

Two local GOP races heading to run-offs

Scott Cospser and Brad Buckley will face each other in the Republican Primary run-off on May 25 for the Texas House District 54 while Tim Brown and Bobby Whitson will be on the run-off ballot for Bell County Commissioner Precinct 2.

Saladoan Cliff Coleman will be the next Justice of the Peace for Precinct 2, edging out fellow Saladoan Richard Sapp in the Republican primary. Coleman received 1,098, 51.48 percent of the 2,141 votes cast in the race.

The race for the Texas House District 54, which includes parts of Bell and Lampasas counties, is an extremely close one between one-term incumbent Scott Cospser and Brad Buckley.

With 100 percent reporting, Cospser had 4,472 votes to hold a narrow edge over Buckley, who had 4,173. Larry Smith had 1,390.

In Bell County, Cospser had 3,160 votes, 45.71 percent, while Buckley had 2,848 and Larry Smith tallied 905 votes.

They will be joined on the Republican primary run-off ballot by Tim Brown and Bobby Whitson for Bell County Commissioner Precinct 2, representing Salado and Harker Heights and the eastern part of Killeen.

Tim Brown, currently serving his sixth term as Bell County Commissioner Precinct 2, received 1,949 votes, 44.46 percent of the total ballots, while Bobby Whitson received 1,457 votes and Brit Owen received 978 votes.

Paul LePak and Jeff Parker will be in a run-off for District Judge, 264th Judicial District. LePak received 6,548 votes for 41.06 percent of the total while Parker received 1,178.

Saladoan Gaylon Evans earned the nod to be County Treasurer, taking 55.07 percent of the vote in the Republican Primary with 8,141 over Jeanette Compean's 6,641 votes.

Nancy Boston will continue as Chair of the Republican Party, earning 70 percent (10,497) of the votes cast over Zenia Warren's 4,424.

There were few if any close races in the Republican primaries as voters chose incumbents over challengers by wide margins, putting U.S. Sen. Ted Cruz, U.S. Rep. District 31 John Carter, Gov. Greg Abbott, Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick, Land Commissioner George P. Bush, Ag Commissioner Sid Miller Railroad Commissioner Christi Craddick and State Representative in District 55 Hugh Shine on the ballots in November general election.

With 63 percent of the statewide precincts reporting, the Republican stance will continue to be a conservative one on the issues as Republican voters overwhelmingly supported all of the 11 propositions on the ballot.

Prop. 1: Replace property tax system: 65% favor.

Prop. 2: Toll roads voter approval: 90% favor.

Prop. 3: Selecting Speaker of the House: 85% favor

Prop. 4: Screening new hires.: 90% favor.

State Rep. Scott Cospser

Challenger Brad Buckley

Commissioner Tim Brown

Challenger Bobby Whitson

Saladoan Cliff Coleman will be elected Bell County Justice of the Peace Precinct Two, having no Democrat opponent.

Saladoan Gaylon Evans will be elected Bell County Treasurer, having no Democrat opponent.

Prop. 5: School choice tax credits: 78% favor.

Prop. 6: Bathroom privacy: 90% favor.

Prop. 7: Abolish abortion: 68% favor.

Prop. 8: Voter fraud felony: 95% favor.

Prop. 9: Completely repeal Obamacare: 87% favor.

Prop. 10: 4% cap on property tax growth: 94% favor.

Prop. 11: No tax dollars for pro stadiums: 87% favor.

With about 70 percent of the precincts reporting at presstime, it appears that Beto O'Rourke is the Democratic choice for the top of ballot, to face Ted Cruz in the November general election for U.S. Senate. O'Rourke had 61.59 percent of the vote.

The Democrats appear split on their choice to face U.S. Rep. John Carter in November. That race is likely headed to a run-off as well. With a third of the precincts reporting as of press time, Mary Jennings "MJ" Hegar had about 44 percent of the vote and Christine Eady Mann had 34 percent of the vote.

The race for the Democratic nomination for Governor will go to a run-off between Lupe Valdez and Andrew White. With about 67 percent of the state precincts reporting, Valdez has received 42.6 percent of the vote and White has received 28 percent of the ballots.

Prop. 1: Right to public education and affordable college. 96% favor.

Prop. 2: Refinance student loans at 0% through Fed Reserve. 94% favor.

Prop. 3: Medicare-for-all. 95% favor.

Prop. 4: Earned paid family and sick leave and living wage: 96% favor.

Prop. 5: National jobs program to replace crumbling infrastructure through low interest, long-term bonds: 93% favor.

Prop. 6: Right to clean air, safe water and healthy environment: 99% favor.

Prop. 7: Life of dignity with no discrimination or harassment: 97% favor.

Prop. 8: Right to affordable housing? 92% favor.

Prop. 9: Automatic voter registration and other rights to vote: 95% favor.

Prop. 10: End of mass incarceration: 97 percent favor.

Proposition 11: Just and fair immigration reform: 94% favor.

Proposition 12: Fair tax system, businesses pay too: 97% favor

State-winning films get special local showing

Salado High School had four films screened at the historic Paramount Theater in Austin at the 2018 UIL Young Filmmakers State Festival on Feb. 28. Two of the films won State Awards.

Rayne Polkowski and Heidi Kelley won the state narrative title with their film 5. A five dollar bill falls out of the hands of a rich man and is caught by the wind, traveling into the hands of many others and impacting them in different ways. 5 dives deep into the people behind the hands, observing the value of money according to different people and how it has affected each of them.

Roxi Thrasher and Reagan Thrasher won the Nobility Social Impact Award with their film In Time of Need. "In Time of Need" tells the story of non-profit organizations that respond to emergency situations.

The individuals that work for these organizations are true super heroes that we often don't recognize. With a year of tragedy and natural disaster in our own backyard, the message is timeless and hits close to home. This documentary exhibits the way they help people in their own time of need.

Bridget Golden and Ashley Ruiz placed second in narrative with their film Blank Eyes. In Blank Eyes, Amelia lives in a time when abnormal behavior could be enough reason to be admitted, and lobotomies were considered "common medical procedures". We watch the struggles of this teenage girl, fighting to defy the system she's in to save her sanity. This parallels to modern society in how we treat the people in the mental health or institutional systems.

Madeline Krustchinsky placed fourth in documentary with her film The People's Car. The People's Car explores the unique and eccentric Volkswagen collectors culture.

All five of the Salado films that made the state semi-finals will be shown at The Beltonian theater 8 p.m. March 9.

Tickets are $4 + tax. They can be purchased at <http://thebeltoniantheatre.com/salado-high-school-film-showcase/>

The animated film Too Good to Be True by Matthew Faulkner and Alanna Jones will also be shown. Thomas loves his old car, but when he gets in a car accident, he has to get a new car. Thomas buys the new Fast Car 9000 which has all the new technology. Thomas soon finds out that this new car is not so good after all.

Salado Film Squad is under the direction of Tim Cook.

Investigation continues in inappropriate relationship case

On Feb. 26 the Salado Police Department received information regarding 29 year old Dixie McCollough, Salado High School Teacher's Assistant, allegedly engaging in sexual intercourse with Salado High School male students.

Salado Police Department provided their information to the Bell County Sheriff's Department Special Crimes Unit for further investigation.

At this time, there are two minor male alleged victims, ages 15 and 16.

This investigation is ongoing.

Anyone with information is encouraged to contact the Special Crimes Unit at 254-933-6769.

The Special Crimes Unit contacted the Texas Education Agency (TEA). They too are conducting an investigation on McCollough.

An allegation of an inappropriate relationship between a Salado high school staff member and a high school student was reported to Salado ISD Superintendent Michael Novotny in the afternoon of Feb. 26. Dr. Novotny reported that the employment of the staff member was terminated on Feb. 27.

Dixie McCollough

"We immediately began an investigation in cooperation with the Salado Police Department, Child Protective Services, the Bell County Sheriff Department and the Texas Education Agency," Dr. Novotny stated. "I terminated the employment of the staff member allegedly involved so she is no longer an employee of the Salado Independent School District."

"These allegations are of grave concern to us all. Texas laws, Board of Education policies and the Educator's Code of Ethics are all crystal clear on this matter," he stated. "Yet, despite this clarity, individuals sometimes use extremely poor judgment in carrying out their responsibilities to students, families and the community."

"I have no tolerance for staff members who commit these alleged transgressions," he stated.

"In all cases, the safety and protection of our students is the highest priority," he stated.

"We have a talented, smart and dedicated faculty working here in the Salado Independent School District. The commitment of our employees to the students and families in Salado is strong," he stated. "We are committed to taking swift and decisive action when it is warranted and work toward preventing any future transgressions."

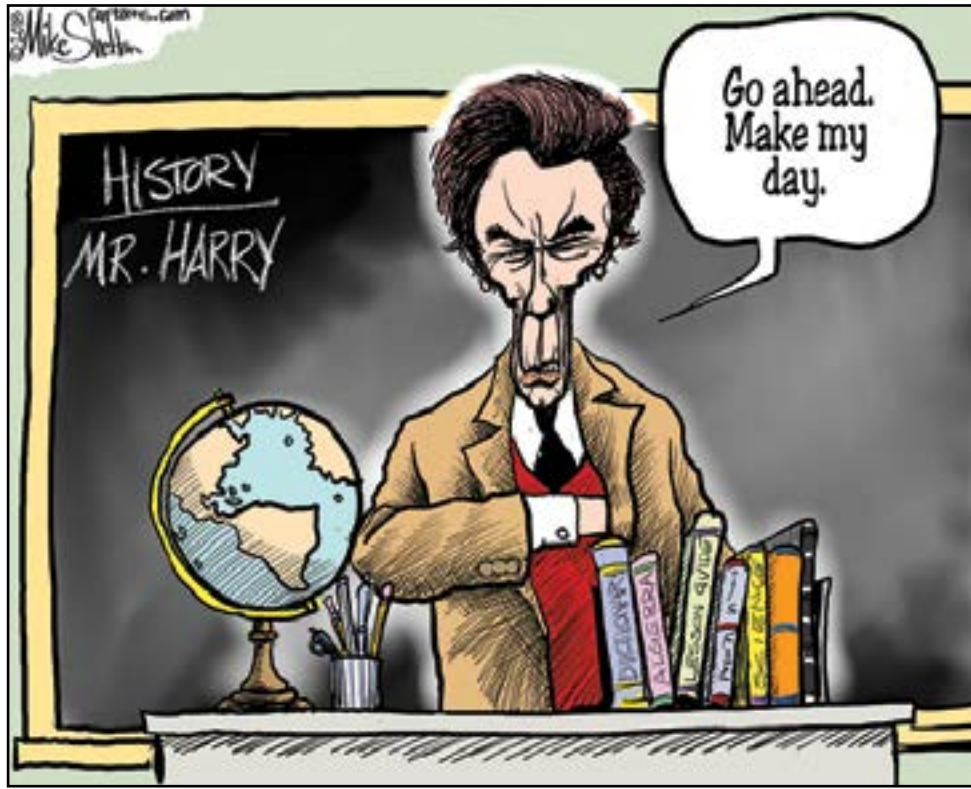

This is the third time in the past six years in which allegations were made of an inappropriate relationship between a school staff member and a student have been made.

In 2013, former Salado ISD teacher Lisa Wagnon was placed on 10 years probation for Sexual Assault of a Child.

In 2014, former teacher and coach Marcos Rene Garcia received eight years deferred adjudication probation for having an improper relationship with a student.

S&P 500 index down 6.4% from high

The Markets

The S&P 500 Stock Index (“SPX”), our preferred proxy for the U.S. stock market, closed out the week at 2691.25, down 2.4 percent for the week, and down about 6.4 percent from its recent high mark near the end of last month. It had shown signs of creeping back to a full recovery before the President’s announcement that he intended to impose large import tariffs on steel and aluminum. The good news is that the SPX remains up 0.66 percent year-to-date and 12.93 percent for one year. More on that below.

The yield on the benchmark 10-year U.S. Treasury note was up to nearly 3 percent earlier in the week but declined to close at 2.86 percent following the President’s announcement, suggesting that economic growth may not accelerate as fast as it previously indicated. Oil prices declined from $64 early in the week to $61 on Friday, again reportedly in reaction to the threat of a trade war and resulting slowdown in economic growth.

The Economy

The Commerce Department reported that personal, after tax, income rose 0.9 percent in January as the federal government saw about a $115 billion decline in tax receipts, but in an unusual reaction, consumer spending, adjusted for inflation, fell 0.1 percent in January. That change was mirrored by a rise in the personal savings rate from 2.5 percent in December to 3.2 percent in January. The Personal Consumer Expenditures Index (PCE), the Federal Reserve’s preferred inflation indicator, rose 1.7 percent from last year but appeared to be accelerating toward the end of the year. Housing pending sales were down in reaction to increased mortgage rates and a shortage of houses for sale. Jobless claims continued to fall and hit the lowest level since 1969.

Federal Reserve Chairman Jerome Powell testified before Congress again during the week and once again expressed his observation that the economy appears to be stronger now than last year. That, of course, suggested that the Fed might raise interest rates faster than had been expected. The consensus estimate moved closer to four, 0.25 percent interest rate increases in 2018 from the previous three. Those increases would put short-term interest rates at about 2.5 percent by this time next year. If that happens, longer-term interest rates are likely to rise apace. If the “spreads” remain as they are, it would be reasonable to then see the 10-year Treasury approaching 4 percent and longer-term interest rates rise accordingly.

Higher interest rates slow economic growth as loans needed to fund business expansions or buy big-ticket items, like cars and houses, become more expensive. They are, though, an indicator that loan demand is high, and that itself is an indicator of a faster-growing economy. All of that is a normal process as our economy accelerates into a full-fledged expansion. It also suggests though that the forecast we earlier reported calling for 2019 to be at or near the high mark in this cyclical expansion is more and more likely to be correct.

The surprise was the President’s announcement of an impending 25 percent tariff on steel imports and 10 percent on aluminum. A very significant portion of the things we manufacture and sell in America and export are at least in part made of steel and aluminum. If U.S. plants raise their product prices to match the newly increased import prices, that rise would filter through into significantly higher prices for domestically produced automobiles, airplanes, homes, commercial buildings, tools, beer cans, and a host of other products. Higher prices for the same products is the definition of “inflation.” Higher inflation would force the Fed to raise interest rates higher, slowing our economy. More, it would increase the price to make goods for export, reducing either profits or sales. Additionally, since Canada and Mexico are among our biggest sources of imported steel and are our biggest export customers, the threatened counter-tariffs could create a lot of pain. Canada and the European Union have already announced they will impose defensive tariffs if we follow through with our tariffs on Steel and Aluminum. One thing that could prematurely terminate this economic expansion (and bull market) would be a global trade war.

The stock market reflected that view. Since early 2017, corporate earnings have risen about 15 percent, but after considering the implications of the tax cut and the tariff announcement, the SPX is now only up about 13 percent for one year. That differential suggests that the market sees those actions as reducing earnings into the future and is a reaction to that perception. This issue is worth watching.

Safety and protection of our students highest priority

The safety and protection of our students is our highest priority. The following is a summary of some of the training courses that our employees complete annually.

Sexual Harassment: Student Issues & Response: This course provides school personnel with information about sexual harassment in both student-to-student and adult-to-student situations, background to know the consequences of inappropriate behavior and what might happen when the appropriate action isn’t taken, corrective actions that will help remedy sexual harassment situations in an education environment, related statistical data, and indicators for identifying sexual harassing behaviors.

FERPA: Confidentiality of Records: This course addresses training needs relating to student education records. This course covers important legal terms related to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), the general responsibilities of staff members under FERPA, FERPA’s rules regarding confidentiality and disclosure, and the rights of students to access and inspect their own education records kept by the school.

Bullying: Recognition & Response: This course provides users with a better understanding of bullying behavior, as well as their obligations to help prevent bullying. Topics covered include bullying basics, identifying bullying behavior, how bullying works and effective ways to address the problem.

Child Abuse: Mandatory Reporting: This course provides background information on the different

Superintendent’s Corner

by Dr. Michael Novotny

types of child abuse/child maltreatment. It offers training scenarios for physical abuse, neglect, sexual abuse, and emotional abuse, identifies indicators to assist in abuse and neglect, states the legal responsibilities of reporting and handling disclosures.

Dating Violence: Identification and Prevention: In this course, staff members learn how to recognize signs of abuse, take steps to prevent abuse and learn the correct procedures to safeguard students.

Youth Suicide: Awareness and Prevention: The goal of this course is to provide staff members with information that will help them reduce the likelihood of suicide among students. This course covers the scope of the problem of youth suicide, common risk factors related to youth suicide, successful strategies for youth suicide prevention, the immediate steps a staff member should take if they encounter a student who is threatening suicide, and best practices for intervention after a suicide (“postvention”).

Bloodborne Pathogen Exposure Prevention: The Bloodborne Pathogen Exposure Prevention course introduces the type, statistics and scope of the disease; guidelines for the clean up and handling of potentially infectious wastes or contaminated materials; the risks associated with workers exposed to BBPs (including vaccination and reporting information); and delivers training designed to emphasize the practices of proper exposure control.

The “Sexual Harassment: Student Issues & Response” training described above does address inappropriate educator student relationships. As a result of the recent allegations of improper conduct by a former high school employee, we are going to require employees to complete this additional training this spring and every year annually:

Sexual Misconduct: Staff-to-Student: This course provides information about the obligation of every staff member to provide an appropriate level of care for all students. Specifically, this course explores the definition of sexual misconduct, the legal obligations of school staff members, signs of sexual misconduct by staff members and how to create clear professional boundaries that protect you as well as students.

We are also going to have a forensic psychiatrist, who is an expert in this field, provide additional training for our employees.

We have a talented, smart and dedicated faculty working here in the Salado Independent School District. The commitment of our employees to the students and families in Salado is strong. We are committed to taking swift and decisive action when it is warranted and work toward preventing any future transgressions.

Why John Kelly Is Irreplaceable

If John Kelly didn’t exist, President Donald Trump would have to invent him, and he wouldn’t be able to.

The chief of staff had a rocky couple of weeks with the imbroglia over ousted White House staff secretary Rob Porter, but he is as close as it gets to an indispensable man in the Trump White House.

Where else is the president going to find someone whom he likes and respects (at least on most days), who can intimidate the White House staff into a semblance of order, who has experience in wielding responsibility in even more difficult circumstances, and who shares Trump’s instincts?

The last of these is the reason why, more than any other, there has been a major downdraft in Kelly’s press coverage. He went from “Trump’s Last Best Hope,” per Time magazine last August, to a bitter disappointment. A writer at FiveThirtyEight wrote a piece the other day explaining “How the Media Bungled the John Kelly Story,” referring not to any specific story about Kelly, but to the overall sense that he’d be a restraining influence on the president.

Kelly’s boosters in the media had a fantasy that he would show up at the White

Rich Lowry

House and take Trump aside at some point and explain, “It is my solemn duty to advise you, Sir, to accept whatever immigration proposal that Lindsey Graham backs, and failing that, my resignation letter will be on your desk in the morning.”

This didn’t accord with Kelly’s hawkishness as secretary of the Department of Homeland Security. What most people had missed about Kelly is that he’s an Irish Catholic kid from Boston who shares Trump’s Northeastern working-class conservative sensibility that is tough-minded and impatient with political correctness.

Kelly took justifiable incoming over the Porter fiasco, which was badly mishandled. But it wasn’t the chief of staff’s responsibility to bird-dog Porter’s security clearance.

With all the negative press coverage of the Porter fiasco, stories inevitably emerged of Trump’s thinking about a replacement for Kelly. If Trump were actually to dump him, it’d be his most destructive personnel move since firing FBI Director James Comey.

Trump wouldn’t get someone whom he admires as much. The president respects military men and billionaires, and perhaps the former even a little more than the latter. Kelly, the Marine general who lost a son in Afghanistan, can speak to Trump peer to peer in a way no Washington politico can.

Trump wouldn’t find someone else who is so clearly in it for the right reasons. Kelly didn’t want the position and repeatedly refused it when it was first offered. He has no interest in jockeying for his next big Washington job or in cashing in.

Trump wouldn’t find a comparable enforcer. Kelly’s military bearing and no-nonsense demeanor or serve him well in the cockpit of Trump world. His extensive leadership experience in even more complicated, high-pressure situations has prepared him for an environment in which chaos and the sense of crisis constantly emanate from the top.

In short, it is Kelly or bust. Trump should consider himself fortunate to have him, and avoid the fool’s errand of trying to find an improvement.

Arm teachers with mental health tools not guns

 MENTAL HEALTH AMERICA OF GREATER HOUSTON

The recent shooting at a Parkland, Florida high school has opened the conversation and has many of us struggling with what needs to happen to prevent another tragedy like this from happening again. For a young person to even have such thoughts and feelings is unimaginable. To have them actually follow through with these heinous acts is chilling. However, assigning teachers the responsibility to bear arms on campus as a means of protection for students and themselves is not the answer to address campus gun violence. The risks of "collateral damage" from armed teachers in a shootout could result in a more disastrous situation. While there is no single best solution to eliminate the risk of more tragedies, we believe that a compelling answer can be found in the early detection and prevention of mental health issues in our children.

In a nationwide State of Mental Health in America - Youth Data report for 2017, Mental Health America found that 11.25% of U.S. teens and pre-teens, aged 12-17, reported suffering from at least one major depressive episode in the past year. In Texas, 67.3% of young people with major depression did not receive any mental health treatment. That means that 6 out of 10 in this age group, who have depression and who are most at risk of suicidal thoughts, difficulty in school, and difficulty in relationships with others, do not get the treatment they need.

Clearly now, more than ever, it is important that, as a society, we take the mental health of school-age children seriously, and invest time, resources and awareness for prevention and early intervention. We cannot afford to test an "O.K. Corral" theory against the wellbeing of our children and the educators who work to teach, protect and serve them. Fighting gunfire with gunfire is not the answer.

Parents should be aware that our schools are at risk for this situation at any school, at any time. In the days since the Florida shooting, there have been at least five accounts of young people in the Houston area making threats against a school, outlining plans for on-campus violence, and even bringing a gun on campus, resulting in high alerts and school lockdowns.

Instead of allotting funding to have teachers and other educators go through special gun training, why not change the system, making it mandatory and fiscally viable for all teachers, counselors, and others who work in a Texas school district, to learn to protect themselves and students by using an arsenal of early identification and prevention tools to identify, resource and refer young people with mental health concerns?

Significant strides have been made in some districts, but so much more needs to be done all over our state. We desperately need to adopt system-wide changes. Too many schools in our state are sorely under-resourced, when it comes to behavioral health issues, with some having no counselors and others only one counselor trained to recognize mental health concerns in young people. The research shows that expanding school counseling services in schools is associated with improvements in mental health and behavior, but also in student learning.

Children are living in troubled times, and unfortunately teachers and schools bear the brunt of many of these concerns. As part of the solution in our region, Mental Health America of Greater Houston, through its Center for School Behavioral Health, works collaboratively with 26 public and charter school districts and more than 80 child-serving organizations, institutions of higher learning, community stakeholders, advocacy groups, students and parents, to develop and implement projects and policies that promote the wellbeing of school-age children, prevent the downward trajectory of untreated behavioral health concerns, and appropriately address the needs of children with behavioral disorders, as well as the needs of children who have experienced trauma.

By working together with concerned state officials, we can better support our public education system to ensure that the behavioral health and wellbeing of all students and educators are addressed through early detection and prevention programs.

Salado Artist reception at State Capitol April 13

Twenty plus artists from Salado will be showing their work at the State Capitol Building on April 13 through April 20. Several of these artists are nationally and internationally known. This exhibit will feature paintings, sculpture, glass, mixed media, literature and music.

A reception will be held Friday night, April 13, from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. to honor the artists and to thank Salado for its support.

A chartered bus will depart from the Civic Center at 5 p.m. and return between 9:30 and 10 p.m. The seating is limited. Call Cathy Sands (254) 913-5468 for reservations.

The cost of the round trip bus ticket is $20 per person.

Salado was awarded the designation for the Cultural Art District several months ago by the Texas Commission of the Arts.

"This designation is significant because it not only recognizes the talent and the creative spirit of Salado, it also gives Salado the ability to present visual and performing art. We are extremely privileged to have received this designation," said Jill Shipman

This event is sponsored by the Salado Cultural Arts District and State Representative Scott Cosper.

Larry Prellop was born and raised in Austin. His parents owned property on Lake Travis, where the youngster began his love of water. As a teenager, Prellop attended school, went to work, and then spent his evenings painting while he watched television. His mother, who worked at the State Board of Insurance, would sell Prellop's paintings for $25 to $50 to her coworkers.

"This was the first time I realized I could make money as an artist", he said. From that point on, Prellop began entering small arts and crafts shows throughout Texas, with the goal of eventually becoming a gallery artist. He credits Porfirio Salinas, Robert Wood and A. D. Greer as the biggest influences on his work.

Eventually, numerous galleries began buying Prellop's paintings. In 1979, his work was published by Scafa-Tornabene, a New York-based art publishing company. He is currently published by Modern Art, a European art publishing company.

Outside of Texas, Prellop is known primarily for his seascapes, which depict the rugged impact and drama of the Pacific Ocean. His seascapes include lighthouses, ships and marine objects.

Once he opened his Salado gallery in 1995, he began to paint Hill Country bluebonnet scenes. "I could sell my seascapes worldwide, whereas bluebonnet paintings sell mostly in Texas," he explained.

Prellop's paintings are mostly of nature. While he doesn't paint people, he occasionally includes animals in his scenes. In addition, he doesn't paint many buildings, although occasionally barns or windmills are depicted. "I like to focus on the natural beauty of the scenes," he explained.

In 2001, Prellop created a painting depicting a magnificent Texas Hill Country scene for Keep Texas Beautiful, the nonprofit state affiliate of Keep America Beautiful. The organization honored Prellop and his work as a visual link between the environmental efforts of volunteers across the state the natural beauty of the Texas Landscape.

Prellop's landscapes and seascapes are well known throughout Texas and the United States. His paintings are in the private collections of Governor Rick Perry, former Texas governors such as Governor Briscoe and other prominent elected officials such as Senator Lloyd Benson and Congressman Ken Marchant. His paintings are also in the corporate collections of Criterion Corporation, Southland Corporation, and the Texas Banking Association. His art is distinctly realistic whether he is capturing the quiet water of a hill country stream or the pounding surf of the Gulf of Mexico.

Wild Game Dinner & Auction sponsored by Salado United Methodist Church

The Salado United Methodist Church (SUMC) hosted the first Wild Game Dinner and Auction almost 20 years ago as a means to help fund SUMC's commitments to several non-profit organizations in Bell County. The first events were held at the fellowship hall of the original SUMC site near I-35 and Thomas Arnold Road.

Today, the church has continuously expanded the list to more than 20 organizations, mostly located in Bell County. Thanks to community donations and involvement, the outreach now includes missions as far away as Kenya and Belize. The complete list of mission and outreach projects is available through the church office and will also be available at the Wild Game Dinner.

The event outgrew the fellowship hall at Salado United Methodist Church, and is now held at Tenroc Ranch. This year the Wild Game Dinner is scheduled for Sunday, March 18, 5-7:30 p.m.

There will be both a live and silent auction that offers something for everyone. Last year items included jewelry, dinner packages from great restaurants, hunting trips, golf outings, baseball tickets, fine art, a fire pit, concert passes to Johnny's Outback, a Henry rifle, gift baskets of all kinds, Persian rugs and many donated items and services from local artisans and merchants (even a motorcycle).

You are invited to be a part of this community event on March 18. If you would like to donate auction items, now that they are needed and appreciated. All donations are tax deductible and 100% of all monies raised by the dinner and auction go directly to benefit the charities supported by the Outreach Programs of SUMC.

For more information call the Salado United Methodist Church at 254-947-5482, or Wild Game Dinner Committee Member, Paul Cox at 254-563-6308.

Car lease and cash prizes Hole-in-one prizes enhance 23rd Annual Denver Mills Golf Tournament

Players in the 23rd Annual Denver Mills Golf Tournament on Monday, March 19, at Mill Creek Country Club will have a chance this year to win a one-year lease of a 2018 Ford Focus donated by Johnson Brothers Ford of Temple and $10,000 to be split with Tablerock. The tournament benefits Tablerock Festival of Salado, Inc.

"We are especially grateful to have many sponsors, such as Johnson Brothers

Ford, returning this year. Our loyal sponsors and players make this tournament successful," Tournament co-chair Letta Meinen said. "Many have supported us for two decades! We also welcome new sponsors and players, who always add excitement to this fun event."

"All American Chevrolet in Killeen is sponsoring a hole and team again this year, and they generously donate their team sponsorship every year so that Fort Hood soldiers can play," said Denver Mills, a Tablerock board member and volunteer as well as tournament namesake.

So far, Meinen added, 41 area businesses and individuals are sponsors, and 10 teams are expected to play. To register to play or sponsor, email tablerock1@aol.com or phone (254) 913-3890. Sponsorships are $450 for a team/hole combo, $400 for a team of four players, $150 for a company banner, and $100 to sponsor a hole or for an individual player entry.

Registration is from 11:30 a.m. until 12:50 p.m. on March 19, with players moving to their assigned holes for a shotgun start at 1 p.m. Prizes will be presented from 5:30 to 6 p.m. Other prizes include $400 for the first place team, $200 for second place, and Salado Legends tickets for third.

Since 1996, the tournament has raised more than $74,000 for Tablerock, which provides performing arts, such as Salado Legends and A Christmas Carol for Central Texas residents and visitors. Last year the tournament netted $7,548 to help support Tablerock. Proceeds also helped provide $13,200 in college scholarships to 18 Central Texas students serving on the Legends cast or crew. Tablerock has given more than $171,000 in scholarships to date.

Legends, an outdoor musical drama about Salado's history, features more than 120 community actors and has been presented for 25 consecutive summers at Tablerock's Goodnight Amphitheater. Both Legends and its author, Jackie Mills, have received national recognition from the Library of Congress and the Institute of Outdoor Drama.

Tablerock is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization, and donations are tax deductible to the extent allowed by the IRS. For information about visit: <http://tablerock.org/>

Granger Smith will kick off Johnny's Outback's Lone Star Music Series

With sold-out national tours, a social media following of more than 6.5 million, and YouTube views exceeding 100 million, Granger Smith has amassed a rabid audience, while building a truly groundbreaking career.

He will perform at Johnny's Outback to kick off the 2018 Lone Star Music Series. Early ticket sales are $15 per person. Tickets are available at the gate for $20 per person. Gates open at 6 p.m. on March 31.

Other confirmed concert dates for the Lone Star Music Series include the Randy Rogers Band on April 7, the Lonestar Music Legends Music Fest featuring Brandon Rhyder on April 13 and William Clark Green on June 26.

Smith released When the Good Guys Win in the fall of 2017, debuting at #2 No. 2 on Billboard's Top Country Albums.

Happens Like That was the first release from the album, which follows the success of Remington, his first release via Wheelhouse Record.

Granger's previous album, Remington, released March 2016 via Wheelhouse Records, claimed the No. 1 spot on the iTunes country album chart on release day and garnered him the No. 1 debut for first week sales via Nielson Soundscan.

Remington, produced by Granger Smith and Frank Rogers, featured the hit single "Backroad Song," which landed the No. 1 spot at country radio (Billboard Country Airplay, Mediabase and Music Row charts). Granger also received a BMI Country Award for writing, producing, publishing (Climbing Windmills) and performing "Backroad Song." The follow up smash, "If The Boot Fits," reached the Top 5.

Granger was nominated in the Best New Country Artist category for the 2017 iHeartRadio Awards taking place from the Forum in Los Angeles on March 5, 2017. Granger was also included in the 2017 crop of artists honored to perform at the CRS "New Faces" show in Nashville in February 2017. Last year, he went on tour with Luke Bryan on the "Huntin', Fishin', And Lovin' Every Day Tour" this fall.

Granger's "YEE YEE NATION" headlining national tour consistently sold out and broken attendance records and merchandise records at nearly every venue over the past two and a half years. He performed at some of the country's biggest festivals throughout the year and was recently on tour with both Florida Georgia Line and Luke Bryan.

Granger's comical country boy alter-ego, Earl Dib-bles Jr., has its own fanatical following and garnered him a weekly segment called "Dip 'Em and Pick 'Em" on CBS Sports Network's "Inside College Football," in which he has appeared for the past four seasons. Granger has even been recognized by Variety for being the brainchild behind Earl Dibbles Jr. (among other character alter-egos including Donny Cowboy and Live with Lionel) and named one of their annual and lauded "10 Comics to Watch for 2016."

Granger has been lauded by outlets like New York Times, Variety, Forbes, MusicRow, Rolling Stone, Billboard, Huffington Post, Taste of Country and Rare Country, among many others.

He has appeared on Jimmy Kimmel Live!, the Today Show and Fox & Friends.

DeCee Cornish, other storytellers take stage March 24 at Tablerock Decee Cornish and four of his fellow storytellers will give a concert 7-9 p.m. March 24 at the Goodnight Amphitheater at Tablerock in Salado. The ticket gate will open at 6:30 p.m. to purchase tickets to the show: $10 for an adult and $5 for children 12 and under.

The Concession stand will also open at 6:30 p.m. for snacks, sandwiches and drinks.

In case of rain the concert will be on the inside stage behind the Main Amphitheater stage.

On the afternoon of March 24, from 1-3 p.m. at the Salado Public Library there will be a free workshop presentation by the five Storytellers and a sign-up for area storytellers to organize a Bell County Storytellers League.

You may also sign-up for the organization of the Bell County Storytellers League at Tablerock before and after the concert.

Cornish is an award winning Storyteller! He is a five time Texas State Storytelling Champion, a Texas Commission of the Arts Touring Artist, Texas Librarian Association Advocate, Five Time Chair of the TLA Storytelling Round Table, a Program Provider for the Education Service Centers State of Texas and the 2015 National Storytelling Network, "Storyslam" Champion and a member of the Tejas Storytelling Association. He grew up in Houston, received his education as a member of the US Armed Forces. In 2004 Dee Cee was awarded the U.S. President's Commission on the Arts and the Humanities recognizing his work with the Coming Up Taller Award.

For more information or price for group attendance call Jackie Mills at 254-947-9205. If you are interested in having the five Tejas Storytellers present at your school while they are in Bell County March 22-23, you may call Jaye McLaughlin at 817-320-5046.

The bath coup Contract Bridge

By Steve Becker

Most players are familiar with the Bath Coup, even though they might not know the technical name for the play. It gets its name because the play is said to have originated in the resort town of Bath, England.

Consider this deal where West leads the king of hearts. If South knows his way around a bridge table, he plays the four on the king, hoping West will continue the suit and hand him an extra heart trick. The duck of the king, holding A-J-x, is called a Bath Coup.

However, if West is familiar with this holdup play, he will switch to a different suit after East plays the discouraging deuce of hearts on the king. It is here that declarer must be careful not to dissipate his advantage.

Let's say West shifts to a club at trick two. South cannot afford to finesse, since this would subject him to defeat if the finesse lost and East returned a heart. So to ensure the contract, he goes up with the ace.

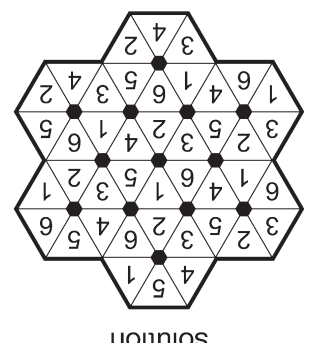

He next plays the K-Q of trumps, followed by the queen of diamonds. Assume East wins the second diamond with the ace and returns a heart. South takes his ace, crosses to dummy with a trump and discards his heart loser on dummy's third diamond. He then concedes a club to the king to make the contract.

Observe that if South takes the king of hearts with the ace at trick one, he goes down. East later gains the lead with either a diamond or a club and returns a heart through declarer's J-4. The Bath Coup thus proves to be the key to making the contract, even though declarer may have no idea that the play he has employed carries a very fancy moniker.

Red-spotted Toad

Red Spotted toads are a boon to agriculture

The Red-spotted Toad (Bufo punctatus) is one of nine species of "true" toads that occur in Texas, and it is arguably the most distinguishable. It can be observed throughout Texas in all but the eastern ¼ of the state. It also occurs in most of the southwestern states, as well as far south as the state of Hidalgo, Mexico.

The habitats that this toad prefers to occupy vary from rocky deserts, open prairies, grasslands, although it can also thrive in open range, mesquite-filled pastures, and creosote flats. More often than not, it is associated closely with permanent or semi-permanent water sources, whether the water source be natural such as creeks or springs, or man-made such as cattle tanks. In addition to water sources, this species can live anywhere that has loose enough soil where it can bury itself deep enough to escape the heat and drought conditions.

The Red-spotted Toad is a moderately small amphibian that has dry, wart-covered skin. It is one of the smallest "true" toads that inhabit this state, with adult females (the larger sex) attaining a total body length of just over two inches. The background coloration can vary from any shade of brown to olive-brown to olive gray. As the common name implies, it frequently is adorned with numerous small red dots, although in many individuals these dots are just a darker shade of brown. The belly coloration is off-white to white in coloration and oftentimes has small irregular dark spots. The paratoid glands are the large "bumps" immediately behind each eye, and in this species, they are round to slightly oval in appearance. Each toe on the hind feet end in a sharp black point, and there are two sharp tubercles on each hind foot. The innermost tubercle is crescent-shaped.

Wild About Texas

Red-spotted Toads, like other amphibian species, live a dual-life. In fact, the word amphibian itself means "double-life". When the spring and summer rains begin, males of this species will congregate at shallow pools to begin to attract a mate. This attraction consists of calling in long, high-pitched, trill-like bursts. When just one or two males is calling, the noise is nothing more than background noise. However, like other "true" toads, when a large group begins to call in a chorus, the noise can be deafening.

Once a male successfully attracts a mate, they engage in the process of externally fertilizing the eggs. This process is known as amplexus. During this time, a male will wrap his forelegs around a receptive female and as she lays her eggs, he will fertilize each individual one as it exits the female's body. Many thousands of eggs may be laid each breeding session, and the number of sessions may vary from two to three annually to once every two to three years. Breeding is all based upon sufficient rainfall, for the eggs are often laid in shallow, non-permanent pools of water that dry up after just a few sunny days accompanied with unbearable heat.

The life cycle of the Red-spotted Toad continues as the fertilized eggs hatch into tiny, dark tadpoles. These tadpoles are often referred to as "pollywogs". They are fish-like in appearance, and they obtain their oxygen from the water through gills. Within a day or two after hatching, they begin a miraculous metamorphosis where their lungs begin to develop, while at the same time, back legs begin to form on their bodies. Within the next day or two from then, front legs begin to appear, the tail begins to shrink, the lungs continue to develop, and the back legs become larger. This process continues for about a week after hatching, when the tiny toadlets have completed their change, looking like tiny replicas of the adults, thus beginning their "second" life.

This species is highly nocturnal, and it feeds on large amounts of insects when moisture levels are at a sufficient level to prevent desiccation, therefore they are beneficial to agriculturally-based ventures such as crops or gardens.

Many myths surround toads, and the most common tale is the notion that toads cause warts on people if handled. This is not true of course, but rather, the secretions that are present when a toad is handled are either the poison from the paratoid glands, or urine as the toad is frightened. The poison of the Red-spotted Toad is not harmful to humans (although it has been said it is rather bitter), but it can cause yard animals such as dogs or cats to froth at the mouth.

So the next time you see a Red-spotted Toad, or any toad for that matter, fear not, for you do not have to run to your local drugstore to buy anti-wart cream. Hot soap and water or hand-sanitizer will do just fine.
