Judy & A.C. Greene fest names Terry adjudicator

Author, professor and Southern Methodist University administrator more than 40 years, Marshall Terry, will serve as the critic adjudicator for the Judy and A.C. Greene Literary Festival, June 8-12. Hosted by the Living Room Theatre of Salado, the festival will produce six dramatic performances from the original, unpublished works of festival finalists Phyllis Allen, Lila Barnes, Tom Doyal, Lianne Mercer, Jan Epton Seale and Ann McVey. Terry will review and offer an open critique of each performance and select the winner of the festival on June 12 at the Salado Civic Center.

Terry attended Amherst College and Kenyon College as an undergraduate, then came "westering" to Texas and graduated from SMU in 1953, taking an MA in 1954. After pursuing a doctorate in American Studies at Yale, he returned to Texas and his goal of imaginative writing. After a stint with the legendary Dallas advertising genius Sam Bloom, Terry rejoined SMU as a teacher and administrator, serving as assistant to President Willis M. Tate and subsequently rising from instructor to professor and twice chairing the SMU English Department. Founder of the Creative Writing Program in 1972, his former students include published novelists Lewis Shiner, Douglas Terry, Joe Commer and Tracy Daugherty. In 1975 he began the nationally known SMU Literary Festival, which is ongoing and has brought to Dallas most American writers and poets of note.

For Southern Methodist University, he wrote the Master Plan of 1963, affirming the university's devotion, first, to the liberal arts and, then, to strong professional education, and chaired major curricular reforms in 1960 and again in 1995. He served as associate provost for undergraduate education from 1994-98, and in that year was honored with the Lilly Chair.

From 1970-77 he was, with his colleague and mentor Lon Tinkle, co-book critic of the Dallas Morning News. In that capacity he followed the model of Tinkle and of A.C. Greene at the Dallas Times Herald of both criticizing and encouraging Texas writing and putting it in larger perspective. In 1968 he was invited to membership in the Texas Institute of Letters and served as president from 1977-79, then as secretary, and as councilor for the most of the years since. He was among those in TIL Over 150 folks gathered for Memorial Day Services at the Salado Cemetery May 31.

All ancestors and family members buried in the cemetery were remembered. Special honors were given to the more than 200 men and women who served in the armed forces including early day Texas Rangers, Texas War for Independence, Mexican War, War Between the States, Spanish American War, World War I, World War II, Korean War, Vietnam War, and during peace time.

Nick Classen, of Austin, played the bagpipe as people arrived for the ceremony. People were welcomed by MaryBelle Brown, President, Salado Cemetery Association; Dr. Luther Brewer, President, Salado Chamber of Commerce; and Vic Means, President, Salado Historical Society

Following Dempsey Stripling's invocation, the colors were posted by the Temple High School and the First Cav Horse Detachment, from Ft. Hood, TX.

Leroy Schiller, Bell

County Commissioner, performed the National Anthem on the trumpet as the audience joined in singing.

Joe Baisden then led the group in singing Holy Ground.

Jack Evans, Trustee, Salado Cemetery Association read the roll call of war veterans buried in Salado.

A tribute to living veterans was given by Bill Fish, Wilbur Foster, Truman Head, Robert McGhee, Al Purifoy, Jack Tarbutton, Jean Tarbutton, & Jim Tuck

Leroy Schiller performed Taps with the Temple Police Department Honor Guard.

The Cen-Tex Wing Confederate Air Force, San Marcos, flew over in the missing man formation when the colors were retired.

Ret. Col. Jack Jones was the master of ceremonies.

Skip Blancett led the benediction.

Salado Cemetery is one of the oldest community cemeteries in Central Texas, with the earliest known burial taking place circa 1852.

School board elects officers at meeting

Salado ISD Trustees re-elected Mike Wiley as President of the Board during their regular meeting May 24.

Other officers elected by the board were Vice President Frank Carlson and Secretary Carse Williams.

Newly elected board members Lynn Epps, John Konzen and Bob Merrill were given their oaths of office.

The board denied an appeal for a student transfer exception on Superintendent Robin Battershell's recommendation. The request was made by a divorced couple who share custody of their six-year-old daughter. The mother lives in the Pflugerville area and the father lives north of Belton. After discussion with lawyers of both parents, as well as the mother, the board stayed with the school district's policy of accepting no transfer students.

In other business, the board decided to bring custodial work in-house. The district completes a four-year contract with Faulk Services this summer.

The board also approved $50,000 from bond interest to be used for technology. Details of this plan were not available at presstime.

In personnel, the board accepted the resignation of Brit Owen, who has accepted a position in another community. Owen has been the agricultural science teacher in Salado schools for about 10 years. The board also approved various reassignments of teachers.

The board will meet in workshop session June 17.

Salado Reunion open to new, old alike June 12

There will be a short business meeting, singing, good food and ample visiting time. The oldest and the youngest guest will be recognized, as well as the one who has traveled the longest distance to attend the reunion. Special recognition will be given to any classes or families also having their reunion in conjunction with the Salado Reunion.

A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon, so bring your favorite food dishes and add to those of friends and neighbors. Tea, coffee, bread, napkins, plates and silverware will be provided. Come and greet old friends and make new ones at the Salado Reunion this year.

Session ends!

Bush preparing to start run for the presidency

By the time this column is printed and in your hands, the 76th session of the Texas Legislature will be history. No special session despite the reemergence of that specter late last week by the Governor who was failing in an effort to pump more "surplus" dollars into the hands of Texas businesses, some at the expense of certain educational programs including additional kindergarten grants.

George the Younger will now be able to romp around the nation this summer bragging about how he saved public education through a transfusion of dollars headed for teacher salary hikes, reduced property taxes and the normal pump-up of new programs that may or may not work.

Additionally, the Guv can honestly tell his fellow GOPers that he gave business a helping hand (as if they were suffering in these days of unlimited profit and boom) while continuing to cut the welfare rolls, public health offices and other bad old liberal social programs. All legitimate conservative issues that are designed to titillate any good Republican's fancy.

QUO VADIS GUV BUSH?

George W. Bush, Governor of Texas and current leader of the Republican Party's sweepstakes run for President of these United States, is a young man who has collected more campaign money than all other candidates; more endorsements from GOPers who count including fellow Governors, members of Congress and the all important money crowd. All of this good fortune while shadowboxing with the announcement that he will run for the high office his dad once held.

Of course we all know young George will announce. Probably sometime this summer or fall. He will enter some of the primaries and do okay - fact is, he probably will go to the national convention with his pockets full of pledges and money and unless we find out something horrific about his past (which we doubt) this governor of ours will come out with the nomination.

Then what?

Best guess would be that Bush will face either Al Gore or Bill Bradley with that verdict hinging on just how much of President Clinton's negativity will be hovering over the Democratic Party in November of 2000.

If Bush can keep his temper under control and toughen up his skin a tad and perhaps even tell us what he really thinks about the key national and international issues of the day - he will probably win the election.

The women of America will once again make this final decision with their swing vote and once again it is expected they will be impressed by youth, vigor, good looks and weasel-worded campaign promises. And here, we believe, Bush will take the prize since he compares more favorably with the wooden faced Gore who is tarred by the Clinton years and Bradley who is sounder but doesn't come across all that well.

We pick presidents on a popularity contest basis or at least we have in recent years.

Fortunately we try to level things out a bit by giving the nation a Congress of the opposite party from the Prez to keep everyone on their toes and stifle the desire to pass too many infuriating and interfering laws.

This will happen, we predict, next year when we put the Demos back in power in the House and perhaps even in the Senate along with a Republican president.

At least that's what it looks like from here - all of 17 months in advance of the general election. Talk about limb walking and conjuring with nothing more than a few entrails called experience and guesswork to stir into a potful of soothsayings and foreboding that we like to call an objective evaluation of the body politic.

NEW ANNEXATION LAW WON'T HELP SALADO

There was some hope that Senate Bill 89, might resolve some of the problems inherent in the current Texas annexation laws but this is not to be the case. If the amended plan passes - as expected - the city doing the annexing will now have to give three years notice to the area to be grabbed and under law be required to provide all services (police, water, power, etc.) within 30 months, but there will be no escaping the clutches of the planned annexation once the official word is pronounced and filed.

So the problem of helplessness remains for those who are told they are to be annexed by their big city cousins. They have no recourse now nor will they later when the new law is implemented.

What many independent areas, that are being eyed by tax hungry neighbors, wanted from proposed changes in the overpowering annexation laws was a chance to not only be notified three years in advance but to have an opportunity during those years to either incorporate themselves or make a deal with a city of their choice for annexation purposes.

Representative Mike Krusee (R-Taylor) has long been a champion of allowing areas facing annexation to have a chance to vote on whether to be annexed or not - noted that this bill SB89, is a step in the right direction but that the optimum move to protect suburban and rural areas through a vote by citizens scheduled for annexation, is a few years away due in large part to the urban political clout in the legislature.

It is imperative that communities like Salado, that will be more and more under the microscopic gun of tax devouring neighbors, need to push legislators to give us the right to determine - at the ballot box - our future, rather than force us to become part of another community that has no local interest other than what our property will produce in the way of taxes.

That's -30-

Census Bureau Rep speaks June 17

The year 2000 will bring with it lots of interesting challenges for the American people. One of these will be taking of the United States census which is done every 10 years.

The United States Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, has set up a special project referred to as "Central Texas Partnership Program." The goal of this project include making sure that there is an accurate "head count" of all residents.

The Census Bureau uses "Census Designated Places" (CDP) boundaries for the purposes of tabulating and disseminating data for unincorporated localities. Salado falls within these guidelines. Boundaries for CDPs, defined as closely settled, named, unincorporated communities that generally contain a mixture of residential, commercial, and retail areas similar to those found in incorporated places of similar size, are decided upon in a cooperative effort between the Census Bureau and representatives from the CDP community.

Current population estimates (Texas State Data Center, 1998) show that the Salado CDP has 1,353 residents. In 1990, the official population total for the Salado CDP was 1,216. However, quality-control studies conducted after the official census estimated the actual population to be closer to 1,233. Thus, nearly 1.4 percent of Salado's population was not counted in the 1990 census.

This undercount translates into Salado having missed out on its fair share of representation in the U.S. House of Representatives and in the State Legislature. Furthermore, every year between 1990 and 2000, Bell County received less federal funds than it should have been able to secure, had the true number of residents been known.

The census takers are in for a big surprise! They don't realize that Salado has tripled in size during the past 10 years. More than 2,500 households are being served by our local Post Office. The Census Bureau claims a household has an average of three persons dwelling under the same roof. If we multiply the 2,500 households by three, we come up with 7,500. Of course, we know that the Post Office serves a rather large area, but since we are not incorporated, we have to borrow boundaries marking a given territory.

Residents of Salado will have an opportunity to hear a speaker from the Census Bureau at the Civic Center, 7 p.m. June 17. This open forum is being sponsored as a community service by members of Chisholm Trail Republican Women's Organization. Visitation and refreshments will begin at 6:30 p.m. For more information, call MaryBelle Brown at 947-5331.

Tornado spawns business to save lives

When the tornado ripped through Jarrell two years ago, missing Salado, it was too close for comfort for Virginian Richard McCalley.

McCalley's wife Saranne and daughter Midge were visiting his mother-in-law Marjory Brashear in Salado when the Jarrell tornado touched down. When news of the monster tornado hitting Jarrell was reported, McCalley began work on designing a storm shelter.

According to a front page story in The Free Lance-Star serving the Fredericksburg area, McCalley has developed a shelter kit that a homeowner can buy and easily install himself.

who worked to broaden its membership to include men and women and minority members and to make the TIL truly representative of the various dynamic voices of contemporary Texas writing.

Terry's published works include his first novel, "Old Liberty," "Tom Northway" (which resulted in a ongoing series of "Northway" family series of novels), "Dallas Stories," and "Ringer." His story "Angels Prostate Fail" was read for the 1997 Arts and Letters Live "Texas Bound" series Rappahannock Forge in Stafford County Virginia. Rappahannock Forge has begun producing the shelter, which measures 4 foot by 6 foot and can hold a family of four. The shelter kit includes almost 1,500 pounds of heavy-gauge galvanized steel.

It can be installed in a basement, on a concrete slab or in a garage. It exceeds Federal Emergency Management Agency standards for home shelters. The basic model costs $2,850.

McCalley said that the kit has been tested to withstand 250 m.p.h. winds and a direct hit by a 15-pound 2X4 traveling at 150 m.p.h..

According to the news story, McCalley likens the KeepSafe shelter to the cocoon-like steel cages around NASCAR drivers that protect them from 200+ m.p.h. crashes.

The steel walls and roof are engineered to dissipate energy from projectiles, falling debris and wind. Salado High School boys' coaching staff will host a basketball camp June 7-11 for boys in grades 5-8 (98-99 school year).

The basketball camp will be held at the SHS Gym 8:30 a.m.-noon each day.

The cost of the basketball camp is $35 and includes T-shirts, certificates and awards.

The camp will cover the following skills:

- Fundamentals of shooting, ball handling and defensive philosophy.
- Solid foundation in individual skills development and motivation.

- Teaching skills progression by age and skills differences.

- Develop confidence, love of the game and athleticism.

- Fundamentals of passing and receiving.

- Fundamentals of passing, receiving, defensive stance, close-outs and rebounding.

Registration forms are available at Salado High School or by calling Coach Alan Haire at 947-5429, or 947-3153.

Sign-ups will also be held the first day of camp at the SHS Gym 8 a.m. June 7.

More about fat and diets

Ilene C. Miller
Co. Ext. Agent

If you must reduce the fat and cholesterol in your diet, it can be accomplished through careful planning. First, define your dietary goal. If you want to cut calories, you need to know what ingredients contribute the most calories. To reduce fat, sugar or sodium consumption, you need to identify the ingredients that contain these components - calories, fat and cholesterol.

Fat is the most concentrated source of calories. Each gram of fat supplies nine calories, compared with four calories per gram of protein or carbohydrates and seven calories per gram of alcohol. Reducing the amount of fat in a recipe is the most effective way to cut calories.

Fatty acids are the basic chemical units in fat. They are either saturated, monounsaturated, or poly-unsaturated. All fats in foods are mixtures of these fatty acids.

Saturated fatty acids are found in the largest proportions in fats of animal origin such as whole milk, cream cheese, butter, meat and poultry. They also occur in large amounts of coconut oil and palm kernel oil.

Monounsaturated fatty acids are found in large amounts of olive oil, peanut oil and canola oil as well as in many margarine and solid vegetable shortening.

Polyunsaturated fatty acids are found in the largest proportions of fats of plant origin such as liquid vegetable oils (safflower, sunflower, corn, cottonseed and soybean) and margarines and salad dressings made from them.

Cholesterol is a fat-like substance found only in foods of animal origin. Significant sources include egg yolks, meats (particularly organ meats), butter, cream cheese and whole milk.

To choose the best approach, it is helpful to understand how fat functions in a recipe and what happens if you modify it. First, you can either eliminate the ingredient, reduce the amount or substitute a more acceptable ingredient.

Fat provides flavor and richness, improves texture and tenderness in baked goods, and promotes flakiness and lightness.

Eggs provide structure and tenderness, act as a thickener and emulsifier and they also act as leavening agents when beaten.

Extension programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, national origin or disability.

Guidelines for being a good caregiver and a good patient

"In sickness and in health, 'til death do us part," is a harsh reality for a spouse who must attach the role of caregiver to that of lifetime partner.

Communication and support from family and friends can make the transition more manageable, said Dr. Nancy Wilson, an assistant professor of medicine at the Huffington Center on Aging at Baylor College of Medicine.

"When one partner becomes chronically ill or disabled, the relationship between the couple changes. Knowing what to expect can help ease that change," Wilson said.

The couple is fortunate if they have a long history of problem solving. "If possible, they can renegotiate their roles in marriage. Feelings of sadness and frustration can make changing roles more difficult, but new skills can provide a feeling of accomplishment for both."

Instead of criticism, Wilson encourages the ill or disabled partner to offer praise and encouragement if the care-giving spouse makes mistakes while learning to drive, balancing the checkbook, cooking, or doing laundry. She said it is equally important that the caregiver expresses appreciation for contributions the ill partner is able to make.

Many caregivers find that they harbor strong feelings of resentment or guilt. "Unresolved issues and hostilities tend to surface in care-giving roles," Wilson said. Sometimes these feelings lead to excessive caregiving, which might promote dependency and even prevent the ill person from making progress in recovery.

"Feelings of anger, guilt and frustration are normal," Wilson said. "Care-giving doesn't make you a saint."

If possible, the caregiver should encourage the ill or disabled spouse to continue lifelong interests, invite family members to share simple activities or talk about the day's events. Being around other people will help lessen feelings of isolation.

Caregivers should "refuel" by pursuing their own activities, spending time with friends and family or participating in a support group. "Caregivers should let other people into their lives to share physical tasks and emotional burdens. They don't have to do everything themselves."

Remember, there are two victims, Wilson said. Both people can expect to go through transitions, not only in roles, but also in emotional states. Both partners can have feelings of helplessness, loss of dignity, loss of control and loss of identity. Both might grieve the loss of the relationship as it was.

"As healthy spouses, we should look ahead for ourselves, in the eventuality that something will happen. We need to face the possibilities head on and discuss how we would like to handle these challenges."

THE ILLUSTRATED BIBLE
Be As A Child Before God
"Let the children come to me...for to such belongs the kingdom of God"
-Luke 18:16

Since Adam and Eve, children have been considered gifts from God. Jesus appreciated that fact and when His disciples tried to dissuade those who followed Christ from bringing children to Him, He rebuked them. The little ones were as much a part of God's family as their elders. Even more so, since theirs was an innocence and simplicity which made them more worthy of God's love than those of mature years who had faced temptation and sinned. Too, children could be trained and their characters developed for all time through the precepts of love and decency set forth by God and voiced by His Son Jesus. Adults might better think on the unworldliness of children and follow in their ways in their own striving for God's kingdom.

The Jewel will also be distributed at tourist information centers at the borders and in Waco and Austin. "This will give the magazine more bang for the buck," said Tim Fleischer. "We want to make the Jewel the best advertising buy for our customers."

Included in the Jewel magazine is a shopping map of the village. To be listed on the shopping map, a business must have an ad in the Jewel.

Skin cancer self-examinations: Put your skin to the test

Exams conjure up fears in all us. Did I study hard enough? Will I pass? Do I know the material inside and out? Will it be graded on a curve?

The fact is, exams are an essential component of learning valuable information. And if you think about it, one more exam—a skin cancer self-examination—really won't kill you, right? No, in fact, it could save your life.

You know your skin better than anyone else. Whether it's a passing glance in a full-length mirror as you're getting dressed for work or a thorough once-over every night before bedtime, you look at your skin every day. That's why you're the best person to notice any changes or suspicious marks on your skin that could be a sign of skin cancer.

Skin self-examinations aren't difficult and can be done in a matter of minutes with only one tool - a hand-held mirror. Or, you can enlist the help of a friend for those hard-to-see areas.

By giving yourself a personal inspection regularly, you can spot potential trouble at the best possible time: in the earliest stage. That's important because most skin cancers, including melanoma—the deadliest form of skin cancer—can be cured if caught in time.

About 1 million new cases of skin cancer will be diagnosed in the United States each year. Of that total, it is estimated that approximately 44,200 people in the United States will be diagnosed with melanoma this year, up 6 percent from 1998. This year alone, approximately 7,300 deaths will be attributed to melanoma, about one every hour. A report in the April 21, 1999 issue of the Journal of the National Cancer Institute finds that while the number of new cases for most cancers declined from 1990-1996, melanoma is one of the few cancers that continues to rise—at a rate of approximately 3 percent annually.

While melanoma can strike anyone, Caucasians are at far greater risk than those of other races. But even among Caucasians, however, certain individuals are at higher risk than others. For example:

- Your chances increase by nine times if you've already had one melanoma.

- You have a substantially increased risk of developing melanoma if you have many moles, large moles or atypical (unusual) moles.

- Your risk is increased if your parents, children or siblings have had melanoma.

- If you are a Caucasian with fair skin, your risk is twice as great as a Caucasian with olive skin.

- Redheads and blondes have a twofold to fourfold increased risk of developing melanoma.

- Excessive sun exposure in the first 10 to 15 years of life increases your chances of developing melanoma threefold.

Conducting a skin self-examination is simple and painless. Look over your entire body, including your scalp, soles of your feet, between your toes, and the palms of your hands. You'll need a mirror to check some of these areas. Here's what to look for:

- A mole that has changed size, color, shape or texture.
- A mole that begins itching, bleeding, crusting or becomes irritated.
- New moles.
- Changes in your skin.

If you spot any of these changes, see your dermatologist immediately.

"If neglected, all skin cancers, especially melanoma, can be lethal," warns Dr. Darrell Rigel, MD, President of the American Academy of Dermatology. "That's why skin self-examinations are so critical in the detection process."

In addition to practicing frequent skin self-exams, the American Academy of Dermatology recommends that everyone follow these sun safety precautions year-round:

- Avoid "peak" sunlight hours - between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. - when the sun's rays are the strongest.

- Apply a broad-spectrum sunscreen with a Sun Protection Factor (SPF) of at least 15, apply 15 - 30 minutes before going outdoors, and reapply every two hours, especially when playing sports, swimming, gardening or doing any other outdoor activities. Cloudy days are no exception. Sunscreens should not be used to increase the time spent in intense sunlight.

- Wear protective, tightly woven clothing, such as a long-sleeved shirt and pants during prolonged periods of sun exposure. And don't forget to wear a wide-brimmed hat and sunglasses when outdoors.

- Avoid reflective surfaces, which can reflect up to 85 percent of the sun's damaging rays.

- No shadow...seek the shade! If your shadow is shorter than you are, the damaging rays of the sun are at their strongest and you're likely to sunburn.

For more information, contact the AAD at 1-888-462-DERM or www.aad.org.

Self-Examination for Melanoma

- 1 Examine your body front and back in the mirror, then right and left sides arms raised.
- 2 Bend elbows and look carefully at forearms and upper under-arms and palms.
- 3 Look at the backs of the legs and feet - spaces between toes, and soles.
- 4 Examine backs of neck and scalp with a hand mirror. Part hair for a closer look.
- 5 Finally, check back and buttocks with hand mirror.

Hospice Volunteers sought for Salado

The Scott & White Hospice is looking for helping hands, especially in the Salado area. Hospice volunteer recruitment is under way to help local patients who have terminal illnesses. Times and locations are arranged to suit the volunteer and the family.

These unselfish persons perform tasks such as shopping, handling household chores and sitting with the patient for a few hours while the regular care-giver takes a needed break. They undergo an extensive 30-hour training course in family dynamics, bereavement and family structure. Volunteers are generally asked to commit for a year.

Serving a 50-mile radius from Temple, the Scott & White Hospice now includes volunteers throughout Central Texas.

The Scott & White Hospice is a comprehensive, medically directed, team oriented, not-for-profit program of care that seeks to treat and comfort patients and their families at home or in a homelike setting.

"The hospice philosophy accepts death a natural part of life and seeks neither to hasten nor prolong the dying process. Volunteers play a major role and work closely with the hospice team which includes the physician medical director, registered nurses, social workers, chaplains, home health aides, pharmacist and the patient's attending physician," said Pat Jackson, Scott & White Hospice volunteer coordinator.

To learn more, call Pat Jackson at (254) 724-4090 or toll-free (800) 299-2033.

Chocolate Milk Recipes Curb Chocolate Cravings

Lowfat Chocolate Milk Offers Great Nutrition And Great Taste

With summer approaching, many adults are looking for ways to satisfy their sweet tooth, yet still fit into their swimsuits. There's a simple solution - a kid-favorite that also holds adult appeal - chocolate milk.

This childhood favorite is now widely available in lowfat and fat free versions, and comes in convenient single servings. Best of all, it offers guilt-free chocolate satisfaction along with the calcium most adult diets lack.

"Lowfat chocolate milk is a great-tasting, guilt-free snack to satisfy your chocolate cravings," said Barbara Albright, M.S., R.D., co-author of "Quick Chocolate Fixes" and former editor of Chocolatier magazine. "It's nutrient-packed, and its rich chocolate taste is great alone or as part of luscious chocolate drinks and treats."

Lowfat chocolate milk has only 160 calories and 2.5 grams of fat per 8-ounce serving. Plus lowfat chocolate milk offers the same essential nutrients as regular milk, including calcium.

"Many people cut both chocolate and milk out of their diets when trying to lose weight," said Ann Rusniak, R.D., director of dairy communications for the National Dairy Council. "But there's no need to deny yourself either. Lowfat chocolate milk is the perfect way to enjoy the great taste of chocolate without worrying about fat and calories. And a single serving provides 30 percent of the daily recommended amount of calcium."

With most Americans missing out on the calcium they need to help build and maintain strong bones, keeping milk in your diet is essential, Rusniak said. Nine out of 10 adult women and seven out of 10 adult men don't get the recommended daily amount of calcium - 1,000 mg or about three glasses of milk. Dieters in particular often leave out milk and miss out on the calcium they need.

"Lowfat chocolate milk gives adults a flavorful new way to up their calcium intake," Rusniak said. "And it doesn't stop with chocolate. Dairies now provide a variety of flavored milks nationwide, from strawberry and banana to coffee mocha."

Guilt-free Chocolate Treats

To show adults they don't have to deny themselves chocolate while watching their weight, the 'got milk?' Milk Mustache campaign teamed up with Albright to create simple, easy-to-make recipes starring lowfat chocolate milk.

"Recipes with lowfat chocolate milk are versatile, delicious, nutrient-packed and best of all, lower in fat than the average chocolate dessert," said Albright. "And the best part is that when you make recipes featuring lowfat chocolate milk, you know you are getting great nutrition along with great taste."

Here are two delicious drinks—one cold, one hot—to satisfy your chocolate cravings:

Iced Chocolate Café

- 4 lowfat chocolate milk ice cubes (see directions)
- 1/2 cup cooled brewed coffee
- 1/2 cup lowfat chocolate milk

To make ice cubes, shake lowfat chocolate milk and pour into ice cube tray; freeze. Place cubes in chilled glass. Add coffee and lowfat chocolate milk. Stir to combine.

Makes 1 serving. Nutrition facts per serving: 215 calories; 315 mg (31% of RDA) calcium; 3 g fat; 226 mg sodium; 37 g carbohydrates; 10 g protein; 13 mg cholesterol.

Mexican Hot Chocolate

- 4 cups lowfat chocolate milk
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 3/4 teaspoon almond extract
- 4 cinnamon sticks for garnish (optional)

SENIOR FOCUS

Robert J. Luchi, M.D.
Huffington Center on Aging
Baylor College of Medicine

The traditional dangers of old age -- osteoporosis, arthritis, and loss of strength, balance, agility, and aerobic capacity -- can all improve with regular exercise.

So, what's stopping you? If you don't like jogging, aerobics or golf, you might consider the age-old practice of mind/body fitness known as yoga or pilates, its more modern counterpart.

Yoga is designed to be pleasurable and invigorating. It helps develop a balance between mind and body using physical postures, or asanas, breathing techniques and guided relaxation. Yoga asanas exercise the entire body while increasing flexibility, strength and stamina. Breathing exercises help reduce stress and increase the flow of energy through the body, while calming and integrating the mind and body.

Toning the mind and the body

You don't have to be a human pretzel to practice yoga. It is a very individualized practice, and you should never strain or stretch farther than is comfortable.

Yoga can be learned from books, but the best way is to attend classes where you can stretch, unwind and socialize. You'll also have an instructor available who will remind you to warm-up, progress slowly until you've mastered the beginning postures, drink plenty of liquids to prevent dehydration, and avoid sudden twisting and flexing of joints.

The Pilates Method, introduced in the early 1900's, is a blend of the Eastern and Western philosophies of physical and mental conditioning. It is a full body-conditioning program comprised of a series of approximately 500 designed movements performed on the mat or with specially designed equipment. Pilates increases flexibility, builds strength and tones muscles without adding bulk.

These workouts can consist of a group mat class, an individually instructed program, or a combination of both, tailored to meet personal needs. Exercises are performed reclining, sitting, kneeling, and standing.

To find a yoga or pilates class, check out the yellow pages, local Y, gym or fitness centers.

Remember, the purpose of exercising is to keep active. There's a lot to be said for, "Use it or lose it."

Don't wait until it is too late...

Q: My husband has started hitting me a lot recently. He lost his job and has been drinking and gets really, really angry. I am afraid more for my children, but I cannot afford to leave him because I don't have a job. What can I do?

A: It is important to remember that you never deserve to be hit or threatened. If you or your children are in imminent danger you should leave the situation immediately and call the police.

Leaving an abusive situation is potentially very dangerous. There are ways to prepare for leaving that may reduce the risk of harm. There are several organizations that can help you make a plan for leaving an abusive situation. The National Domestic Violence Hotline can be reached at (800) 799-SAFE, and the Women's Advocacy Hotline can be reached at (800) 373-HOPE.

You should find a safe place where you and your children can go when you leave, as well as someone who can possibly lend you money. You should also always keep the number of a local battered women's shelter with you. Keep change or a calling card with you also.

The National Domestic Hotline and the Women's Advocacy Hotline (see numbers above) can also provide names of shelters should you need to leave in a hurry.

If you think that your spouse will try to find you and hurt you, you can file for a protective order. If your spouse violates the protective order, call the police immediately. Make sure that your family members and friends know of the protective order.

The Legislature has increased the types of awards that are available through the Crime Victims' Compensation Fund.

For incidents of domestic violence that occur on or after September 1, 1997, injured victims are now eligible for loss of support compensation. The Fund will help to cover the income that the victim loses by leaving an abusive spouse or partner. To be eligible, victims must cooperate in the prosecution of their offender.

Further assistance from the Fund in the form of compensation for medical and counseling expenses for the victim and any children that are involved may also be available. For more information on the Crime Victims' Compensation Fund, call our office at 1-800-983-9933.

Other sources of assistance include the Texas Women's Legal Hotline. The hotline can provide assistance in matters of family law such as obtaining a divorce or filing protective orders.

You can report instances of abuse to the Texas Department of Human Services Abuse Hotline at 1-800-252-5400.

Remember, if you are in immediate danger call the police.

Women at risk of breast cancer needed for prevention trials

Women at high risk for breast cancer are now being sought for one of the largest breast cancer prevention trials ever - a head-to-head comparison of two medications that show promise of protecting women at high risk for the disease. Scott & White is a major research site and the only one in Central Texas for this landmark study.

Breast cancer will strike more than 180,000 U.S. women this year. At the heart of the study, medical researchers want to determine whether high-risk women can prevent breast cancer by taking a daily medication for five years with the fewest side-effects possible.

In the trial, 22,000 postmenopausal women at increased risk of breast cancer will receive one of two medications - tamoxifen or raloxifene. The Study of Tamoxifen and Raloxifene (called STAR for short) builds upon the success of the Breast Cancer Prevention Trial (BCPT), which began in 1992.

Principal investigator is Kathy Kimmey, M.D., Scott & White internal medicine physician and assistant professor with The Texas A&M University System Health Science Center College of Medicine.

In the earlier Breast Cancer Prevention Trial, half of the women took the anti-cancer drug tamoxifen; the other half received a dummy pill with no active ingredients. Scott & White was one of the four principal investigation sites in Texas for the tamoxifen study with 176 women ages 42 to 77 enrolled. Scott & White had one of the lowest drop-out rates of all the national study sites - meaning that most women who enrolled in the program stayed with it for five years.

In the tamoxifen study, researchers found a 49 percent decrease in the incidence of invasive breast cancer in women who took tamoxifen therapy in comparison to those who did not receive the drug. The results were so promising that the study findings were released 14 months earlier than scheduled so that all women who had been taking placebo could consider starting therapy with the drug tamoxifen.

Shortly after that, a large international study showed that raloxifene can also decrease the risk of breast cancer by 66 percent. But that trial was designed to look at raloxifene's effectiveness in preventing osteoporosis, a serious bone-thinning disease. Medical researchers were unsure whether the results could be extended to large numbers of women at high risk of breast cancer. STAR is designed to answer that question and to determine whether raloxifene has advantages over tamoxifen, such as fewer side effects. Both tamoxifen and raloxifene have some side-effects, which include (for some women) hot flashes, vaginal discharge and nausea.

To be eligible for STAR, women must be:

*Age 35 or older.

*Postmenopausal.

*At increased risk of breast cancer due to age, family history of breast cancer, personal medical history, age at first menstrual period and age at first live birth.

STAR is a randomized, double-blind study designed to include 22,000 postmenopausal women 35 or older who are at increased risk for developing breast cancer.

Those who enroll will be randomly assigned to a regimen of 20 mg. of tamoxifen or 60 mg. of raloxifene daily for five years. They will receive close follow-up examinations, including a mammogram, physical exam, and gynecologic exam on a regular basis for at least seven years.

Background

STAR study is supported by the National Cancer Institute (NCI), Eli Lilly and Co., and Zeneca Pharmaceuticals. Zeneca Pharmaceuticals (Wilmington, Del.) will provide tamoxifen and Eli Lilly and Co. (Indianapolis, Ind.) will provide raloxifene.

Tamoxifen, sold under the brand name Nolvadex, is approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for the prevention of breast cancer.

Raloxifene, marketed as Evista, was recently FDA-approved for the prevention of the bone-robbing disorder osteoporosis in postmenopausal women.

For more information about participating in STAR at Scott & White, please call (800) 551-8858.

Ft. Worth's Scott Moore chosen as Art Fair poster artist

Fort Worth artist Scott Moore has been selected as the featured poster artist for the 33rd Annual Salado Art Fair Aug. 7-8 in Pace Park.

He was selected as the poster artist after being named the Best of Show at the 1998 Salado Art Fair. He returns to show his acrylic paintings here in one of the oldest and most well-respected shows in the state of Texas.

A native Texan, Scott has been painting and sketching since childhood, always with an eye for the unusual and unorthodox. He says that early influences of Salvador Dali, Rene' Magritte and Roger Dean stimulated the evolution of his "surrealistic style."

In the mid-1980s, he began displaying and selling his work to the public. A self-taught artist, his studies in Geology, Architecture, Astronomy and Illustration continue to mold his style.

"A single concept can take months to years to develop before it finds expression on canvas," Moore said of the research required to satisfy his desire for accurate representation of the elements in his work.

"Execution of the piece occurs in a marathon event which takes a number of hours to a few days," he said.

Moore's medium is acrylic applied with brushes to canvas or masonite, which he prefers for its speed, bold colors and durability. He employs the application of thin washes to allow creation of subtle colors, blending and shading.

"Dissemination of Imagination"

Original acrylic painting by Ft. Worth artist Scott Moore used a poster artwork for the 33rd Annual Salado Art Fair. The poster print, which measures approximately 19" wide by 27" tall, is a limited edition suitable for framing and collecting. It is now available for sale at the Salado Chamber of Commerce office for $20. Moore will sign the poster during the Salado Art Fair Aug. 7-8 in Pace Park. For more information about the Salado Art Fair, call the Salado Chamber of Commerce at 254/947-5040.

His technique earned the Best in Media: Acrylics award in 1996 at the Laguna Gloria Art Show in Austin.

In an effort to break the bonds of "linear thought,"

Moore frequently portrays alternate views of reality and a defiance of the laws of nature. A predominant signature of his work is the levitating object(s) giving rise to the title of his col-

Local quilter is sewing for Kosovo

Meredith Heintzelman of Salado is doing something to make life a little easier for a Kosovo refugee. She's joining other quilters from around the world in making quilts for those who have fled their homes in the war-torn area.

"These people have lost everything. You just think about having to up and leave your home, taking nothing with you," said Heintzelman.

Relief organization workers have identified blankets and shelters as the items most needed by refugees.

A Boise, Idaho quilter, Jill Kuraitis, recognized that quilts were ideal for the situation. They're sturdy, long-lasting and the larger ones can provide shelter when they're hung over a rope and used as tents.

She's now coordinating the project under the direction of the Global Development Center (GDC), a non-profit organization involved in disaster relief.

The humanitarian agency is distributing the quilts and coordinating the effort through its Internet site. Quilters receive instructions at <http://www.globaldevelopment.org/quilterinfo.htm>. The site shows photos and information on participants, from Canadian quilt groups to Illinois fourth-graders. Another section solicits financial support from the general public for the project.

"We knew that quilt-makers were as concerned as everyone else about the tragic refugee situation but we had no idea this campaign would be so stunningly successful," Kuraitis said.

Heintzelman is a beginning quilter. She was searching the Internet for patterns when she came across the Kosovo quilt project.

She said she thought, "I may not be the best quilter but I can do this. It could be a start for someone, back to having something of their own."

She shared the information about the project with fellow members of the Salado Village Artists Quilters. One member, Patty Harding, has already mailed a tied crib-size quilt to the distribution center in Michigan.

A shipment of quilts went to Kosovo May 5. Heintzelman is busy finishing hers for the next shipment. She's machine quilting a full-size cover. She said this is the first one she's made with brightly-colored blocks.

"I'm hoping the colors will brighten someone's day," she said.

conscious and subconscious reactions to both humorous and melancholy aspects of reality.

Moore feels art is subject to interpretation. "The interpretation of my images defies description with words. So, while I will provide you with titles and pertinent data, I encourage you to seek meaning within your own imagination."

The poster, a limited edition suitable for framing, is now available for $20 at the Salado Chamber of Commerce. The poster measures 19" wide by 27" tall.

Scott Moore will sign the poster during the Salado Art Fair Aug. 7-8 in Pace Park.

Admission to the Art Fair is $4 for adults, children under 12 free.

The Salado Chamber of Commerce sponsors the Art Fair each year as its largest fund-raiser.

The Salado Chamber of Commerce Auxiliary Quilt will continue to be on display throughout the Village of Salado until the drawing is held at the 33rd Annual Salado Art Fair Aug 7-8. June 3 through June 16 the quilt will be on display at the Pine Cottage shop located in Creekside Center opposite Susan Marie's.

Lauren Quirk and Brian Butscher to attend Girl and Boys State

Two Salado High School students have been selected by their faculty to attend civic leadership seminars this summer. Lauren Quirk will be attending Bluebonnet Girls State sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary Unit #55 in Belton at Texas Lutheran University in Seguin June 15-24.

Brian Butscher will be attending Boys State June 5-11 at the University of Texas at Austin. The American Legion Post in Holland is his sponsor.

Students learn the ideals and objectives of American government. Rather than classroom lectures and textbook learning, participation and personal experience in a model state are emphasized.

Students are elected to serve in all positions of local and state government in their model states during their time at the seminar.

The most important objectives they will learn are civic leadership and pride in American citizenship, a keen interest in the detailed study of our government, a full understanding of our American traditions and belief in the United States, and a determination to maintain our form of government.

Paper or Plastic that is the ?

by Tumbleweed Smith

At the super market checkout, they used to ask you if you wanted your items put in paper or plastic bags. They don't ask anymore. They just put your items in plastic sacks about the size of a woman's purse. When you get home to unload, you have about 60 little bags to haul into the kitchen.

What in the world do you do with all those little bags? In our house, we throw most of them away, saving a few to line small trash containers. When we throw them away, we put them in our pantry trash can, which is huge and lined with a heavy duty plastic bag. When it gets full, we tie it up, put it in our big trash container, take it to the curb and the city guys come by and pick it up.

What happens after that is a mystery to me.

Why is that in every vacant lot you see about 37 of those sacks stuck on scraggly mesquite trees, flapping in the breeze. Where do they come from? I guess people buy some small item in a store that dutifully puts it in a plastic bag. Then when the item is taken out, the bag is discarded, floats around the car for awhile, then ends up blowing out when the car door is open. It is then at the mercy of the wind, which eventually takes it over to those mesquite bushes.

My wife says she notices a great number of city trash containers which have unbagged household trash dumped into them. That drives her crazy. The lids fly open in the wind and all the light garbage escapes. We enjoy the system we have in our town. The city supplies the large containers on wheels which homeowners fill up with trash and roll out to the streets and alleys twice a week for pickup. It makes for a quick and easy way to get rid of garbage.

Sometimes we take for granted the things that make our life easy. When we lived in Iowa during the 60s, we ran into a different kind of trash disposal system. All the cans had to be in one container. All the bottles had to be in another. There was one for the paper trash. We had to wrap all our food scraps in newspaper before placing it in still another container.

One day there was a knock at the door and the garbage men were there with the supervisor to inform us that we were using too much paper in wrapping our food scraps and could be subject to a fine. They actually took the time to go through our trash and examine it, confer about it and then make a house call. We mended our ways and from that day on were much more careful about the amount of wrap we used around our table scraps.

Our trash guys don't have time to sweat that small stuff. They do their job quickly and efficiently. They are good at what they do and take pride in their work. We do have a good trash system in Texas. We just need to find a way to keep those plastic bags from getting loose and blowing all over the place.

I know plastic bags are good for the oil industry, which is having its problems right now. They serve a purpose and fill a need. But what happened to those big paper sacks that held so much and were so easy to handle. Spring housecleaning might be a good time to devise some way to make sure those plastic sacks end up somewhere else besides a vacant lot.

Area rains boon for crops

James M. Davis
Co. Ext. Agent

Much needed rain fell across Central Texas last week. The area crops should benefit greatly from the timely rainfall. The only problem with the rain was wheat fields that remained to be harvested and hay fields that were cut and needed baling. Never the less, I didn't hear anyone complain about the rain.

The main benefit the rains brought to crops was keeping temperatures below 95 degrees. Last year ('98), by this time we had already experienced several 100 degree days. If we can stay below 95 degrees for the first half of June, our corn and sorghum crops will be far enough along to make it until harvest. Harvest this year may be in July if we continue to be ahead of normal with plant development.

With the variability of yields we have experienced in corn and sorghum yields over the past 10 years, I was curious to see just how much income difference there was between corn and sorghum.

Looking at the average county yields for 1989-1998, and the average price farmers received for those 10 years, I came up with an average of $22.67 per acre/ per year advantage to corn over sorghum. The net income would have to be figured on an individual farmer's basis, as inputs vary from one farmer to another.

Eight of the 10 years, including 1996, corn grossed more income per acre than sorghum. Sorghum grossed more income than corn in 1990 and 1998. Of the 10 years reviewed, 1995 was the best year for both corn and sorghum. In 1995, corn grossed $232 per acre while sorghum grossed $213.75 per acre or an $18.25 per acre advantage to corn, or close to the 10 year average.

Last year ('98) was the worst year for corn, thus sorghum had an $87.60 gross advantage. The worst year for sorghum was 1996 when corn out produced sorghum $22.20 on the average or the same as the 10 year average.

In summary, most farmers switched from corn to sorghum in the past 15 years because of ease of harvest and not having to fight sorghum midge. The economic advantage to corn no more than off sets the additional inputs for corn.

One last note, sorghum started blooming in the county about May 25. The midge cycle takes 18-21 days to complete. Expect heavy midge populations as early as June 10-12. Be sure to check daily for midge in yellow bloom sorghum fields from June 10 until completion of bloom.

Lawn & Garden Weekly Tip

Adding Enduring Delight To Your Garden

A garden, once established, usually changes very little over the years and whatever changes are made come gradually. There will be a few trial plantings from season to season, or a flower bed will be moved to gain better sun or more shade. A once attractive shrub will wither or become ungainly and have to be replaced. For the garden reflects the more serene and contemplative side of our personality. A good part of the joy we take in our garden comes from its continuity, from watching the annual cycle of blossoming and transitions of color and foliage with its reassurance that this part of our life, at least, will remain unchanging.

Among the more acceptable changes that can be made to a garden with little effort and without disturbing its continuity is by adding an arbor.

Not only does an arbor provide an attractive accent in itself, it affords an opportunity for a dramatic display.

A good wood arbor demands high grade materials, preferably rot resistant. The best looking arbors include lattice in their construction. Arbors are offered in a variety of styles, the most popular being the classic round top or the straight topped pergola model.

You can have your arbor in any variety of colors. Red cedar is an attractive wood, warm in color, which takes paint or stains very well or can be left unfinished to weather to a soft gray which is particularly attractive in the casual or rustic garden.

There are many places in the garden where an arbor can provide an attractive addition:

- As the entry to the yard or garden, or to a special garden walk.
- In a spot at the back of the garden, or in a corner, where it will offer shelter, particularly if you add an available accessory bench to convert it to a garden seat.
- To frame a view, either of part of your garden or of a vista beyond.
- On a section of lawn, with profusely blooming roses or other flowering climbers, like clematis, honeysuckle or columbine, to make a key feature of your yard.

• Several in a row with connecting trellis, to create a garden tunnel or gallery, with grapes or wisteria clambering overhead.

• At the top of a stairway, either wooden or stonework, down from a deck, or to lower terrace or waterfront level.

With minimum care, your attractive arbor will provide many years of added beauty and delight to your continuing enjoyment of your garden.

REPEALING THE TAX ON CHARITY

Americans are the most charitable people in the world. Every day, countless thousands of people at home and abroad are fed, clothed, housed and receive life-saving medical treatment as a result of this nation's philanthropic efforts. The average American family contributes more than $800 a year to charitable causes.

I believe government should do whatever it can to encourage the continuation of these good works, and I think most Texans feel the same.

Consider one couple in Eules who want to donate money to their alma mater: Baylor University in Waco. When they were young, they began saving for their retirement. They did very well, and now find they have more than enough retirement savings to meet their needs. They would like to use some money they have set aside in an Individual Retirement Account to set up a scholarship program at Baylor. But they don't want to pay the substantial tax bite that would be due if they cash out their IRA. The tax situation has them stymied.

There should be a way to encourage such philanthropy.

On May 20 I introduced legislation to do that by making giving less taxing. The Charitable IRA Rollover Act will allow donors to transfer assets they have in an IRA to a charity without having to pay taxes on their withdrawal first.

My bill would allow these generous individuals to direct their personal resources to charitable causes penalty-free. This would unlock an important source of charitable giving. And it would allow donors to give back to their communities without Uncle Sam jumping in and taking a cut.

Here's how it would work: A person who has reached age 59 will be allowed to move assets from an IRA directly to charity or into a qualifying deferred charitable gift plan without being liable for taxes on the transfer funds.

This bill could provide a valuable new stream of philanthropy for our nation's charities. Current law takes as much as 38 percent of the gift out in taxes. My legislation will encourage America's best charitable instincts.

Recent studies show that retirement plan assets comprise a substantial part of the net worth of many individuals. For these people, these assets represent the main source of funds from which they can make deferred charitable gifts.

My legislation has been endorsed by the American Red Cross, the American Association of Universities, the American Council on Education, American Association of Museums, the American Institute for Cancer Research and 200 other charitable organizations in the United States.

The additional giving encouraged by the Charitable IRA Rollover Act would support increased public services through the nonprofit sector. As we balance the federal budget in Washington and reduce the size of government, we're encouraging private charitable organizations to do even more to assist the less fortunate in society because we believe private charities do that better than the federal government. My bill will help those charities attract the resources they need to do what we've asked of them.

Campbell Kids

Trademark figures are sometimes called the "icons of industry." Premiums that were once giveaways now bring high prices.

One popular figure is the Campbell Kid. Joseph Campbell and Abram Anderson started a canning plant in Camden, New Jersey in 1869. They did not make the famous soup until 1897.

The Campbell Kids were introduced in ads in 1904. They were designed by Grace Drayton, a well known book illustrator. In recent years, they have been re-designed. They are now thinner and more athletic looking.

During the 1930's, many children saved the printed ads that had a cartoon like picture of the Campbell Kids with a short poem. Postcards and advertising trading cards have also been saved. The first Campbell Kid dolls were made in 1910. Serious collecting did not begin until the 1950's. The first dolls were made of fabric. Most are now in "played with" condition. Rubber squeak dolls were made in the 1930's. The vinyl dolls of the 1950's became collectibles.

The next time you see a Campbell Kid, notice that it has no neck, no ears, and no name. The kids are currently available as dolls, cups, blankets, figurines, key chains and plates.

Indian Princess

The Indian princess has been a symbol of America since the 1700's, akin to Columbia, the female personification of America.

In the 19th century, the Indian princess was a popular advertising image. Tobacco labels, canned foods, alcoholic drinks and medicine often referred to the most mystical princess, suggesting her powers improved the product.

Brown's Celebrated Indian Herb Bitters was a famous bitters medicine made in the 1860's. Three versions of a Brown figural bottle were made. Each had a different patent date molded in the glass. The amber bottles were shaped like an Indian woman holding a shield.

For many years, collectors noticed that there were traces of paint in the folds of the dress or feathers. Most collectors in the 1980's wanted a shining clean bottle, so all the paint was removed. Today, the original painted princess bottle is the most valued.

There are five completely colored examples known. One sold at a recent Pennsylvania auction for $4,800.

Real Estate Tip of the Week

Preparing For A Credit Check When Applying For A Mortgage Loan

Among the many documents you will sign when you apply for a mortgage will be one that gives the lender permission to check your credit history.

The lender checks your credit to determine whether or not you consistently meet your financial obligations. It is one of the tools they use in deciding whether to approve your mortgage request.

A credit check will reveal if you paid your bills on time and, if not, how late they were paid; if you have outstanding debts that were never repaid; if you have declared bankruptcy; how many credit card or other credit lines you have opened, the balances and limits and more.

It will tell the bank whether you have established a record of paying bills and repaying debt in a timely manner, or if you have a history of late payment and taking on more debt than you can repay. This information will be valuable as a lender determines whether or not it can trust you to make your monthly mortgage payments on time for a long period of time.

The credit check may reveal that you have perfect credit something that happens only 20 percent of the time - or that you have some explaining to do.

For example, if the only blemish on your credit report is a late payment on a credit card, you may be asked to write a letter explaining why the payment was late.

If the offense is a more serious unpaid debt, several late payments, a missed car payment, etc. it will be harder to explain away. The lender may be willing to work with you to repair your credit or you may be deemed not credit worthy and turned down.

Serious problems may be revealed during a credit check. Your name may be getting mixed up with someone else's, and the lender may get a completely wrong picture of your finances. Or an unpaid debt that you later paid could show up on the credit report as being outstanding.

One way to avoid these mistakes is to review your own credit history yourself before you apply for a mortgage. The three major credit bureaus that operate in the U.S. are obligated to give you a copy of your credit report upon request. If it reveals problems you were unaware of, you can work to clear them up before you apply for a mortgage.

An important tip to remember is that the lender will check your credit twice - once shortly after you apply for the mortgage and once again just days before loan approval. The lender does this to make sure that you haven't substantially increased your debt burden by buying a new car, for example.

By checking your credit report before the lender does and being conscientious about your finances, you will increase your chances of being approved for a mortgage.

Home Improvement Tip of the Week

Stained Glass Allows For Both Function And Flair

As more and more homeowners turn to stained glass designing as sophisticated ways to dress up their naked windows and doorways, some are not content to limit their decorating desires to just one room.

Many are extending their whimsical tastes to, of all places, the bathroom. At first, it may seem that the bathroom isn't a room that would need decorating, but conscientious homeowners are increasingly highlighting many items in their master bathrooms - from the window, to the mirror, to shower enclosures.

Stained glass in the bathroom? Immediately one begs the question, "Is it safe?" With traditional stained glass, it may not be, but a special multi-patented designer glass process is putting many homeowners concerns at ease. Stained Glass Overlay is a process that is much lighter in weight and more structurally sound than traditional stained glass, while still being indistinguishable in appearance from it. With a shower enclosure, for example, a design can be produced on a sheet of tempered glass, allowing for safety and convenience.

In the case of the traditional stained glass method, many individual pieces of colored glass are cut and then bonded together with lead strips. With such an intricate process that involves so much cutting, it is not unlikely for air or water to seep through the fragile structure.

Using the overlay process, however, the water from the shower stays in the shower, and the rain from outside does not leak through the bathroom window. That is because the overlay process utilizes colored mylar film that is used to bond a design directly to the glass, while outlining the pattern of the design by lead stripping that is bonded to both sides of the glass.

So the question of bathroom safety and security is addressed, but still another question remains: "Is it practical?" Just ask the thousands of baby boomers who view their homes as one of their greatest assets, and are willing to invest in the care and beautification of every part of their home. To many homeowners, the master bathroom is not just another room in the house; it's an extension of the decor that defines the house as a whole.

One home transformed their four midsize bathroom windows into four different design scenes, featuring flowers and birds. The colors used in the designs were carefully chosen to echo the same reds, greens and whites in the plush carpet leading up to the bath.

Designs of Stained Glass Overlay have ranged from a nighttime depiction of an urban metropolis, to quietly beautiful country scenes featuring butterflies and swans, unicorns, etc. They can be adopted from your wallpaper and tile patterns and can be customized to the bathrooms overall appearance.

Another practical advantage of bathroom stained glass is, of course, the privacy factor. AN overlay effect on a bathroom window can achieve that desired privacy, and without sacrificing the light from outside.

Sidelights, in particular, have become another item worthy of stained glass design, because they allow privacy, while still admitting sunlight and moonlight into the room.

Often times, the process can be used to a "less is more" decorative advantage. Some homeowners don't feel the need to dress up an entire bathroom, electing instead to simply personalize their mirror surfaces with small, subtle designs - just enough to befit the color and style of the bathroom.

Stained glass, elegantly transferred to windows, skylights, shower enclosures and more can do wonders for a lackluster bathroom. They accentuate an atmosphere, and give life to any room in your home.
