouGov found that 59 percent support a ban after 20 weeks.

There is nothing outlandish or -- assuming its supporters don't make suicidally stupid rhetorical mistakes -- politically risky about the Texas law. It includes an exception for the health of the mother and for extreme fetal abnormality.

Wendy Davis always couches her position, of course, in terms of reproductive "health." In the very same breath, though, she opposes a provision of the Texas law requiring that abortion clinics meet the same standards as outpatient surgical centers. Since abortion involves outpatient surgery, this would seem an uncontroversial measure, especially given that Democrats favor the strict regulation of practically every other business and activity in America.

The provision is drawn from the recommendations of the Gosnell grand-jury report that wanted tighter controls to prevent the kind of butchery that it had investigated from happening again. The requirements, like wider hallways, aren't frivolous. One of Kermit Gosnell's "patients" bled to death because his clinic couldn't properly accommodate a hospital gurney. Whistle-blowers from an abortion clinic in Houston have told horror stories reminiscent of Gosnell's unspeakable practices.

If the balance of the Democratic Party weren't invested in protecting abortion as a kind of secular sacrament -- "sacred ground," as Nancy Pelosi calls it -- it would recoil from Wendy Davis in embarrassment. Instead, it lionizes her. And why not? She exemplifies its moral and political bankruptcy on this is-

Exceptionally Mediocre on a Global Scale

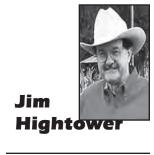

America became great through deliberate and determined public investments in THE COMMON GOOD, NOT HOCUS-POCUS EXCEPTIONALISM.

America the Beautiful! America the Greatest! We're No. 1, right?

Absolutely, naturally, and indisputably. At least that's the theocratic pronouncement of far-rightwing nativists who preach the dogma of American "exceptionalism." Thev use the concept as a notto-be-questioned litmus test of our patriotism.

Never mind that on many crucial measures of national achievements, our Good Ol' U.S. of A has slipped in recent years. A simple-minded assertion that we're No. 1 doesn't make it so.

For example, the U.S. rate of educational improvement — a bedrock indicator of a nation's future ability to thrive has tumbled to 25th place among rich and newly developing nations. (Say it Loud and Say it Proud: We're No. 25!).

Not only does that place us behind such education powerhouses as Germany. We're lagging behind Colombia, Latvia, Portugal, and Slovenia too.

Yes, America remains the world's richest nation. Yet our wealth is more concentrated in the hands of a rich elite than most other other nations. Even China has a more democratic distribution of riches than our society does.

Health care? We're in 37th place and ranked dead last among wealthy democracies. The quality of America's infrastructure ranks a poor 25th. In a category that not long ago was a source of great national strength and pride, our middle class is being hollowed out.

In the past century, America became great not by merely believing in some hocus-pocus exceptionalism, but by achieving greatness through deliberate and determined public investments in the common good. That's our true path back to being No.

Medicare: Improving Lives for 48 Years

By Tim Morstad, AARP Texas

July 30 marks the 48th anniversary of Medicare, the national health insurance program for Americans 65 and older, signed into law by Texas' own President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1965 as an amendment to the Social Security Act.

At the signing, President Johnson noted that, "every citizen will be able, in his productive years when he is earning, to insure himself against the ravages of illness in his old age." Indeed, for nearly half a century, Medicare has lifted millions of older Americans out of poverty and has provided them with a safety net that they have rightly earned.

Today, Medicare provides affordable health coverage to roughly 52 million Americans, allowing them to lead more productive lives. Yet Medicare has reached a critical juncture. According to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, the Medicare trust fund will be exhausted in 2026. Politicians have used this statistic as a against millions of Americans who rely on Medicare. If we don't cut benefits for today's retirees, they say, benefits will cease to exist for future retirees.

Two years ago, AARP kicked off a national listening initiative, You've Earned a Say, to ensure the millions of Americans who pay into Medicare have a voice in the debate over its future. Millions of our members have sent a clear message to Washington: We should not balance the federal budget on the backs of our nation's

Due to rising health care costs and changing demographics, Medicare faces real challenges, and we at AARP are tackling these challenges head on. We've said that we can reduce costs throughout the health care system, by clamping down on high drug prices, by improving care coordination and the use of technology and by cutting over-testing, waste and fraud. These commonsense solutions will ensure the longevity of Medicare so that seniors can continue to receive the affordable health care they deserve.

It's important to note that the Affordable Care Act has already extended the life of Medicare by implementing key reforms that will save $500 billion over the next 10 years. From curtailing exorbitant payments to private insurers to cracking down on fraud and abuse, Washington has shown that it can accomplish real savings intelligently and responsibly, without cutting benefits for current or future

In order to reduce high prescription drug prices, ceutical companies from gaming the system. Right now, some brand name drug companies are driving up the cost of health care by entering into agreements with generic drug companies, paying them to delay bringing a competing product to the market. Moreover, Medicare should be allowed to negotiate with pharmaceutical companies for lower drug costs, which isn't permissible under current law. Allowing Medicare to use the bargaining power of its 52 million beneficiaries to negotiate for lower prescription drug prices, particularly for high-priced brand name drugs, could save money for seniors and reduce the cost of health

we also must stop pharma-

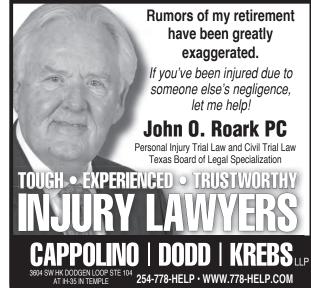

Improving care coordination is essential to making sure patients receive safe, high-quality care. We can do this by creating systems that better connect doctors and health care facilities and take advantage of advanced information technology. More effective care coordination will also reduce medical errors and help prevent dangerous, preventable hospital readmissions while also ensuring patients are getting recommended care and saving taxpayer dollars.

It is estimated that Medicare could save hundreds of billions of dollars by reducing waste and stepping up fraud detection. For example, Medicare currently pays all health claims and then has to chase down providers if an error or fraud is detected--and too often the improper payment is never recovered. By improving technology, we can flag fraudulent claims before they are paid. We can also use technology to crack down on criminals who file false Medicare claims. By removing personalized information from Medicare identification cards, we can develop new cards that can track and confirm that Medicare is being billed for only those services a patient receives.

The proposals we are advocating for are not gimmicks but solutions that will improve and strengthen Medicare today and for future generations. Medicare has been successful for nearly half a century and is still a success today. If Washington takes the necessary steps, Medicare can be strengthened and improved for the next generation of seniors. By doing so, we can, in the words of President Johnson, "reaffirm the greatness of America."

Salado College

Kemp, and vice-president Ronnie Wells, has worked with local organizations to take College Hill to the next level. Working with Salado organizations and individuals such as the Salado Historical Society, Central Texas Area Museum, the Texas Historical Commission and Baylor University's Department of Anthropology, Forensic Sciences and Archeology, the Foundation continues to pursue its long-awaited goal to make College Hill a public, informative and beautiful site for the citizens of Salado and its many visitors.

Some of those more recent efforts include these:

• Fourth-generation Saladoan Allen Sirois repairing the walkways and steps leading up to the College Ruins as his Eagle Scout project.

- An excavation by the Texas Historical Commission archeologists in which the foundation of the old well that supplied the water to Salado College was uncovered.
- Planting of beds of native plants and other landscaping by local volunteers, including Fort Hood soldiers.
- Lighting of the ruins by Alan Goodnight.
- Clearing a path and making a gravel walkway around the ruins by members of the Salado and Belton Masonic Lodges.

Belton Masonic Lodge laid the original cornerstone in the northeast corner of the Salado College in 1860. The Salado Masonic Lodge relaid a cornerstone on the ruins after they were secured in 1989. That restoration was led by Tim Brown with funding by the Salado Historical Society and saved the Ruins so that they exist today.

Brown said that the primary effort was to excavate the footprint of the original building and its 1870 northern annex (which was actually larger than the original building).

Where the rocks of the foundation were crumbling beyond repair, they were replaced with similar rock from the "rubble" of the ruins.

The 1991 Phase II also included leveling the ground around the ruins to make it safe for walking.

The placement of the narratives is just one of many steps in the continuing process of honoring the role that Salado College played not just in the forming of Salado but in the history of the state.

The Salado Knights T-ball team qualified for the state tournament, winning the District tournament in Rogers July 16-19. The Knights were 11-1 in district play and 4-0 in the tournament. The Knights beat Rosebud in the first round, the Salado White Cats in the second and Rosebud again in the final round. The Knights beat Rosebud in seven innings 43-42 in the final game to go undefeated at the District level. The Knights have qualified for the T-ball State Tournament this week in Emory, Texas. ABWA conference Aug. 3

American Business Women's Association will hold its 18th Annual Central Texas Women's Leadership Conference in Killeen on Aug. 3. This event affords women an opportunity to learn, grow and connect with professional women from across the state. The registration is $25 and includes three education sessions, lunch, goody bag and shopping with vendors.

Register on line at centexabwa.com. The 8:30 a.m.- 2 p.m. event will be held at Central Texas College Anderson Campus Center (Building 156).

Rhonda K. Shabazz will be one of two speakers addressing effective ways of communicating and interacting with others.

Stephanie Legree-Roberts, Director of Student Success and Persistence at CTC and supervisor of the college's Academic Studio-Student Success Center, will speak on the value of what you do and how to make it work for you.

Curt Strong, treasurer of Mill Creek Community Association, presents Larry Nathanson a $500 check from the Association to assist the Creek Cleanup Crew with its plans for cleaning the vegetation, debris and rock that has accumulated at the low water crossing at the one lane bridge in Mill Creek. The Creek Cleanup Crew of Nathanson, Joe Oliver, Bill Pinkston, Harold Ellis and Danney McCort spent dozens of hours cleaning up the debris and gravel from Salado Creek as a result of recent floods. As a result of their work then, the Salado Chamber of Commerce named them the Citizens of the Year. The volunteers are wanting to address the overgrowth of vegetation that is choking the creek at the low water crossing. Donations to their effort allow them to rent heavy equipment. McDaniel wraps up Singer Songwriter Series

The Summer Singer-Songwriter Series at Stagecoach Inn will end on a high note this weekend with a July 27 concert featuring Jenna McDaniel.

The last show of the series will will start at 6:30 p.m. in the Stagecoach Saloon. Admission is free.

The Currently ranking #1 on the local country charts, Jenna McDaniel has performed in venues from Texas to Nashville. With her guitar in hand, she has shared her talent either as the headliner or the opening act for the likes of Cory Morrow, Roger Creager, Jason Boland, Aaron Watson, Wade Bowen, Rick Trevino, and John David Kent.

McDaniel has loved music from as far back as she can remember. She wrote her first song when she was only ten and picked up her first guitar at twelve years old. Her public debut to the music scene came in 2011, when she was invited to open for Cory Morrow. As you know, she didn't stop there.

With a thirst for expanding her skills and knowledge in the music industry, McDaniel spends extensive time every month writing, training, and performing in Nashville, Tennessee. Her artist development team has prepped the careers of chart-toppers Shania Twain, The Band Perry, Dixie Chicks, and Leann Rimes.

With a busy development and performing schedule, Jenna still finds time to give back to the community by volunteering for nonprofits and fundraisers. You may see her around town helping the Ronald McDonald House, Love Cures, or the Temple Jaycees. More information can be found at jennamcdaniel.com.

In February, Stagecoach Inn will bring back its monthly Music series in the Longhorn Room. The series welcomes Stagecoach Inn guests and the general public for a wide variety of family entertainment.

Jenna McDaniel began writing songs at age 10. This Central Texas singer and songwriter has opened for Aaron Watson, Rick Trevino and Cory Morrow. McDaniel will perform at Stagecoach Saloon July 27.

Weekend Concert and Lodging Packages as well as table reservations are available. For more information, call 254-947-5111.

Established in 1860, the Stagecoach Inn has served countless travelers and locals with lodging and dining. Stagecoach Inn is located at 401 South Stagecoach Road with an additional entrance on Main Street at the creek.

Star watchers will look at a black hole in the center of the galaxy as well as globular clusters of stars at Overlook Park outside Belton. CTAS members will provide telescopes for public viewing. Guests are also welcome to bring their own telescopes.

The center of the Milky Way galaxy is a mere 20,000 light years away, located between the Teapot asterism of Sagittarius and Scorpius. The massive black hole at the center of our galaxy is about 4.3 million times the mass of the sun. While much of the central bulge is obscured by clouds of dust, star watchers can see Messier 7, an open cluster in the foreground, about 980 light years distant. Of the 29 globular clusters listed in the Messier catalog, 10 are located in these two constellations.

The Butterfly Cluster (M6) is an open cluster of about 80 stars, located 1600 light years away and is 12 light years in diameter. Messier 22 is one of the brightest globular clusters, containing more than 70,000 stars and located 10,000 light years from the earth. Messier 4, a close globular cluster only 7200 light years distant, is very easy to find, being very near the bright star Antares.

Check the website, http://www.centexastronomy.org, for directions to the site and for more information.

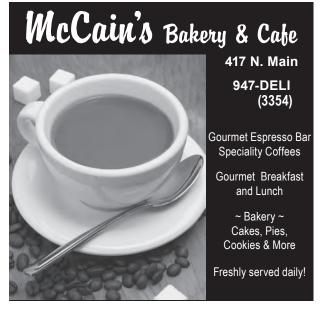

If this event is canceled due to weather, a cancellation notice will be posted by 7 p.m. on the CTAS website. You may register on-line for this event and receive monthly notices of future events.

♣AJ108 The bidding: East West North South 2♥ 1 NT Opening lead — ten of hearts.

♦ K Q J

A matter of logic

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

This deal occurred in a pair championship. The contract at every table was three notrump, and in each case declarer failed to make it. However, subsequent analysis showed that the contract should have been made.

The play was fairly uniform at the various tables. West led a heart, and declarer won East's jack with the queen. After cashing four club tricks, declarer led either a spade or a diamond. West took the ace of whichever suit was led and returned the king of hearts.

South could now have cashed eight tricks, but at some tables, when he attempted to establish a ninth trick, West took his other ace and ran his hearts to put the contract down two.

All the plays seem so normal that it is difficult to see where declarer went wrong. But the fact is that each declarer missed an opportunity to make the contract.

The winning play is to allow East to win the opening heart lead with the jack! Once South does this, the contract cannot be stopped.

Let's assume East returns a diamond. West takes the ace, but what can he do next? If he returns a heart, declarer scores the queen and finishes with 10 tricks; with any other return, South drives out the spade ace and winds up with nine tricks.

It can be argued that ducking the jack of hearts is easy to do when all 52 cards are in view, but actually the play can be supported by simple logic.

It is certainly reasonable to credit West with both missing aces as well as a six-card suit for his vulnerable overcall. Furthermore, the six-card suit must be assumed since the contract cannot be made if West has only five hearts (and both aces), whether or not declarer wins the first heart.

All indications thus point clearly to ducking the jack of hearts at trick one.

CHOCOLATE SWIRL MERINGUE COOKIES

These heavenly cookies will have everyone applauding. Their light, barely-there texture, deep chocolate flavor and orange fragrance make for a show-stopper.

7 ounces bittersweet chocolate, melted 8 egg whites

2 cups brown sugar

per; set aside.

1/8 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon orange zest

Preheat oven to 275°F. Line two large baking sheets with parchment pa-

Pour enough water into a medium pot to reach a depth of about 2 inches; bring to a simmer. Whisk egg whites, sugar, salt and orange zest together in a heatproof bowl that easily sits on top of the pot. Arrange bowl over simmering water and cook, whisking constantly, until mixture is hot throughout and begins to thicken, about 5 minutes. (If mixture seems to be getting hot too quickly, check the water to make sure it's not boiling. Briefly remove the bowl from the pot to let the contents cool slightly before continuing,

if needed.)

Transfer hot egg mixture to a large bowl and beat with an electric mixer (fit with a whisk attachment) on mediumhigh speed until stiff peaks form, 8 to 10 minutes. Gradually add melted chocolate, folding the mixture together just until the chocolate is swirled in.

Using a large spoon, drop about 1/3 cup of the batter onto the prepared baking sheets to form each cookie, making sure to space them about 2 inches apart. Swirl the top of each cookie with the back of a small spoon to form a peak, if you like. Bake until dried out but still a bit chewy on the inside, about 40 minutes. Set aside to let cool, then serve.

powder 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1/4 teaspoon salt 1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg

In a large bowl with an electric mixer at medium speed, beat butter, sugar, molasses and vanilla together until light and fluffy. Beat in egg until well blended. In a separate bowl combine flour, ginger, baking powder, cinnamon, salt and nutmeg. With mixer at low speed, beat flour mixture into butter mixture to blend well. Divide dough in half and shape into two discs. Wrap in waxed paper and chill until firm, at least 1 hour or overnight.

Preheat oven to 350°F. Dust work surface and rolling pin lightly with flour. Working with one disc of dough at a time, roll out dough to 1/4-inch thick and cut out cookies with floured cookie cutters. Transfer cookies to parchment paper-lined baking sheets, spacing them 1 inch apart, and bake until lightly browned, 10 to 12 minutes. Transfer cookies to a wire rack to cool. Decorate as desired and store in an airtight container.

CHOCOLATE ALMOND MACAROONS

Crisp on the outside and chewy on the inside, these cookies have a delightful chocolate almond flavor.

1 1/2 cup sliced almonds 4 ounces semisweet chocolate, broken into pieces 4 large egg whites 1/2 cup unbleached evaporated cane sugar 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract 1/2 teaspoon almond extract

Preheat the oven to 300°F. Spread the sliced almonds evenly on a sheet pan and toast for 10 minutes, checking often to make sure the nuts aren't burning. Remove from oven. When nuts are cool, grind them finely in a food processor and set aside.

Gently melt the semisweet chocolate pieces in the top bowl of a double boiler. Whisk thoroughly when melted, and set aside.

In a mixing bowl, whip the egg whites until soft peaks form when the beater is lifted. Slowly pour in the sugar and the vanilla and almond extracts. Continue beating until stiff peaks form, and the egg whites are thick and sticky.

Use a spatula to gently fold one-half of the egg whites into the chocolate mixture. When just combined, carefully fold in onehalf of the ground almonds. Repeat the process ending with the ground almonds.

Gently scoop rounded tablespoons of batter into mounds about 2 inches across, evenly spaced, onto 2 parchment paper-lined baking sheets.

Bake on racks in the middle of the oven for 30 minutes. After 15 minutes, switch the baking sheets in the oven for even baking. Immediately transfer cookies to a wire rack to cool.

rises not letting up

Sea level

Dear EarthTalk: Hurricane Sandy brought more sea water onto shorelines than I'd ever witnessed before and many communities near where I live are now being required to raise their homes up. What is the prognosis for sea level rise in the years immediately ahead?

Scott P., Fairfield, CT Since sea level measurements were first recorded, in 1870, global averages have risen almost eight inches. The annual rate of rise has been 0.13 inches over the past 20 years, which is close to twice the average from the previous 80 years. Future estimates for sea levels vary according to region but most Earth scientists agree that sea levels are expected to rise at a greater pace than during the last 50 years.

Predicting the amount of rise is an inexact science and depends on many factors including climate change and ice sheet flows. The U.S. National Research Council predicts a possible sea level rise of between 22 and 29 inches over the 21st century in the U.S. Sea levels are anticipated to continue rising for

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), land elevation changes also have a large impact on the effects of rising water levels. Subsidence (sinking) or uplift

Most Earth scientists agree that future sea levels will rise at a greater pace than during the last 50 years. Coastal communities will suffer the most, as flooding from rising water levels will force millions of people out of their homes. (rising) of the land can help determine the relative sea level rise. The EPA's relative sea level estimates, assuming a two foot global sea level rise by 2100, are 2.3 feet at New York City, 2.9 feet at Hampton Roads, Virginia, 3.5 feet at Galveston, Texas and one foot at Neah Bay in Washington state.

The main factors contributing to sea level rise are thermal expansion (created by an increase in ocean water temperatures) and the melting of ice caps and glaciers. Human activities, such as the burning of fossil fuels, combined with natural activities, have contributed to the rise of the earth's surface temperature over the past century. According to National Geographic, about 80 percent of this additional heat is absorbed by the oceans. The above factors are well studied. but more research is still being done on how climate change will impact large ice sheets in areas such as Greenland and the Antarctic. An extra foot of sea level rise could be a possibility depending on what happens with these larger ice sheets.

from 5C

Even small changes in sea levels can have adverse effects on coastal areas. Erosion, flooding of wetlands, aquifer and agricultural soil contamination and habitat loss for fish, birds and plants are all problems resulting from rising sea levels. Also, higher sea levels usually mean more destructive weather events as storm surges get bigger and more powerful and devastate everything in their way. Coastal communities will suffer the most, as flooding from rising water levels will force millions of people out of their homes.

As for what can be done, reducing our collective carbon footprint is no doubt the first and most important step. Individuals should drive and fly less, walk and bicycle more and take advantage of public transit. But sweeping policy changes will have the most impact: A recent commitment by the Obama White House to require coal-burning power plants and other large industrial operations to minimize greenhouse gas emissions should finally help get the United States started on the right track, but many wonder if such moves represent too little too late.

Adjusting a pilot light

THIS IS A HAMMER By Samantha Mazzotta

Q: I have an older gas furnace in my home upstairs that works very well, but I haven't had it maintained it in a few years. I think the pilot light looks weak, but there's no setting for a higher flame. How can I improve the pilot light flame? -- Nancy in Buffalo, N.Y.

A: There is a way to control the height of the pilot light flame. Next to the "Pilot" indicator on the furnace's control switch, there is a small screw located near the pilot lightthermocouple assembly. I'll typically shine a small flashlight and use a magnifying glass to read the imprinted type on the control housing to make sure that's the right screw.

With the pilot light burning, use a Phillipshead screwdriver to carefully turn the screw one way and then the other, watching the pilot light to see if it gets stronger or weaker. The flame should be angling toward a nearby object that looks like a small vertical pipe: This is called the thermocouple, an important safety device. If the pilot light goes out, the thermocouple detects it and shuts the valve supplying gas to the pilot. The pilot flame should touch the thermocouple at a specific level. If the flame is blue and weak. and barely reaches the thermocouple, it needs to be stronger. If it extends well above the thermocouple, it's too strong. If the flame covers the top of the thermocouple and burns steadily with a yellow tip, that's just about right. What if the pilot light won't stay lighted? If the assembly looks OK, turn off the gas supply at the nearest valve and try heating the thermocouple using a match for about 30 seconds to a minute. Then relight the pilot.

If that doesn't work, replace the thermocouple by carefully unscrewing it from the control housing using an open-ended wrench, being careful not to ding or bend the supply pipe or the pilot-light assembly. Install a new thermocouple by screwing it in, heating it up a bit, and then lighting the pilot.

Keep in mind that this task can be a little frustrating, because you're almost always working in a cramped, hard-to-access spot. Be patient and take frequent breaks if necessary, rather than compromise safety or damage the HOME TIP: Make sure you know exactly where the main shutoffs for your home's gas, water and electrical supply are located, and that you know how to turn them off in an emergency.
