Chamber changes bylaws, adopts $82,000 budget

Salado Chamber of Commerce members, at their general meeting Oct. 22, adopted a 2019 operating budget, increased dues and revised the by-laws under which the corporation functions.

Members adopted a deficit budget for 2019 with total income of 76,500. Income streams include $36,000 in membership dues, $6,000 in contract with the Village for the visitor's center, $10,000 in advertising revenues from the membership brochure and $24,500 in event revenues, chiefly from the annual golf tournament ($16,000).

Expenses for the Chamber total $82,000 for a deficit of $5,500 in 2019.

Those expenses include these:

- Telephone: 4,200
- Storage: 1,000
- Janitorial: 2,000
- Accounting: 4,000
- Bank Fees: 1,500
- Supplies: 700

- Postage: 250
- Equipment: 1,000
- Utilities: 1,500
- Advertising: 6,000
- Insurance: 800
- Dues: 600
- Visitors Center: 300
- Bookkeeping: 1,000
- Brochures: 3,500
- Miscellaneous: 1,000
- Payroll Tax: 4,500
- Wages: 36,000
- Rent: 12,000
- Meals: 100
- Interest Expense: 50

The changes to the by-laws were minimal and intended to bring the Chamber back into operation as a separate functioning organization from the Salado Tourism department.

By-laws were changed when the two entered into operating agreements to combine and share resources. Those agreements were not renewed so the changes to the bylaws became necessary.

Among the changes were the removal of verbiage that requires "anyone responsible for the collections and disbursement of funds for the Chamber will be bonded."

The by-laws change also removes verbiage limiting the number of terms that the Treasurer can serve on the board.

Changes also remove the requirement of general committee chairs to attend at least one fourth of the monthly board of directors meetings. Attendance is now encouraged rather than required.

The by-laws also return the Chamber to functioning on the calendar year for its budget and membership dues. It also allows for the pro-ration of first year dues for new members who join during the year. Renewals will be due on January 1 for all members.

The members also adopted a higher membership fee for the Fully Privileged business member from $375 to $400 per year.

BoA leaves vacancy open

Salado aldermen opted to leave the vacancy caused by the resignation of Fred Brown unfilled until the May 2-19 election.

They appointed Frank Coachman as Mayor Pro Tem.

The board at its Oct. 18 meeting also approved an amendment to the sewer contract with McLean Construction to resurface Church Street for a total of $71,548.

The amendment will allow for the reconstruction of Church Street from Pace Park Road to Blacksmith Road. The contractor will mill the full width of the roadway and inlay two inches of asphalt. Stripes and stop bars will be painted on the new roadway surface once complete.

Reconstruction of the entire roadway will eliminate the need for the contractor to repair only that portion of the aged roadway surface damaged during the recent installation of the wastewater main. The asphalt repair work is included in the wastewater collection system contract at a cost of $12,784 resulting in a contract amendment is $58,764.

The amendment will be funded from contingency bond funds.

In other business on Oct. 18, aldermen appointed David Graham as alternate to the Planning & Zoning Commission, filling the vacancy caused by GeorgeAnn Valentine's resignation.

Aldermen also appointed Denver Mills to the Pace Park Advisory Board filling the vacancy caused by Susan Humiston's resignation.

Fractured fairy tales are stories we tell ourselves

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Growing up, Andy Doyle always looked forward to Saturday morning cartoons, particularly the Rocky and Bullwinkle show's Fractured Fairytales shorts.

"They would take the regular fairytales and nothing would go right in them and nothing would go the way you expect," Rt. Rev. Doyle, the ninth Bishop of Texas, told a standing-room-only audience at Barrow Brewing on Oct. 18.

Doyle had just arrived back in Texas from overseas. Admittedly suffering from jet lag and readjusting to the time difference, Doyle opted for coffee rather than a Pint of brew from Barrow.

"We live in a time of fractured fairytales," he said. "I think one of the major things that happened during the Reformation and movement into the Age of Enlightenment is the move to ego and individual light."

Stories today are "now oriented around 'me' and less around 'us' and the community," he said.

"We tell stories," he said. "Those stories change. We tell one story about what our life is like when we are talking with our families. We tell a different story about what our life is like when we are talking to our friends. We tell a different story at work. And we tell a different story at church."

"These are all very separate stories," he said. "There seems to be no unifying story any more. We have become unmoored from the transcendent, from the community."

Many of the stories, the fractured fairy tales in which nothing seems to go according to plan, surround politics and the results of political races.

"Historically, most of our political philosophy comes from Socrates," Doyle said. "Socrates could never imagine politics without friendship and family and community. He could never imagine politics not being about what is good for the community as a whole being the central part of discussion."

"We have become unmoored from this discussion of what is good for the community," he said. Instead, we are caught up in the "politics of Me and Mine."

The challenge for communities of faith is in having stories that have "some integrity as we shift through and navigate the rest of the world."

"In the beginning, God imagines the way creation is going to be," Doyle said.

"He imagines how his creations are going to live together. There is no scarcity."

God created man in his own image, Doyle said. "But what does that mean?" he asked.

"God is free in a way that we're not," he said. "God created us to be free in his way. God would like to come and walk with us at the evening of the day and for us to be in communion with Him."

"There is no me without you and no you without me. That is what connects us," he said. "These people in the midst of the creation get some wisdom and make some choices. Part of that is that they hide from God."

Reflecting on the philosophy of some Jews, Doyle said that they see the real separation between God and man is when Cain kills Abel. "That is actually when the story of Man starts going poorly."

The story of Cain and Abel is the first and clearest example of "people choosing to have life, to have their story, their way over and against someone else's life and story. This is when it becomes, 'My story and not your story or our story,'"

Jesus reweaves the story for us," Doyle said. "He invites us to think about community instead of just ourselves."

He added that here in America it is "going to take Republicans and Democrats working together."

Fixing the problems with our Fractured Fairytale "is not going to be solved by just Republicans winning or just Democrats winning."

He discussed healthcare and poverty, the breakup of the family and other political issues from a Christian call to action.

"To believe that Jesus did not engage in political discourse or action misses a lot of the Gospel," he said. "God actually cares about these things."

To think that we are only concerned with our salvation later in life and not doing something about the world around us today is, in Doyle's words, "just letting ourselves off the hook."

Christians should instead heed the call to feed the poor, care for the sick and bury the dead.

"How we treat the poor, the sick and the weak," he said, "is the story that really matters."

Stocks continue downturn

The Markets

The venerable S&P 500 Stock Index (SPX) turned in an anemic 0.02 percent return for the week ending on Oct. 19 at 2767.78 but at least the score was not negative! That put it down 5.53 percent for one month, and down 1.22 percent for three months. It remains up 2.52 percent for the year to date and 7.48 percent from a year ago. If you see lower returns on your statements it may be because the SPX was at 2873 back on January 26, over 100 points higher than this week's closing. On the other side of the ledger, long-term U.S. Treasury Bond Funds are down 3.28 percent year-to-date according to Lipper. The combination of week stock returns and negative bond returns makes for negative numbers in any balanced portfolio.

Global growth was the big worry this week as investors began to calculate the net effect of the threatened end-of-year full application of tariffs combined with rising interest rates. In what we have described before as the "great economic experiment," the U.S. lowered taxes and increased federal spending, effectively creating a massive fiscal stimulus in the midst of a nearly fully recovered economy. The stimulus has driven consumer spending, employment, and corporate profits to record highs. The overstimulated economy has started to become inflationary, requiring the Federal Reserve to begin to raise interest rates to slow it down. At the same time, the U.S., the largest consumer of products in the world, began to impose tariffs, potentially creating a further slowing effect on global growth rates. Because we are interdependent with the other economies in the world, that global slump has the potential to feedback to us and that is the source of the investor fear being expressed now. The recent slump in market values was most severe in the large, high-growth stocks that have left value stocks in the dust this year.

Market & Economic Update

By Jeffrey W. McClure

The ten-year U.S. Treasury benchmark note ended the week yielding 3.193 percent, up nearly one percent from this time last year. Spot gold prices were at $1,226 down around 8 percent this year and West Texas Intermediate Crude Oil closed at $69.30 down 3 percent for the week but still up around 35 percent for one year. The WSJ Dollar Index rose 0.20 percent for the week and is up 4.55 percent year-to-date. More importantly to the evolving trade war between China and the US, the dollar is up 6.56 percent against the Chinese Yuan year-to-date, making Chinese exports about 7 percent less expensive in the U.S. and largely negating the 10 percent tariff on many Chinese imports.

The Economy

Perhaps the most insightful news about the U.S. economy can be gleaned from the earnings report released this week by Procter & Gamble Company (PG). First, the company reported its strongest quarterly sales growth in five years. Very notably that rise in sales came after PG has raised prices across the board. Second, the company report stated that the growth was from increased consumer demand rather than from some introduction or modification of business methods. PG reported that sales declined overseas because of the rising dollar but the about 7 percent increase in domestic sales were more than enough to offset the losses. Note that PG has been unsuccessfully attempting to encourage more buying by discounting its products in recent years, but this year raised prices and shortly saw a jump in purchases.

That combination of a price increase for the same product and a rush to buy it before the price went up more is a hallmark of inflation and a reversal of recent consumer trends. This change in mindset is why the Fed appears to be focused on continuing the quarter-point rate increases at least well into 2019. It takes six to 18 months for rate increases to historically have demonstrated their impact on the economy. The Federal Reserve Board is well aware of that delay and wants to start the slowing process well before inflation gets out of control.

Home sales continued to slow across the economy, with the average home price up about 4.2 percent but mortgages up to about 5 percent. At the same time the Philadelphia Fed reported their October 2018 Manufacturing Business Outlook Survey suggests that manufacturers are optimistic about the future but have seen orders starting to decrease. Another sobering aspect of the report is that about half of the reporting companies in the Philadelphia area report they are operating at above 80 percent of capacity. That is another indicator that the economy is running at or above full capacity.

New claims for unemployment insurance declined last week to the lowest level since 1973! Near record unemployment also is showing up in the clean-up efforts in the southeast U.S. Recovery companies are reporting that they are running behind normal schedules due to a critical shortage of workers. The U.S. has now run for a couple of years hiring more new workers than our economy is creating. Increasingly it is becoming apparent that the pool of unreported unemployed is running dry. That means that wages will soon be going up as companies compete for the same workers and that is yet another signal that inflation is a threat.

Civility Is for Suckers

It's doubtful that a former American presidential candidate has ever formally endorsed incivility before, but Hillary Clinton is ever full of surprises. In an interview on CNN, the erstwhile advocate of "if they go low, we go high" switched around to unapologetically call for going low.

"You cannot be civil with a political party," she explained, "that wants to destroy what you stand for, what you care about." She added that if Democrats retake a house of Congress, well, then, "that's when civility can start again."

Clinton's statement is yet more confirmation of the radical mood of the current Democratic Party, not just in blessing tactics that once would have been anathema to the mainstream, but questioning the legitimacy of core elements of our system. The party's base is just a few steps from beginning to give up on our common national life.

Civility is a rather fundamental thing to throw under the bus. It is the basis of our political life, assuring that disagreements are settled within certain bounds and don't escalate into blood feuds.

This doesn't mean that there can't be intense arguments, harsh condemnations, passionate controversies and partisan donnybrooks. These are all endemic to a free society and very healthy things. It does mean that there are certain widely accepted guardrails.

In the Brett Kavanaugh debate, the normal pressure points of the democratic process (rallies and demonstrations, phone calls to congressional offices, online, print and TV advocacy) were deemed insufficient -- senators had to be berated in the hallways, chased out of restaurants and harassed at their homes. Asked on CNN if the actions against her fellow senators went too far, Mazie Hirono stood by the harassment: "I think it just means that there are a lot of people who are very, very much motivated about what's going on."

But when you angrily confront someone, especially as part of a group, it carries an inescapable whiff of physical intimidation. When you shout Ted and Heidi Cruz out of a Washington restaurant, you aren't trying to convince them of anything, you are merely abusing them. When you yell at Senate hearings and floor votes, you aren't influencing the process, but disrupting it.

Our system of government is increasingly held in low regard on the left. The 2016 election was somehow stolen, and the mechanism that gave Trump his victory, the Electoral College, is illegitimate. The Senate, which confirmed Kavanaugh and gives small, red states the same representation as large, blue states, is also illegitimate. Finally, the Supreme Court, now home to two Trump-appointed justices, is illegitimate as well.

That's a lot of illegitimacy, all stemming from one lost presidential election. Imagine if Democrats lose another? The fact is that if you believe an institution is legitimate only if you control it or it works in your favor, you never truly believed in its legitimacy to begin with.

Perhaps the Democratic fever will pass if the party gains some power again, as Clinton suggested in her remarks. But it's notable enough that one of our major parties is showing signs of contemplating a divorce from our system as it currently exists.

Not filling BoA vacancy disheartening

Dear Editor:

The Salado Board of Aldermen's unanimous decision to not fill the Alderman position recently vacated by Fred Brown was most disheartening. A seat on the Board of Alderman is an important and critical part of our Village. That seat represents a portion if not all of Salado Citizens. That seat is granted authority and responsibility to vote on matters that directly and indirectly effect the day to day functions and future of our Village. That seat will vote on finances, contracts, procurement, ordinances, resolutions, and multiple other matters of the Village. That seat is granted the privilege to voice their ideas, beliefs, opinions, expertise during Board deliberations. 50% of the BOA regular meetings for this year are still to be held (24 meetings per year and 13 of those meetings are still to come). In addition, the seat is a member of the Zoning Board of Adjustments to vote on important waivers to zoning ordinances. The seat will participate in special meetings and Executive

Letters to the Editor

Session meetings. The seat also has the potential to be a Chairman or Member of a Municipal Committee. The seat also offers the opportunity for a citizen to represent the BOA in the general public by attending events. The seat on the Board of Alderman is all this, and with one unanimous vote, by those who will personally retain those privileges and opportunities, has taken away those same privileges and opportunities from the citizens of Salado. Alderman McDougal perhaps stated it plainly enough when he indicated that "They" could continue to run the municipality until the next general election without filling the vacancy. It appears to me and perhaps others that their unanimous vote says loud and clear to the citizens of Salado that there is not one citizen worthy enough to fill the vacant Alderman position for even six or five or four months. Not one citizen who deserves the privilege and opportunity, no matter how short or long, to participate and be a voice in our municipal government. It is disappointing to think that this Board of Aldermen think so little of this vacant position that they do not consider it of utmost importance to fill it.

The Board of Aldermen have the power to appoint a citizen to the vacancy. Sec.A22.010. FILLING VACANCY ON GOVERNING BODY OR IN OTHER MUNICIPAL OFFICE.

(a) If for any reason a single vacancy exists on the governing body of the municipality, a majority of the remaining members who are present and voting, excluding the mayor, may fill the vacancy by appointment unless an election to fill the vacancy is required by Section 11, Article XI, Texas Constitution. The mayor may vote on the appointment only if there is a tie.

Why they chose not to support the interests of the citizens of Salado by exercising their State given authority makes me wonder if we have the right people in our elected offices.

Very respectfully, passed away in Salado, Texas on October 18, 2018.

Services were held on Oct. 24 at the Historic Chapel at Salado United Methodist Church and conducted by Dr. David Moss-er. He will be interred with military honors at the Salado Cemetery

Born in Shreveport, LA on August 30, 1952, he was the son of Col. Thomas R. and Esther R. Pappas.

Being a member of a military family, Bob lived throughout the United States and moved to Temple in 1966.

He graduated from Temple High School in 1970 and received a commission to the United States Air Force Academy from where he graduated in 1974. After graduation from navigational training at Mather AFB in California, Bob flew around the world serving on both the C-141 and C-5 aircraft at Travis Air Force Base, CA. While he served in the Air Force in California, he received his Master's Degree at the University of Southern California.

Following his assignment at Travis AFB, Bob was the first Air Force Material Command liaison for the Military Airlift Command at Scott Air Force Base, IL and created new acquisition programs that included the C-17 aircraft.

He was then specifically selected by the Air Force to obtain his Doctor of Philosophy Degree at Texas A&M in Management, and he received this degree in 1993. During his time at College Station, he taught for A&M; and he then taught higher level education at the Air Force Institute of Technology at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio. He specialized in preparing the next generation of Air Force leaders on the principals of organizational behavior. During his tenure, Bob was named his department's top professor by his peers and students.

After serving his country for 24 years, Bob retired with the rank of Major with military honors and returned to Salado.

Bob's local interests included serving on the Board of Directors for the Bell County Sheriff's Posse and being a member of the Fraternal Order of Police Associates.

He was also designated as a commercial pilot with certifications in instrument-multi engine, a certified flight instructor (CFI), a Certified Flight Instructor with Instruments (CFII), a Multi-Engine Instructor Pilot, and a Master Navigator.

Dr. Pappas also held the designations of Scuba Dive Control Specialist, Dive Master, and Assistant Dive Instructor.

Leopards capitalize on miscues by special teams to beat Salado 33-13

By Larnce Barker
Sports

The rain soaked conditions at Eagle Field made for chaotic play for both teams Oct. 19 to see who make fewer mistakes. The game would prove in favor of the Lorena Leopards. The Eagles defense played the Leopards tough to force a 3 and out on their first offensive series. The Leopards punter mishandled the deep snap and got the football and saw no rush but punted it to Salado. As the ball was coming down the football hit Latrell Jenkins and the Lorena player was "Johnny on the spot" to recover the football for Lorena. Lorena would take advantage to turnover with a 7 play drive when WR Ben Craig would go in motion on a speed sweep, fumble the ball, pick it up and run around left end to score the first TD with 7:54 mark into the first quarter. After Lorena's Bradley Lina PAT which was good, Lorena would take the early lead.

Salado's first series on offense would fumble the football on both plays and the Leopards Shane Pack would recover the loose football. The Eagles defense took advantage of a Lorena fumble after 2 plays in which Salado's Greg Washington would recover for the Eagles. Salado would cut the lead after the Lorena turnover on a score a Connor Cook 4 yard TD run with 4:39 left in the 2nd quarter. Wrook brown would miss the PAT and score would be 7-6 Lorena.

Lorena's next offensive series, the Eagles would force the Leopards to punt the football. On 4th and 8 to go, Lorena would fake the punt and gain 30 yards a first down to continue their drive. Leopards QB Bradley Lina would connect with Ty Moore for a 6 yard TD pass and the Lina kick failed with 5 seconds left in the half.

Lorena would force a Salado punt for their 1st series of the second half. The Leopards would increase their lead with a Lina 3 yard TD run around left end and the PAT failed with 5:26 left in the 3rd quarter to make the score 20-6 Leopards. SEE EAGLES, PAGE 2B

The Eagles would answer with an 11 play at the 15 second mark in the 3rd quarter when QB Hutton Haire would hit Wrook Brown on a 29 TD pass, Brown would tack on the PAT to cut the Lorena lead 20-13.

Leopards took control of the football game in the 4th quarter with 2 TDs. Lina would cap of a 9 play drive with a 1 yd QB TD draw up the middle and add the PAT to make the score 27 -13. Then the Leopards would score on a 15 yard QB Lina TD pass to Craig and after the blocked PAT, the score would be 33-13 with 6:20 left in the 4th quarter.

Head Coach Alan Haire stated, "The field conditions were bad for both teams so no excuses." Coach Haire also said, "What really turned the game for us was making special team mistakes. You can't give a good team like Lorena extra chances and expect to win."

Salado (3-4, 1-2) will face Madisonville (4-3, 2-2) there at Mustang Stadium for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff. The Eagles look to even the District 8 record to 2-2 and stay in the playoff hunt in this tight district 8 race.

Lady Eagles split games with Taylor, Liberty Hill

Salado Lady Eagles faced Burnet on Oct. 23 in a game with playoff implications of where the two teams would place in district. The game was played after press deadline. Prior to that, Salado split its district volleyball matches with Taylor and Liberty Hill last week.

	1	2	3	4	5	F
SHS	25	23	24	25	11	2
THS	19	25	26	8	15	3

The Salado volleyball program traveled to Taylor

Oct. 19 to face the Ducks in an important district match-up with playoff placing implications. Powerful play by middle blockers Amy Manning and Lainey Taylor would get the Eagles off to a hot start winning game one 25-19.

The Eagles couldn't maintain their rhythm in games two and three losing 23-25 and 24-26. Salado responded with a convincing 25-18 victory in set four to force another game five with Taylor. Unfortunately, ly, the Eagles would catch a couple tough breaks and we're unable to come away with the set five win, losing with a final score of 11-15.

The JV team competed in set one, but fell 22-25 and was unable to find their footing in set two losing 11-25. After sophomores Megan Manibusan and Lorena Perez were called up to varsity, it was a new defensive front for the Eagles. Junior, Taylor Rich would play very well outside hitting along with Haley Sumner's stellar defense.

The Salado freshmen played their best match all season winning in three sets (23-25, 25-19, 25-21). Captains Emory Craddick and Caelan Teer showed relentless hustle in the win. Emma Grant, Sydney King, and Kiara Garza would all play fearless at the net and consistent passing from Macie Pittman and Haleigh Gieck were too much for the Ducks.

Kenslee Konarik's blocking would also be a force.

"The energy and unity as a team was the best it has been all year," Coach Clint Brown said.

	1	2	3	F
SHS	15	15	13	0
LHHS	25	25	25	3

The Lady Eagle Volleyball team was swept by the Liberty Hill Panthers on Oct. 16. The Eagles would stumble early and not be able to recover losing in straight sets (15-25, 15-25, 13-25).

The JV team came out firing on all cylinders, but ultimately fell just short. The Eagles took game 1 with a score of 25-20 before losing the next two sets 19-25 and 21-25.

Freshmen would stumble early dropping the first set 7-25 before rebounding with a strong performance (15-25) but would still come up short.

Lorena sweeps Salado

The Lorena Leopards JV squad played it safe in the closing minutes of their game against the visiting Salado Eagles Oct. 18 by taking a knee in the endzone for a safety rather than risking giving Salado a chance to score.

Leading 14-8, Lorena opted for the safety, bringing the final score to 14-10.

The teams were tied at 8-8 after the first quarter after Avery Womack covered a fumble in the endzone.

Outstanding offensive players were Keegan Mantanona, Daniel Frisby, Lucas Morvant and Chance Hill.

Outstanding defensive players were Jacob Armstrong, Brian Chavez, KC Perkins and Brady Wilson.

The JV Eagles are 3-4 and will host Madisonville on Oct. 25.

S9th	0	0	0	8	8
L9th	14	7	7	7	35

Salado Eagles ninth graders had trouble executing the tricky slot-T offense against Lorena ninth graders Oct. 18, while the defense could not stop the Leopards offense. Salado lost 35-8 to drop to 3-4 on the year.

"We have some work to do," Coach Ramiro Mojica said, "getting through to the technical aspects of football. These young men are still learning for the next level. We will spend the week cleaning up ourselves and then focus on Madisonville."

Tailback Boden Savage scored on a 8 yard run in the fourth quarter. Fullback Blake Volk converted the 2 point try.

Savage rushed for 100 yards while Volk rushed for 150 yards.

Leading the offense were Volk, Savage and Beau Hill.

Leading the defense were Gavin Keyser and Colton Dockray.

JUNIOR HIGH RAINED OUT

Salado junior high teams were rained out this past week. The teams "worked hard all week with the seventh grade practicing in the rain Monday morning and both teams working hard in the gym the rest of the week," said coach Michael Gunter.

The eighth grade A team is 4-0, the eighth grade B team is 2-2, the seventh grade A team is 1-4 and the seventh grade B team is 1-1-2. Junior high teams face Madisonville on Oct. 25.

Registration for Temple College starts Oct. 29

Dr. Lewis Raney gets items ready for display at UT Southwestern Medical School.

A lifetime of medicine

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Holding part of a skull brings back memories for Dr. Lewis Raney as he packed up items that he was asked to bring for a display during the 75th anniversary celebration at UT Southwestern Medical School-Parkland Hospital in Dallas last week.

Dr. Raney was the second resident of the Otolaryngology Department at UT Southwestern. "Dr. Bill Hale from Amarillo was the first," he recalled.

Southwestern Medical School was established in 1943 in Dallas after Baylor Medical School moved to its home in Houston.

Founded in May 1943 as Southwestern Medical College, UT Southwestern has expanded beyond its original focus on medical education to become an expansive institution that now reaches beyond Dallas and includes hospital- and clinic-based patient care, biomedical research, and two additional degree-granting schools: the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences and the School of Health Professions, according to the school's 75th anniversary announcement.

It was during Dr.

Raney's residency in the ENT Department that President John F. Kennedy was brought into the emergency room of the Parkland Memorial Hospital on Nov. 22, 1963.

"I first heard it on the radio as I was making rounds," Dr. Raney said. He hurried to the emergency room, but it was blocked off. "I went out another door and there was the car," Dr. Raney said.

His classmate at Southwestern Ron Jones worked on President Kennedy, but there was nothing that could be done.

"There were banks of telephones," Dr. Raney recalled. "Reporters were paying people $25 or $30 to hold the phones for them so they could call back to their headquarters."

At about that time, Dr. Raney was chief resident in the ENT Department and taught surgery at the medical school. He earned $100 per month for teaching and $25 per month (plus room and board) as a resident.

His wife AnnaLou called him from her job as a teacher in the Hurst-Euless-Bedford schools. "We went home and watched it on TV," he said. Lewis and AnnaLou were married within a year of meeting each other in Dallas 55 years ago.

Days later, on Sunday, "it came across that Oswald had been shot by Ruby. Parkland was chaos again. There were at least a hundred police cars parked around it when they brought Oswald in. He died on the operating table."

Dr. Raney looks back on 60 years of practicing medicine. "I entered medical school at age 20," he said at Tulane Medical School. He had two years of surgery at University of Arkansas at Little Rock before arriving at UT Southwestern in Dallas.

After his residency, Dr. Raney joined the Navy during Vietnam, serving as the head of the ENT department at Portsmouth, Virginia as a young officer.

He served four years in the Navy and then private practice in the Dallas area for 40 years.

The Raney's came to Salado in the mid-90s settling in their house on DeGrummond Lane in Mill Creek. Dr. Raney worked at the VA Hospital in Temple before retiring. He was honored in 2014 with a Lifetime Achievement Award for his work in the field of Otolaryngology

Spiny-backed Orbweaver

The family of spiders known as “orbweavers” (family Araneidae) contains several species that are variable in color and shape. But even despite all of the diversity in appearance, there is one family member that is so distinctive that it stands alone in its uniqueness.

The Spiny-backed Orbweaver (Gasteracantha cancriformis) is one of dozens of species of the genus that can be observed almost world-wide. It is considerably common throughout the eastern one-third of the United States, from Florida up through the Carolinas. There is a large gap in distribution as it also occurs along the west coast from California northward to southern Oregon. It also occurs throughout Mexico. It prefers wooded areas, therefore it is typically seen only in the tree-dense areas of eastern Texas. However, occasionally individuals are found in western Texas.

Wild About Texas

Spiny-backed Orbweavers are relatively diminutive arachnids with a body and carapace length of just under one-half of an inch. As with all other members of the orbweaver family (Araneidae), males are smaller than females. Like other arachnids, this species has two body parts: the front body region (known as the cephalothorax) that contains the eight eyes, eight legs and mouthparts (known as the chelicerae) and the abdomen. The carapace (the outer covering of the cephalothorax) is dark brown or black, with no markings. The abdomen is the most distinctive trait of this unusual looking species, ranging in color from yellow to white to red. There are several black spots on the abdomen, and when observed closely, these spots appear to be arranged in the shape of a face (two eyes, two nostrils, a mouth, and a unibrow). Unlike other “orbweavers” that have portly and soft abdomens, this variety has a hard carapace that is adorned with six red-pointed, triangular shaped spines. The underside of the unique abdomen is black and is often ornamented with four circular yellow spots. The black legs are long and spindly, with fairly noticeable hairs and jointed structures.

Like most of the spiders of this family, the Spiny-backed Orbweaver constructs an intricate web that can extend from the ground up to nearly six feet. This elaborate web is more often than not spun in the shape of an orb, and the spider will frequently remain in the center, awaiting prey to become ensnared. These prey items, once ensnared in the sticky web, are wrapped in a cocoon by the spider to be fed on at a later time. The primary food source for this spider is not moths and butterflies as one might suspect, but rather flies and other small, flying invertebrate creatures.

The Spiny-backed Orbweaver, like most other members of this family, have very poor eyesight, despite the number of eyes. It relies primarily upon vibration to sense prey or potential threats. Centered in the complex web, it can detect when a prey item touches the trap by the vibrations that the potential meal makes. By the same token, it can detect when a much larger animal (such as humans) comes in contact with the web, and the spider will then react in a way as to avoid contact with a potential predator. It can be quite interesting to observe this behavior when you encounter an orbweaver. Take your finger (or a small stick if you are afraid of spiders!) and gently touch the web and watch the spider rush out in anticipation of a meal.

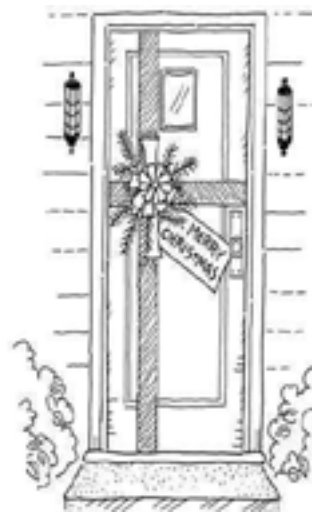

While many people who suffer from arachnophobia desire to remove any and all spiders from near their residences, this species is so recognizable from more dangerous spiders that it is often afforded protection from wanton killing. This harmless spider is actually quite beneficial as it feeds on flying pests such as flies and mosquitoes.
