Funeral service set for Liz Carpenter

Salado native remembered for her wit, love of words

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado native Liz Carpenter passed away at age 89 March 20 at an Austin hospital after contracting pneumonia earlier in the week.

Funeral services for Carpenter are set for 10 a.m. March 26 at the L.B.J. Library on the University of Texas campus.

Carpenter is perhaps best known for the short speech she wrote for Lyndon Baines Johnson after he was sworn in to be President when John F. Kennedy was assassinated Nov. 23, 1963.

That speech, Carpenter told Saladoans gathered for her talk in 2000, was penned "with little thought and no changes." The 58 words resonate today, almost 47 years later: "This is a sad time for all people. We have suffered a loss that cannot be weighed. For me, it is a deep personal tragedy. I know that the world shares the sorrow that Mrs. Kennedy and her family bear. I will do my best. That is all I can do. I ask for your help and God's."

Carpenter said that her lifelong love for words began in the place of her birth, the Robertson Plantation, where a Texas historical marker was dedicated to her birthplace in 1967. "The oldest literary club in Texas was founded there," she said in a keynote address at the Jan. 29, 2000 Salado Chamber of Commerce Banquet. "My lifetime love of words began there, too."

Liz would share her stories about Salado, Austin, Washington and later in life raising the children of her late brother with many groups in Salado, including the Chamber of Commerce, Ladies Auxiliary and the Central Texas Area Museum. For years, until her health prevented her from coming up to Salado, she would act as the Master of Ceremonies for the annual Readers and Writers Roundtable in March. This year's event on March 27 will likely be a bit sadder without her shock of white hair, raspy Southern voice and sharp wit in the room.

Mary Elizabeth Sutherland was born on September 1, 1920 in Salado. Liz was a sixth generation Texan who would claim to have had an ancestor who died at the Alamo.

She loved growing up in Salado and in what she called "the old Robertson House," which she said was "a delightfully scary place to a child," especially the parlor with its "stern portraits of old Southern Generals like Lee and Jackson on the walls."

She would sit in the large central hallway of the home with her mother to read, because it was the coolest place in the house.

Accident claims lives of 3 students

Three Salado youths were put to rest in recent days after being killed in a two-car collision on FM 1670 on March 17.

Sarah Foster, Marissa Timm and Jordan Lewallen all died of injuries sustained in the two-car collision that occurred about 5 p.m. March 17. Timm and Lewallen died at the scene of the accident while Foster succumbed later at Scott & White Hospital.

The accident occurred on FM 1670 near its intersection with FM 2484 around 5 p.m. March 17.

According to the Department of Public Safety report, a 2000 Hyundai driven by Foster, 18, of Salado, was heading northbound on FM 1670 when it collided with a 2007 Dodge SUV driven by Keith Lewallen, 46, of Salado, as it entered the oncoming lane. The passenger of the Hyundai, Marissa Timm, 17, of Salado, was pronounced dead at the scene. Foster died at about 8 p.m.

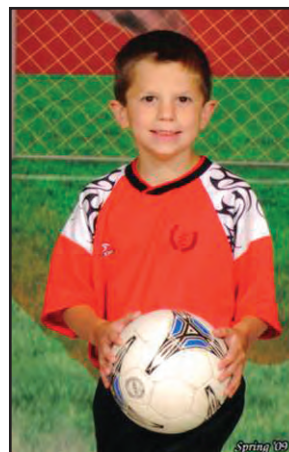

The driver of the Dodge was taken to the same hospital with non-life threatening injuries. However, his seven-year-old son Jordan Lewallen, was pronounced dead at the scene.

A Funeral Mass was held for Foster on March 20 at St. Stephen Catholic Church in Salado, followed by a funeral service at First Assembly of God in Belton for Lewallen on March 22 and a service for Timm on March 23 at Heritage Funeral Home in Harker Heights.

A memorial fund has been established at First State Bank Salado on Main Street to benefit all three surviving families.

Grief counselors were on hand to talk with Salado school students when they

Why Obama needs a republican congress

The undertakers of Bill Clinton's political doom showed up in Little Rock, Ark., in 1992 for a meeting with the president-elect two months before his inauguration. They were the leaders of the Democratic Congress, and they might as well have been draped in black crepe.

"You can trust us," House Speaker Tom Foley told Clinton, in an assurance as false as it was sincere. "We all want to make this administration succeed."

Two years later, Clinton stood among smoldering political ruins. Democrats had lost both houses of Congress. A Republican upstart defeated Tom Foley. In trusting the Democratic leadership in Congress, Clinton nearly destroyed his presidency.

He learned a bitter lesson in the perils of trying to govern a center-right country in league with a left-wing Congress. It's not an accident that the most sustained period of political success for any of the last three Democratic presidents, outside of their initial honeymoons, came after Clinton lost Congress. Only then was he forced to govern from the center.

If President Barack Obama is ever going to regain the ground he's lost as a bipartisan healer determined to transcend ideological divisions, he'll need Speaker Nancy Pelosi or Majority Leader Harry Reid or both shunted back to the minority. For Obama, a Republican Congress could be a counterintuitive political boon.

Recent history suggests that there are two broad options for a Democratic president yoked to a Democratic Congress. He can, like Clinton and Obama, get along with Congress and ineluctably get pulled to the left of the electorate. Or, he can, like Jimmy Carter, keep his distance and his relative moderation, and suffer an acrimonious relationship that brands him as ineffectual.

In theory, it should be possible to escape this double bind. But Democrats with control of both the executive and legislative branches have an irresistible FDR complex. They consider it their duty to establish vast new programmatic edifices, or die trying.

Outside of any ideological predilections, Congress is a drag. Congressional leaders generally don't make appealing national figures. They rule over an unwieldy (and often unseemly) institution and rise to prominence based on their appeal to their fellow members. At the health-care summit, Pelosi and Reid characteristically jangled as Obama soothed. He'd have been better off without them.

Obama forcefully pushed for a stimulus bill loaded with years' worth of pent-up liberal spending priorities, a cap-and-trade bill greased with corporate giveaways, and the health-care bill that features a new partisan outrage every other day. All of this positions Obama further to the left, and deeper into politics-as-usual, than before he signed up with Pelosi and Reid.

A Republican Congress would give him a handy foil and force him, right in time for his re-election campaign, into strategic bipartisanship. The Republican takeover in 1994 seemed the end for Bill Clinton. Long after Tom Foley had been forgotten, though, Clinton signed major bipartisan welfare-reform and deficit-reduction bills, while making incremental steps on health care that were popular and sustainable.

Obama probably doesn't consider a Republican Congress in his interest. But with all he's done to bring one about, who knows?

Poll: Half the country would fire entire Congress; Ratings at new historic low: 17 percent

Last week this column mentioned-in-passing that recent nationwide polls reported Americans had rated Congress (both House and Senate inmates) at an historic low - 22 percent!

As if that were not enough to cause a national "head-shaking" (and ache) - an even more extensive poll, released five days later, undoubtedly sent additional spasms of "fear and trembling" coursing through our elected class, unless they're immune to reality - which increasingly appears to be the case.

The second survey of attitudes held by "voting" citizens was conducted by the Wall Street Journal/NBC News group and produced another "historic" headline: "Congressional approval dips to 17 percent!"

And topping off that miserable showing - a related question produced even more startling news: "If Americans had the opportunity today - half the electorate would vote to replace every member of Congress, including their own representative."

That amazing result was discovered in "across-the-board" samplings - regardless of party affiliation. And more importantly, it wasn't reported by GOPer's favorite target: "Bomb throwing liberal tabloid-rags." It was underwritten by what is ostensibly the most conservative newspaper in the nation.

CONGRESS IN TROUBLE

The public's repudiation of Congress also points out that something politically "seismic" may be brewing out in the hustings these days.

Whether "it" turns out to be good or bad remains to be seen: What does seem certain is that our elected folks in Washington are either too blind (or stupid) to comprehend that a "toss-out-the-bums" revolution is in the offing, with congressional pooh-bahs squarely in the political gun-sights of at least half the nation's voters.

With that number growing exponentially, the obvious question arises: Is Congress simply indifferent, or completely clue-less, as to what's going on - or where they may be headed? Like back home permanently!

* * * *

REDISTRICTING SKULLDUGGERY

The recent arrival of decennial census forms, is an early warning signal that political skullduggery cannot be far behind.

That's right - next year's Legislative Session will have the "opportunity" to produce another mess of political sausage-making (redistricting) - unless there's a change in the makeup of the State legislature, coupled with a victory by Democrat Bill White: Two upsetting acts that would turn "anti-gummint" Rick Perry's hope for three straight decades of government service, topsy-turvy; while dividing political power more evenly between Democrats and Republicans.

So much for wishful vs. anathematized thinking. Lets turn to what's more-likely to happen politically in November: Texas will remain Republican (legislatively) and Perry will "probably" grab another term as Governor. The rest of us will suffer a rehash of redistricting strife, probably along the disheartening lines that took place in 2001-3: Two regular sessions plus three "specials".

REMEMBER 2001 AND 2003?

The 2001 through 2003 years were politically distressing and disorderly, thanks to Old Landslide's handing the re-finagling of Congressional House districts to the nefarious Tom DeLay, who "socked-it-to" Democrats in a big way and gave Texas business interests nearly ten year's freedom from "bad old liberal taxation foolishness."

Readers will recall that the Perry-DeLay-tag-team created 21 "safe" Republican House districts against 11 for their Democratic opposition. Those two rapscactions also "sucker-punched" Bell County: As a result we lost Chet Edwards and gained John Carter - which we opined then (and continue to believe) "It was a crummy deal for all concerned!"

So - here we are, nearly a decade later, with a fifteen billion dollar budget shortfall, tied to a "no new taxes" majority party, and the mind-boggling possibility that we'll continue redistricting in a way that protects the rich, and screws everyone else: aka "The good old conservative way."

FOUR NEW HOUSE SEATS

The added prize for redistricting winners this year will be four new Congressional House seats, which makes the game worth winning - at all costs. Census Bureau predicted (last year) a net gain of 500,000 new residents. Result: Texas' House Delegation to increase - from 32 to 36 members.

* * *

AND FINALLY.....

The upcoming general election and redistricting foofaraw will be worrisome for thoughtful Texans, as well as hard-core political aficionados - on both sides of the trough.

Memories sometimes fail - but thinking back to 2001, we recall that redistricting became so convoluted that the GOP controlled Legislative Redistricting Board was given the "redraw" job, by neophyte Governor Rick Perry: Promoted after George Bush became President.

A Federal Court in Tyler eventually created the new congressional redistricting map. Lawmakers immediately decided to try again in 2003: That endeavor took one regular and three additional special sessions, plus the highly publicized decamping of enough Democrats, who fled to Oklahoma and later New Mexico, to avoid quorum calls and delay the inevitable.

However, when all was said and done -the troika of "bully-boys" i.e. Perry, DeLay, and Karl Rove (skulking in the wings) - prevailed: And we've skimped by budget-wise without new or increased taxes for the balance of the decade: Helped by last year's federal stimulus aid that Perry loudly condemned, but quietly accepted.

Today - we're fifteen billion bucks short, with only two options open to the Perry-GOP-gang: Slash State budgets, services, employees; or (God Forbid) raise taxes.

Going to be a great 2011: If you don't mind becoming a "Tea Partying" anti-government, anti-tax, business controlled extremist and Perry-type-secessionist. Bearing in mind, you'll also need to be wealthy enough to survive!

Put Texas veterans back to work

By TOM PAUKEN
TEXAS WORKFORCE COMMISSION

A new study from the United States Department of Labor reports that the unemployment rate in 2009 for young returning veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan rose to 21.9 percent, far higher than the national unemployment rate for non-veterans in the same age group of 18 to 24. Many factors contribute to that higher jobless rate for our veterans of the Iraq and Afghan wars.

Unlike the Vietnam War when National Guard and Reserve units generally remained stateside, many National Guard and Reserve soldiers have served multiple tours of duty in Iraq and/or Afghanistan. AP reporter Kimberly Hefling quotes Joseph Sharpe, an American Legion official, as acknowledging the negative impact all these deployments have on employment opportunities for these returning veterans, "Sharpe said some come home to find their jobs have been eliminated because the company has downsized. Other companies may not want to hire someone who could deploy again or will have medical appointments because of war-related health problems."

Another difficulty facing returning veterans is how to translate skills they acquired in military service into meaningful civilian jobs. Part of the problem is that skills training and certification programs completed in the military, e.g., training as a combat infantryman, are not readily transferable to civilian employment in related fields. Efforts are underway here in Texas to recognize that military certification and experience, but more needs to be done to expedite that process.

An encouraging sign that the leadership skills of young military officers and enlisted men is being increasingly recognized by the private sector is reflected in an article in the March 22, 2010 issue of Fortune entitled "The New Warrior Elite". The article quotes a number of business executives from companies such as Wal-Mart and GE as to how pleased they have been with the returning veterans they have hired for management trainee positions. Jennifer Seidner, a recruiting manager for Wal-Mart is quoted as saying, "The thinking was that we could bring in world-class leadership talent that was already trained and ready to go. And then we could teach them retail because we know that pretty well."

Here in Texas we are addressing the problems of our unemployed returning veterans on many fronts. One initiative we have established here at the Texas Workforce Commission, with the support of Gov. Rick Perry, is the Texas Veterans Leadership Program (TVLP), which is designed to specifically address the tough obstacles our returning veterans face as they make the transition from the war zone to civilian life. TVLP is modeled on the Vietnam Veterans Leadership Program which I established during the Reagan administration. It centers of the principle of veteran helping veterans. Those running our TVLP program are veterans who themselves served in one or both of those conflicts. They understand what their fellow veterans are going through after returning home and becoming civilians again.

We have returning veterans at 28 local workforce locations all across Texas helping to put the experience of those who served in Iraq or Afghanistan back to work for Texas employers. To date, our veteran leaders have contacted more than 4,000 returning veterans and provided assistance to more than 3,500 of them. We have identified, and work with, other organizations in our state that are dedicated to helping our returning veterans. As you might expect from a state like Texas, there are many fine community organizations helping to make a difference.

The Texas Veterans Leadership Program provides job search and employment assistance, education and training, and referral to services provided by federal, state, and community organizations. Our TVLP site has useful information for returning veterans and can be found at <http://www.twc.state.tx.us/tvlp/tvlp.html>. We also have established a $1 million Returning Veterans Skills Training Fund that provides employer-driven skills training grants for recently separated veterans. Our local veterans rep in your area is Odalis Delacruzenderdfdf, who can be reached at 254-231-5571. They are there to help their fellow veterans of Iraq and Afghanistan.

Texas needs to be the model for the nation in welcoming our returning veterans back from Iraq and Afghanistan the right way - by putting that experience back to work. These young men and women have answered our country's call under very difficult circumstances. Now, it is up to us to make it possible for them to use their talents in the civilian world to make this a better state and a better nation.

(TOM PAUKEN IS CHAIRMAN OF THE TEXAS WORKFORCE COMMISSION AND A VIETNAM VETERAN)

Remembering our Liz Carpenter

To the editor:

The Annual Readers and Writers Roundtable March 27 at the Central Texas Area Museum will include Daughters of the Republic of Texas member Mary Hodge, who will present her book on "Jarrell" and in the audience will be current DRT Village of Salado President Linda Friedrich Cawthon, who is a previous participant in the Roundtable and whose books on Salado families and school prove that she follows the counsel of the late Liz Carpenter. "Our lifetimes are close enough to the 1830-40s of the Texas Revolution and Republic of Texas that we should document our Salado history from those days," Carpenter, speaking from experience, urged local DRT members.

The Salado Robertson ladies, including Mary

During her Washington days, annual dues for Liz Carpenter's membership based on the undocumented Empresario Robertson, were neglected by the devoted Daughter of Texas would not be denied. Doris Kemp, for Village of Salado DRT, requested and Dorothy Heptinstall, Austin Registrar, complied using proven Sutherland lineage of Carpenter's father for her membership in the Texian Austin Chapter of her niece.

Neither was Salado to be denied. Always first in the Girl from Salado's heart, the Village of Salado DRT received her transfer in 2007.

In gratitude for her work and influence, everyone who embraces the spirit, if not the letter, of Liz Carpenter's suggestion directed toward a unified Salado should support the Roundtable in 2010. I have worked with Carpenter on the Salado College Hill Foundation as a cherished memory complete with the Collage Hill being covered with bluebonnets or a more hardy variety of iris.

Liz planned her memorial service for a scattering of her ashes mixed with wildflower seeds bear the cenotaphs dedicated to her parents in June 2003 and the Robertson statute on Salado College Hill.

Another corporate path for buying gov't

Like the five-man majority of Supreme Court justices, perhaps you've been worried sick over the possibility that corporations just don't have enough power over our government.

If so, let me soothe your fevered brow by showing that election spending is just one path that corporations take to buy our government. Many other lanes are also open to them. There, feel better now?

One wide-open path is through both the Republican and Democratic governors' associations. Both outfits offer corporate "membership" packages that literally let drug-makers, utilities, tobacco companies, and other industrial giants buy their way inside these two powerful groups. For annual never get this kind of special access, so it gives the corporate powers a big jump on everyone else.

Last year, for example, some 200 drug industry lobbyists organized a forum on biotechnology for Democratic governors. In this cozy setting, the biotech corporations had a one-sided chance to plead for state subsidies and regulatory favoritism--and practically every governor who attended followed up by pushing for what the industry wanted.

In so many different ways, corporate money doesn't just talk, it shouts--and drowns out the rest of us.

 MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

ocrats," she said of Salado. "I was seventeen before I saw my first Roman Catholic and twenty-one before I saw my first Republican. Both were terrifying experiences."

Salado was a deeply Democrat town in those early days of Carpenter's life. She recalled the benches outside of the Guthrie Drug Store on Main Street. "One was marked 'Democrat' and the other 'Republican.' No one sat at the one marked 'Republican.'"

While her hometown has become quite Republican, Carpenter held on throughout her life to her Democrat roots. Outside the door of Querencia, the Austin nursing home where she spent her last year of life, she had posted a sign that said: "Democrat parking only. All others will be towed."

Carpenter began her political life in Washington, D.C. as a young reporter after graduating from the University of Texas. "So, with my journalism degree in hand and my virtue in tact, I went to work as a reporter in Washington, D.C.," she said, adding "I still have the degree."

Carpenter covered President Roosevelt and First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt, who would have teas with reporters.

She was in Washington when the Pentagon was built. It was very easy to get lost in the massive structure. "One lady who was very deep in her pregnancy came up to a guard and told him that she was going to have a baby and that she was lost," she told one audience. "Lady," the guard said, "you know you shouldn't have come in here being pregnant."

Hardly able to hold back a foretelling laugh, Liz would save the punchline: "But, sir, I wasn't when I came in here."

Liz Carpenter

Carpenter's life was full of words and many punchlines and quips, including one she used to snare a snarky political foe when he told her that he saw that she had published the book "Ruffles and Flourishes" and then asked, "who wrote it for you?"

Liz, with her inimitable timing replied back: "I am glad you saw that, who read it to you?"

"My daughter says that the rarest book in America today is a copy of 'Ruffles and Flourishes' that hasn't been personally autographed by the author," she would tell audiences and friends.

Her other books include: "Getting Better All The Time" in 1986, "Unplanned Parenthood" in 1994, "Start With a Laugh" in 2000 and "Presidential Humor" in 2006.

She began writing books after a career in newspaper writing, speech writing and serving as press secretary to First Lady Lady Bird Johnson from 1963 to 1969.

She married Les Carpenter, whom she met at Austin High, where they were both staffers on the school newspaper The Austin Maroon, in 1944 after Les was discharged from the U.S. Navy. They had two children, Scott and Christy.

Carpenter was first lady Lady Bird Johnson's press secretary from 1963 to 1969. She served as assistant secretary of the U.S. Department of Education under President Jimmy Carter, on the International Women's Year Commission under President Gerald Ford and on the White House Conference on Aging under President Bill Clinton.

She was a co-founder of the National Women's Political Caucus and co-chaired ERAmerica, which fought for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment. She called the failure of the Equal Rights Amendment her greatest disappointment and shock.

Carpenter was inducted into the Texas Women's Hall of Fame in 1985.

Along with her daughter in New York City, she is survived by a son, Scott Carpenter of Vashon, Wash., and two grandchildren.

Eagles even district record to 1-1 with Academy win

The Salado Eagle Baseball team even their district record at 1-1 with a victory over the Academy Bumblebees. The game was played on March 17 because of rain.

The Eagles opened the scoring with three runs in the bottom of the first. Cole Calder was hit by a pitch and promptly stole second. Paul Warren singled to score Calder. Warren stole second and scored on Tyler Laughland's single. Bubba Luna followed with a perfect hit and run as he drove a double to right center that scored Laughland.

Trent Wagon led off the second inning with a single. Courtesy runner Jacob Heiner moved to third on an error and scored on a sacrifice fly by Calder.

The 4-0 lead in the second was also the final score. Eagle pitcher Trent Wagon kept the Bees off balance with pin point control. Wagon allowed only four hits in his complete game effort. He struck out Salado Wine Seller is hosting the "Texas Wine & Rogue Art Festival" noon-5 p.m. March 27 and noon-4 p.m. March 28.

Over 20 Texas wineries will be present to offer their wines for tasting. While some of the wineries are well known to Texas wine lovers, such as Fall Creek and Messina Hof, others are nearly unheard of such as Seifert Winery and Calais Winery. The wineries will be joined by Texas artists who will line the grounds of Salado Wine Seller with beautiful works of oil, acrylics, watercolors, pastels and mixed media including sculpture, jewelry, glassworks, metal work and handmade clothing. Live music is scheduled and food catered by The Range Restaurant will also be a great enhancement to this year's event. Salado Wine Seller is very "excited for the opportunity to pair talented Texas artists with the best in Texas wines."

Admission and parking are free. A commemorative wine glass and six tasting tickets will be sold for $10; additional tasting tickets will be sold. Wine lovers can purchase bottles of their favorite wines to take home as well. Proper identification will be required. For more information, call 254.947.8011 or email june@saladowine.com.

Readers, Writers Roundtable set at Museum March 27

The Annual Readers and Writers Roundtable will feature the work of four authors from Central Texas at 1:30 p.m. March 27 at the Central Texas Area Museum Hall of the Clans.

A $5 donation, $2.50 for Children and Students with a valid ID, is requested for the Central Texas Area Museum Library.

"Alzheimer's" by Deanna Lueckenotte of Temple, Texas: This book is designed to be an easy read for all dealing with someone with Alzheimer's; from the caregiver in the personal home to professional caregivers working in the long term care setting. It includes an overview of dementias as well as ways to cope with behaviors. Communication is also an important aspect covered. Research updates as well as possible resources for the caregiver are included. Activities of daily living and a lifestyle enhancement program are featured. The focus is toward helping caregivers cope with their current situation of taking care of someone with Alzheimer's. Short summaries of caregivers that found their "light in the tunnel" are included as the last chapter.

"More Eggs In My Pocket" by Mary Fenoglio of Florence, Texas: This sequel to the original Eggs In My Pocket continues the chronicle of farm and family life. The essays reflect the everyday, life-affecting events that beset us collectively and individually, whether it is the weather, our association with the members of our animal family or simply interaction with one another.

"Earhart's Flight Into Yesterday-The Facts without the Fiction" by Robert Payne of Leander, Texas: Amelia Earhart was one of aviation's great heroines. She was the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, and the second, after Charles Lindberg, to fly across solo. Attempting to fly around the world in 1937, Amelia Earhart and her navigator, Fred Noonan, were tragically lost en route from New Guinea, attempting to locate a tiny speck of land in the western Pacific. Her disappearance is still a mystery.

"Images of America-Jarrell" by Mary Hodge of Salado, Texas: In 1909, real estate developer Orlando D. Jarrell had a vision: He would sell lots near the Bartlett Western Railroad site and name the town Jarrell. When the railroad bypassed the nearby town of Corn Hill and Jarrell's lots began to sell, the residents of Corn Hill-and their houses-moved to the promising new town. Rock quarries became and are still a mainstay of this area, shipping limestone all over the world. About 200 vintage photographs illustrate the time between 1855 and more recent years, including the monstrous 1997 tornado that put Jarrell into the national spotlight.

Q: How is the American flag to be displayed on a casket during a visitation?

A: The flag is arranged in three layers of ten inch folds to cover the closed half of the casket. The blue field will be the top layer on the deceased's left. Nothing may be placed on top of the flag, i.e., casket spray, pictures or medals, etc. Once the casket is closed, the flag is unfurled and the blue field (still on the deceased's left) moves to the head of the casket covering the deceased's heart.

You've gotta share! That's what we're told to do from the earliest age. But God doesn't share. Actually, he makes it clear that it's all or nothing. He wants all of me, and he won't share me with anyone else at all. That's okay in God's case, because he's the only one; there are no other gods! Some folks had to learn this the hard way; check out 1 Samuel 5-7. We'll talk about it this Sunday morning at Grace.

Smokin' Spokes Bike Ride set for March 27

The Eighth Annual Smokin' Spokes Bike Ride, benefitting the Salado Volunteer Fire Department, will be held March 27, with the ride beginning at 8 a.m. at Salado's Pace Park.

As in previous years, a variety of routes will be available for riders to choose from, with each route differing in distance and overall difficulty.

Riders can pick from 15, 27, 57, 70, 85 and 102 mile rides. All routes will begin and end in Salado's Pace Park. Most routes will take cyclists east to the Summer's Mill area, and also west to Stillhouse Hollow Lake.

There are rest stops designated with each route. "We placed most of our rest stops at very scenic locations," said Charles Young, Salado Volunteer Fire Department Chief.

For the most competitive cyclist, the 102-mile route will provide quite a challenge. This route encompasses all the best riding that Salado has to offer. Riders will head west out of Salado into the foothills on this route, then wind through the hills west of town until arriving at Eagle's Nest Road. Climb to the top of Eagle's Nest Road. Continue on to Crow's Ranch

Road. Head toward Long Bridge across the west end of the lake. Take a break at the rest stop on the shore before riding on towards Nolanville Hill. A few miles past Nolanville Hill, cyclists will come to a rest stop at Overlook Park. From there, cyclists head out east of Salado towards Summer's Mill. Continue on south from the Mill towards the rest stop at "Too Late Gate" at mile 76. The "Too Late Gate" gets its name because it will be closed at 3 p.m. Cyclists on the 102-mile route will need to average 11 miles an hour to get through the gate before it closes. The long cyclists will then finish up the ride with a tailwind and some "rollers" coming back into town, along with the final stretch down Main Street in Salado. The shorter routes encompass sections of the 102-mile route.

On-site registration is $30. Click on <http://smokinspokes.homestead.com/> for maps and information.

Free food and drinks will be handed out to riders all day long at the finish line.

The first male and female to the top of Eagles' Nest Hill will be crowned the King and Queen of the Hill.

Chris Norman and Sharla Gilchrest perform

High School One-Act Play team competes March 25 in Cameron

The SHS One-Act Play team will compete in the UIL district contest at Cameron Yoe High School Performing Arts Center 4:30 p.m. March 25.

This year's contest play is "The Balkan Women" by Jules Tascia. This meditation on the horror of war set in 1990 brings the spirit of Euripides to a Serbian detention camp for Muslim women. Men are pitted against women, Christians against Muslims, and Croats against Serbs in a drama that bares the inner conflicts that result when society is governed by illogical ethnic hatreds.

A hard-boiled, devoutly Christian guard is torn by conflicting inner voices as he interrogates a prisoner and her mother about an explosion that killed sixteen of his soldiers. The arrival of a new, wounded camp commandant triggers murder and inevitable catastrophes reminiscent of ancient tragedy.

"The Balkan Women" was the winner of the 1997-98 Barrymore Award for Best New Play.

Players include these: Stetson Gilchrest as Lt. Jovan Vlaco, Heather

Williams as Amina Jusic, Bailie Reed as Jela Kaljanoo, Jace Barton as Colonel Branislav Herak, Haley Williams as Samira Jusic, and Kandace Little as The Vessel Bearer. Female chorus members are Sharla Gilchrest, Cai Hopkins, Rachel Spinks, and Savannah Stanley. Male chorus members are Audley Miles, Chris Norman, Janson Oyler, Dennis Quesinberry, and Cole Raley. Crew members include: Sebastian Rocha, Nate Tauferner, Jacob Krustchinsky, Cameron Kirchner, Ryan Cute, Jessica Ferrell-Raborn, and Brooks Wolff. Understudies and interns are Tori Sellers, Samantha Yeager, Tanner Pitts, and Jacob Tauferner.

Directors for the show are J. J. Jonas and Kyra Mann, assisted by student director Lainey Sirois and assistant to the student director, Samantha Yeager.

Public performances are scheduled for March 30 and April 15, time and place to be announced. Call J. J. Jonas at 947-6981 or email jennifer.jonas@saladoisd.org.

LBJ's Air Force One pilot will speak to Institute about power, leadership

When President Lyndon Johnson wanted to go somewhere--often at a moment's notice --there was no stopping him. General James Cross was the man who made sure he got there, whatever the hour or weather. He was the president's hand-picked pilot, top military assistant, and personal confidante and he will be speaking to the Institute for the Humanities next weekend in Salado.

Brigadier General James Cross, USAF (Retired) will launch the Institute's spring series, History, Leadership and Power at 4 p.m. March 27 at the Salado Civic Center. There will be a reception following.

Gen. Cross literally had a front row seat -- at the front of the plane-- to the raw power and bold leadership of the 36th President of the United States. He served as President Lyndon Johnson's personal pilot from 1962 until mid-1968. He was also the President's Armed Forces aide and director of the White House Military Office in addition to his piloting duties, thus making him the only Air Force One pilot to simultaneously hold a key position in the White House.

General Cross was the last member of LBJ's inner circle to write about his experiences with the former president. His book, "Around the World with LBJ: My Wild Ride as Air Force One Pilot, White House Aide, and Personal Confidant" creates a fascinating, behind-the-scenes portrait of America's complex, and larger-than-life leader. At the Salado lecture Gen.

Cross will recount some of his adventures with the president.

Besides flying the President and other dignitaries around the world, he also managed a secret presidential emergency fund; supervised the President's transportation fleet, the Camp David retreat, and the presidential bomb shelters; handled the Presidential condolences to families of soldiers killed in Vietnam; often bucking the traditional chain of command to accomplish these tasks. In doing so, General Cross had a unique vantage point to experience Lyndon Johnson's power and leadership at his best and worst.

During World War II, Gen. Cross flew "the Hump" in the China-Burma-India theatre. After the war, he attended what is now Auburn University before returning to active duty in 1948. During the course of his career, his military service took him to The Philippines, Vietnam, South Carolina, Washington and Austin, where he retired from the Air Force as commander of Bergstrom Air Force Base.

The cost of the lecture is $20 for members, $25 for non-members. Students are free. Payment may be made at the door, but advance registration is encouraged to ensure a seat. A reception will follow the lecture. For more information, or to register, contact the Institute at 947-5729 or ifh@vvm.com.

The Institute for the Humanities at Salado is a non-profit organization offering educational programs and conferences in the disciplines of the humanities for the public. The purpose of the Institute is to increase knowledge, to stretch minds, and to foster compassion in light of a rapidly changing world.

Look before you leap

Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

What is the most important single faculty needed to become a good bridge player? The answer, in the opinion of most experts, is the ability to avoid error. Consider this deal where it would be very easy to go wrong. The problem is how to play three notrump after a low spade lead. There are two pitfalls that must be avoided for the contract to be made, and both of them are of a type that would cause many declarers to go wrong.

The first critical step is not to duck the opening spade lead, but to take dummy's ace at once. If you were to play low from dummy instead, East would win with the king and return a spade, and down the chute you'd eventually go.

But even if you put up the ace, you would not yet be out of the woods unless you tackled diamonds before clubs. Thus, if you crossed to your hand with a heart to try the club finesse, you'd go down two after East took his king of clubs, cashed the king of spades and returned a diamond.

Both recommended plays can be logically supported. It is reasonable to assume at trick one that West does not have the K-Q-J of spades, from which he would have led the king rather than the five. East is therefore marked with one of these three honors, in which case the play of the ace offers the strong possibility of blocking the suit. The second step is to immediately force out West's only possible side entry card, the ace of diamonds. The king of clubs -- regardless of who has it -- can be dealt with later on, but the ace of diamonds constitutes a real threat that should be removed at once.

The defenders are helpless against this sequence of plays and cannot prevent South from scoring at least nine tricks.

Death By Chocolate at Salado Library April 1

By KAREN S. KINNISON

Last call for chocolate lovers. April 1...and I am not foolin folks ...the library will host a Death by Chocolate contest for the public. At 3 p.m. you will be able to taste a variety of fantastically delicious chocolate goodies in the library--- and then vote for your favorite. The judges are Cindy Apichino and Titia Arledge---what a hard job but someone has to do it, right? We have entries from all ages so there will be lots of surprises. There is still time to pick up an entry blank and join us with your signature chocolate desert. March 29th is the deadline to turn in your entry form. So mark your calendar for April Fools Day and be here...no foolin.

More April Dates to remember:

April 10, 17, 24 and May 1 -- Genealogy Workshops -- Each one covers various topics. You will need to call the library and sign up as space will be limited.

April 10 and 17-- Spring Foto Fling-Digital Photography Class. The first Saturday will be a meeting at the library and the second Saturday will be a field trip.

Check It Out

News & Notes from Salado Public Library

April 10th--Ceremony dedicating an antique school bell in the memory garden at the library for Ruth Howe, the library's first volunteer librarian who died last year. The ceremony will be at 2 p.m. and will be open to the public. There will be refreshments in the library.

Now for some new books! I know it's gorgeous out and the garden is calling, but...hey...you gotta rest up some too, right? (I am reading and can recommend "Ordinary Thunderstorms".)

"Apple Turnover Murder" by Joanne Fluke: It's June in Lake Eden, Minnesota and for Hannah Swenson that means bridal showers plus a massive fundraising event in need of confections—not to mention a killer who never learned that charity begins at home.

"Hell Gate" by Linda Fairstein: Real life head of Sex Crimes in the DA Offices of Manhattan, Fairstein takes her novels from the headlines. For her twelfth novel, she takes her hero Alexandra Cooper inside a world she'd rather not see...human trafficking.

"Oath of Fealty" by Elizabeth Moon: This science fiction author is a Texas resident and will be at the library this year to do a book review. Her trilogy knows as "The Deed of Paksensrriion" is judged to be one the greatest post-Tolkien fantasy masterpieces. Now Moon returns to this thrilling realm of fantasy after twelve years in her new work picking up the story of Paksenarion as he comes to terms with his half-elven heritage in his new kingdom.

"Citizens of London" by Lynne Olson: Here is the behind the scenes story of how the United States forged its wartime alliance with Britian, told from the perspective of three key American players: Edward R. Morrow, Averell Harriman, and John Gilbert Winant. It's also a tale of two cities-Washington D.C., a lazy Southern town slowing growing with international power, and London, a class conscious capital transformed by the Blitz.

See you at the library! "Put 'eat chocolate' at the top of your list of things to do today. That way, at least you'll get one thing done."

Spur skewers Shakespeare

Salado Silver Spur Players will bring the works of William Shakespeare rapidly to life.

Adam Long, Daniel Singer and Jess Winfield may be the playwrights for "The Complete Works of William Shakespeare (Abridged)," but veteran actors Grainger Esch, Tony Blackman and Aaron Tucker are the rowdy trio which will revive the comedic send-up of the Bard's many works this spring to open the "Season of Laughter" at the Silver Spur Theater in Salado.

"TCWOWS," which had healthy runs in recent years at the Silver Spur is a bit like ice cream: Sometimes a second or third helping is even more enjoyable. The fast-paced, laugh-filled show is being revived at 7:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays with 2 p.m. matinees on Saturdays from March 26 through April 10.

Evening shows are $15 for adults; $12 for senior citizens, military personnel and students with ID; and $8 for children aged 12 and under. Matinees admission is $12, $10 and $8, respectively. Group rates also are available. For reservations, call, 254-947-3456. For more info or directions, visit www.saladosilverspur.com.

"It doesn't matter whether you're a Shakespearean scholar or don't know your Capulet from your Coriolanus," said Grainger Esch, co-founder of the Spur. "If you love the Bard's great works, you will really like this play. On the other hand, if you hate Shakespeare, perhaps because of some iambic pentameter incident in your childhood, you will love this play."

The trio of script writers, as the Reduced Shakespeare Company, first performed the work at the 1987 Edinburgh Fringe Festival. After a decade at England's Criterion Theatre, it became London's longest-running comedy, and has since conquered the entire globe, becoming a cult classic in the process.

Wildly Funny Cast . . . Playful Relevance

The three-member, all-male cast makes way for the historically correct - and hysterically wrong "drag" appearances - in the female roles, largely portrayed by newcomer Aaron Tucker of Atlanta. The hard-working trio, which includes Grainger and Tony of Salado, are all seasoned veterans of stage, screen and circus.

Tony Blackman, the long-time Technical Director of the Spur, has appeared in more than 50 productions. Favorites include roles in this show, "The Foreigner," "The Skin of Our Teeth" and "H.M.S. Pinafore," and as Nicky in the recent "Bell, Book & Candle." He's also directed such plays as "Steel Magnolias," "Love Letters," "LUV" and "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

Esch and Tucker, a Baltimore native, are both veterans of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, having graduated from Clown College in 1988 and traveled on the road together. Aaron is fresh from three years with the Kinoshita Circus, one of Japan's oldest, but reminds CenTexans:

"I was a guest artist in 'Tracers' at St. Edwards University, worked with Austin's Rude Mechanicals in 'Don B's Snow White,' and spent ten of my lost years playing rock and roll with many Austin bands."

Each performer romps through costume, prop and dialect changes that leave little room for error. That's all the more reason to frame the more-or-less quoted text within an anything-goes improvisational style, where the audience can never be sure if the missed cue or late entrance is an actual boo-boo or another chance to laugh.

SYSTEM WIDE INVENTORY HAS COMMENCED

Bartlett Electric Cooperative, Inc (BEC) has contracted with Davey Resource Group (DRG) to conduct a system wide GIS/GPS inventory of our facilities (poles and underground equipment). This inventory commenced in late August 2009 in the Rockdale area, will continue for approximately 14 months and conclude in the Harker Heights area. The next phase of this inventory will commence in the Cedar Valley, Ding Dong, Killeen and Harker Heights areas in late March 2010. DRG personnel will visit all BEC facilities twice. During these visits they will attach a yellow tag with a 6 digit identification number, record pertinent information and determine the GPS location of the facility. DRG personnel have magnetic signs on their vehicles identifying them as BEC contractors. They also have written documentation confirming them as BEC contractors which they will gladly present upon request. They have BEC keys which allow them to open locks on gates for access to BEC facilities. DRG personnel have conducted system inventories for numerous cooperatives and their member service record is outstanding. They understand the importance of respecting property, closing and re-locking gates and treating members with courtesy and respect. Please contact BEC's Manager of Engineering, Ken Slack, at 254-527-3809 if you need additional information.
