Creek rises, but doesn't flood

By TIM FLEISCHER EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

"Good Lord willing and the crick don't rise." -- Texanism

Well, the crick rose. Quite a bit, as a matter of fact, thanks to more than six inches of rain last week.

For newcomers, watching the Salado Creek run over the access roads and splash over the Main Street bridge was an exciting sight to see.

But for those who have long memories, last week's so-called Flood of 2004 was nothing compared to the floods of the mid 1990s when the Salado (some old-timers still pronounce it Salao) poured across the top of the Main Street bridge.

In 1986, local artist Troy Kelley placed Sirena in the bed of Salado Creek, but moved her just two months later when the waters pushed her over. She now sits in the protective cove of the spring at the Main Street bridge. Since being moved there, she has spent a lot of time underwater, but has not been moved or toppled by the creek's rush.

While the creek got close to houses and buildings built near its banks, it did not seriously flood any buildings (to our knowledge) along its path.

bolts of cloth were found miles downstream, hanging from the trees.

The worst flood of Salado Creek, according to many old-timers, was

But she has in the past.

Long-time resident
Doug Houston recalled
a time when the creek stood chest deep in the "old Shepperd's grocery," which now houses
Rosanky's.

Decades earlier, when it was a general store, the first floor of the building stood underwater and bolts of cloth were found miles downstream, hanging from the trees.

The worst flood of Salado Creek, according to many old-timers, was the Flood of 1921, which swept away the bridge over the creek.

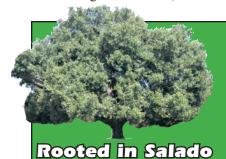

While the latest swelling of the Salado is not comparable to its historic floodings, she put on quite a show of her power.

No Empty Bowls!

Titia Arledge works with Simon Pinkston at the potter's wheel during the Third Annual Empty Bowl Project Nov. 20. The Empty Bowl raised $5,000 for the Salado Family Relief Fund as 300 people attended, buying soup cooked by Salado restaurants and bed and breakfast inns and taking home bowls made by area potters, art students and laymen who gathered throughout the year at Mud Pies Pottery to make bowls. Half the fun of the Empty Bowl is finding the perfect handmade bowl to take home with you, as shown below. (Photos BY TIM AND MARILLYN FLEISCHER)

An Open Exchange of Ideas

The Values Election

On nearly every TV political chat-fest, journalists and Democrats are asking themselves with puzzled or plaintive expressions on their faces: "Values? What are these so-called 'values'? And how do we get some?"

President Bush's convincing victory was partly driven by moral issues. More voters (22 percent) said they cared about those issues than any other concern, including the economy, terrorism and Iraq. Those values-voters broke for Bush 80 percent to 18 percent, which did much to secure his victory. So we are due another of those periodic moments when the chattering class discovers the strange continued existence of Christians and other exotic beings inhabiting locales not in New York, Los Angeles or Washington, D.C.

In a "values" discussion on CNN recently, the Republican governor of Nebraska was queried and probed as if he were from another planet: "Bipedal, carbon-based life forms in Nebraska are sexually dimorphic and pair off in longterm commitments called -- forgive me if I mispronounce this -- 'marriage'? Can you please describe, in as simple terms as possible, the concept of barbecue? Who is Brooks? And if I may follow up quickly, who is Dunn?"

It is extraordinary that liberals constantly forget about these voters, since their entire political strategy is based on them -- getting around them, that is.

The liberal reliance on the courts to effect social change is entirely driven by the fact that most of the country is not keen on social liberalism. Indeed, the election's biggest loser was the Massachusetts Supreme Court. In its eagerness to slam gay marriage down the throats of Massachusetts -- and, by extension, the rest of the country -- it prompted a populist backlash that benefited President Bush. All 11 state constitutional amendments banning gay marriage passed.

Rich Lowry

The election suggests Democrats should make some adjustments. First, nominate candidates who partake of the cultural sensibility of most voters. Ken Salazar, who won a Colorado Senate seat for the Democrats, is a bright spot for them this year. He has a rural background, wears cowboy hats and bolo ties, and has never been seen windsurf-

Second, be more moderate on the social issues. Abortion-on-demand in every possible circumstance shouldn't be holy writ, and gay marriage will have to wait. Third, ground liberal positions in the deepest ethical imperatives of traditional religion. This is what Illinois senator-to-be Barack Obama did in his moving address at the Democratic Convention.

Finally, it would be a mistake to draw a straight line between the votes of those people who say moral issues were important to them and the president's positions on abortion and other hot buttons. They were probably swayed as well by his intangibles -- his authenticity, his toughness, his instinctive patriotism, his disdain for elite affectation.

Those are qualities that can't be faked and Democrats will never value them properly until they truly value -- instead of misunderstand and disdain -- flyover-country moral-issues voters. The philosopher Jeremy Bentham once said the best way to convince people you like them ... is to actually like them.

Privatization not the only option available to correct Social Security problems

Privatization is easily the most common word in the lexicon of all good Republicans these days - next of course to tax cuts and terror. President Bush, fresh from his less-than-mandated victory over Kerry (a win nonetheless) is aggressively pushing privatization as the only key to "reforming" Social Security - the first in a plethora of "hot button" agenda items to be laid before Congress in January.

What Bush has in mind is to permit younger workers to voluntarily assign two percent of their social security contribution to a bank, insurance company or stock broker, who in turn will set up an account similar to a "401-(k)" pension plan, that would be untouchable until retirement.

THE TWO PERCENT SOLUTION

"two-percent-solution" intended to do several things, not the least of which is to "hopefully" resolve the predicted financial collapse of the social security system, that will soon be paying out millions of additional dollars to the heralded "boomer" generation, who begin reaching retirement age in less than ten

If all goes according to plan, the newly created "volunteer annuitant" would receive a check from his personal investment fund and another from a reduced social security account - at the appropriate time. Total of the two is "promised" (but not guaranteed) to be much higher than if the worker's contribution had gone solely into the SS system.

Putting two percent of one's earnings into an account handled by a bank, insurance company, or a stock broker brings cold shudders of fear (to many folks) thanks to vivid memories of not-so-distant past performances by certain financial institutions and brokerage houses who mismanaged or embezzled investor's retirement savings. Nor does it diminish the omnipresent worry about Wall Street manipulators.

To avoid such future shenanigans - the planners of this privatizing scheme have tentatively outlined what will be a bureaucratic maze of labyrinthine proportions, designed to protect worker's investments - with Treasury Department auditors and investigators eagle-eyeing the handling of worker-investor's money.

OTHER OPTIONS

Despite the President's clarion call for privatization, there are other options available to lawmakers - provided they are willing to do something other than take orders exclusively from the White House. Surprisingly, many of these alternatives are well within the ability-range of lawmakers, and as a matter of fact - make solid financial sense.

One such idea deals with the annual salary "cap" of $88,000. That's the maximum that can be taxed by the employee and employer's combined Social Security contribution. If that cap were removed and retirement adjusted to a sliding formula based on salary, age, and years worked - there is every reason to believe that the current SS Trust Fund would remain solvent from now on!

Logically this plan would have two parts. Part one rests on a simple legislative change that would apply the social security tax to a worker's total income regardless of amount. Example: a person earning an annual salary of $200,000 (there are millions in this wage bracket) would contribute a total of $24,800 per year (employee plus employer's matched percentage equaling 12.4%).

Today, that same worker (and employer) contribute a total of $10,912 per year, (based on the $88,000 "capped" income).

Off the Record

by Ken Clapp

The natural enemy of such a plan would be employers who would be kicking in higher matching dollars.

Part two of the plan would compute a worker's retirement based on a formula that would provide (for example) 80 percent of their total entitlement if they retire (early) at age 64; increased to 90 percent at age 68; and 100 percent at age

This two-part plan, if implemented without the usual bureaucratic nonsense, would create a financially sound retirement system - provided the trust fund is held inviolable.

HANDS OFF THE TRUST FUND!!

Okay - lets talk about the matter of "inviolability." This is the key to any plan designed to strengthen the social security system. How can it be accomplished? Congress must - "repeat must" - embed in the law a permanent prohibition against any further "borrowing" from the gigantic SS Trust Fund, by the government - a sneaky way of trying to balance the federal budget.

Borrowing SS dollars (and not paying them back) is the primary contributor to our national debt. There is no actual money in the trust fund today (only IOU's) so the cash reserves cannot multiply and grow as a normal retirement fund should. This must stop if any sort of legitimacy is to be attached to our national retirement system - be it "privatized" or formulized (retirement based on total service, wages and age).

CONGRESS MUST CREATE INDIGENT FUND

Another matter of critical importance to permanently create a dynamic retirement plan, would be to immediately stop taking money from the trust fund to pay death and disability payments to indigent members of society who have never been contributing members of the Social Security system.

We must care for these citizens who are left destitute or helpless, but our government needs to do this through special funds set aside for just such a purpose - perhaps by "tapping" into the megamillions sent to aid impoverished people overseas.

THOUGHT AND COURAGE NEEDED

Changing the Social Security system needs careful thought and courage. Not just a quick "down and dirty" fix. This is a revered program that has helped Americans escape the terror of a destitute old age since 1935.

Congress needs to get past the great divide that they have helped create and courageously reform this important program to assist all Americans facing retirement in the years ahead. At the same time they must forget (for once) their selfish "business as usual" partisan mind-set

NEW POLITICAL PARTY

Next week this column will review a new political party that is in the formative stage - The Veterans Party of America. Bell County is organized and a future State convention will be held to place the new party on a future ballot.

Interesting concept - organizing veterans. Especially in Bell where Vets probably exceed the combined number of Republicans and Democrats.

Factors in Student Achievement

Paul Barton, of the Educational Testing Service Policy Information Center, has proposed 14 factors that correlate with student achievement. Eight of these factors happen outside of school and six factors occur in school.

The home or environment factors include:

- Birthweight
- Lead poisoning
- Hunger and nutrition
- · Reading to your chil-
 - · Television watching
 - Parent availability
 - · Student mobility
- · Parent participation In school factors include
 - Rigor of curriculum
- Teacher experience and attendance
 - Teacher preparation
 - Class size
- Technology-assisted instruction
 - School safety

Four of the "environmental" factors relate directly to reading with your child. Reading to children sounds so basic, yet it is the number one indicator of kindergarten and first grade success. If you want the magic formula for having a successful student, read to them. Reading automatically reduces television watching and it requires parent availability and participa-

Although sometimes difficult, because of continuing changes in laws, Salado ISD is addressing the "in-school" factors. Our curriculum has taken a gigantic step forward this year. This begins with hiring competent, energized, experienced teachers. The new laws on permitting greater flexibility in acquiring teacher certification and on-going issues related to health care and pay for teachers makes this difficult; however, we have fewer teachers on alternative or emergency certification programs than in the previous five years, we have added staff to bring down class size, we have increased the average experience of teachers who are hired, and we are continuously upgrading our hardware and software capabilities to meet the changing curriculum needs.

We have purchased several new curriculum programs and have provided the training for these programs, including Neuhaus, Agile Minds, TAKS Academies, Grand Central Station, and RAL-

I encourage parents to READ, READ, READ to your children, become involved in your child(ren)'s schools, and expect a rigorous curriculum for your children. This may mean that your child does not make all A's. That is OK.

An "A" does not define education, a lifetime capacity for learning does.

Americans have much to give thanks for Thanksgiving is a uniquely American holiday. It does not commemorate a battle or other historical event, nor does it honor a specific person or even a particular religion. It is dedicated to the simple idea that we have received blessings as individuals and as a nation for which we should give thanks. It is this idea, far more than turkey, gravy and mashed potatoes, which makes each Thanksgiving so special to me and my family.

I frequently have occasion to appreciate these blessings, especially when I am at home in Texas and think about our nation and the world in which we live. I am particularly grateful for our standard of living, made possible by the hard work of millions of Americans.

A recent study by economists Swedish Fredrik Bergstrom and Robert Gidehag reported the average living space for poor American households is 1,200 square feet. In Europe, the average space for all households, from rich to poor, is 1,000 square feet. We live in a productive economic system, and that's one reason we all should be thankful.

separates What Americans from the rest Capitol Comment

of the world is the freedom enjoyed by every American, from the most humble to the most powerful. A key civil right is guaranteed by the First Amendment, the freedom of speech.

This freedom is not matched by Canada or the nations of Europe. This means that unpopular words which may merely earn disapproval and criticism in the United States can result in jail or heavy fines imposed by the government in other countries. I am thankful the people of the United States support the rough and tumble of free speech instead of censorship, however wellintentioned.

Our recent presidential election is also a cause for thanksgiving. election was a victory for the American people not because of which party won, but because we again proved to the world that we set aside our partisan differences after our elections as we cherish the democratic process.

This year, when I saw young Afghan women ignoring death threats to cast their ballots in Afghanistan's first free elections, I was reminded yet again of how lucky we are to be living in the Land of the Free.

Finally, as I watch the progress of our troops in the War against Terror, I am grateful for the young men and women who fight against despicable enemies: enemies who behead civilians and shoot fleeing children. brave soldiers are cut from the same cloth as their forbearers who guarded the free world against communist totalitarian dictatorships in the Cold War, and destroyed Nazi Germany and Imperial Japan when those regimes tried to impose their dark vision on all Mankind.

When I think of the efforts our great nation has made to defend the cause of freedom, and the sacrifices made by America's sons and daughters in this fight, my heart is filled with boundless gratitude.

Remembering all these things makes Thanksgiving one of my favorite holidays.

Outsource executive officers

Jim Hightower

Is there no uptick in the economy to bring us cheer? Wages are stagnant, jobs are down, stock prices are in the ditch, corporate profits are sliding... but, wait, here it is, just when you thought nothing was on the rise, here's an economic indicator soaring up, up, and awaaaaayyy: It's the pay of CEOs!

Even if a company's plummets, workers are fired, and its accountants are under federal investigation for cooking the books and looting the pension fund - the boss hog is still wallowing in the big bucks, now taking an average of more than $11 million a year in personal

Well, the bosses oink, we deserve it - besides, we're just being paid what the market will bear. It's how capitalism works, so get over it.

But hold it right there, bucko. Doesn't capitalism now operate in a global market? Haven't you been telling us that you don't have to pay fair wages to American workers, because you can roam the global labor market and get workers for, say, 13 cents an hour in China - or even import skilled software engineers from, say, India to work for a third of the pay of U.S. workers?

Yes, you have. So here's my plan: Let's import CEOs! We can get them a whole lot cheaper from abroad - and get good ones, too. Did you know that the top bosses of major corporations in Europe, Japan, Latin America and elsewhere are delighted to do CEO work for only a million or two a year?

American corporate bosses now are hauling away about 500 times the pay of a typical worker in their corporations - not exactly a plus for company morale. But the ethic in other countries is much more fair - bosses in Mexico, for example, are paid only 45 times what the typical worker makes, in England it's 25 times, and Japan it's 10 times.

So come on you boards of directors, start thinking out of the box and applying a little global competition to the executive suite. Isn't that how capitalism works?

School trustees should explore all options Dear Editor: school facility on a site Your Voice

Since Salado's schools' student population is obviously headed for growth and this sooner rather than later - in their considering a new high school facility, hopefully the current trustees will not be shortsighted and duplicate errors of the past.

When the current high school building's proposition was presented for voters' consideration, that school board - unduly influenced by self-serving realtors and develop-- refused to explore any option but erecting a structure at the present, land-locked site. The predictable and realized result is today's long-time overcrowded, inefficient, jumbled-up and commingled complex.

Sadly, current trustees appear to be proceeding with similar myopia in planning a new high that is also boxed into a restrictive area. Even worse, it is proximal to a high-traffic (and projected higher-traffic) roadway, as well as being immediately vulnerable to adverse consequences from regulations and actions of an adjoining municipality.

All supportable projections are that Bell County's future growth - thus that of Salado's – will be southerly. In that eventuality, Salado ISD is blessed with an extensive southern exposure that includes its longest stretch commercially-viable IH-35, and toward which segment is also moving commercial and residential overflow from Travis and Williamson counties. (Salado ISD can no longer anticipate substantial residential development to its north or quality commercial construction along its northern section of IH-35. The decadeslong decay of Belton's historic southern approach is demonstrative of that city's anti-outsider policies that discourage "newcomer" significant investment.)

While it is desirable that elementary schools be proximal to students' homes, it is of less importance that high schools - or even junior high schools - be embraced under that umbrella. Therefore, a less restrictive, more logical, and less-costly secondary school complex could be established toward Salado ISD's southern extensions - which area has the greatest potential for both commercial and residential growth causing Salado ISD's "center of interest" to gravitate south.

True - such consideration might broach a debate of the potential for consolidation - joint-venturing with one or more adjacent, smaller school districts. (Had such consolidation been carried-out when the current high school was constructed, at which time the Jarrell board at least was amenable, because of Salado ISD's advantageous configuration, the State of Texas would have contributed a significant amount of money to help defray the cost of that building.)

No doubt there are valid considerations for just a limited relationship involving only Salado and Jarrell: It would yield an even-longer section of IH-35 with commercial tax-generating potential to help reduce homeowners' taxes; offer economies of scale in schools' construction; allow cheaper land acquisition and adequate room for expansion; and possibly provide a windfall of an increased "upfront" contribution from the State of Texas.

At this critical time for all aspects of school funding, obviously there are legitimate reasons for a comprehensive and straightforward public debate that previous trustees denied the electorate. It would behoove today's trustees to honor their oaths to act solely in the best interest of the Salado schools and honestly explore all options - and then accurately present them in their entirety to Salado voters for their informed consideration.

Kelsey Smith puts up a three ball in Salado's Nov. 19 loss to Crawford.

Crawford humbles Lady Eagles 70-21, Salado drops to 0-2

It's been a rough start to the season for the Ladv Eagles basketball team. To open the year, the girls fell to Class 3A Lorena, then ran into more trouble Nov. 19 when they hosted 16th-ranked Crawford. Salado lost the game by the lopsided score of 70-

It was an auspicious beginning for the Lady Eagles, as Kate Marshall's two points accounted for Salado's only scoring in the first period. The defense had its early troubles as well, with Crawford dropping 20 points from five different players in the opening frame.

Trailing by 18 entering the second, Salado's offense woke up a bit, with Jenny Goode knocking down a pair of three pointers on her way to a team-high 10 points. But the Crawford offense continued doing damage from both behind the arc and the charity stripe (Crawford converted 11-12 free throws in the first half, and 20-23 in the game), expanding the lead to 34-11 at the end of two periods of play.

Salado continued to be stymied by Crawford in the third and fourth, managing just eight points in the former and two in the latter. The Crawford scoring machine remained in high gear, however, as the visitors continued to pile on the points against the young, inexperienced Lady Eagles. Crawford capped off a 21-point third with a 15-point effort in the fourth.

Goode's team-leading 10 points came on 3-15 shooting from the field, and 2-5 from the line. Behind Goode was Marshall, who scored six points on 2-7 shooting. Kristen Smith had three points, while Brittany Gilchrest and Jessica Shumate each had one.

As a team, Salado shot 6-39 from the field, or 15 percent, and converted six of 13 free throws (46 percent). Those things, along with the lack of offensive rebounds (seven in the game) and steals (three in the game) will have to improve for the Lady Eagles to have a chance at making the playoffs for a 12th consecutive season.

In games that took place after press time, Salado hosted McGregor Nov. 22 and Franklin Nov.

The team will travel to Harker Heights Nov. 30 before participating in the Academy tournament in the first week of Decem-

Eagles throttle Rosebud-Lott

After losing on the road 49-46 to Manor, ranked 10th in Class 3A, the seventh-ranked boys basketball team rebounded impressively with a convincing 57-34 victory over the perennially-strong Rosebud-Lott Cougars, on the road Nov.

Salado didn't begin the game with a sense of urgency, however, as the Cougars built a slim 11-9 lead at the end of one period. The fact that the Eagles made just one of eight attempts from the free throw line to start the game factored into the two-point deficit.

Along with the team defense, the two Clarks, senior Travis and younger brother Ryan, came alive in the second, propelling the Eagles to a 28-17 lead at halftime. In the second frame, Ryan knocked down eight points, includ-

Travis again led the way for the Eagle offense in the third, dropping in 10 more points on his wayto a game-high 18.

The defense also remained strong, keeping the Cougars at bay and securing a 13-point, 42-29 lead going into the fourth period.

Rosebud-Lott managed just five points in the fourth against a stingy Eagle defense, while Salado was able to score 15 more to bring the score to its 57-34 final.

Ryan Clark scored 15 on the game, Matt Caskey had 14 and Devon Dunn had five. Also scoring were James Gregurek and Barrett Brashier, who each had two, and Scott Williams, who scored one.

Salado's brutal predistrict schedule continued with games Nov. 22 against Waco La Vega and ing two threes, and Travis Nov. 24 in San Antonio versus Aransas Pass.

Tumev scores 20 in JV win

Both Salado boys JV A and B teams are off to 1-1 starts to their basketball seasons, as both dropped opening games to Manor but regrouped to down Rosebud-Lott.

Against Manor, the A team was defeated by a close score of 36-33. The Eagles made a comeback bid in the fourth quarter, outscoring the Mustangs 12-9, but ultimately came up just short. Chad Tumey led Salado scorers with 12 points, while Justin Konzen scored nine.

The B team didn't put up quite as good a fight as the A team, losing their game 51-37. The bright spots for Salado were Noah Harbisom, who scored 20 points, and Clay Sharum, who contributed Faring better against the Cougars of Rosebud-Lott, the A team came away with a 10-point win, 47-37. For the second straight game, Tumey was the high man offensively, leading all scorers with 20 points. Won Im scored eight, Konzen totaled seven and Justin Pruitt scored six.

The B team also got into the win column with a 49-15 rout of the Cougars. Offensive production was spread around evenly, as eight different Eagles scored points, led by Harbisom and David Rosenau, who each had

In eighth grade girls basketball, both A and B teams defeated Lago Vista - the A by a score of 29-14, the B by a score of 12-4. Previously, both teams defeated Jarrell, 34-12 and 13-8, respectively.

Sanfords Grand Marshals of Parade

All in all, it's been a pretty good year for Paul and Patsy Sanford. Earlier in the year, in July, the couple celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary - the last 47 of those years in Salado - and that coming Dec. 2 they will serve as Grand Marshals of the Fifth Annual Christmas Stroll Parade, the precursor to Salado's Christmas Stroll.

Patsy, a third-generation Saladoan, spent 41 years as a school teacher and counselor, including a stint teaching at her alma

A former Salado school board trustee, Patsy is also a past president of the Salado Chamber of Commerce Ladies Auxiliary, the Salado Village Artists and the Monday Club. In addition, she has served on the board of directors for the Salado Chamber of Commerce, the Salado Cemetery Association, the Institute for the Humanities, the Salado Public Library, the Salado Education Foundation, and has served on the Tourism Council.

Patsy was once recognized by the Chamber as Salado's outstanding young homemaker and by the Masons with the Community Builder Award.

Over the years, she has published four books of poetry, one collection of children's stories and continues teaching Sunday School at Salado United Methodist Church and she serves on the Civic Center Foundation board, and is a member of the Salado Historical Society and the Salado Book Club.

Following 19 as a Salado grain dealer, Paul had trucks hauling oil-field equipment, while he also ranched. He presently manages rentals.

He served on the Salado Chamber of Commerce for two terms, once as director, then as its third president in 1965.

He was instrumental, along with Wilbur Foster and Sanford's father-inlaw Earl Guest, in building Salado's first fire engine. Everything except the pump was modified by hand, and the engine served Salado well for a number of years before a new engine was purchased. Paul also helped to build Salado's first fire station, and oversaw a barbecue auction that helped secure the funds to construct the Pace Park Pavilion.

Always active in the community, Paul has worked with Salado Little League, sponsored girls softball teams and Salado youth's animals at the Bell County Fair. He also participated in many Salado Creek cleanup drives.

The granary that Paul formerly owned, which was originally Patsy's father's, has since been converted into the Salado Silver Spur Theater, with many of the granary's physical details kept in-

The Christmas Stroll Parade will be held 5 p.m. Dec. 2, and will begin on Center Circle, heading north on Main Street until concluding at the Salado Civic Center.

The theme the parade will be celebrating this year is the "Winter Wonderland." Floats and other entries will be judged, and awards presented, for the following categories: Best Use of Theme, Best Commercial/Retail, Best Non-Profit and Best "Other."

At the parade's conclusion, the Christmas Tree Lighting ceremony will commence at the Civic Center. Santa Claus will be visiting with children for photos at the Gazebo following the Tree Lighting and presentation of awards.

For information and forms contact entry Dawn at the Chamber of Commerce, 947-5040, or call parade chairman Joe Czaus at 947-5157.

Know rules for gifts

As the holidays draw closer, you may be spending time looking for the right gifts for your loved ones. This year, why not skip the hassles and, at the same time, give a gift that can improve the recipients' financial outlook? Before you gift-wrap those 100 shares of Company XYZ stock, however, you'll want to know a few things about making this type of transaction. Both you and your loved one will benefit more from your gift - if you know the rules.

When you give a financial gift to another individual, you won't get a tax deduction, but, most of the time, you won't have to pay a gift tax, either. However, if you give more than the "annual exclusion amount"

You don't have to actually give stocks to help your intended recipients make progress toward their financial goals specifically, toward a comfortable retirement. As an alternative, consider giving your loved ones money to add more shares of stock (or bonds or other investments) to their IRA. For 2004, investors may be able to put up to $3,000 in a Roth or traditional IRA (or $3,500 if they are 50 or older). If your intended recipients have fully funded their IRAs for 2004, they can apply your gift for 2005, when the IRA contribution limit is $4,000 (or $4,500 for those 50 or older).

Six Boy Scouts of Troop 115 completed all the requirements for the Cycling Merit Badge. Their final task was a 50-mile bike ride that had to be completed in eight hours or less. The boys met the requirement with ease, finishing in six hours and 30 minutes, which included several 10 minute breaks and a 30-minute break for lunch. Scouts receiving the merit badge are, I-r: Greg Tischler, Gavin Radebaugh, Alex Lincoln, Reed Farr, Stetson Gilchrest and Gene Radebaugh. Family Relief Fund needs your help to provide Christmas to children

Salado Family Relief Fund is in dire need of angels to help the nonprofit group provide Christmas to 50 families in the Salado area.

According to Salado Family Relief Fund President Leigh Drake, 35 families still need to be adopted out to groups, clubs, churches or individuals in the community. "We need people to outright adopt families as well as agreeing to do the purchasing for families who have applied for the Christmas help," Drake

Many organizations in Salado make an annual tradition of adopting some of the larger families that have applied for the Christmas relief. "When they do that, they divide the list and do the shopping for each of the children in the family," Drake said.

"We work with the school personnel and Cathy Coe at the Salado Food Pantry to screen applicants," Drake said, "so people who volunteer to help with their time or money know that it is going to help local families in need."

With 50 families applying for the help, the Family Relief Fund expects the number of children served to grow to almost 200 children. Each year, the number of children served by Family Relief Fund grows. The Fund limits itself to families living within the Salado school district.

"We still have about 35 families that need to be adopted," Drake said. "If you cannot adopt a family with multiple children, please consider adopting a child. We can have children of both sexes and all ages who don't want to be disappointed Christmas morning."

"This year, we call again on our friends in the community to help make sure that Christmas is a good memory for these children," said Drake.

Salado Family Relief Fund is calling on area church, youth, school and civic groups to adopt families that have applied for the Christmas help.

"Every year, church, civic and youth groups agree to take on a family in need, purchasing the presents and delivering them to the newspaper office for distribution," Drake said. "With over 170 kids last year, we are again going to need the help. I think we may have as many as 200 this year with the last-minute applicants.'

"As Salado ISD continues to grow, so does the number of students needing assistant," said Salado superintendent Robin Battershell. " This year, our growth has completely depleted the Family Relief Fund coffers. This year, the Relief Fund expended all of its funds on school supplies and the backto-school effort, whereas in the past, those dollars were stretched to include a coat drive."

"We -- as a community -- need to rally around the Family Relief Fund," Dr. Battershell said. "We have always rallied together as a community whenever there is a need. These children continue to be in need of our help."

The Relief Fund dipped below $2,000 this year following the back-toschool project. However, the Empty Bowl Project Nov. 20 raised $5,000 for the Relief Fund. The Christmas project typically costs more than $7,000 each year, depending upon the numbers of recipients and the support of volunteers. Whenever a child is not adopted by a group or individual, the Relief Fund provides the Christmas presents, spending $75 per child.

The Relief Fund will need volunteers to go shopping for families. "We have a wish list for each child," Drake said, "and a budget amount for each kid. We need folks to do the buying, stretching the dollars as far as pos-

"Many times a family or couple will adopt a smaller family or a child as a Christmas present to themselves," Drake said. "They come in with bags full, smiling, knowing that they are touching someone else's life."

With the onset of cold weather, she says that the Relief Fund has had several requests for blankets and quilts.

"Even space heaters will help as many of the homes of the families we serve are without cental heat or air," she said, "something most of us take for granted."

Supplies such as blankets and space heaters can be dropped off at the Village Pharmacy.

Unwrapped Christmas gifts can be dropped off at Village Pharmacy or Salado Village newspaper office as well. "We are serving children of all ages," Drake said. "Toys and games and CONTINUED ON PAGE 15A stuffed animals will easily find homes this year."

"Because the gifts are unwrapped when we distribute them, we would very much appreciate donations of wrapping paper and supplies to give to the families," Drake

In addition to the presents, the Relief Fund provides Christmas dinners for families, which dips into the group's reserves considerably. If you would like to make a monetary donation, you can bring players and features. Local artist Patty Thomas created the wall art framing lobby advertising and borders of the proscenium stage.

An old upright piano (circa 1911) in Grainger's family for four generations provides accompaniment to silent movies and sing-alongs that are often on the program. At some point, the piano was stripped of layers of paint and a stained-glass panel was inserted on its frontopening lid. A genuine old player piano, on loan from a friend who needed a place to store it, is also in the auditorium, flanked by drums and assorted timpani, ready to supply needed sound effects.

Despite their youthfulness, Grainger and Penny are veteran performers. After touring with shows throughout the state and as far away as Japan, they decided to settle in Salado, where they were married. Selling their house in California, they took the big leap and opened the Silver Spur, which is already an architectural asset to Salado and promises to become a popular venue for family entertainment.

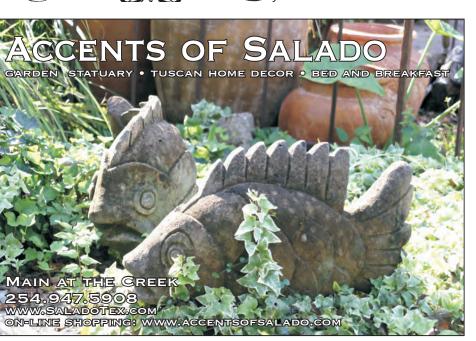

Other public buildings open during the tour are St. Luke's Chapel (Episcopal) and the Moses Denman cabin and Boles-Aiken cabin, 19th century log cabins owned by the Historical Society.

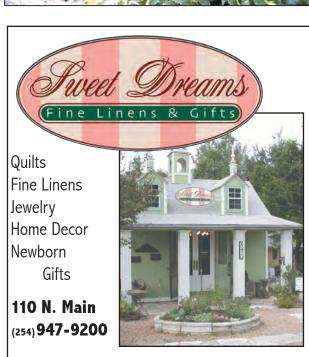

Private houses on the tour are these: Tim and Lynda Brown, 757 McKay Lane; Pete and Trish Stebbins, 1206 Ambrose; Corinne Kerr, 409 Home Place Lane; Vic and Peggy Means, 305 N. Main St.; David and Chervl Pany, and Robbie and Marilyn Griffin, 3700 Chisholm Trail.

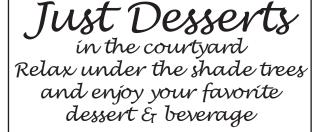

Hours of the tour are 5-8 p.m. Dec. 3, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Dec. 4 and 1-5 p.m. Dec. 5.

Tickets are $12 in advance at Charlotte's of Salado, Horsefeathers, Salado Galleries and Salado Civic Center. After Nov. 29, tickets will be $15 per person and available only at the Salado Civic Center and at the individual homes during the tour. Proceeds of the Homes Tour benefit many projects of the Salado Historical Society, including upkeep of the log cabins.

The historical Levi Tenney House, a charming Bed & Breakfast Inn is perhaps the oldest building in the village of Salado and is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. It dates from the 1850s and was the residence of Levi Tenney, a Presbyterian minister and the first President of Salado College.

The Levi Tenney House is a Greek Revival style home typical of the era with large rooms and tall ceilings. The beautifully crafted 16 inch thick rock walls are made from native limestone, quarried, trimmed and built by slaves. The house has been beautifully preserved inside and out.

The comfortable, newly restored upstairs suite is the perfect place for relaxing after a day of shopping at the local gift and antique shops just a short stroll away. The fireplace adds to the cozy ambience of the room.

The living room has a queen sized sleeper sofa and a comfortable oversized chair. This bright room offers views of the shade covered grounds.

Christmas Carol cast catalogued

Harry Sweet will direct Tablerock's 12th Annual performance of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" at the Goodnight Amphitheater on Royal Street in Salado on Dec. 3-4 and 10-11.

Sweet has directed "Carol" for the past nine years. He is a Professor of Ethics at UMHB. Harry has served on the Temple Civic Theater Board and has played many roles on the Temple stage. His one man show "Henry the VIII, His Wives and Times," is in popular demand at colleges and stages throughout Texas. Harry is a member of the Tablerock Board of Directors.

Charlie Voelter will once again grace the Tablerock stage with his portrayal of Ebeneezer Scrooge. Voelter limits his appearances on stage to his favorite character, Scrooge, although he did consent to play the role of Levi Tenney in "Salado Legends" this past season.

The cast and crew of the 2004 presentation of "A Christmas Carol" number 58.

They are as follows: Donnie Williams - Bob Cratchit; David Dunlap Nephew Fred; John Schoellmann - Charity Gentleman and Merchant; Crystal Schoellmann - Charity Lady ; Jessica Lynch - Christmas Past; Howard Horton - Marley; Liz Gotay-Perez - Fan; Erik Hauk - Child Scrooge/ Peter Cratchit; Chuck Clark Sr. - Old Joe and Traveler; Warren Benson - Traveler and Merchant; Bob Huber - Traveler and Poulterer.

Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus

Claus couple coming for Stroll

Mr. and Mrs. Claus will return to Salado for the annual Christmas Stroll, visiting shoppers and strollers at Garden Spirits on South Main Street. The North Pole couple will be dressed in Victorian-era clothes and will be available for pictures. They will be at Garden Spirits the evenings of Dec. 3-4.

Many shops will have entertainment during the Christmas Stroll weekends Dec. 3-5 and Dec. 10-12 as Salado shares its secret with everyone.

Luminarias will line the way down historic Main Street, where the village is frosted in the white lights of the holiday. Strolling carolersand traditional musicians will be here as well, as they are every year for the 23rd Annual Christmas Stroll Dec. 3-5 and 10-12.

The shops, galleries and restaurants throw open their doors to offer an alternative to the bland cookie cutter approach to Christmas found in the malls, big box retail outlets and Walmart.

In the glow of hundreds of luminarias and sparkle of thousands of white lights, the lyrics of a Christmas carol drifting from a nearby courtyard, strollers will feel as if they have been let in on a great secret

Along with after-hours shopping, there will be two new attractions this year: "Christmas in the Park" display, and the "Holiday Hootenanny" performed at the new Salado Silver Spur Theatre on Royal St.

"Christmas In The Park" tells the famous story of "Twas The Night Before Christmas," with a distinctly Salado flare, in lighted vignettes around the circle drive in Pace Park. The display opened in early November and may be driven or walked through.

"Holiday Hootenanny" is a riotous new production for the whole family. There will be live music, skits and a classic Christmas movie shown nightly at the new Silver Spur Theatre. For exact times and ticket information call 254-947-3456.

With this year's theme "A Winter Wonderland," the village of Salado will be decked out in full holiday regalia. All the traditional favorites will be back this year as well.

Tablerock Amphitheater will present its unique version of "A Christmas Carol" on both weekends of the Stroll.

The annual Historical Society Tour will feature many beautiful homes and historic sites Dec. 3-5.

There will be live seasonal music at various spots around town with strolling carolers, choirs and other musical acts.

The First Baptist Church on Main Street will feature a "live nativity" the first weekend of The Stroll.

For more information about the Salado Christmas Stroll, call the Civic Center, 254-947-5040 or visit www.Salado.com.

Christmas Party Time! As the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays approach, Salado shops invited friends and customers for after-hours parties last week. Shown on this page are (clockwise from top): Ladies look over the dazzling jewelry at Gregory's during the gallery's Christmas party Nov. 20. Greg and Carolyn Dachs, owners of Gregory's, find each other. Patricia Norman and Ingamaj Knuttson look over shoes and handmade bags from Ing's of Salado on Nov. 19. Richard Teeler and Les McCollum had quite a spread of food and beverage at their party Nov. 20 at Garden Spirits. Many shops downtown are staying open after dark on Friday and Saturday evenings through the Christmas (PHOTOS BY MARILYN FLEISCHER)

Fenton Glass Signing

Tom Fenton, Vice President of Fenton Glass, signs the bottom of the Signature tulip vase. Fenton signed collector's pieces at Salado Haus Nov. 19. Fenton art glass collectors were lined up with pieces in hand when the signing began at 11 a.m. Johnsa Laney, owner of Salado Haus, reported a steady flow of traffic for the three hour signing. Fenton is a direct descendant of the founders of the Fenton Art Glass company, which produces perhaps the most recognizable and collectible glass in America. (PHOTO BY MARILYN FLEISCHER)

Chlorine bleaching of paper pulp affects the health of everyone

What environmental and health problems are associated with the use of chlorine by the paper industry? chlorine really essential in the production of paper? --Misty Landletter, Tempe, AZ

To achieve its pearly white color, most paper goes through a bleaching process that uses chlorine or chemicals derived from it (such as chlorine dioxide). The process also removes lignin, a component of wood fiber that can eventually turn paper yellow.

Archie Beaton, executive director of the Chlorine-Free Products Association, says that chlorine produces toxins known as organochlorides, which are released into the environment through the waste discharges from paper and pulp mills. They then settle in the fatty tissues and glands of animals exposed to them, gradually "bio-accumulating" up through the food chain--that is, after one animal consumes another, its body inherits the poisons present in its prey. Humans are also affected. In fact, all women have traces of dioxin, an organochloride, in their breast milk, a disturbing phenomenon of the chemical age we live in.

According to the Natural Resources Council of Maine, which is based in a state that has 34 pulp and paper mills, there is compelling scientific evidence that dioxins can cause cancer, birth and developmental defects, learning disabilities, increased risk of diabetes, decreased fertility, reduced sperm counts, endometriosis, and suppressed immune systems in people. Developing fetuses and breast-feeding infants are particularly sensitive to the harmful effects of dioxin. Alternatives to conventional, chlorine-bleached papers do exist. According to the California Integrated Waste Management Board (CIWMB), "totally chlorine free," or TCF, paper uses alternative methods, including hydrogen peroxide and oxygen, to bleach paper. One small downside of TCF paper is that it can have no recycled content, because papers used to make recycled paper might have been previously bleached with chlorine. So it is made from 100 percent virgin fiber.

Another option is "processed-chlorine free," or PCF, paper that not only rids the bleaching process of chlorine, but can also have up to 100 percent recycled content. For paper to be labeled PCF, it needs a minimum of 30 percent "post-consumer" content (paper actually once used and not just trimmings from print shops), and the re-bleaching process cannot include chlorine-containing compounds. It's not totally chlorine-free, because chlorine may have been in the post-consumer material used to make it.

The third type of chlorine-free paper, "elementally chlorine-free," or ECF, is the most controversial. It uses chlorine derivatives, such as chlorine dioxide, that CIWMB says can "still produce toxic chlorinated organic compounds, including chloroform, a known carcinogen." The American Forest and Paper Association claims that many pulp mills across the country have switched to ECF, and it now accounts for 96 percent of bleached chemical pulp production in the U.S. "Dioxin cannot be detected in wastewater being discharged from [ECF] pulp and paper mills," says the trade group.

Tablerock receives Chisholm Trail marker

Tablerock Festival of Salado, Inc., located on Royal Street in Salado, Texas, was presented with a Chisholm Trail marker by historian, Billy Cate.

Cate received a grant from Texas Historical Trails to distribute Chisholm Trail markers along the trail throughout Texas. To date, he has placed thirteen markers in Johnson County, two markers in Fort Worth's old "Cow Town" and two markers on ranches in south Texas.

The marker is placed on Tablerock property so that it may be seen from Royal Street.

Little Rod Shop

Stewart Mahanev makes fishing rods in a small building not much larger than an outhouse. It is located near Emory, on the main road to Lake Fork, one of the best fishing spots in the state.

The shop is littered with cork dust and materials Stewart uses in making his rods. It is sometimes filled with fishermen.

"I get these friends who drop by occasionally." Says Stewart. "We fill up the five or six chairs in here and talk about fishing."

Stewart is a dealer for some of the top lines of rods priced from $119 to $500. Some have computer chips in the spool to keep the reel from backlashing.

"A nice rod and reel of that caliber will set you back about $800," says Stewart. "The clientele here just don't mind paying it because they know it's quality."

He has about a thousand satisfied customers. Stewart had a military career, then established a company that sold equipment to the government, then settled down in Emory. He moved around a lot in the military and always carried his rod and reel with him wherever he went.

"I've always loved to fish and everywhere I'd go I'd need a different type of rod for fishing. I didn't like what I was seeing in the stores, so about 35 years ago I learned how to make fishing rods."

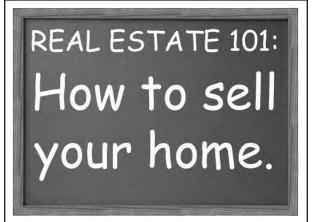

When he finally retired, his wife told him he had to do something. "I started making rods again and fixing reels, selling reels. I've been making rods here for nearly a year now. I send them to Japan, all over the United States. I have a real nice clientele here on Lake Fork that like my rods. Some have eight or twelve of them."

He'll spend up to 18 hours making a rod. When I visited with him, he was making a green and white one for a player for the Philadelphia Eagles.

"They're wrapped up real pretty with different threads, colors, metallics. The key to a good rod is being able to balance that rod with a reel on it by adding weight to the handle in the back so it's just effortless. You can fish all day that way, just sit and hold that rod and your wrist doesn't get tired. It's just like a fencing foil in your hands and vou can fish with it for hours and not get tired."

Stewart says a good fisherman needs a good-looking rod. "It makes them look like they know what they're doing. I always tell them if they want to be important, they've got to look important on the lake. And they want the colors to match their boat. Men are just as vain as women in many ways, so I enjoy making those rods for them."

Call Rita. Class dismissed.
