Below, Col. Cameron Cantlon, leads Third Cav ACR troopers. "Let's Roll was the theme for amidtown gathering at Angelic Herbs Sept. 11 to remember the courage of those on Flight 93. The group there gathered in prayer, a reading of the 23rd Psalm, a roll call of the passengers of Flight 93 and a group singing of "It is Well With My Soul."

Some reservoirs may reach all-time low within next two weeks

Within two weeks, reservoir water levels could reach an all-time low throughout the state, according to Dr. John Nielsen-Gammon, Texas State Climatologist in College Station.

Though drought conditions prevail, it hasn't been "all that bad" for much of the state compared to previous drought years, Nielsen-Gammon said. The Panhandle had a fairly wet summer, as did parts of Far West Texas. There was also some useful rain in the West Central areas of the state, and much of the Coastal Bend and the Coastal Plains did pretty well too.

However, some areas, most notably the northeastern quarter of the state, have been unusually dry, he said.

"But of course, even normal rainfall isn't enough to fill reservoirs in the summertime," Nielsen-Gammon said. "If they keep going down at the present rate, it will only take about two more weeks before they will set an all-time record for the difference between how much water they were designed to hold and how much water they actually have in them. We continue to set records levels for this time of year, but this will be an all-time record low."

"We're forecasting neutral conditions in the tropical Pacific - no El Niño or La Niña - and that means nothing is pointing us to either a very dry winter or wet winter," he said. "So at this point, it could be a winter like we've been having for the past couple of years - not enough rain to end the drought, but things not getting worse either."

More information on the current Texas drought and wildfire alerts can be found on the AgriLife Extension Agricultural Drought Task Force website at <http://agrilife.tamu.edu/drought/>.

In the Central area, which includes Bell County and its two reservoirs Stillhouse Hollow Lake and Lake Belton, the following summary is reported for the past week: Some areas received showers, with accumulations from 0.5 inch to 2 inches. Overall, conditions were dry. All rowcrops were harvested except for cotton. Cotton crops are showing some drought damage. Some producers were planting small grains for winter grazing. Stockwater tanks were very low. Burn bans were in effect throughout the region.

Bell County continues to be in a severe drought, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Brazos River Authority.

The following readings are for Stillhouse Hollow Lake as of Sept. 17: Pool elevation is 612.26 feet. At this elevation the total amount of water stored in Stillhouse Hollow Lake is 172,118.0 acre-feet. Reservoir release is 1.0 cubic feet per second. Conserva-

Aldermen will adopt budget, set 12¢ tax rate

Salado aldermen will adopt the Village of Salado 2013-14 budget and set a tax rate of 12¢ per $100 valuation following a public hearing on those matters at 6 p.m. Sept. 19 at the Municipal Building.

The board of aldermen will formally adopt the proposed budget of $961,091 in expenses and $841,887 in revenues.

Aldermen have proposed a tax rate of $0.1200 per $100 valuation, which maintains the current tax rate. The board can adopt a lower tax rate, but not a higher one.

The draft budget estimates $829,931 in revenues, including sales tax and property taxes, based upon a 12 cent property tax.

The Village has $160 million in taxable property, which will generate an estimated $218,331.25 in taxes at the rate of 12 cents per $100 taxable value, the lowest in Bell County (See chart). Because Salado is a Type B Municipality, the highest tax rate possible for the Village is 25¢ per $100 valuation.

Sales tax revenues are estimated at $330,000 for the 2013-14 fiscal year.

The proposed budget estimates $961,091 in expenditures, which is almost $150,000 more than the 2012-13 budgeted expenditures of $815,095.

In the draft budget, expenses increase remarkably in police department, street maintenance and the municipal building. The police department budget increases from 253,606 to $327,071 for the anticipated hire of an additional patrol officer. The street maintenance budget adds another $50,000 for resurfacing of roads.

In other business, aldermen will discuss the committees to research changes to the zoning ordinance and a possible sewer system.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Unbelievably small and unpersuasive

Now that John Kerry is the secretary of state, his gaffes can launch major diplomatic initiatives.

A reporter in London asked what Syrian President Bashar al-Assad could do to avoid war. Kerry responded: "He could turn over every single bit of his chemical weapons to the international community in the next week -- turn it over, all of it without delay and allow the full and total accounting. But he isn't about to do it, and it can't be done."

The State Department quickly noted that the secretary was merely making a rhetorical point. But the Russians immediately embraced the Kerry flourish as a serious proposal. It was "welcomed" by Damascus and spoken of warmly by the U.N. secretary-general and the British and French governments.

Never mind that Kerry punctuated the launch of his unintended Syria peace plan with the words "it can't be done." In a storm, any port will do, and during a catastrophic meltdown of an administration's case for war, so will any diplomatic fig leaf.

Not all of Kerry's gaffes in London rose to the level of game-changing diplomacy. He said the strike on Syria would be "unbelievably small." Surely, Kerry was making another one of his rhetorical points, that compared with, say, Dresden or "Shock and Awe," the strike on Syria would be a much more circumscribed affair. But "unbelievably small" is not a rallying cry. An anonymous administration official resorted to an analogy to children's cereal. As USA Today paraphrased his explanation: "If Assad is eating Cheerios, we're going to take away his spoon and give him a fork. Will that degrade his ability to eat Cheerios? Yes. Will it deter him? Maybe. But he'll still be able to eat Cheerios."

A military strike to change Assad's options in breakfast flatware is even less stirring than Kerry's assurance of unbelievable smallness. At the beginning of what is supposed to be the administration's full-court press for a strike, it has done more to open itself to mockery than to persuade, more to set back its case than to advance it.

Part of the problem, besides simple incompetence, is that the administration has dual, and conflicting, audiences. The president's political base wants a strike to be as symbolic as possible, while the rapidly diminishing number of Republican supporters want it to be as robust as possible. Please one side and you alienate the other.

The case for a strike comes down to a matter of national credibility that is more likely to move Henry Kissinger. Voters are not in the mood for any more Middle Eastern entanglements, so the administration is performing before a hostile crowd. It's always easier to look at the top of your game when you are not up against a howling head wind of public opposition.

If he's not already, the president may soon wonder why, with the Syria vote, he built a pyre, threw his presidency on it and asked Congress to decide whether to light a match. Considering the gravity of the possible defeat before him, any escape hatch can look attractive, even one provided by his secretary of state's careless words.

Moscow has no more interest than Washington in Syrian war

By Peter Certo

John Kerry may have just accidentally earned himself a Nobel Peace Prize.

In off-the-cuff remarks to reporters, the Secretary of State reiterated his support for a U.S. attack on Syria, saying Bashar al-Assad could only ward off a U.S. strike by turning over his regime's chemical weapons to the United Nations. "It can't be done, obviously," Kerry shrugged on September 9, seemingly resigning the American people to another war in the Middle East.

That afternoon, the Russians offered to facilitate just such a deal. Syria accepted and promised to sign the international chemical weapons convention. France also said it would bring the issue before the UN Security Council. Washington should follow suit and take the deal. And maybe Obama should let Kerry go off the teleprompter more often.

The Obama administration still continues to hold a hammer over Syria. But Syria isn't a nail. It's more like a landmine.

If it had any effect on Syria's civil war at all, a U.S. strike would create new openings for al-Qaeda-linked rebel groups, including some of the same Sunni extremist groups the United States fought in Iraq, which long ago eclipsed more secular-minded forces like the Free Syrian Army. And for anyone who thinks they'll return the favor with gratitude, recall that Osama bin Laden himself was among the Mujahideen fighters that Washington supported against the Soviets in Afghanistan.

A large-scale U.S. bombing campaign would also push more fighters and refugees into fragile states like Iraq and Lebanon — where the war has already spread — and could instantly drag the United States into a tailspin of regional turmoil.

Even a quick, "surgical" strike could escalate into a full-scale war if Syria or its ally Iran retaliates by targeting any of the U.S. forces or diplomatic facilities that blanket the Middle East.

And even if he doesn't hit back, if Washington tanks this deal with Russia and goes to war, Assad could still lash out at Syrian civilians with chemical weapons. (When NATO intervened in Kosovo, after all, the Serbs immediately escalated their ethnic cleansing operations.) In that case, would Washington keep bombing — unavoidably killing civilians and potentially rallying some Syrians around the regime — until he stops?

Some proponents of a strike say that Washington must uphold the international norm against the use of chemical weapons. But since Syria hasn't attacked the United States and the UN Security Council hasn't authorized any international military action, a U.S. strike on Syria would be unambiguously illegal under international law. Enforcing a humanitarian norm with an illegal war is a lousy way to uphold international justice.

Fortunately, we've got many more options than that. First, Washington should accept Russia's offer to get Syria's chemical weapons under international control. The Russians are hardly impartial observers here, but neither are we — and Moscow has no more interest than Washington in escalating this war.

Then, Washington should engage directly with Russia, Iran, and its own allies in Europe and the Middle East to negotiate a full international arms embargo on the regime as well as the rebels. Until these parties reach a deeper understanding of each other's regional interests, they'll continue to use Syria as a proxy battleground. And as long as the weapons are flowing in, the combatants will never tire.

Finally, don't forget that many, many Syrians are desperately in need of humanitarian aid. The UN estimates that this war has turned over 2 million Syrians into refugees, and international aid has fallen far short of what's required to help them. For those who want to "do something" about Syria, this is the easiest place to start.

Some people still insist that President Barack Obama's "credibility" depends on enforcing a "red line" in Syria. Well, there's nothing worse for your credibility than making a huge mistake just because you promised something you shouldn't have.

And if John Kerry's recent remarks are any indication, maybe there's something to be said for saying things you don't mean after all.

Naming the Names behind Extreme Weather

How about making scientifically challenged politicians accountable for their inaction on climate change?

Environmental groups tend to be a bit grim-faced. That's understandable since they're constantly confronting industrial uglies that range somewhere between awful and apocalyptic.

So it's a treat when one of them turns impishly playful, as a group of climate change activists called 350 Action recently did.

In an act of "serious fun," this bunch has launched an online petition calling on the World Meteorology Organization to change the way it names hurricanes. Instead of dubbing them with generic labels like "Bob" or "Juanita," 350 Action wants the more-numerous and more-ricane branded with his name.

Also, since the Weather Channel now attaches monikers to other big weather events, opportunities abound for tagging scientifically challenged politicians with public accountability for their irresponsibility. It would be a useful learning experience, for example, for people to see the damage done by Tornado Rick "Oops" Perry, or to witness the unusually severe flooding caused by the Michele Bachmann Unstable Air Mass over Minnesota. And Sen. Jim Inhofe of Oklahoma, who constantly huffs that climate change is a "hoax," should be credited with the Jim Inhofe Drought of Biblical Proportions presently parching the Southwest and Great Plains.

Jim Hightower

powerful storms we're getting more frequently to be named after head-in-the-sand politicians who — in mindless defiance of science — are climate change deniers.

Thus, we'd have Hurricane John Boehner, in honor of the House Speaker who goes to extremes to derail regulations that would stop profiteering polluters from wreaking havoc on the globe's climate. In standing against needed policy changes, Boehner has been like a rock — only dumber. So he deserves to have a particularly destructive hur-tion Pool is 75 percent full. Conservation Pool filled is 168542.0 acre-feet which is equivalent to 2.398 inches of runoff over the entire drainage basin. (70,293.0 acre-feet per inch of runoff)

The following readings are for Lake Belton as of Sept. 17: Pool elevation is 580.93 feet. At this elevation the total amount of water stored in Belton Lake is 293575.0 acre-feet. Reservoir release is 341.0 cubic feet per second. Conservation Pool is 63 percent full. Conservation Pool filled is 240,949.0 acre-feet which is equivalent to 1.269 inches of runoff over the entire drainage basin. (189,867.0 acre-feet per inch of runoff)

Clearwater Under-ground Conservation District maintains Stage 2 Drought Status and asks for a voluntary 20 percent reduction of water usage. CUWCD recommends that property owners take the following steps to reduce water usage:

- Limit watering of landscape (lawns, trees, shrubs, etc.) to only once every 5 to 7 days. Agriculture and horticulture operations are exempted from this measure but are encouraged to reduce tree, plant, and crop watering by 20 percent.
- Continue or increase voluntary reduction in various uses.
- Check for and correct all plumbing leaks.
- Re-use or re-circulate water whenever possible.

PUBLIC NOTICE
Brief Explanatory Statements of Proposed Constitutional Amendments
Special Election November 5, 2013

Proposition Number 1 (HJR 62)
HJR 62 proposes a constitutional amendment to authorize the legislature to provide by statute for an exemption from ad valorem taxation of all or part of the market value of the residence homestead of the surviving spouse of a member of the United States armed services who is killed in action, as long as the surviving spouse has not remarried. An eligible spouse who later qualifies a different property as the surviving spouse's residence homestead could be authorized by statute to receive an exemption from ad valorem taxation in the same amount received for the first qualifying homestead during the last year in which the surviving spouse received the exemption.

The proposed amendment would appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for an exemption from ad valorem taxation of all or part of the market value of the residence homestead of the surviving spouse of a member of the armed services of the United States who is killed in action."

Proposition Number 2 (HJR 79)
HJR 79 proposes a constitutional amendment to repeal the constitutional provision requiring the creation of a State Medical Education Board and a State Medical Education Fund, neither of which is in operation. No new loans have been made from the fund by the board in more than 25 years, and the board currently has no appointees and receives no program funding.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment eliminating an obsolete requirement for a State Medical Education Board and a State Medical Education Fund, neither of which is operational."

Proposition Number 3 (HJR 133)
HJR 133 would authorize local political subdivisions to extend the length of time that aircraft parts could remain temporarily in this state before being subject to ad valorem taxation. Under current law, merchandise, wares, and goods (including aircraft parts) may remain in this state temporarily for up to 175 days before being subject to ad valorem taxation; the proposed amendment would permit taxing entities to extend the exemption up to 730 days after the date that a person acquired or imported aircraft parts in the state.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to authorize a political subdivision of this state to extend the number of days that aircraft parts that are exempt from ad valorem taxation due to their location in this state for a temporary period may be located in this state for purposes of qualifying for the tax exemption."

HJR 24 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the legislature to provide for an exemption from ad valorem taxation of part of the market value of the residence homestead of a partially disabled veteran or the surviving spouse of a partially disabled veteran if the residence homestead was donated to the disabled veteran at no cost to the veteran by a charitable organization.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for an exemption from ad valorem taxation of part of the market value of the residence homestead of a partially disabled veteran or the surviving spouse of a partially disabled veteran if the residence homestead was donated to the disabled veteran by a charitable organization."

Proposition Number 5 (SJR 18)
SJR 18 would amend the definition of "reverse mortgage" to authorize the making of reverse mortgage loans for the purchase of homestead property in addition to the current legal uses of those loans, and would give lenders recourse against borrowers who fail to timely occupy the homestead properties purchased with such loans. SJR 18 would also add to the definition of "reverse mortgage" an extension of credit that is not closed before the 12th day after the lender provides to the prospective borrower a written notice summarizing risks and conditions of a reverse mortgage. The language of the required notice is prescribed in the resolution.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to authorize the making of a reverse mortgage loan for the purchase of homestead property and to amend lender disclosures and other requirements in connection with a reverse mortgage loan."

Proposition Number 6 (SJR 1)
SJR 1 would create the State Water Implementation Fund as a special fund inside the state treasury and outside the General Revenue Fund. Money in the fund would be administered by the Texas Water Development Board (TWDB) and would be used to implement the state water plan, as adopted by general law, by TWDB.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment providing for the creation of the State Water Implementation Fund for Texas and the State Water Implementation Revenue Fund for Texas to assist in the financing of priority projects in the state water plan to ensure the availability of adequate water resources."

Proposition Number 7 (HJR 87)
HJR 87 proposes a constitutional amendment to allow home-rule municipalities to adopt charter provisions authorizing the filling of vacancies in the governing body by appointment, but only when the remainder of the vacant term is less than 12 months. Under current law, municipal voters may adopt terms of office for municipal officers longer than two years, but upon approving longer terms of office, any resulting vacancies in office must be filled by special election. The proposed amendment would provide an option for home-rule municipalities to fill short-term vacancies through appointment.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing a home-rule municipality to provide in its charter the procedure to fill a vacancy on its governing body for which the unexpired term is 12 months or less."

Proposition Number 8 (HJR 147 and SJR 54)
HJR 147 would repeal the Texas Constitution's maximum tax rate for a Hidalgo County hospital district; the maximum rate is currently set at 10 cents per $100 valuation. This rate is lower than the maximum tax rate allowable for hospital districts in all other counties in the State (75 cents per $100 valuation). The repeal of the constitutional cap would authorize hospital district tax rates in Hidalgo County equal to the hospital district tax rate laws applicable to all other Texas counties.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment repealing Section 7, Article IX, Texas Constitution, which relates to the creation of a hospital district in Hidalgo County."

Proposition Number 9 (SJR 42)
SJR 42 would expand the potential sanctions that the State Commission on Judicial Conduct can issue following a formal proceeding. This constitutional amendment would allow the Commission to issue an order of public admonition, warning, reprimand, or a requirement to obtain additional training or education in addition to the Commission's current authority to issue a public censure or recommend removal or retirement of a judge.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment relating to expanding the types of sanctions that may be assessed against a judge or justice following a formal proceeding instituted by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct."

TXDot's Free, safety seat inspections help protect children

New study reports 37 percent of Texas infants, toddlers buckled improperly or not at all. In an effort to help Texas drivers keep their child passengers properly secured, the Texas Department of Transportation today announced it is offering free, year-round child safety seat inspections conducted by certified technicians. The inspections are available by appointment at each of TXDOT's 25 district offices. The announcement coincides with National Child Passenger Safety Week, Sept. 15-21. Texas law states: children younger than 8 years of age, unless taller than 4 feet 9 inches, must ride in safety seats. A new study by the Texas Transportation Institute (TTI) found nearly nine out of 10 Texas children were riding in safety seats, but many were not properly buckled. The new study also revealed 37 percent of infants and toddlers in Texas were secured incorrectly — or not at all — when riding in a vehicle.

Walk: MS held in Harker Heights

Residents from Central Texas communities will join together for Walk MS: Harker Heights 2013 on Sept. 21 at Carl Levin Park to make a powerful statement and keep moving toward a cure for multiple sclerosis. Walk MS: Harker Heights is a signature fundraising event for the National multiple sclerosis Society that raises funds to support multiple sclerosis research and provide services to individuals impacted by multiple sclerosis.

In 2012, participants in 22 communities across Texas raised nearly $2 million to fund the mission in achieving a world free of multiple sclerosis. The Society strives to raise $25,000 this year from Harker Heights-area partners and participants to drive research for a cure and support vital programs and services that address the challenges of thousands of Texans impacted by multiple sclerosis.

"Walk MS is at the heart of our community," said Trenton Foster, Walk MS Development Manager. "The enthusiasm displayed by thousands of walkers, volunteers and sponsors demonstrates a shared commitment to the multiple sclerosis movement and connecting of friends, family and neighbors to those directly impacted by the disease."

Walk MS: Harker Heights 2013 offers family, friends, neighbors and co-workers the opportunity to mobilize in support of Texas families impacted by multiple sclerosis. Participants can walk or run a one-mile route and enjoy complimentary food and entertainment before and after the event. Canine companions are also welcome.

Visit walkMStexas.org to register to walk, volunteer or make a donation. Online registration is currently open. There is no cost to register and no minimum pledge required. However, the average participant raises $225 and fundraising prizes are awarded beginning at the $100 level. Participants may also register on-site at Carl Levin Park (400 Miller's Crossing) in Harker Heights on event day. On-site registration and check-in begins at 8 a.m., followed by a 9 a.m. official start time.

Saladoan recognized for labors

According to the Texas Department of Family and Protective Services (August 2013) there are approximately 600 children placed in emergency shelters. Many youth are placed at The Williams House in Lometa, Texas. "These children receive enormous love, compassion and care through many volunteer citizens and the staff," said Glen McKenzie, president of The Williams House board of directors. At a recent emergency shelter Board meeting, Esther Pappas of Salado, was recognized for her care and concern for providing many hand-crocheted afghans to the children at the shelter. An example is shown above. "Through Ms. Pappas' dedication to the children, youth receive their own afghan that they cherish and keep as their own personal belonging," McKenzie said. "The children expressed many times that having their very own afghan helped them feel loved and cared for and helped them personally. There are many stories about how Ms. Pappas' concern help our children regain emotional control in very trying circumstances."

"Our Board wanted to publicly express the our deep appreciation to Ms. Pappas' untiring efforts to help our children in Texas," he said. "Without caring individuals like Ms. Pappas, other dedicated volunteers and the dedicated staff at our shelter, many youth would be without adequate love, care and concern."

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado Eagles trailed the visiting China Spring Cougars by a touchdown at the half of their Sept. 13 game, but gave up 22 points in the third quarter in the 57-28 losing effort. The loss drops the Eagles to 0-3 as Salado takes the week off before starting district play on Sept. 27 against the #2 Cameron Yoe.

The teams swapped touchdowns in the first quarter as China Spring drew first blood on a 15 yard touchdown run by Clark Barlow.

The Eagles answered with just under two minutes left in the quarter. Salado drove 62 yards in five plays, scoring on a one yard dive by Ryan Simmons.

The Cougars took a 21-7 lead before McLane Carter connected with Simmons on a 34 yard touchdown pass. The touchdown gave Salado a 70 yard drive.

China Spring answered a minute and a half later on a 44 yard drive with Tucker Johnson running for a 10 yard touchdown.

Salado quickly responded, scoring with less than a minute left in the first half. Simmons scored from the 5 yard line to cap a 58 yard drive that took four plays and 1:42. The PAT brought the score to 21-28 at the end of the first half.

China Spring scored on its first three possessions of the second half with drives of 66 yards on three plays, 83 yards on seven plays and 39 yards on four plays.

The Cougars added another touchdown two-and-a-half minutes into the fourth quarter for a commanding 57-21 lead.

After putting China Spring deep in their own territory with a Chase Crenwelge punt, Salado's Tyler Armstrong fell on a first down fumble in the end zone by China Spring quarterback Johnson to give the Eagles their final score of the game at the 7:08 mark of the fourth quarter.

Salado continued to struggle defensively, giving up eight touchdowns.

Performers of all ages can participate in one of two productions this fall at Tablerock. Actors, crew and volunteers are needed for productions of Dickens' A Christmas Carol and the annual Tablerock Fright Trail. The Tablerock Amphitheater was built on thirteen acres of land donated by the Goodnight family. It received its name, "Tablerock" from a very large flat rock in Salado Creek, which looked like a table. From its austere beginning The Tablerock Amphitheater has grown to an outstanding outdoor production facility. People from across Central Texans perform at Tablerock each year.

Bleu Edmondson at Johnny's Outback

Bleu Edmondson's gritty vocal style is what captures your attention first, simultaneously begging comparisons to silk and to sand. But look just beneath the surface and you find the heart of a Texas poet and the soul of all-American rootsrocker.

With his current album, The Future Ain't What It Used To Be, the follow-up to 2007's critically acclaimed Lost Boy, Edmondson embarked on a search for truth, digging deeper into what the music meant to him as a musician, a writer and a man. "Writing is like holding up a mirror to those darkest corners of our lives that we keep hidden," confides the raspy-throated singer. "It's not always a pretty reflection, but it's real and it matters." The collection of songs ministers to the saint and the sinner in each comprehending. "Whenever I hear someone say 'you're the Texas Springsteen', I'm flattered of course, but there's only one Springsteen, and in my opinion, he is beyond compare."

Edmondson's latest single, "Black and White", is a poignant story about one young man's struggle to find work and his decision to join the military in a last ditch effort to help his poverty-stricken family. Bleu is donating the proceeds from the download of this song to the Boot Campaign, a grassroots initiative started by five women from Texas which cultivates awareness and raises funds to help our military troops with the challenges they often face upon return home. For more information on how you can help the Boot Campaign, visit bleuedmondson.com.

Tickets to the Sept. 21 concert are available at Johnny's Steaks and Barbecue and online at johnnysoutback.com.

Don't let his introspective soul-searching fool you though. Edmondson also knows how to crank up the amps and throw down hard, often evoking comparisons to Bruce Springsteen, something Edmondson has difficulty

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

Bridge is not like tick-tack-toe where, if you make the right plays, you can't lose. In bridge, all you can do is to take what looks like your best shot in a particular situation and hope it hits the target. Here is a typical case.

Assume you hold the South hand and open one spade in fourth seat. West doubles, and East responds two clubs. You jump to three spades to tell partner that you are just a hair away from making a game in your own hand, and partner, fully appreciating the value of his ace, carries on to four.

West leads the queen of hearts, and when dummy appears, you're happy with the final contract. Your only losers appear to be a spade, a diamond and a club. You win the heart with the ace and play the king of spades, taken by East with the ace after West contributes the nine.

This surprises you somewhat, but in a sense you're pleased that East has turned up with the ace. Why? Because this leaves West -- who could not open the bidding initially -- with a collection of mostly queens and jacks for his second-round take-out double.

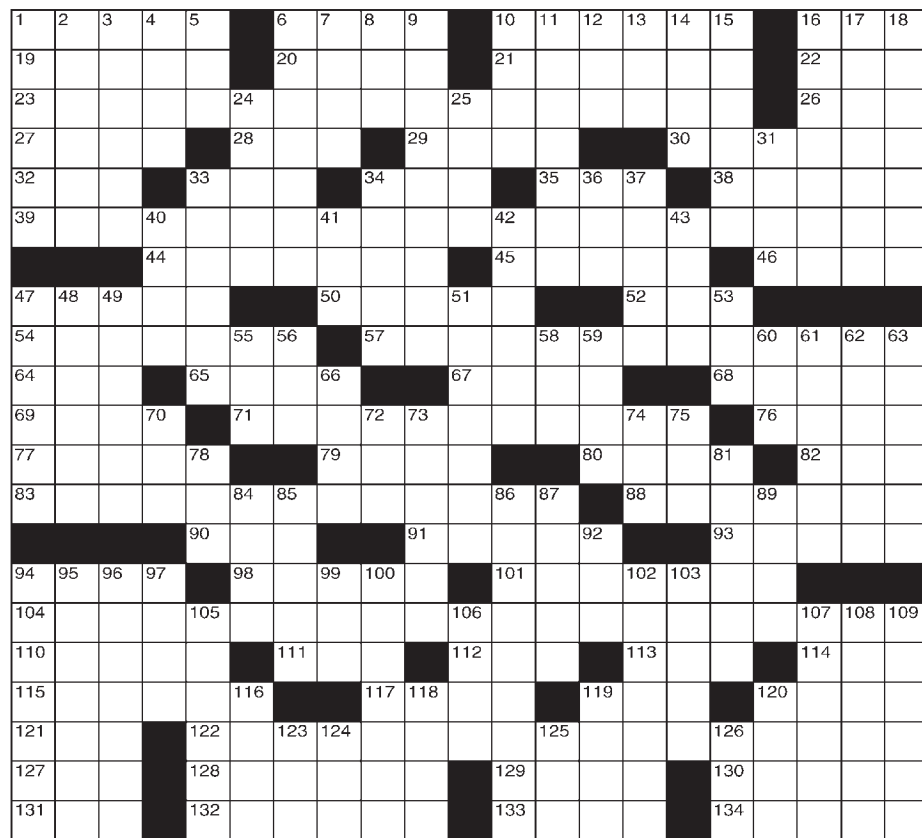

This in turn strongly suggests that West's double was based on distribution, making him very likely to have started with a singleton spade. Accordingly, whatever East returns, you should next cross to dummy with a diamond, lead a spade and finesse the eight! When the eight wins, you have a right to congratulate yourself on working out West's most likely distribution and then having the courage of your convictions.

GRILLED CHEESE AND GREENS

Sneak soft cooked greens into the middle of a warm grilled cheese sandwich to add a bit of nutrition to this comforting meal. Substitute your favorite greens for kale if you like, and try with oozy Taleggio cheese for a sophisticated twist.

1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
8 slices Swiss or Gruyère cheese (about 8 ounces total)
1 clove garlic, thinly sliced
8 slices whole grain bread
1 bunch (about 8 ounces) kale, thick stems removed and leaves shredded
Olive or canola spray oil

In a large skillet, heat olive oil over medium-high heat until hot. Add garlic and kale. Cover and cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Uncover, reduce heat to medium and continue to cook about 5 minutes or until kale is very soft, stirring frequently.

Arrange 4 bread slices on a work surface. Top each with one slice of cheese. Divide cooked kale evenly among slices, spreading kale to an even layer. Top each with an additional slice of cheese and bread. Spray both sides of each sandwich with oil.

Heat a large skillet over medium heat until hot. Add 2 sandwiches and cook 4 to 5 minutes per side or until bread is golden brown and cheese has melted, pressing flat with a spatula occasionally. Serve immediately.

GORGONZOLA AND SUN-DRIED TOMATO BISON BURGERS

The combination of flavorful bison meat, creamy Gorgonzola and rich sun-dried tomatoes is sure to wow a crowd. Serve these burgers on buns with lettuce, red onion and tomatoes.

4 ounces Gorgonzola, crumbled
3 tablespoons chopped sun-dried tomatoes in oil
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1/4 teaspoon sea salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 1/2 pound ground bison meat

Combine Gorgonzola, sun-dried tomatoes, garlic, salt and pepper in a medium bowl. Add ground bison and use your hands or two forks to lightly combine all ingredients, taking care not to overwork. Add a tablespoon or two of water if needed to hold together. With dampened hands, form mixture into 6 patties of even thickness. Place patties on a baking sheet, cover loosely and refrigerate for at least an hour.

Preheat grill or broiler.

Cook burgers about 4 minutes per side to desired doneness, turning carefully with a spatula halfway through.

RUSSIAN POTATO SALAD

This recipe for potato salad with peas, pickles, hard-boiled eggs and chicken is traditional in the St. Petersburg area of Russia.

3 medium red potatoes
1 medium carrot, peeled and cut in thirds
2 large eggs
2 cups frozen green peas
4 small gherkin pickles, minced (about 1 1/2 to 2 tablespoons)
1 cooked chicken breast, diced
3 green onions, white and green parts, chopped
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
3 tablespoons mayonnaise, or to taste
Sea salt and freshly ground black pepper

Put potatoes, carrot and eggs in a large pot. Cover with water and bring to a boil. Remove eggs after 10 minutes and run for a minute under cold water to stop the cooking. When carrot is tender, about 2 minutes longer, remove. When potatoes are tender, about 5 minutes longer, remove them. Add peas to boiling water and cook until just tender, 2 to 3 minutes. Drain and set aside. Chop eggs, carrot, and potatoes and place in a large mixing bowl. Add peas, pickles, chicken, green onions and parsley. Fold in mayonnaise and season to taste with salt and pepper. Chill until ready to serve.
