

Village considers ordinance regulating food trucks

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

For years, there was only Sylvia's, set up daily in front of Salado Wine Seller to sell breakfast and lunch tacos, gone before 5 p.m.

But now, not a week passes that food trucks can't be spotted in various locations throughout town. For the past two years, Barrow Brewing Co. has been a focal point for food trucks to set up on the property on Royal Street to offer a variety of options from Mexican fusion to soul food to Korean to German to stuffed baked potatoes.

Food trucks have become quite a trend and local municipalities, including the Village of Salado, are struggling to wrap their heads (and regs) around them.

"They're restaurants on wheels," village administrator Don Ferguson said during a workshop session on a possible food truck ordinance.

The possible ordinance, which may be discussed again in draft form in April, pulls mobile food vendors out of the itinerant vendor ordinance first adopted in 2011 and sets specific regulations for the trendy trucks.

The ordinance could regulate operating locations, health and safety, sales tax reporting, parking requirements, restrooms, permits and fees and special events.

Ferguson said that food trucks should meet the same health department requirements of a restaurant in terms of permitting and employees having food handling certificates.

"Mobile food operations generally are inspected one to two times per year depending on the nature of the operation," according to George A. Highsmith, supervisor in the Food Protection Division of the Bell County Health District. "Some operate seasonally so they would get usually only one as the rotation for two would fall in a time period when they are not operating."

Highsmith told Salado Village Voice that there are 181 mobile food operations with county-issued permits for operation. Bell County currently has four staff members that conduct food sanitation inspections on a consistent basis, according to Highsmith.

Village administrator Don Ferguson told Salado Village Voice that it is "Difficult to say" how many food trucks are registered with the Village under the itinerant vendor ordinance. "Most register just for a few days of operation," he added, "though we do have a handle to maintain an annual permit."

The possible ordinance would do away with short-term permits and have a single annual permit for mobile food vendors for $100 per year.

Currently, the annual permit for a mobile food unit/vendor is $250 per year. The itinerant vendor permit requirement does not apply to the following: persons who make such sales sporadically for the purposes of raising funds for an incorporated charitable, fraternal, educational or religious institutions; street musicians who play free of charge but accept donations; garage sales; produce stands where vendors sell fruits and/or vegetables grown in Bell County, according to the current ordinance.

Ferguson told Salado Village Voice that the Village has received "very few complaints" about food trucks. "If we get a complaint," he added, "it typically relates to the location of the food vendor or the lack of a permit."

"We welcome mobile food vendors in Salado," Ferguson said. "It is important, though, that we make sure such facilities are safe and clean, and that proper food preparation and service practices are being followed to avoid health issues for customers."

"Mobile food vendors are restaurants on wheels and we try to address their operations much the same way we address the kitchen in a restaurant," Ferguson said.

Brick and mortar restaurants are inspected by Bell County Health department inspectors three to four times a year.

"The difference in the numbers has to do with the inherent risk associated with the type of operation," he explained. "The higher the risk, the more inspections necessary during a given year."

Highsmith explained that the standards vary from unit to unit, "based on the type of operation and the minimal needs for food safety processes."

"The more risky, involved the process, the more things (operational provisions) they would have to observe or have," he stated.

Supporting Ferguson's assertion that food trucks are restaurants on wheels, Highsmith referred to the Texas Food Establishment Rules: "The basic premise (and this is paraphrasing TFER) is that the mobile food unit must adhere to all standards a restaurant does with the exceptions of permissible waivers or things not applicable to the type of operation."

The Bell County Public Health District, through inspection processes, enforces the requirements established in the TFER.

In addition to food safety, the Village may want to be able to track the local sales of food trucks to be sure that it is being paid the tax dollars it is owed. One requirement for permitting may require vendors to send their periodic sales tax reports to the Village at the time that it sends those reports to the Comptroller.

Ferguson told Salado Village Voice that the Village has not tracked the sales taxes due the city from mobile food vendors.

Tracking sales tax from itinerant vendors may be an effort not worth the cost. However, requiring vendors to self-report to the Village at the time they report to the State may make it easier to track the source of potential income.

While it is difficult to determine the direct financial impact on the Salado economy of food trucks, they certainly have the effect of generating a buzz of activity in the areas in which they locate, particularly when their food complements the sale of alcohol at places such as Barrow Brewing Co., which hosts food trucks every weekend at its Royal St. location. Other retail businesses have taken notice and have invited food trucks to set up outside their locations.

The possible ordinance may address parking issues affected by the placement of food trucks. In the discussion on March 15, Ferguson said that the Village has a parking ordinance that regulates the number of spaces required by business type. If a food truck takes up parking spaces, it could impact whether a business is in compliance with those parking requirements.

The possible ordinance may require a site plan that shows adequate parking, nearby restrooms, signage and placement of the truck.

Parking requirements could include codifying that food trucks cannot be set up in public rights-of-way, setting aside parking for food truck employees and not blocking the vision triangles at intersections.

The possible ordinance could include the requirement that food trucks provide access to restrooms within a certain distance during operational hours.

Salado is not alone in its efforts to regulate food trucks. Municipalities throughout the state are dealing with the regulation of food trucks as the food phenomenon has exploded since 2008. Some have kept regulations to a minimum and others have put in costs and regulations that have sent a clear message to food trucks: don't stop here.

Temple has a low permit fee of $35 plus $5 per vehicle, but requires food trucks to pay the county permit fee of $125 as well. Temple requires a site plan, a Bell County food permit, property owner permission and a signage plan.

Belton requires, according to the permit online, a photo of the truck, a site plan to include parking (except in the commercial district where there is public parking, sales tax certificate, inspection, permission from the property owner, photo ID of owner and food handlers certification for workers. The permit is $100 annually.

Jarrell's permit is $250 and follows the requirements laid out by the Williamson County Health Department.

Georgetown's permit is $150 and follows the requirements of the WCHD. It also requires proof of proper handling of wastewater and fresh water and inspections by the county.

BoA repeals parking ordinance affecting residential properties

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado aldermen at their March 15 meeting repealed the 2018 Parking Ordinance that regulated the parking of vehicles in residential front yards and on public streets.

"Why appeal something we just approved?" alderman Michael McDougal asked.

He added that the issue was "hastily put in front of us."

The issue was brought to the Village by members of Mill Creek Community Association (MCCA) who felt that the deed restrictions on properties in the several subdivisions that comprise Mill Creek lack "teeth" for enforcement.

During the discussion of the repeal, alderman Fred Brown referred to other communities that had homeowners associations that could and would enforce deed restrictions.

Historically, MCCA does not meet the legal definition of a Homeowners' Association in that membership is voluntary. Homeowners and Property Owners Associations are typically developed as part of a new subdivision and require annual dues from every homeowner/property owner in that subdivision. Those dues are then used for beautification of common and park areas and enforcement of deed restrictions within that subdivision.

Historically, Mill Creek grew over more than four decades as a series of subdivisions, each one with a set of covenants or deed restrictions. While many of the Mill Creek additions adopted the same deed restrictions as the previous subdivisions, this has not always been the case.

With the adoption of the parking ordinance in February, it quickly became apparent to local residents that the Village was injecting itself into property rights conflicts between neighbors and neighborhoods.

The general prohibitions outlined in the since-repealed ordinance stated that "It shall be unlawful for any person to park or to cause, suffer or permit the parking of a vehicle, boat or equipment on any surface that is not an improved surface as defined in this ordinance, within the front or side yard of a singlefamily residence subject to this section. It is presumed the registered owner of the vehicle or equipment is the person who parked, caused, suffered or permitted the vehicle or equipment to be parked in violation of this ordinance."

It also stated: "b. General Prohibition: It shall be unlawful for any person to park or cause, suffer or permit the parking of a vehicle, boat or equipment on within the rear yard of a lot with a singlefamily residence unless the vehicle, boat or equipment is located behind a seven (7) foot tall wooden fence. It is presumed the registered owner of the vehicle, boat or equipment is the person who parked, caused, suffered or permitted the vehicle, boat or equipment to be parked in violation of this ordinance. Temporary parking of a recreational vehicle, boat or equipment for the purpose of loading or unloading is permitted but shall not exceed a period of twenty-four (24) consecutive hours."

The requirement of a seven foot fence was found to be in conflict with existing deed restrictions in Mill Creek which restrict fences

Property owners also bemoaned the 24-hour requirement for unloading and loading vehicles.

Aldermen at their March 1 meeting discussed amending the ordinance before Frank Coachman gave a motion to not adopt the amended ordinance and to put the parking ordinance on the March 15 agenda for repeal.

The board voted 3-2 to repeal the ordinance with Amber Preston-Dankert and Fred Brown voted against.

Dankert called the repeal the "second knee jerk reaction" concerning the issue.

She also expressed support of neighborhoods enforcing deed restrictions. "When you bought the house, you signed on the dotted line that you would abide by the covenants," she said. Property owners refusing to voluntarily abide by those covenants are now "putting neighbor against neighbor."

When a property owner is in violation of deed restrictions, the owner can be forced through litigation to be in compliance. This is usually done through HOAs or POAs with the funds and legal expertise on hire to enforce those covenants.

The HOAs and POAs act on behalf of the adjacent property owners that are most affected by violations that are considered by the neighborhoods to be nuisances.

According to a 2010 presentation by Marc D. Markel to the Dallas Bar Association, "One purpose of deed restrictions is to protect property values. Violations of deed restrictions most directly affect the value of adjoining lots."

Fear of possible trade war, firing of voice of reason causing declines?

The Markets

The S&P 500 Stock Index closed out the week at 2572.01, down 1.24 percent from last week. It remains up 2.93 percent year-to-date, on track toward another double-digit year despite the week's less than stellar performance. The big "if" and the reason for the weekly decline remains the fear of a global trade war following the sudden firing of what Wall Street considered the two voices of economic reason in the Trump administration. There is a pervasive concern that if the verbal jabs turn into a real trade war, the U.S. economy will suffer, prematurely ending the nine-year bull market.

Those same fears of reduced economic growth drove the yield on the ten-year Treasury note down from over 2.9 percent at the beginning of the week to 2.846 percent on Friday. The dollar was almost unchanged for the week remaining down about 7.28 percent from a year ago against a basket of major currencies. Gold fell 0.76 percent to close at $1,313.90. The Economy

U.S. industrial production increased a seasonally adjusted 1.1 percent in February according to the Federal Reserve and is up 4.4 percent from this time a year ago. The Commerce Department reported that capacity utilization, a measure of how much slack capacity remains in the system rose to 78.1 percent, approaching the long-term average of 79.8 percent. As the "Cap-U" as it is known, moves to and beyond the long-term mean, historically prices have started up and inflation becomes a threat. Whether that will happen this time around bears watching.

Market & Economic Update

By Jeffrey W. McClure

In a very positive sign for the economy, fixed non-residential investment in equipment, buildings, etc. rose 6.3 percent in the 4th quarter of 2017, signaling optimism and a willingness by businesses to invest in their own plants and processes. That investment increase was followed by a 4.4 percent year-over-year increase in factory production in February, the strongest annual growth we have seen in seven years.

While the year-over-year numbers show that we are in growth mode and there appears to be a good momentum, the threat to that rosy picture can be seen in the nearly 7 percent decline in Boeing stock price this week. Boeing is one of our principal exporters and is very sensitive to the price of aluminum. A trade war has the potential to cause major trade blocks and nations to place tariffs on American exports but more importantly, a 10 percent increase in aluminum cost in the United States would either make Boeing's large aircraft less competitive against other foreign aircraft manufacturers or eliminate its profit margin.

In what may be a harbinger of things to come, federal government revenue declined by 9 percent in February when compared with a year ago. The cause was not a business slowdown, but the first full month of lower withholding from worker's paychecks resulting from the tax cuts. That decrease in revenue combined with the increase in spending from increased interest rates and spending billions passed recently raised the one-year trailing deficit to $706 billion, or 3.6 percent of gross domestic product (GDP). A year ago, at this point, the federal deficit was $583 billion for the trailing 12 months or about 2.4 percent of GDP. Moody's Analytics, as well as the Congressional Budget Office, have suggested the 2018 government deficit could go well above $1 trillion, or about double what it was for fiscal years 2016 and 2017.

Those are just numbers, but a doubling of borrowing by the U.S. government is a sizable increase in demand. Higher loan demand tends to generate higher interest rates, which then increases the deficit as interest payments rise. The grand experiment is underway.

One of the theoretical elements that were supposed to offset the revenue shortfalls from the tax cuts was to be a windfall from corporate taxes on overseas holdings and the repatriation of that money to America. Unfortunately, the new tax law also allowed U.S. companies to only pay about half the tax owed on overseas cash if the money was invested in illiquid positions. It appears that while some money is coming home, a lot of the cash was quickly invested in less liquid assets overseas, chopping the tax bill in half and keeping the money overseas. As Steven Shay, a senior lecturer at Harvard Law School and a former top Treasury Department Tax official put it, "This is clearly the result of rushed legislation."

SHS FFA teaches importance of agricultural for 60 years

Our new agricultural science/FFA teachers, Kaleigh and Dean Black, are doing an outstanding job this year.

Texas FFA Association celebrates 90 years in 2019, while Salado FFA has been teaching Salado students the importance of Agricultural Education for well 60 over years. From leadership events to archery, floral design to livestock shows, community events and conventions; Salado FFA is paving the way today for member success tomorrow. Today the former "Future Farmers of America" (now simply referred to as the National FFA Organization) is boasting 21st century innovations that can give students a distinct advantage. The incorporation of cross-curricular STEM fundamentals, paired with the critical thinking achieved through project-based learning make agricultural science and FFA a proven combination for student success.

FFA is a dynamic youth organization that changes lives by upholding the values in the very core of its mission statement. The focus is placed on preparing students for premier leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education. Salado FFA develops members' potential and helps them discover their individual talent through hands-on experiences, giving members the tools to achieve real-world success in any industry of their interest. The Salado FFA chapter has something for everyone.

Students in grades 3-7 have the opportunity to be members in the Salado Junior FFA. In grades

Superintendent's Corner

by Dr. Michael Novotny

8-12 the FFA is a co-curricular organization, where membership eligibility is concurrent with course enrollment. Beginning in 8th grade, students have the opportunity to become Salado FFA members by enrolling in the introductory agriculture course at Salado Junior High. This course provides a discovery experience exposing students to various facets of the agriculture industry; allowing them to achieve a unique understanding of global agriculture and its influence on their individual lives.

The next opportunity for exposure to the 21st century model for agricultural education comes in 9th grade where students are encouraged to enroll in the Principles of Agriculture, Food, and Natural Resources course. This is where students will develop a more specific program of study in one of the three agricultural science course pathways: Ag Mechanics and Metal Systems, Animal Systems, and Plant Systems. From there, Salado ISD has a variety of courses such as: Floral Design (also serves as an Art credit), Advanced Animal Science (an honors course that will satisfy a fourth year science credit), Professional Standards in Agribusiness (also serves as a Speech credit), as well as Ag Mechanics and Wildlife just to name a few. Students leave high school not only with the lifelong support of an organization behind them, but also equipped with industry recognition and certifications.

Salado FFA members are future chemists, veterinarians, government officials, entrepreneurs, bankers, international business leaders, teachers and premier professionals in many career fields. No matter the student's interest or desired path, members are united by the bond of the same blue corduroy jacket, and the promise of "better days through better ways." The expectation is that members take with them an important principle of the FFA motto, "Living to Serve." Students in FFA share common ground such as being a part of the largest student organization in the world, and all the benefits that membership entails:

- * The opportunity to apply for more than $2 million in National scholarships, and well over $2.2 million in state and local awards.

- * The platform to meet new friends from across the country.

- * The ability to acquire skills and industry certifications that will help you in your future career.

- * A chance to compete on leadership and judging teams.

- * Servant Leadership: Doing your part in helping to provide food and fiber to the world.

Why China trade has been a bust

There's already a trade war, and it's being waged by Beijing.

China's ascension to the World Trade Organization nearly 20 years ago has failed in its strategic objectives. It hasn't created a liberalizing regime or a free-market economy in China; in fact, it hasn't even created a China ready and willing to abide by the norms of free trade.

The regime of Xi Jinping hasn't been pushed toward democratic reforms by a rising middle class. China still champions state-led, rather than market-led, capitalism. And it takes advantage of the WTO, using nontariff barriers and industrial policy, to push mercantilist policies.

President Donald Trump's prospective tariffs on steel and aluminum have put renewed focus on China trade, although the tariffs are a comically inept misfire if their true target is China. The rubric for the levies could be: "How to lose a trade war with China in one easy step."

The tariffs don't really affect China, from which we import only about 3 percent of our steel. Meanwhile, they send the message that the U.S. government is lurching toward protectionism, and alienate our allies. A better approach begins with acknowledging that China is a unique problem.

Rich Lowry

For all of Trump's complaints, Mexico isn't pursuing a well-honed strategic agenda of exploiting the global trade system while it undertakes an aggressive neoimperialist foreign policy. Only China is doing that.

China isn't the first developing country to adopt a policy of maximizing exports. What makes it different is its sheer ambition and its size, which gives it leverage over foreign companies and considerable international influence.

What's the harm to the U.S.? There is no doubt that China's practices have harmed U.S. manufacturing. Yes, technology accounts for a large share of job losses. Yes, lower-end manufacturing would have left our shores regardless. But Beijing works to block higher-value-added exports from the U.S. and is pursuing a comprehensive strategy to dominate in advanced industries.

By no means should we emulate China. We should continue to pursue free trade as a policy, not as a theology that prevents us from acknowledging that there is such a thing as unfair trade.

The ITIF report urges using the global free-trade regime against China. That means bringing more actions against China in the WTO and working to update the rules to capture Chinese cheating. It means joining, and influencing, a multilateral agreement like the Trans-Pacific Partnership. It means forging bilateral agreements with up-to-date standards that reinforce principles that China undermines.

We obviously can't do this alone. We'd have to lead an alliance of international partners to pressure China on specific practices, with tailored consequences if we get nowhere.

Such a broad-based effort to crack China's mercantilism wouldn't be protectionist, but the opposite. There is obviously no chance of doing this, though, if we are engaged in an absurd cycle of tit-for-tat tariffs with the likes of the EU.

Trump can have emotionally satisfying tariffs to scratch his protectionist itch, or he can have a strategy to muster an alliance of truly free-trade partners to pressure China. He can't have both -- and you can be sure China knows which option it prefers.

Business Planning 101

By RHEA LANDHOLM, RHEAL@CFRA.ORG, CENTER FOR RURAL AFFAIRS

The most effective development strategy for rural communities is small entrepreneurship – locally-owned and operated small businesses.

The first step in creating a small business is having a great idea. Next is writing a good business plan to help you make superior business decisions. Business plans are also crucial to obtain financing.

Think of a business plan as a resume for your business that should be written down and formalized. In general, it contains:

Executive summary: a concise overview of the entire plan.

Market analysis: a description and outlook of your industry, target market, and market test results, if available; lead times for your product or service; and evaluation of your competition.

Company description: the nature of your business, as well as the factors you believe will make your business a success.

Organization and management: the organizational structure and details about ownership, delineating roles and responsibilities.

Marketing and sales management: the marketing strategy (market penetration, business growth, distribution channels, and customer communication) and the business sales strategy (sales force and sales activities).

Service or product line: a description of products or services; copyright and patent information; and research and development activities you have done or will do.

Funding request: current and future funding needs, how you will use these funds, and any plans that will affect future funding needs.

Financials: historical financial data (income statements, balance sheets, and cash flow statements); prospective financial data (pro forma income statements, balance sheets, and cash flow statements); and capital expenditure budgets for any major investments.

Appendix: any additional information. This may include credit history, product pictures, letters of reference, legal documents, and a list of your attorney and accountant.

For more small business resources, visit cfra.org/small-business.

SUPT. CONTINUED FROM PAGE 2A

There is no exception to this in Salado ISD. Just a few highlights from the Program of Activities as another successful year for Salado FFA is quickly unfolding:

* Hosted the annual Central Texas State Fair Petting Zoo to advocate for agriculture for hundreds of local youth.

* Involvement with community groups for various projects and needs: Salado Education Foundation, Keep Salado Beautiful, Salado Youth Fair Boosters, Salado Athletics, Salado 4H, Boy Scouts, and more.

* Served to establish the constitution and bylaws for the newly formed Area XII Association, making their mark on Texas FFA history.

* Hosted Salado FFA Events: 1st Salado FFA Skeet Shoot Showdown, 3rd Eagle Invitational Annual Leadership Development Event

* Earned a grant from the National Archery in the Schools program to start the Salado FFA Archery Team, and qualified 25 shooters for the State Tournament in Belton in March 21st.

* Members participated in the 31st Annual Bell

County Youth Fair with members earning 176 individual awards and over $65,000 across the Livestock, Farm Shop and Family Consumer Divisions.

* Competed at livestock shows across the state and nation with members earning over $30,000 more in scholarships and premiums (and still counting).

* Scheduled to compete in Career Development and Public Speaking contests in the weeks ahead for a chance to represent on the state and national stage.

The lifetime experience gained through agricultural education and the long-standing success of FFA have created this year's theme: "A Tradition Unlike Any Other" as not only a celebration of where the chapter has been, but also to propel them to new heights. Through continuous efforts from Ag instruction/FFA advisors and student leadership, we constantly create unique opportunities for students to shine. From pigs to pink carnations, welding rods to bows and arrows, fishing poles to landscape squares and all that is in between; one thing is certain the future is bright for Salado FFA and its members!

JEAN MARIE SCULLY MORRIS

JANUARY 1, 1951
MARCH 19, 2018

Memorial services celebrating the life of Jean Marie Scully Morris, 67, of Salado, will be held 11 AM Saturday, March 24, 2018 at Salado United Methodist Church, 650 Royal St, Salado, TX 76571.

Jean passed from this life while surrounded by her beloved family on Monday, March 19, 2018. Mrs. Morris was born to Nelson E. and Janis Scully on New Year's Day of 1951 in Huntingdon, PA.

Jean was a resident of Salado for nearly all of her life. Life in the village suited her perfectly for raising a family. She was a member of Salado United Methodist Church. She was a second grade teacher in Killeen Independent School District. She truly had the heart of a teacher, always caring for her students. She went out of her way to make sure that all of her students never went without a meal at school. She cared for those around her unconditionally even if it meant that she would go without just so others had plenty. She was a wonderful wife to her husband, Ted.

In life, Jean's greatest treasure was her family, especially her grandchildren and great grandchildren. She was a wonderfully supportive mother, that always attended sporting events and other activities that her children were involved in.

Jean loved baseball and always cheered for the Yankees and Reds. She loved her animals and most of all the dogs who were certainly apart of the family. She enjoyed music and singing. She loved trips to the beach with family and friends alike. Jean was a good and kind soul who will be greatly missed by all those who knew and loved her.

Jean is preceded in death by her parents, and a brother, Noel Scully.

Those left to honor and cherish her memory are her beloved husband of 38 years, Ted Morris of Salado; sons, Shawn Morris and wife, Jennifer of San Antonio, Ryan Morris and wife, Carol of Round Rock; daughters, Amanda DeLacretaz and husband Ryan of Austin, Loretta Jackson and husband, Donnie of Salado; sisters Laraine Scully and Candy Hughs; and most importantly her eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. In lieu of flowers, memorials can be made to the Salado Volunteer Fire Department or the Michael J. Fox Foundation.

Burnet Lady Bulldogs got the ball out of the infield only twice as the hosting Lady Eagles beat them 10-0 in a Mercy-Rule shortened game March 12.

No player got past first base as the infield held the batters who were able to connect with Rebecca Dockray's pitches in check. Dockray threw 78 pitches, 51 of them for strikes. She allowed three hits, all of them singles and only one of the getting beyond the infield and struck out eight batters.

Dockray and Christin Wilson at first base put out two, Amanda Cantu and Wilson put out one, Wilson caught one pop-up and Abbie James got the only action in the outfield catching a fly ball.

The Lady Eagles, conversely, had 14 hits over their four frames on offense.

Piper Randolph, in typical fashion, led off the bottom of the first with a single. She stole second and then third base. Randolph scored on an error by the catcher. Ryley Oborski followed with a single and stole second and third bases. Christin Wilson singled and went to second on an error by the catcher that allowed Oborski to score.

The girls added two more in the third. With two outs and empty bases, Randolph reached on a bunt. She stole second and scored on a double by Oborski. Breigh Oliver knocked Oborski in on a double, stealing third base. Oliver scored on a single by Wilson before the final out of the inning was recorded.

Marissa Gonzalez walked to lead off the bottom of the third. She stole second base and advanced to third on a groundout by Erin Faske. Elizabeth Ford tripled to left to score Gonzalez.

In the final frame at-bat for Salado, the Lady Eagles added four runs. Oborski started off with a double and scored on a double by Oliver. Oliver was thrown out trying to steal third. Wilson singled and went to second on an error by second baseman. She went to third on a bunt by Amanda Cantu. Cantu stole second and both runners came home on a double by Gonzalez. Gonzalez advanced to the third on a groundout for the second out by Faske. She scored on an error by the catcher for the final run making the score 10-0.

Dobbins pitches second no-hitter

Drew Dobbins threw his second no-hitter of the season, leading Salado to an 8-0 win over the Leander Glenn Grizzlies March 13.

Dobbins earned the no-hitter taking the final batter to a full count before catching him looking for the final strike and out in the game. Dobbins went to a full count twice in the game, the other in the sixth inning when he hit the batter to send him to first.

Otherwise, he stayed ahead of every batter he faced, minimizing the number of pitchers to just over three per batter. He had great accuracy, throwing strikes 72 percent of the time.

But for an error in the bottom of the second and hitting a batter in the bottom of the sixth, Dobbins would have had a perfect game in his seven inning appearance on the mound. He threw 79 pitches, 57 of them for strikes, facing 22 batters. In the appearance, he threw 17 first pitch strikes to stay ahead of the batters. He struck out 10 batters.

Meanwhile, the Eagle offense took care of business as well, getting 10 hits for 8 runs in the game.

Salado scored a run in the top of the second. Dobbins doubled on a line drive to right. Courtesy runner Konnor Baird scored on a single by Parker Shelley with two outs.

The Eagles added two more in the fifth. Ryan Oaks walked and Dalton Hawes reached on a bunt. Oaks went to third on the throw to put runners at the corners with no outs. Hawes stole second and Oaks scored on an error by the Glenn catcher. Hawes scored on a single to left by Jacob Wilk to make the score 3-0.

Salado added three in the sixth. Dustin Heath walked and courtesy runner Garrett Knight scored when Belton Farr tripled to right field. Oaks walked and both runners scored on a double by Wilk.

With two outs and empty bases in the seventh, the Eagles added two more runs. Farr walked, scoring on a triple to left by Oaks. Oaks scored on an error by shortstop that allowed Hawes to turn a ground out into a two bagger.

Salado 19
Burnet 0

Salado crushed the Burnet Bulldogs 19-0 in a mercy-rule shortened five innings on March 16.

Jacob Wilk, Garrett

Knight and Max Marin combined to allow just two hits from the Bulldogs. Wilk allowed one hit and struck out seven batters in his three innings of work. Knight pitched an inning and allowed a hit and struck out a batter. Marin pitched an inning, striking out one.

Salado scored nine runs in the first, a run in the second, eight more in the third and a run in their final at-bat at the bottom of the fourth.

The game started out rough for Burnet with back to back errors to put runners on first and second. Wilk doubled to score and run and Rustin Hale doubled to plate two. Drew Dobbins singled to put runners at the corners. He stole second. Mac Miller singled to score Hale. A walk loaded the bases. Kade Maedgen was hit by the pitcher to push across a run. Another run came across on an error that lat Belton Farr reach. Ryan Oaks singled to knock in a run. Dalton Hawes was hit by the pitcher to plate another run, the eighth of the inning, and keep the bases full. Wilk hit into a double play, but scored a runner for the ninth run before Burnet could finally get out of the inning on a flyball.

With one out in the second, Mac Miller doubled. He went to third on an error by the catcher and scored on an error by the center-fielder for a 10-0 lead.

Salado added another eight runs in the third. Wilk singled and Hale walked. Runners advanced on a passed ball and Wilk scored on the throw by the catcher. Dobbins walked and Miller doubled to score Hale. Heath doubled to score both runners for a 14-0 lead and one out. Kade Maedgen singled before Farr homered to score three runs. Hawes walked and went to second on a passed ball. He scored on a single by Wilk.

Salado added a run in the fourth after two outs were recorded. Farr was hit by the pitcher and scored on a double by Oaks for an 19-0 lead.

Shipman among Salado Artists on view at Texas State Capitol

Twenty plus artists from Salado will be showing their work at the State Capitol Building on April 13-20. Several of these artists are nationally and internationally known. This exhibit will feature paintings, sculpture, glass, mixed media, literature and music.

A reception will be held 6 to 8:30 p.m. on April 13, to honor the artists and to thank Salado for its support.

A chartered bus will depart from the Civic Center at 5 p.m. and return between 9:30 and 10 p.m. The seating is limited. Call Cathy Sands (254) 913-5468 for reservations.

The cost of the round trip bus ticket is $20 per person.

Salado was awarded the designation for the Cultural Art District several months ago by the Texas Commission of the Arts.

"This designation is significant because it not only recognizes the talent and the creative spirit of Salado, it also gives Salado the ability to present visual and performing art. We are extremely privileged to have received this designation," said Jill Shipman

This event is sponsored by the Salado Cultural Arts District and State Representative Scott Cosper.

Johnny Shipman will be one of the Salado artists featured in the show. Shipman has had several pieces featured in the Salado Sculpture Garden. He and his wife Jill own Stonecreek Settlements Bed and Breakfast on College Hill, where his art is featured on the grounds.

A place for weary travelers, thirsty tourist, and hungry neighbors!

dire straits. He could establish the club suit if he wanted to, but since he had no subsequent entry to his hand, he was out of business and eventually finished down two.

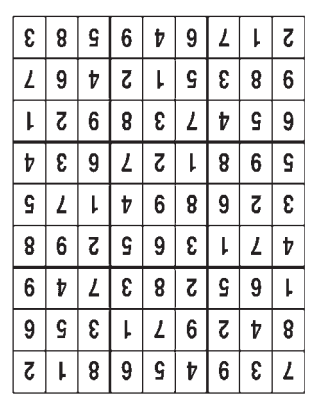

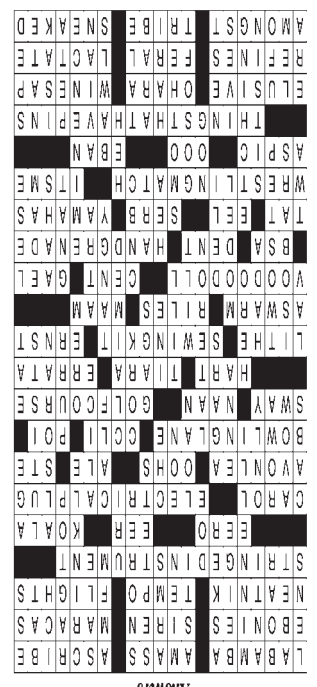

The sad part of the affair was that nothing could have stopped declarer from making nine tricks if he had played correctly. All he had to do to assure the contract was to play the ace of hearts from dummy at trick one, resisting the temptation to let the lead run to his hand. By doing so, he would have preserved the Q-J of hearts, one of which would provide him with an entry to his clubs later on.

After taking the heart ace, declarer plays clubs until the ace is disclosed. Regardless of which defender wins the club, no return can prevent declarer from scoring four clubs, two diamonds, two hearts and a spade for a total of nine tricks.

A heart return establishes an entry to the closed hand immediately, while a diamond return allows declarer to win in dummy and establish the heart entry himself. A spade return similarly causes no problem, since the 10-5-2 opposite dummy's A-J-4 assure South that, no matter which defender wins the club and shifts to a spade, he has the necessary intermediate cards to assure the contract.

Western Diamondback Rattlesnake

Western Diamondback Rattlesnakes give birth to live young

There are times when I write this column that the information about an animal is scarce and hard to come by. However, at other times the material that is available is almost overwhelming. There is so much information (true and false) that I would like to present that a column like this would quickly take up more space than is allowed, and such is the case with the Western Diamondback Rattlesnake.

The Western Diamondback Rattlesnake (Crotalus atrox) occurs from central Oklahoma through the western two-thirds of Texas westward to the southeastern border of California south to the state of San Luis Potosi, Mexico. In Texas, it is the most commonly encountered venomous snake in the Trans-Pecos eco-region, as well as the Tamaulipan thornscrub of south Texas. It is a habitat generalist, occupying a variety of habitats ranging from desert scrub near the Permian Basin to high elevation pine-oak forests of the Davis Mountains.

Western Diamondbacks are the second largest venomous snake in the United States, slightly exceeded in size only by the Eastern Diamondback Rattlesnake of Florida and other east coast states. It is by far the largest venomous snake that occurs in Texas. Adult Western Diamondbacks can achieve lengths of up to seven feet in length, although the average is much smaller than this. Most individuals max out at a length between four and five feet in total length.

The body coloration of Western Diamondbacks can vary (depending on the soil type where it occurs) from a chalky gray to a dull reddish brown. Along the spine is a series of darker diamond-shaped markings that are bordered by a black and white border, hence the name diamondback. A common nickname among those who encounter this serpent frequently is coon-tail which refers to the black and white banded tail. These tail bands are of nearly equal width, one characteristic that is used to determine this animal from the more dangerous Mojave Rattlesnake that inhabits the Trans-Pecos area of Texas as well. The head is distinctly wider than the neck, giving this animal the famous "diamond-shaped" head. The pupils are elliptical, and the rattle is large and is capable of being heard from several yards away.

Diamondbacks, like other snakes, do not hibernate in the true sense of the word, but rather employ an activity known as brumation. This means that the snake's metabolism, heart rate and breathing all slow down to a near stop, but they are quite awake and aware of their surroundings. They will often congregate in large numbers in "dens" to spend the long periods of inactivity of winter and once temperatures achieve a level of warmth that the snake finds tolerable, usually in early to mid-March, then the males begin leaving the densite in their quest to mate. Females release a pheromone that attracts the males, and many times more than one male will encounter a female that is receptive. During these encounters, the males will participate in a dramatic "dance" as they entwine their bodies together in a wrestling match style event. The winner is the one who is able to pin the other to the ground, and mating ensues upon the dominant male's victory. Diamondbacks are oviparous, which means they give birth to living young, and the foot-long neonates (which number from 4 to 25) are typically born in late summer and early fall. Other than having a "button" on the end of the tail, they are exact replicas of the adults and are fully capable of fending for themselves, including having fully functional fangs and venom apparatus'.

Western Diamondbacks defend themselves in a variety of ways, with the main defensive mechanism being that of camouflage. Even with the gaudy patterns and colors, this snake blends in well with its primarily brushy habitats. The second defensive plan is that of crawling away from a potential predator while rattling its tail slightly. If this does not deter its assailant, then it will begin to curl up in a defensive "s-coiled" stance and aggressively vibrate it's tail, causing the rattling sound to get louder. This behavior is typically a final stand so to speak, and many times an encounter with a diamondback does not come to this point. Out of the 300 or so diamondbacks that I encounter each summer, less than 10 percent resort to this tactic, with most being satisfied to avoid any confrontations. The last defensive mechanism is that of biting and injecting a deadly venom into a would-be attacker. This venom, depending on a huge variety of factors, can be lethal to humans, although few human fatalities actually occur.

Despite these venomous propensities, the Western Diamondback is actually beneficial in the fact that it preys primarily on small mammals such as mice and rats.

When participating in outdoor activities, the risk of encountering a Western Diamondback is slim, although it can and does happen occasionally. If such an encounter occurs, remember that this animal, despite its harmful capability, is more afraid of you than you are of it and it would prefer to be left alone. Mot bites from this species occur when people make an attempt to either capture or kill this snake. The best course of action is to walk, don't run, in the opposite direction, making both you and the snake more at ease.

Texas Businesses: April 2 is Deadline for Filing Property Tax Renditions

Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar reminds business owners that for many property types, April 2 is the deadline to file property tax renditions with their county appraisal districts. Different deadlines apply in certain appraisal districts and for certain regulated property. The normal deadline is April 1, but that date falls on a Sunday this year.

A rendition is a list of the taxable inventory, furniture and fixtures, machinery, equipment and other property owned or managed as of Jan. 1 of each year. The appraisal district may use the information to set property values.

A rendition allows property owners to record their opinion of their property's value and ensures that the appraisal district notifies property owners before changing a recorded value.

For more information about property rendition, deadlines, deadline extensions, penalties and rendition forms, taxpayers may contact the Comptroller's Property Tax Assistance Division at 800-252-9121 (press 2 to access the menu and then press 1 to contact the Information Services Team) or visit the division's website.
