

Barrow celebrates third year on April 6

Barrow Brewing Company is celebrating three years of brewing craft beer April 6. The microbrewery was the first to open in Bell County after founder Graydon Hill led the petition to change Salado's alcohol laws in the November 2014 election.

The brewery will have new beers on tap as well as fun activities throughout the day. Guest food trucks will be Hecho en Queso and Korean Kravings. Live music will begin at noon with Benjamin Guenther followed by newly formed Lilly & the Implements. Casey Royer, a red dirt musician from the Barrow family stomping grounds will take the stage at 5 p.m. followed by local favorite, Martian Folk.

The anniversary is free to attend and as always, family and pet friendly. There will be commemorative glassware for sale as well as 3-D posters and glasses.

Since opening, Barrow Brewing has consistently brewed five flagship beers and a line of seasonal beers, all canned and distributed between Waco and San Antonio. The Barrow taproom features unique, limited releases as well as local cider, kombucha, and wines. The taproom hosts several events throughout the year like the Priest's Pint, the Summer Lecture Series, and Asanas & Ales as well as festivals on the grounds by Salado Creek.

The brewery is located at 108 Royal Street.

More than 200 conferees gathered at the Bell County Expo Center for the Texas Communications Expo Inc. played the 27 holes at Mill Creek Country Club for a golf tournament on April 2. It is the largest tournament since all 27 holes were reopened. Players came from a multi-state conference to play in the tournament. (PHOTO BY ROYCE WIGGIN)

Meet the Chief before BoA April 4

Saladoans will have a chance to meet the new Police Chief Patrick Boone at a Come and Go Reception 6 p.m. April 4 at the Municipal Building, followed by the regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen at 6:30 p.m.

During the meeting, aldermen will have the second readings of two ordinances that they voted to approve during a called meeting on March 28.

Aldermen will consider the amending Ordinance 2018.13 to add reference to an exception for certain septic systems installed after April 2, 2011 and before April 2, 2019.

The board voted 3-1 on March 28 to approve the ordinance on its first reading. The ordinance will allow property owners that are re-

Smokin Spokes wheels around Salado April 6

The 17th Annual Smokin' Spokes Bike Ride, benefiting the Salado Volunteer Fire Department, will be held April 6, with the ride beginning at 8 a.m. at Salado Intermediate School. All routes will begin and end at Salado Intermediate School on Thomas Arnold.

As in previous years, a variety of routes will be available for riders to choose from, with each route differing in distance and overall difficulty.

Riders can pick from 15, 27, 57, 70, 85 and 102 mile rides. All routes will begin and end at Salado Intermediate School. Most routes will take cyclists east to the Summer's Mill area, and also west to Stillhouse Hollow Lake.

There are rest stops designated with each route. "We placed most of our rest stops at very scenic locations," said Shane Berrier, Salado Volunteer Fire Department Chief. "One is on the shore of Stillhouse Hollow Lake; one is at the Overlook Park on top of the dam to Stillhouse Hollow; and one is at Summer's Mill."

On-site registration and check-in begins at 6 a.m. On-site registration is $45 per person and there is no guarantee that T-shirts will be available.

Fighting two wars: Abroad and at home

BY TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

"We're fighting a flesh and blood war globally," Nate Self said. "You can see that."

There is another kind of war being fought as well. It is not as visible. "There is a kind of war going on inside of us that we don't see," he told the group of men gathered for breakfast recently at Grace Church in Salado. "It's just as real as the other."

There is the journey through the physical part of the war. "At the same time, trying to be a man of God and a man of faith is a different kind of war."

Self had a career in the military that took him to Germany, Kosovo, Afghanistan and Iraq before retiring and coming to Salado with his family where he founded Praevius Group which trains leaders.

He also wrote Two Wars, and has been featured on cable news outlets, the Wall Street Journal, NBC news and other national news outlets.

Nate grew up in Central Texas in the small town of China Spring. He showed the group a childhood picture of himself wearing a T-shirt with an iron on transfer that read "Duty Honor Country." He says those three words have always been important to him.

They are the motto of his Alma Mater, the United States Military Academy. Two weeks out of USMA he was married to his high school sweetheart Julie.

"The week before I was in Iowa at Chris's wedding," he said of his fellow West Point classmate and lifelong friend Chris Miller, who introduced him to the group. "A week later they were in Texas at our wedding."

When the world changed on Sept. 11, 2001, he was in Savannah, Georgia with his 'beyond nine months pregnant' wife. "Our whole paradigm shifted," he said. "I knew that even with Julie pregnant, I could be on a plane to anywhere in the world in just hours."

As an Army Ranger, Self said, he had to be prepared at all times to have "wheels up" in less than 18 hours.

The 3rd Ranger Battalion headed into Afghanistan by New Year's Eve. "There was a list of 15 top leaders that we were to kill or capture," he said, "including Osama bin Laden."

He talked about the inter-service rivalries and the different methods of communicating between the branches of the military that he saw while at Bagram, Afghanistan. "The way they (Navy SEALs) talked was significantly different than the way we talked," he said. "These were highly competitive individuals and teams. It drove some distrust in the organization, even though we were all fighting for the same side."

Self talked about the need to overcome these rivalries and modes of communicating in order to work better together. He reflected on the famous Christmas Truce of World War I when combatants came out of the foxholes and trenches, played soccer, sang songs and celebrated Christmas together. "At their core, they were the same faith, the same generation of men with the same fears of death and war. They wanted to come together even though they were supposed to be enemies. Afterward, their leaders told them they could never do that again and that they would shoot them if they tried."

"We know that we can build teams and share hardship when our common goals are bigger than just ourselves," he said.

Self talked about training in Kandahar on the same tarmacs that al Qaeda had trained on and used for recruiting. "We were waiting for intelligence," he said.

Self talked to the group about Operation Anaconda in Tora Bora mountains. "When you look at it covered in snow, it looks like a beautiful ski resort," he said, "but it was a very dangerous place to be."

The U.S. forces knew that there were at least 1,000 al Qaeda combatants in the area. The plan called for forces to land and squeeze off the one route of exit in the mountain range. However, as often happens, when one side sees the strategic geographic advantage of an area, the other side does, too, and may already be hunkered down there.

That is what happened when a Chinook carrying Navy SEALs landed. It landed hard and needed another craft to come and rescue the SEALs there. One of the SEALs, Neil Roberts, fell out of the back of the Chinook and was left behind. "It's bad to be alone. When you're isolated, it's deadly. We intentionally isolate our enemy," Self said.

In the personal war that believers fight, Satan does that as well. "He isolates us from those who love and care for us," Self said.

Self and his fellow Rangers had a mission: to find Roberts and to help the downed aircraft. "We had little to no intelligence when we lifted off," he said. "We were supposed to get it in the air."

With 10 Rangers on both Chinooks, the team took off for the zone. "We were not sure where we were landing, not sure where the friendlies were, not sure where the enemies were," he said.

As the Chinook hit the ground, an RPG and machine gun fire lit up the cockpit of the Chinook. "We were in a U shaped crossfire with enemies within 70 meters," he said. "It was close and heavy."

Men went down immediately. This is another lesson that Self shared with the group. "Turn on your strobe," he said. "When you are lost and alone, turn on your strobe and let your friends know how to find you."

"As men we are so proud that we almost never ask for help," he said, "We need to be able to ask for help."

He recalled having Mark Anderson, a 30-something year old former math teacher leaning against him in the Chinook. He had immediately been shot through the heart. Another 21 year old who had been at a camp revival at the base the day before was dead and nearby was a 22 year old who didn't make it out of the fight.

"I am going to go coach a baseball game in about an hour and a half," Self said. "Making sense of that (his being alive and so many within feet or inches of him dead) every day is something that is difficult for me to do."

Men and Christians have to "learn with every breath."

"Things change quickly in our world. Every second things can change. In battle, if the man on the radio goes down, things change; if the man on the machine gun goes down, things change; if a bomb doesn't go off, things change. You have to anticipate things but if you are not learning and willing to change based upon what is happening, you will not survive. You have to pay attention and have to listen."

Fundamentals matter in life and in war. In the military, the big four fundamentals are physical training, marksmanship, medical training and small unit drills.

"You have to move and operate and respond in situations and be able to do it with your eyes closed," he said. "You can't do that without training over and over and over again in fundamentals."

Adapt. Employ yourself. Remember the drones. Live the creed. These are catchphrases. They are also lessons that Self learned through the battles he has fought abroad and at home.

"God does a lot of His work through us," he said, "if we are willing to be part of the team and to do the dirty work."

Despite gloom & doom news, markets show respectable increases

Hard Brexit just days away may impact US markets too

Market & Economic Update

By Jeffrey W. McClure

The Markets

Despite all the frightening noise in the media about the economy, the S&P 500 Stock Index turned in a 1.20% gain for the week ending March 29, closing at 2834.40, up over 13% year-to-date and 7.3% from a year ago. If you need something to fret about, the Index is still down 3.3% from its high at the end of last September but that gap has been getting less and less all quarter.

The bond market apparently missed all the good feelings as the yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury note dropped nearly a fifth of a percent to close at 2.41% on Friday. The yield is down 10% from where it was a year ago and 27% from where it stood as recently as last November. Depending on how one defines it the Treasury yield curve is either slightly inverted or barely not inverted but there is no doubt that the Treasury notes maturing in two to five years are yielding quite a lot less than the one- or three-month versions. This behavior of the stock market rising after the yield curve inverts, by the way, is historically common. An inverted yield curve normally precedes a bear market by at least 12 to 18 months.

West Texas Intermediate crude oil joined the stock market as it moved up 1.95% to $60.13. Gold declined 1.72% to $1,297 as the dollar continued its slow climb, rising half a percent to 90.13 on the WSJ Index. The dollar has risen about 7.62% in the last year; good for U.S. tourists abroad but bad for exporters.

The Economy

Fourth quarter U.S. GDP growth was revised down from the first estimate of an annualized rate of 2.6% to 2.2%. Some of the key changes in the data were that corporate profits fell 0.4% in the quarter as consumer spending also fell 0.6%.

According to a report by the Commerce Department, U.S. inflation in January, as measured by the personal consumption expenditures price index (PCE), fell 0.06% and was only up 1.37% from a year ago. More concerning was that services inflation, an area not greatly influenced by imports, fell 7/10 of a percent. When prices drop it is an indication that demand is slowing and has fallen below earlier levels.

That news about inflation, or rather mild deflation, came on the heels of the Commerce Department announcement that consumer personal expenditures only rose 0.1% in January after falling 0.6% in December. Some economists have suggested that the meager rise in spending could be the result of delayed and less than historical levels of tax refunds. The falloff in spending was not expected after reports that personal disposal income rose a healthy 5% in 2018.

Given that about 70% of U.S. GDP is composed of consumer spending, the first quarter of this year is shaping up to be less than thrilling, somewhere in the 1% range. Add to all of that the decline so far this year in industrial production and there is a case for doom and gloom.

Part of the bad news that may be a factor in the depressed economic activity we are seeing is, oddly enough, coming out of the United Kingdom. Parliament for the third time rejected a plan for disengaging from the European Union in some kind of orderly fashion, but the deadline for international divorce remains April 12, just 14 days away. A "hard-Brexit" as the uncontrolled separation is called, would be devastating for trade with Great Britain and stands to create a small hit on the U.S. economy as well.

Despite all the gloomy news, the stock market put in a rise. The reason appears to be that equity investors raised their heads and realized that corporate profits may have been down in the quarter, but they finished the year up 7.4% from a year ago. Better yet, the companies comprising the S&P 500 Index now appear to have earned about 15.9% more in 2018 than in the previous year. The tea leaves of the yield curve and Commerce Department news releases may be forecasting stormy weather ahead, but for the moment, all is clear sailing and calm seas.

Construction underway

There's a lot of activity going on at our campuses with construction beginning on the athletic fields, elementary school and new middle school.

On Russia, Trump acted innocent

Rich Lowry

The release of Robert Mueller's finding that Donald Trump didn't collude with Russia should settle a question his critics -- and, quietly, some of his allies -- have asked repeatedly over the past two years: Why was he acting so guilty?

It turns out that he was acting innocent, only in a typically combative, over-the-top Trump fashion.

The left and the media were never willing to credit the idea that Trump sincerely believed that he was being treated unfairly -- because he was.

When Trump said in his infamous Lester Holt interview that the Trump-Russia thing "is a made-up story," he wasn't confessing to obstruction of justice; he was stating a fact that the Mueller probe would establish 2,800 subpoenas and nearly 500 search warrants later.

The prudent thing for Trump to do once the Mueller probe got going would have been to cooperate without complaint and bide his time awaiting his eventual vindication. Instead, Trump fought like a caged animal (while actually cooperating with the probe).

Trump is a creature of the media and cares a lot about what is said of him. So imagine him sitting in the White House and watching the media constantly suggest that a smoking-gun Russia-collusion revelation is just over the horizon, that the walls are closing in, that he might be guilty of one of the worst political crimes committed in the history of the republic -- and all the while knowing that it wasn't true.

It's very easy to be relaxed about someone else's reputation. We saw this during the Kavanaugh controversy when progressives were outraged that Brett Kavanaugh got emotional about being falsely accused of gang rape. Trump, apparently, was supposed to be cool and nonplussed about being accused of treason.

Of course, he wasn't, and got caught in an endless feedback loop with the press. He'd be presumed guilty in the coverage, he'd lash out, and then commentators would take his reaction as further evidence he was guilty. For two long years.

As recently as a couple of weekends ago, an epic Trump tweet-storm was taken as a sign that he was completely panicked over the impending Mueller report. It didn't occur to anyone that he might be acting out of a sense of aggrieved (although often self-defeating) innocence. This is what got the Mueller probe rolling in the first place. Trump fired James Comey because the FBI director refused to state publicly what he told Trump privately -- that the president himself wasn't under investigation.

The fallback position of Democrats now is that they can get Trump for obstruction for all his impure thoughts about a probe that reached its conclusion unimpeded, and that found no underlying Russian collusion to cover up.

This was Watergate without the break-in and the Lewinsky affair without, well, the Lewinsky affair.

A news industry that should have a healthy skepticism could never apply any skepticism to its own narrative and assumptions. And so, on the question of Russia collusion that put a cloud over the White House and dominated the past two years of our public life, Donald Trump was a more reliable narrator than the media that so self-righteously scorns him.

The illusion and cost of drug rebates

By PETER J. PITTS

President Trump and every declared candidate for the Presidency want to lower drug costs. And, surprise, it's the President who has made a bold move towards a workable free market solution.

His new proposal cracks down on the price-gouging practices of middlemen in the drug supply chain -- Prescription Benefit Managers, the mega-corporations that insurers employ to administer their drug benefits.

The Administration's new proposal impacts Medicare Part D, the federal prescription drug benefit for seniors and those living with disabilities. Beneficiaries can expect more money in their pockets as a result of the proposed rule. Kudos to the President and HHS Secretary Azar for putting patients first.

The Trump plan imposes new restrictions on how PBMs share rebates and discounts in the Part D program. Currently, insurers hire PBMs to negotiate with drug manufacturers. PBMs are able to secure big discounts -- usually through rebates -- by promising to include specific medicines on preferred insurer formularies.

These rebates aren't pocket change. By one estimate, the average rebate knocks off nearly 40 percent of a brand name drug's list price. That's billions of dollars annually.

In theory, these savings should flow down to insurers and beneficiaries and result in lower out-of-pocket pharmacy costs. But that isn't how it's working.

The current system encourages PBMs to favor medicines that carry higher rebates rather than lower list-priced drugs. As a result, patients do not directly benefit from significant price negotiations in the market today.

A recently leaked contract with the nation's largest PBM, Express Scripts, offers some insight into how PBMs operate.

For starters, PBMs exploit the definition of "rebate" to their financial favor. Rather than categorizing all discounts as rebates, PBMs deduct "administrative" and "service" fees from the discounts they receive. They also slap drug manufacturers with "inflation payments" to account for annual price increases. These tactics hide the true value of manufacturer discounts.

PBMs have been wildly successful with these tactics. The nation's three largest PBMs -- who together control three-quarters of the market -- earned a handsome $10 billion in profits in 2015.

President Trump is right to target America's greedy intermediaries.

Should his plan take effect, PBMs will no longer receive rebates for prescription drugs in the Part D program. Most importantly, the pharmaceutical industry would be encouraged and empowered to pass rebate dollars to patients instead.

Patients will save big. By one estimate, if just one-third of the total discounts PBMs negotiate for Part D was passed on to patients at the pharmacy counter, Medicare beneficiaries would have an extra $20 billion in their bank accounts over the next ten years.

President Trump's proposal is a great step in putting patients first. His Administration deserves praise for this bold move.

quired to tie in to the Salado sewer system additional time if they installed a new septic system between April 2, 2011 and April 2, 2019.

Mike Coggin, voting and checking in to the meeting from a video connection, voted against the motion, which carried with Frank Coachman, Andy Jackson and Michael McDougal voting in favor.

The board also voted in favor of the first reading of an ordinance to allow for reservations fees to be paid by developers to reserve capacity in the sewer for up to two years. The reservation fees are $750 per LUE.

Aldermen also approved the monthly sewer rates in a second reading on March 28.

The monthly sewer rates set a base fee regardless of volume of $20 per month for residential users, $40 for non-residential low impact users and $60 for non-residential high impact users. In addition, there is a volumetric charge of $8 per 1,000 gallons per month for residential users, $11 per 1,000 gpm for low impact users and $16 per 1,000 gpm for high impact users.

In other business on April 4, aldermen will discuss a possible rebate program for Impact Fees for the initial customers.

Aldermen will also hold a public hearing and take action on amendments to the Comprehensive Plan on April 4.

The board will also consider appointments to the Lot Size committee.

Aldermen will also discuss changes to the park land dedication ordinance and adopting a process for the appointment of members to Village committees and boards

Iris Show this Saturday offers blooming beauty

A bevy of iris blooms will be on display for public viewing this Saturday, April 6, from 1-3 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of Saint Paul's United Methodist Church, 2407 West Ave P (at the corner of 49th Street and Avenue P), in Temple.

This year the annual Iris Show presented by the Belton Iris Society (BIS) also will include select potted irises for sale beginning at 1:00 p.m., in addition to the rainbow display of iris blooms competing for Best of Show honors. As always, entry is free to the public. The potted iris plants will be available for $10 each, or three for $25.

Watch for this year's Iris Show themes, YeeHaw! and Tea for Two, to be featured in artistic design entries featuring iris blossoms.

Iris photographs entered under the categories of Iris(es) in the Rain and Flora and Fauna also will be on display. Members of the Central Texas Camera Club will again serve as photography judges.

Competition is not limited to submissions by BIS members; anyone is welcome to enter their special iris blooms at no charge, although the variety name must be included for judging. Unnamed irises will be excluded from competition.

Belton Iris Society members will be available from 7-10 a.m. to register the blooms that area gardeners submit for judging. Each bloom stalk should be displayed in a plain, green, glass bottle.

While autumn is the best time to purchase and plant bare-root rhizomes, you won't see what the blooms are like then. The annual Iris Show held each spring is the very best opportunity for that. Attending an Iris Show lets people see what varieties are being grown in this area, and how well they're doing. Easy to grow for novices and beloved by experts, both will enjoy shows like the April 6 event as THE place to see bloom size, height, vigor, fragrance ... and simply overwhelming beauty.

Classic. This prolific vintage purple tall bearded iris 'Crimson King' sports the classic fleur-de-lis form that hybridizers have perfected over generations.

Horns, spoons, ruffles and flounces? Oh, my! Today's 'space age' iris blooms can flaunt ruffles, flounces, and sometimes even outrageously shaped beards.

Monthly meetings are held at 6 p.m. in St. Paul's Fellowship Hall on the second Monday of the month from September through November and January through May. The next meeting is set for April 8 with a potluck dinner. Members of the Unincluded Club, a group that teaches citizenship and community service values to disadvantaged children, have been invited to teach attendees to grow sprouts and to learn how to grow irises.

Veterans, members of armed forces have student aid options

Veterans and members of the U.S. armed forces may be able to take advantage of numerous student financial aid programs, according to KHEAA. The federal government also offers programs for the dependents of veterans and service members. Federal programs include:

GI Bill benefits, first passed in 1944 for veterans of World War Two. The federal government offers several versions, with benefits that vary according to when you entered service, when you left the service and other criteria. More changes are coming as the result of the Forever GI Bill, passed in 2017. Visit <https://benefits.va.gov/gibill/> for more information about your options.

Federal Tuition Assistance, for active duty members of all branches of the armed forces, including the Coast Guard, National Guard and Reserves. For more information, contact the college financial aid office or the unit education officer.

Iraq and Afghanistan Service Grants, for students who had a parent or guardian die as a result of military service in Iraq or Afghanistan after September 10, 2001.

For more information, look under Types of Aid at <https://studentaid.ed.gov/sa/>.

KHEAA is a public, non-profit agency established in 1966 to improve students' access to college. It provides information about financial aid and financial literacy at no cost to students and parents. KHEAA also helps colleges manage their student loan default rates and verify information submitted on the FAFSA. For more information about those services, visit www.kheaa.com.

Heart of Texas Airshow April 6-7 at TSTC

Waco, Texas --- The Heart Of Texas Airshow is proud to announce the United State Air Force Thunderbirds military jet demonstration team will return to bring the Red, White and Blue to the skies over Waco Texas Saturday and Sunday April 6-7 at Texas State Technical College airport in their only performance in Waco, Central and North Texas this year.

"We are thrilled to have the USAF Thunderbirds return to Waco" stated Airshow President Debby Standefer. "No more than 20 air shows in the country receive this honor and we are so proud to share this patriotic opportunity with the people of Central and North Texas as well as those throughout the State, and to further our mission to honor our military and inspire our youth to be involved in aviation and to stay in school and further their education as they reach for their dreams.

The USAF Thunderbirds are internationally-known for their hard-charging demonstration of precision formation flying while pushing their F-16 Fighting Falcons to the limit. Known as "America's Ambassadors in Blue", the Thunderbirds have traveled throughout the world performing before millions of spectators. Their distinctive red, white and blue F-16 Falcon jets along with their precise routines make the Thunderbirds a must see! The Lockheed Martin F-16 Fighting Falcon, which will be demonstrated at Heart Of Texas Airshow, represents the full range of capabilities possessed by the Air Force's front-line tactical fighters. This highly maneuverable, multi-role fighter has proved to be one of the world's best precision tactical bombers and air-to-air combat aircraft. The only modifications needed to prepare aircraft for air demonstrations are a smoke-generating system and the addition of Thunderbird colors.

Never before seen, the F-35 Lightning II, the Air Force's 5th generation fighter selected the Heart Of Texas Airshow for its first Texas demonstration and the second in the nation! This is the first year the F-35 team will perform at an airshow thrilling the spectators showcasing the full capabilities of the Air Force's finest, newest fighter jet. The show will highlight the F-35A Lightning II's numerous capabilities to include speed, agility, and high-g turning. "What makes the fifth generation fighter so special in general is the slow-speed, high angle of attack maneuvering it can do," Demo Pilot Capt. Olson said. "We're also going to be performing controlled flat spins while falling out of the sky as well as high-speed passes and vertical climbs." Along with the new single-jet profile, the team plans to include the Heritage Flight display following the F-35A's performance flying alongside a P-51 Mustang warbirds representing the past, present, and future of Air Force Airpower. "For the 2019 air show season, we're going to be a demonstration team," Olson said. "The show we're going to bring to fans is unlike anything they've ever seen and I really believe it's going to set a bench mark for the demonstrations performed by any airplane on the planet.

The Heart Of Texas Airshow has grown to one of the three top civilian air shows in the State of Texas receiving commendations from state and military officials. The event promises to provide something for all ages and interests in an action packed day of fun. Experience thrilling entertainment with the U.S. Army Special Operations Command Black Daggers Parachute team who will jump in our flag and conduct a second jump in the show in full combat gear simulating a mission. They will jump from a Fort Hood Blackhawk helicopter. U.S. Navy T-45 will fly a Legacy flight with a WWII Helldiver, Ashley and Greg Shelton will astound and inspire as Ashley walks the wings of Greg's Super Stearman, Waco hometown pilot Randy Ball brings his MiG17 jet, 8 time National and 4 time World Aerobatic Champion Rob Holland will tear up the skies, internationally renowned Breitling pilot David Martin will fly two aircraft a Baron and a P-51 Mustang, T-28 warbird aerobatic team Trojan Phlyers, Kate Kyer and more military and civilian teams with daring feats of aviation. Flights will be available to the public in historic warbirds and helicopters. Wander through static displays, interactive new exhibits from the Air Force and Air National Guard will be on hand, concessions of delicious foods, exhibits, vendors and activities for kids of all ages including a large kids area.

The Airshow honors our military. Opening Ceremonies at the start of the air show will include dignitaries, honor guards and skydivers.

The attendance this event garners not only locally, but from spectators throughout central Texas and from Dallas to Houston as well as several surrounding states, gives us the ability to showcase and promote Waco and TSTC while at the same time becoming an important revenue source for the area via lodging, retail and food sales in town through the weekend. Airshows have a tremendous impact on the public and the economy with the ability to reach all demographics and cross all lifestyles," Debby Standefer said. Donations will be made to the TSTC Foundation for scholarships and volunteering non-profits.

TPWD Fall Zebra Mussel sampling found no new infested lakes

AUSTIN – The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department found no new lakes infested with invasive zebra mussels during recent statewide early detection and monitoring. TPWD and partners monitor more than 60 lakes for early detection or population monitoring of zebra mussels.

"It's clear that boaters' actions can help to prevent the spread of zebra mussels," said Monica McGarity, TPWD Senior Scientist for Aquatic Invasive Species Management. "We need their continued vigilance to protect the lakes we love. Keep cleaning, draining, and drying your boats and checking anchors for zebra mussels. If your boat has been stored in the water on a lake known to have zebra mussels, it will need to be decontaminated before it's moved to another lake. We ask boat owners, boat haulers and marinas to contact us for guidance on how to have the boat properly decontaminated."

In addition to finding no new lakes infested with zebra mussels in Fall 2018, they also haven't been found in a new river basin since June 2017.

"Right now, just five of Texas' 17 river basins have zebra mussels," McGarity said. "Once zebra mussels spread to a new basin there is always potential for downstream spread, but a boat can move them downstream in a single day. Only boats, barges, and other equipment used in the water can transport zebra mussels upstream or to new river basins. We encourage all lake users to keep an eye out for mussels attached to other watercraft as well as on shorelines and docks and report them to us as soon as possible."

As of March 2019, 15 water bodies are listed as infested with zebra mussels, meaning they have an established, reproducing population; and six water bodies are listed as positive, meaning zebra mussels have been detected on more than one occasion. Eight water bodies are currently listed as suspect, meaning zebra mussels or their larvae have been found only once in recent history, with the most recent lake to be listed as suspect being O.H. Ivie Lake. A status map and full list of these lakes can be found on the TPWD website.

Additionally, zebra mussel DNA—a cautionary finding that doesn't indicate that live zebra mussels are in the waterbodies – has been found in several Texas lakes, including recently in Lake Amistad near Del Rio, which is managed by the National Park Service. This finding is a strong reminder that boaters need to be especially thorough on prevention measures when traveling to and from lakes.

In Texas, it is unlawful to possess or transport zebra mussels, dead or alive. Boaters are required to drain all water from their boat and onboard receptacles before leaving or approaching a body of fresh water to prevent the transfer of zebra mussels and other invasive species. Zebra mussel larvae are microscopic and can survive for days in residual water and adults can survive even longer out of water, especially in cooler months. The requirement to drain applies to all types and sizes of boats whether powered or not – personal watercraft, sailboats, kayaks, canoes or any other vessel used on public waters.

The rapidly reproducing zebra mussels can have serious economic, recreational and environmental impacts on Texas reservoirs and river. Zebra mussels can harm aquatic species, cause harmful algal blooms, cover rocks, beaches, hard surfaces with sharp shells, clog water intakes, damage or increase maintenance on facilities using raw surface water, and damage boats and motors left in infested waters.

Although TPWD and partners continually monitor for zebra mussels in Texas lakes, anyone who finds zebra mussels in lakes where they haven't been found before or who spots them on boats, trailers or equipment that is being moved is encouraged to help prevent new introductions of zebra mussels by reporting the sighting to TPWD immediately at (512) 389-4848 or by emailing photos and location information to aquaticinvasives@tpwd.texas.gov.

More information about zebra mussels can be found online at tpwd.texas.gov/zebramussels. A short instructional video on how to properly clean, drain and dry boats and equipment can be found on the TPWD YouTube channel at <http://bit.ly/CleanDrainDryVideo>.

Texas Packard Association gathers in Salado

The 42nd Annual Texas Packard Meet will be held April 5-7 in Salado. It is the oldest regional Packard meet in the country and one of the largest.

This meet is sponsored by the Texas Packard Association, comprised of the four Packard Clubs in Texas.

This marks the return of the Packards to Salado after an absence of about five years.

Typically there are 40 to 70 cars and well over 100 master registrations. Being the 42nd edition of this great meet will likely increase the numbers!

Participants enjoy a tour, all Packard swap meet, people's choice competition, seminars, from all over the country compete for the long distance award.

Fees for registration vary according to activities selected but fees are among the most reasonable for like events.

Viewing for the public is free on Saturday morning April 6, on the grounds of the Salado Civic Center. The cars will parade from the Holiday Inn Hotel to the Civic Center at about 9 a.m.

Packards were once seen as some of the most prestigious on the market. The founder of the company, James Ward Packard, was an engineer by trade and began producing automobiles as early as 1899. The first Packards were designed as luxury automobiles and were priced much higher than the competition.

In 1902, the Ohio Automobile Company was renamed The Packard Motor Car Company and moved to Detroit.

The last Packard came off of the assembly-line in 1958.

Alexander's Around the World Dinner Series continues

Alexander's Distillery continues its popular Around the World Dinner Series with a trip through food to the mythical land of Westeros during the April 11 Game of Thrones Dinner.

Chef Dave Hermann has planned a feast of epic proportions. Guests will begin with Daenerys' rosemary skewered shrimp over vegetable dragon nest paired with Old Valyrian White (Vinho Verde).

The second course from the North features John Snow's Wildling Boar Stew, a braised pork belly stew with creamy polenta accompanied by The Long Night (White Walker Scotch).

A third course from the Iron Islands pairs lemon and dill baked trout with fingerling potatoes and King's Pale Ale (Sierra Nevada Pale Ale).

Arya's Meat Pie (not human meat) a puff pastry pot pie, with burgundy beef tips, carrots, potatoes, mushrooms and peas along side Dornish Red (Game of Thrones Red Wine) is the fourth course.

The dessert course of Lannister red and gold cherry short cakes with ghanthilly cream is paired with Dragon's Port (Smoked White Port) to finish up the meal.

Reception for Patty Thomas at Salado Winery Gallery installation available until May Salado Winery will host an artists reception April 6 to introduce the new solo show for Patty Thomas. Thomas will be on hand to discuss her newest artworks. Her work was last seen at the winery in 2015. She was invited back to the winery because her art is well-loved and quite popular.

Thomas says, "After all the negative that has become so much a part of our world, I hope you will look at my paintings, and let them remind you of good times and special places of the heart. Perhaps you will recall driving along a dirt road headed for your grandparents' home or maybe just a family camp out by the river. Or you may simply remember sitting on the porch, watching a sunset, or even a rainstorm approaching as evening begins. Hopefully, at the end of a long day, a look at your painting reminds you once more of God's creation and the sheer wonder of it all.

And you are made glad."

Thomas, a former Temple resident, studied art at the Texas Schools of Fine Arts in Austin and graduated with a degree in fine arts from Abilene Christian University.

She has owned a graphic design company, painted furniture and murals, and sold her paintings in galleries. Thomas loves to paint Central Texas landscapes that highlight big skies, winding roads, and beautiful views of our area. As she puts it, "Today we seem to be caught in such busy, every-minute-filled lifestyles. My paintings are intended to move us toward a calmer, less stressful pace for everyday living."

The Salado Winery gallery will be filled with Thomas' artwork, available for sale until May. Wines produced on the premise will be open for tasting and savoring.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dble	Pass	1 NT
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Opening lead — king of spades.

It is usually not difficult to construct an approximate picture of the hand held by a defender who has entered the bidding. An attentive declarer simply brings this picture into focus and proceeds to take advantage of it.

Assume you're in three notrump and West, who opened the bidding, leads the king of spades, which you duck. West continues with the queen, East showing out, and you win with the ace. You lead the J-10-5 of hearts, winning all three finesses, and, after cashing the ace, you are faced with the problem of how to score a ninth trick.

One way would be to attempt a diamond finesse against East; another would be to return to your hand with a diamond to take a club finesse. But before attempting either finesse, you should try to visualize West's hand. He is known to have started with the K-Q-J-9-x of spades and K-x-x-x of hearts, and — since he opened the bidding — he is also sure to have the king of diamonds or queen of clubs, or possibly both.

It is clear that neither finesse is particularly attractive. West may very well have the guarded king of diamonds, in which case you would go down if you finessed in that suit, and East could very well have the queen of clubs, in which case a club finesse would ultimately defeat you.

The proper method of play is to cash the A-K of clubs and, if the queen does not appear, exit from dummy with the ten of spades in an effort to endplay West. This play succeeds whenever West started with two or more diamonds, which is surely a juicier prospect than taking a finesse in either minor suit.

In the actual case, both the premise and the promise pay off because, after West cashes his spades, he is forced to lead a diamond from the king and hand you your ninth trick.

Birdwatching 101

Generally speaking, most people have a hobby or two in which they enjoy participating in aside from their daily routines. And research tells us that this is healthy. For some it may be playing or just watching sports, for others it may be something like stamp collecting or coin collecting, and for others it may be fishing or hiking. There is a hobby that has really taken hold in the United States over the past several decades and that is birdwatching, or birding for short.

Wild About Texas

It has been estimated that more than sixty million people in the United States participate in birding annually. And this great state of ours is a prime area to birdwatch due to favorable weather conditions, as well as geographical placement.

As I begin to generalize a short overview about this hobby, let me just say that the space allotted for this column is not nearly enough to cover the hows, the whats, the whens, the wheres and the whys of birding. It is meant to literally be an overview of a tremendous opportunity to get outdoors!

If one is interested in birding, there are several items that are considered to be necessities to obtain before beginning. The first is a good bird identification book. There are several quality books to choose from, and making that selection depends largely on how serious you see yourself participating in the hobby. One of my favorites is the Birds of Texas by Fred J. Alsop III. This is one of several field guides by the Smithsonian Handbook series. The next item to obtain would be a good set of binoculars. These are needed for those hard-to-see species that are too small or too far away to make a positive ID. Another item would be a good digital camera. A few years ago, a digital DSLR with a large telephoto lens was the way to go. Now, there are several "point and shoot" cameras that have up to twelve times zoom capabilities, as well as several megapixels, available for a third of what a single DSLR telephoto lens costs. Digital cameras are optimal to use in the field as they allow you to photo a bird, then zoom in for a closer look to aid in the identification.

When in the field birdwatching, there are several questions to ask and answer about a bird's body to assist with making a positive identification. First impressions are the most important in making that ID. Is the head striped, crested, or capped? Is there markings present on the face, such as masking, eye rings, or ear patches? Is the color of the body plumage red, blue, or brown? Are the underparts spotted or streaked? Is the tail forked, rounded, long, or short? Is there distinctive markings on the tail such as spots, bands, or bars? What about the bill? Is it needle-like, or is it hooked, or is it cone-shaped?

There are also other things besides physical attributes to observe. What is the surrounding habitat like? What kind of voice does the bird utilize? What is its behavior? Does it hop on the ground, does it fly from bush to bush, or does it soar? What is its flight pattern? Does it exhibit a direct straight-line flight? Or does it hover or zig-zag?

As you can see, there are several key elements in learning how to be a birdwatcher. But with the mastery of these elements, then you are well on your way to become an experienced birder. Happy birding!

April is Move More Month

With the recent news that even small bouts of exercise lead to significant health benefits, the American Heart Association, the leading voluntary health organization devoted to a world of longer, healthier lives, is urging adults to move more and make it count where they spend most of their time - at work.

"It doesn't matter whether you get activity in short bursts of a few minutes or longer periods of time," says Eduardo Sanchez, M.D., M.P.H., FAAFP and American Heart Association's chief medical officer for prevention. "Any activity - even small, short bouts - will provide a health benefit. If you have been totally inactive and start exercising, you will benefit. But even if you're already active, adding more movement adds even more benefit."

Most adults spend the majority of their waking hours at work and find themselves with little time or energy left at the end of the day to exercise. Experts say those who struggle to carve out time for a separate workout should use any opportunity to sneak in physical activity throughout the day. Focusing on moving more and sitting less throughout the day can help - there is benefit to any physical activity regardless of the length of the activity.

For adults, the American Heart Association recommends at least 150 minutes per week of moderate activity or 75 minutes of vigorous activity, or a combination of those activities, such as such as brisk walking, yoga or gardening. In addition, the Association recommends two days per week of moderate- to- high intensity muscle strengthening activity, such as running, jumping rope or swimming laps.

April, known as Move More Month, is an opportunity to examine personal habits and strive to incorporate additional daily activity.
