An Open Exchange of Ideas

Examining the amendments

Starting with the September 29, issue of the Salado Village Voice, a review of all 17 proposed amendments to the State Constitution will be presented. Every two years the Texas Legislature feels compelled to amend the highest law of the State. This past session, the 76th, was no exception. Lawmakers put forward some 142 proposed amendments for consideration. Fortunately only 17 passed legislative muster and have been sent on to us for a final decision on this year's general election day - Tuesday, November 2.

This year's crop has several items that need close attention which is why this newspaper feels it is important to spend time and space in an explanatory manner together with both pros and cons thus allowing readers to become better informed as well as being an integral part of state government when they vote.

This newspaper will make recommendations on each proposal but more important than that is having each voter study the amendments and make a personal decision based on what is best for the State and not the political pressure groups that brought the proposal to the attention of the Legislature in the first place.

Our Voice

Traditionally, voters shy away from a ballot that has only constitutional amendments on it, thus forcing the will of a minute minority on the rest of us. This also takes the word "participatory" out of our Democratic process and leaves us heading in the wrong direction.

Our constitution needs constant vigilance. Anything less allows special interests to take over. As a responsible newspaper, we highly recommend that each Saladoan go to the polls on Tuesday, November 2, and exercise the great right we have - a direct voice in government.

The Salado Village Voice is pleased to have the opportunity to play a role in presenting these proposed constitutional amendments to our readers during the next five weeks.

Third party movement gathering steam as Perot courts Buchanan

Among the many bizarre things taking place these days on the national political front, two appear worthy of comment this first full day of Fall 1999. Number one deals with the official word that Republican presidential wanna-be Pat "turn-back-the-clock" Buchanan is being courted by the Ross Perot wing of the Reform Party, which in turn should be giving GOP front runner George Bush and his money moguls multi-million dollar heartburns.

Who can forget what the goofy jugg-eared Perot did to Bush senior back in 1992 when the Reformists handed the presidency to Bill Clinton thanks to a 19 percent tally by Perot dissidents, mostly votes drawn from what should have gone to the incumbent.

Because of this Perot-Buchanan romance, former wrestler Jessie Ventura who holds the only Reform Party office in America as governor of Minnesota, is changing his tune from wanting to stay hitched in the cold north to "puzzling" over running for president himself! This because of his intense dislike for both Buchanan and Perot.

Wow! Just what we need. Another bona fide clown running loose in the D. C. area!

The Repubs have only themselves to thank for the possible Buchanan party switch. They have treated the former Nixon aide and Hitler apologist like a nutty relative who should be kept in the attic. These things are remembered by politicians who never overlook the ancient maxim - "don't get angry - get even".

THIRD PARTY ON THE WAY?

There is a growing mood in this country that what is needed is a serious third party for those who call themselves moderates. They find no solace in the current Democratic conclave since they eschew the far out liberal stance of these brethren. And by the same token are uncomfortable among the GOPer right fielders who think in terms of less government, more profits and to heck with the common folks!

Fiscal conservatism tied to a social conscience mark the moderates among us - used to be a lot of them in the Democratic party before the days of George McGovern. Many turned to the Grand Old Party but still are without happiness. They can today be found in the so called "independent" crowd that mostly votes along conservative lines. These are the makings of a moderate, center of the road, third party.

Someone, perhaps like John McCain, could lead a group of these lost souls wandering today in the political wilderness but not under the banner of the zany Perotistas.

A dynamically fresh political organization with new names and faces just might start the ball rolling towards the nirvana of a third party alternate political life style.

CLINTON'S ADVENTURISM FUELED BY LEGACY NEEDS?

The second item of note this week focuses on the irony in the actions of President Clinton as he seeks once more to inject this nation into another sovereign squabble halfway around the world. This time in far away East Timor!

Here is a president who hated war and the Viet Nam draft so much that he is reported to have considered giving up his American citizenship during his student days in England. Whether this was just plain fear or an actual case of being opposed to an unjust war is debatable but the end result was that he stayed clear of the military then and is today directing troops to serve in harm's way.

Wild Bill sent troops to Bosnia (still there) and Kosovo (also still there) and now is going to put a few hundred (at a time) into the horror of Indonesia (of all places).

One has to wonder where else he might find a need for our stretched thin military forces - perhaps the India-Pakistani border or better still how about smack-dab in the middle of the Palestinian-Israeli embroilment?

And not to forget the bubbling cauldron of genocide and hate throughout the nations of Africa which almost features an interecine "War of the Month" in a scenario that is bound to attract our leader's attention sooner or later - especially if there are the makings of a better legacy afoot.

STATE SENATE GOP MAKING BIG PLANS

Fun watching GOPers in the Texas Senate making plans to fill Lt. Governor Rick Perry's slot when (and if) he moves to the Governor's Mansion (presupposing a Bush presidential win, of course) with six worthies breathlessly waiting to be tapped by their fellow upperhousemen for this important assignment.

In case of a vacancy in the light guv's position, the senators select their own leader until the next regular election.

What makes all this a bit premature is the fact that the conservatives hold only a one vote majority in the Senate (16 to 15) so that a single flip-flop next year could result in a Democratic majority making plans to take over the second highest job in Texas.

All of this more than a year away, but chances of higher office spurs lawmakers on to making grandiose plans even if they have only the well known snowball's chance in the bad place.

Another coward makes his presence known

by Suzanna Gratia-Hupp
State Representative

Another coward has made his presence known. A long-haired man wearing jeans and a black jacket opened fire yesterday on a teen prayer service in Fort Worth - killing seven people, wounding seven more, and then taking his own life.

But wait, guns aren't allowed in most churches. Did the killer know that?

On another day, in another place, a killer claiming he wanted to kill "innocent" children, marched into a Jewish community center in California and opened fire on a dozen small children and their teachers.

But wait, guns aren't allowed in daycares. Did the killer know that?

In the past year we have witnessed several school shootings that have torn at the heart of America. In Columbine, two deranged teens took the lives of 15 helpless people. At Heritage High School in Atlanta, six students were shot and wounded. We have also seen shootings in Jonesboro, Edinboro, West Paducah, and Pearl.

Report all actions of stalkers to police

by John Cornyn
Attorney General of Texas

Q: My daughter's soon-to-be ex-husband has been following her and threatening her. She has already called the police on him. What else can she do to get him to stop?

A: Stalkers try to control their victims through behavior or threats intended to intimidate and terrify. A stalker can be a stranger, an acquaintance or a former spouse or partner.

The most important thing your daughter can do is notify local law enforcement and prosecutor's offices of the stalking incidents. Each time she reports an incident she should make sure that it is documented, and she should request a copy of the report. If she has received any written communication from her husband, she should turn it over to the police. If her husband has been threatening her by phone, she should report this to the police as well.

Another tool to aid in the prosecution of a stalker is an accurate and complete diary of all incidents of stalking. She should include as complete a description as possible of what happened. This includes recording each incident where he followed her, harassed her in any way, call her or sent her threatening letters.

Your daughter can also notify her friends, neighbors and co-workers that she is being stalked. She can ask them to document each time they see her husband and turn these reports into the police.

The Texas Penal Code makes stalking a Class A misdemeanor. Punishment can be fines up to $4,000 and/or up to one year in jail. If the offender has a previous conviction for stalking, the penalty is upgraded to a third-degree felony with a fine of up to $10,000 and two to six years in prison.

In addition, if the stalker is convicted and sentenced to prison, the releasing officer is required to make a "reasonable" effort to notify the victim when the stalker is being released.

But wait, guns aren't allowed in schools. Did the killers know that?

Earlier this week in Anaheim, CA a man went on a rampage in the West Anaheim Medical Center, killing three people.

But wait, guns aren't allowed in hospitals. Did the killer know that?

So let's see: churches, daycares, schools, hospitals, post offices, and universities - all declared gun-free "safe" zones by the government - are the popular targets for madmen. Yet, we haven't seen a single mass shooting at gun shows, NRA conventions, clay and skeet shoots, pistol and rifle competitions, or other gatherings of what the anti-Second Amendment folks call the "gun fanatics." You know, places where there are dozens or perhaps hundreds of guns in the hand of regular citizens.

Hmmm. Do the killers know that?

Rep. Hupp is a survivor of the 1991 Luby's massacre in Killeen. She has served as state representative for District 54 since 1996. The district covers Bell, Lampasas, McCulloch, Mills, and San Saba counties

It is important that you and your daughter remember that no one deserves to be intimidated or threatened.

Q: Can my daughter file a protective order against her soon-to-be ex-husband to get him to stop stalking her?

A: Protective orders are a civil court orders issued to prevent continuing acts of family violence. Such orders are available to blood relatives, relatives by marriage, former spouses, parents (married or not) of the same child, foster parents or children or any member or former member of a household.

A protective order may prevent an offender from committing further acts of violence and harassing or threatening the victim. The order can also contain a clause that prohibits the offender from coming within a prescribed distance of the victim or initiating any other form of contact.

If your daughter does file a protective order against her husband and he violates it, she should call the police immediately. Law enforcement agencies are notified of all protective orders filed in their area. If a suspect violates an order, officers will act to arrest the offender and have charges filed.

There are many organizations that can help your daughter protect herself. These organizations include: Texas Council on Family Violence 800-525-1978; National Domestic Violence Hotline 800-799-7233; Texas' Women's Advocacy Project 800-777-3247; Texas Legal Services Center 512/477-6000.

Applicants for protective orders may not be charged a fee by law enforcement for filing a protective order. The court will require the offender to pay all related fees for a protective order.

In addition, the Crime Victims' Compensation Division of my office may be able to assist your daughter with compensation for any medical or counseling bills that might have due to her husband's stalking. For information on Crime Victims' Compensation, call 800-983-9933.

Celebrate our Constitution & the Bill of Rights

As the cornerstone of our freedoms, the Constitution of the United States of America was written to protect every American from the abuse of power by government. Without restraint, the excesses of political power will cause our Republic to perish. The Agnes Woodson Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution urges you to know your rights, freedoms and duties as a citizen by studying the Constitution. Only then can you defend and preserve it. Constitution Week is Sept. 17-23. The following are the first 10 amendments to the U.S. Constitution, commonly known as the Bill of Rights.

The Bill of Rights

The conventions of a number of the States having at the time of their adopting the Constitution, expressed a desire, in order to prevent misconstruction or abuse of its powers, that further declaratory and restrictive clauses should be added.

Amendment I

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Amendment II

A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.

Amendment III

No Soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

Amendment IV

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

Amendment V

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

Amendment VI

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defence.

Amendment VII

In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury, shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

Amendment VIII

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

Amendment IX

The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

Amendment X

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

THE ILLUSTRATED BIBLE The Living Faith of Our Fathers

"...for I have made you the father of a multitude of nations. I will make you exceeding fruitful; and I will make nations of you."
--Genesis 17:5-6

When God spoke those words to Abraham, He knew that from him and his descendants would come many peoples to inhabit the earth. God knew they would multiply and that their sons and daughters would follow the customs of their sires. These were the patriarchs of old who, in the words of the hymnist, set forth the "Faith of our fathers! Holy faith!" It is appropriate to think not only of those long-gone men who believed and passed their faith on through the generations, but also of our more immediate fathers whose influence we all acknowledge. And surely we can never forget our debt to the most Supreme Father of all, God, who gave us our Faith.

Eagles edge tough opponent, Liberty Hill, 21-20 in 4th quarter

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

Salado Eagles defenders stopped a two-point conversion try by the Liberty Hill Panthers with 11:03 left in the game to dodge a bullet Sept. 17, winning 21-20 at Eagle Field.

The final 11 minutes of the game kept fans of both teams glued to their seats as the Panthers drove to the Eagle seven yard line with 2:46 remaining in the game.

Kevin Keller's recovery of Elvis Walker's fumble at the Eagle eight yard brought a sigh of relief from the Eagles fans, but the game was far from over.

Salado ran down the remaining seconds of the game and ran off the field with a close victory snatched from another tough opponent.

Even though Salado got out with a win, Liberty Hill dominated the game statistically, rushing for 198 yards and passing for another 162 yards. Salado had 109 yards rushing and 137 yards passing.

Michael Schoepf accounted for the three Salado touchdowns, passing for one and running for two others.

10-yard touchdown pass late in the first quarter. Lucas' PAT kick gave Salado its first lead, 7-6.

Early in the third quarter, Lucas ran up the middle for a 20-yard touchdown, to cap a 58 yard drive. The PAT failed and Salado trailed 13-14.

Salado took the lead with 2:15 left in the third quarter and Schoepf's 1-yard dive. Lucas carried for the 2-point conversion to give Salado a 21-14 lead. The scoring drive of 64-yards took less than a minute and was marked by a 38-yard pass from Schoepf to Lucas, followed by a 25-yard scamper by Schoepf.

While Walker's fumble at the Eagle eight yard line proved one of the turning points of the game, he ran for 119 yards on 30 carries, including touchdowns of 2-yards and 16 yards.

Editor's note: In last week's varsity football story, I left out the name of two players who made key plays during the game. While writing the story at home, I inserted their jersey numbers into the story, planning on putting their names in Monday morning when I could find a roster. Monday rolled around and I flat out forgot to replace the numbers with names.

The players were Brent Hansen (#5) and Derek Ward (#22) who each had an interception against the Moody Bearcats Sept. 10.

Needless to say, I now have a Salado roster at my desks at the newspaper office, at my home and at our printing plant in Belton (where I am writing this story).

I don't think it necessary to point out the irony that we printed the football program for the Salado Athletic Booster Club.

Your lawn can't breathe!

Aeration makes great sense for your lawn

- Reduce the maintenance required for a beautiful lawn
- Reduce the amount of watering your lawn needs.
- Increase the efficiency of fertilizer and pesticides, helping reduce the amounts you use.
- Minimize disease, pest and weed problems.
- Treat problem areas

When soil has a lot of traffic, the air in the soil gets "squeezed" out. Plant roots die when they can't breathe. When soil is compacted, roots tend to grow close to the surface where they are more susceptible to drought and require more watering. Aeration helps your lawn stay healthy.

The Junior Varsity Eagles traveled to Liberty Hill Sept. 16 and came away with a 28-0 non-district win.

The first quarter saw a 10-yard pass to Jarrod Whitfield from Stephen Fewell for a touchdown. The two point conversion was good with Sam Daniel running in the three-yard rush. Also in the first quarter, Fewell helped the team tack on more points by picking up a 30-yard touchdown rush around the right end. The extra point by Fewell was good making the score 15-0 which remained until after half-time.

In the third quarter Hunter Konzen scored on a two yard run, with Fewell kicking it through the uprights for the extra point. This made the score 22-0 through the third quarter.

In the fourth quarter, Fewell scored again on a 10-yard rush around the great blocking right end. The extra kick failed. The game ended with the Junior Varsity Salado Eagles 28 and the Liberty Hill Panthers 0. The Eagle defense played another great game causing three fumbles of which two they recovered. The secondary intercepted a pass. The defensive player's name who caught the pass is unknown to this day.

The Junior Varsity Eagles play at home Sept. 23 against a strong Cedar Park team. Game time will be at approximately 7:30 p.m.

Liberty Hill comes out on top of 7th grade

The 7th Grade Eagles traveled to Liberty Hill Sept. 16. Liberty Hill squeaked by the 7th Grade winning 16-8.

Devon Dunn in the first quarter rushed for a 10 yard TD. Dunn also tacked on the two extra points with a 3 yard run.

That was the extent of the Salado scoring. Liberty Hill scored 8 in the first quarter, as well as 8 in the third quarter.

Defensive standouts were Jake Mewhinney and Joe Tollefson. On the other side of the ball, some offensive standouts were Devon Dunn, Darrison Hennig and Jake Mewhinney.

The 7th grade's next game is here 5 p.m. Sept. 23.

8th Grade

The Salado Eagles 8th grade football team fought to a 6-6 standoff with their counterparts from Liberty Hill. The game showed vast improvement for Salado. Liberty Hill won last years contest 28-6.

Salado received the opening kickoff and marched to the six yard line, but could not cross the goal. The Eagle drive took all but 15 seconds of the first quarter.

Liberty Hill scored early in the third quarter on a eight yard run. The kick failed and L.H. led 6-0 after three quarters.

A Grant Cosper interception gave the Eagles good field position late in the third quarter. It set up the Eagles early fourth quarter touchdown. The score game on an eleven yard pass from Scott Bates to Matt Trolinger. The try for two failed ending the scoring at 6-6.

Offensively the Eagles received good games from Nathan Grisby, Scott Bates, Evan Clements and Brian Bailey. Defensive standouts were Bill Tubbs, Matt Brown, Grant Cosper, and Ben Marsh.

Communicating with your Doctor about alternative therapies

Have you ever thought about trying an alternative therapy?

If so, your physician is the best source for information on treatments not traditionally associated with Western medicine.

The physicians of Texas Medical Association want you to feel healthy and want you to communicate with your doctor about all possible forms of therapy for your illness.

"I find that 70-80 percent of things I see in family practice are stress-induced. I use a lot of 'mind/body' therapy, such as relaxation exercises and meditation, guided imagery, hypnosis, yoga, and also the 'power of prayer' — support groups such as a patient's church or synagogue," says Dr. Donald Counts, an Austin family practitioner. "Being a Western-trained physician, I use traditional medicine as my first line of therapy, and I use non-traditional medicine also, depending on what's been diagnosed."

Dr. Counts stresses that communicating with your doctor is vital. You may learn about new forms of therapy from your doctor through your discussions, or you may mention to him things you've researched.

"Communication is key. An open dialog is important. Patients need to communicate with their doctors about what kinds of alternative practices they may be using, and those they may have heard about and want to try," says Dr.

Counts. "I have a lot of patients who bring me information from the Internet and I let them know what might work and those that should be approached with caution."

He adds that if patient and physician are not on the same belief structure, a dialog might not go as smoothly as if they were. If a patient has heard about a form of alternative therapy and is adamant about trying it, this may need to be discussed over the course of a few visits before the two come to an agreement on an appropriate choice of therapy.

Staying healthy should be a partnership between you and your doctor. Find a physician you feel comfortable discussing your case with in all areas, including the possibility of an alternative form of therapy. TMA recently voted to develop programming to inform and educate its physician members on the pros and cons of the rapidly expanding field of alternative/complementary practices.

Texas Medical Association is a professional organization of more than 36,000 physician and medical student members. It is located in Austin and has 118 component county medical societies around the state. The Association represents 85 percent of the doctors of medicine licensed and residing in Texas. TMA's key objective is to improve the health of all Texans.

S&W volunteer time and skills at area athletic events

Now that fall athletics have begun at Texas schools, it's not only coaches and players that gear up to hit the fields and courts. Scott and White's doctors suit up, too.

Senior staff and resident physicians volunteer their time during the school year, providing their services along the sidelines to treat any injuries that may occur during games. The Family Practice, Orthopedics and Emergency Medicine Departments at Scott and White all participate in the program, which serves 38 area schools spanning from Goldthwaite, San Saba and Bartlett to Rockdale, Cameron and Chilton, as well as the Central Texas Stampede hockey team.

"Residents are assigned schools for home games. In this area, we're usually covering both of the schools playing, so there's almost always a Scott and White physician at the games," said Sports Medicine Program Coordinator Ronald Scott, ATC, LAT., who travels three days a week during football season, visiting each school. "If a team goes into the playoffs, then that resident follows them as long as they're playing.

"It gives them good management skills on the sidelines," he said. "They get to see injuries first-hand, and the mechanics of the injuries. They learn to interact with the players, coaches and fans."

All the residents undergo an 8-10 week lecture series, put on by the senior staff before they begin working games, Mr. Scott said. The lecture series gives the residents an overview of sports medicine injuries, and shows them what to look for. At the end of the series, they're given a comprehensive exam.

Although participation in the program is mandatory for the residents, a significant number of senior staff physicians stay heavily involved as well, mainly because they enjoy what they do.

"I have always been involved with sports. I played high school football, even considered (briefly) becoming a coach," said Dr. Glen Couchman, who serves Salado. "I enjoy the kids, the coaches and the games themselves.

"It is a good way for me to relate to my own kids (and them to relate to me) who are involved in competitive sports," he said. "As a family practice doctor, I like seeing young people in my practice. I think that being a team doctor encourages kids to come to me as a physician, even when they have a non-sports related medical problem."

The love of sports is a common theme among sideline physicians. Most played in the past, and those who didn't are avid fans, which makes their involvement that much more fulfilling.

"A lot of our people have played high school sports themselves," said Dr. George Bartels, who covers Belton High, the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor and the Central Texas Stampede. "In my opinion, you get a much better perspective on the game from the sidelines rather than you do in the stands. I'd much rather be walking around on the sidelines, where the action is."

"First of all, I enjoy sports, I like being at games. It also gives you a sense of community service," said Dr. Michael Averitt, who devotes his time to Killeen High. "I enjoy the people I work with. It's wonderful to see young, healthy people that are motivated to get better. That's opposed to what you often see in regular patients, where they're suffering from conditions you can't do anything for, or people who like to be hurt and don't want to get better."

"Athletes are fun to treat," he said. Those are sentiments Dr. Bartels strongly echoes. "We like the athlete as a patient. They're generally pretty healthy, and are motivated to get better," Dr. Bartels said. "For the most part, in our regular practice we see a lot of people who are sick and don't really want to get better, but with an athlete you can actually see them get better. It makes you feel good to see those short-term gains.

"You get to know the players as individuals. You follow them year after year," he said. "You develop a camaraderie with coaches. A lot of times they'll come to you because they appreciate what you've done, and will see you for other kinds of problems."

Being a sideline doctor for football, volleyball, basketball or soccer isn't all limelight and glory. It is a lot of work, and demands that a large amount of time. Almost all the time volunteered is after-hours, and often extends well past the end of the game.

"You get calls and field questions during the day, the evenings and weekend from people who get hurt said Dr. Bartels. "You've got to enjoy sports, and be a fan. Most of us follow these teams in the papers. I think that's what really makes it interesting. If not, then it's just work."

"We don't get a whole lot of press about it. Sometime you don't get many pats on the back," he said. "You don't often hear 'We're glad you're out here.' We're taken for granted sometime, so that can be a downside."

The sports medicine volunteer program has grown dramatically since it was expanded to include area schools in 1991 by Dr. Bill Hamilton. It now includes a popular Sports Medicine Clinic on Saturday mornings during football season that is heavily utilized by area schools.

"That allows us to address Thursday and Friday injuries, and advise them on their status" said Mr. Scott. "We've done that since 1989, and the Physical Therapy Department is involved. It's a good service to the surrounding communities."

"Our program has expanded a lot since 1991, but it probably isn't going to grow much anymore" he said. "We're already covering all the schools around our Regional Clinics. Geographically, we've gone out about as far as we can go."

A good breakfast equals better ability to learn

Hunger hinders school performance

Making sure children eat breakfast might help them perform better in school.

"Children who eat breakfast have been shown to get higher grades and are less likely to be described as depressed, anxious, fidgety, or irritable by parents and teachers," says Dr. Debby Demory-Luce, a registered dietitian with the USDA/ARS Children's Nutrition Research Center. They also think faster and more clearly, concentrate better, suffer less fatigue, and are less likely to end up in the nurse's office complaining of tummy aches and dizziness.

Breakfast doesn't have to be boring or time-consuming to be nutritious, Demory-Luce says. Even a slice of cold pizza and a glass of 100 percent fruit juice, a carton of low-fat yogurt and an orange, or a slice of toast with peanut butter and a glass of low-fat milk provide much of the protein, vitamins, minerals, and energy that school children need. She also suggests that busy parents check to see if their children's schools offers a breakfast program.

"Eating breakfast needs to be as much of a priority for school children as doing their homework," she said.

Forget fad diets when watching your weight

Successful weight watchers know the real secret to long-term success isn't found in a fad diet.

"Fad diets that are restrictive are not effective for weight management," said Dr. Ken Goodrick, assistant professor of medicine at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

In fact, consciously eating less than you want and skipping meals can sabotage weight loss efforts. Studies report that in spite of efforts to maintain weight loss, people often gain back the pounds they shed and might even add a few more.

Fad diets like those advocating non-fat or high-protein foods or low-calorie liquids can deprive the body of important nutrients needed for good health.

To help reach and maintain a healthy weight,

Goodrick suggests avoiding high-fat, fried foods, exercising at least five hours a week and following the USDA's Food Guide Pyramid.

"People who successfully lose weight and keep it off are careful about what they eat without depriving themselves," he added. "They recognize that eating and exercise can be enjoyable and, that along with good sleep, will improve feelings of energy as well as control weight."

'Soy' many easy ways to lower your cholesterol

Americans who find tofu a turn-off might find that adding cholesterol-lowering soy protein to their diet is easier, and tastier, than they thought.

"Although tofu is the most commonly recognized soy food, there are others that are fairly similar to foods Americans already eat," said Dr. William Wong, a scientist with the USDA/ARS Children's Nutrition Research Center in Houston who has studied the cholesterol-lowering benefits of soy.

To get the most out of soy protein, consume four servings of soy-rich foods each day, cut back on animal protein and follow a heart-healthy diet. "Look for soy foods with at least 6.25 grams of soy protein per serving," said Wong, a professor of pediatrics at Baylor College of Medicine.

According to Wong, substituting soy protein for animal protein is nutritionally sound because, unlike other plant proteins, soy protein contains all the essential protein building blocks needed by humans.

If tofu's not for you, Wong suggests looking for soy "butter," which is similar to peanut butter; calcium-fortified soy milk to use in place of cow's milk; crunchy soy "nuts" for tasty nibbling; flavored, ready-to-use textured vegetable protein (TVP or TSP) for use in place of ground meat and burgers; and canned soybeans to toss in soups and salads.

"Adding a healthy amount of soy to your diet doesn't have to be difficult, and it can be delicious and fun," he said.

Attention Deficit Disorder and learning disability workshops Oct. 4-6

Hidden Clues Along the Learning Trail" is a workshop designed for parents, educators, and others working with youth who desire greater understanding and practical help for students coping with the challenges of attention deficit disorder and/or a learning difficulty. Behavioral Health Institute's training team of Dr. Tricia Riley, Dr. Tamara Kilgore and Ms. Karen Rollins provide insight and information praised by previous participants as invaluable training for those struggling to help learning disabled children at home, in the classroom and in the community.

The three-day series is scheduled for 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Oct. 4-6 at the Education Service Center, Region 12. The Education Service Center is located at 2101 W. Loop 340 in Waco. Although the third

Tames teaches basic oil painting

Jesse Tames, award winning artist and art teacher, will be the instructor for a class in basic oil painting with texture/pallet knife techniques at the Cultural Activities Center. Classes will be held Thursdays from 7-9 p.m. Oct. 7-30 and Saturdays 9 a.m.-noon in the Downstairs Art Room of the CAC.

A native Texan from Temple, Jesse decided to devote himself to art on a full-time basis back in 1991. His art exhibitions have included one man shows at the Smith Art Gallery at Scott and White Hospital and Sorge's Italian Restaurant in Temple. His work has also been shown at the Office of the State Auditor in Austin, the Northern Arizona University Art Museum in Flagstaff, AZ and at Temple College.

"I view art as a matter of solving problems in color and composition - making the ordinary, extraordinary," commented Tames. "Working primarily in oil, I believe it matters not if the finished product is realistic or abstract. As an artist...the need to continue to search for new means of expression is primary."

"We are very excited to welcome Jesse back to the CAC roster of teaching visual artists," offered Marilyn Ritchie, CAC Visual Arts Director. "Jesse is a wonderful and talented instructor. This is the perfect beginning class for adults who have an interest in stretching their talents to this medium." Cost for the class is $65 per person plus supplies. A supply list is available from the Cultural Activities Center.

Reservations are limited to 15 students. For more information about the Oil Painting Class or any of the other programs and activities at 254/773-9926 or check out their website at www.CACarts.org.

Hellman's Watch on the Rhine presented by Southwestern

The Southwestern University School of Fine Arts and the Department of Theatre presents Watch on the Rhine, a play by acclaimed American playwright Lillian Hellman, Sept. 23-25 and Sept. 30-Oct. 2 at 8 p.m. and October 3 at 2 p.m. in the Jesse H. and Mary Gibbs Jones Theater on the Southwestern University campus.

Watch on the Rhine focuses on Kurt Muller, a German man involved in the anti-Nazi resistance movement that was actively fighting Hitler's fascism in the years leading up to World War II. Together with his wife, Sara, and their three children, Muller, who suffered torture and injury doing this dangerous work, seeks respite and refuge at the home of Sara's family in the United States. When they arrive, they discover that Sara's mother and brother are also providing refuge to a Romanian Count, who has questionable political alliances, and his wife. Circumstances become complicated and life threatening when the tensions of a world at war invade a once peaceful household. Told with riveting suspense, eloquence, and emotion, Watch on the Rhine is a compelling tribute to those men and women who risked their lives to prevent the spread of fascism in Europe. The play testifies to the naivete of an America that during the time between two world wars believed it could safely isolate itself from devastating events in the world beyond its borders.

Watch on the Rhine is being directed by Kathleen Fanny (Mariko Buser) is troubled by her son-in-law's (Josh Batenhorst) role as an anti-fascist in Southwestern University's Department of Theater production of Lillian Hellman's Watch on the Rhine directed by Dr. Kathleen Juhl, to be presented on the campus of Georgetown's Southwestern University Sept. 23-25 and Sept. 30-October 2 at 8 p.m., and Oct. 3 at 2 p.m.. All performances are in the Jesse H. and Mary Gibbs Jones Theater.

Juhl, Associate Professor and Acting Chair of the Department of Theatre at Southwestern. Assistant Professor John Ore is designing the lighting and sound. Southwestern junior, Meg Sloan is serving as Assistant Sound Designer. Assistant Professor Dennis Beck, with the help of Maria Beach, graduate student in UT's Department of Theatre and Dance, is serving as Dramaturg. Among others, the cast includes junior theatre students Josh Batenhorst, Franceanna Campagna, Mariko Buser, and Lawrence Kern. Three young actors from the Georgetown Community - Jesse Cordes Selbin, Zac Dixon, and Taylor Davis - will also be performing. For more information or reservations, please call the Box Office at 512/863-1378 Monday through Friday from 1-5 p.m.

Woodstack '99 benefits Habitat for Humanity Housing projects

The Belton/Temple Habitat for Humanity will host "Woodstack '99", a day of music, food, and fun in the field behind Meadow Oaks Baptist Church on the corner of Thorton Lane and 57th Street in Temple, Oct. 23.

Bands from around central Texas will entertain on the main stage performing everything from rock to jazz to country music. Featured artists include Unveiled, Hearts of Fire, Bioya, Red Handed, Downtime, and 5 of 6. The first band will be at 10 a.m., and festivities will continue until dark.

A variety of food and drink booths will be on-hand to keep you refreshed throughout the day. The namesake for Woodstack

'99 is a 2x4 booth, where attendees can purchase 2x4 boards, personalize them with their name and an inspirational message, then donate them back to Habitat for use in the next house we build.

Tickets will be $5 in advance, or $6 at the gate on the day of the event. Children under the age of nine will be admitted free. Tickets are good for all day admission. Watch the local media for locations to buy tickets in advance.

All proceeds go to benefit the Belton/Temple Habitat for Humanity.

In the event of rain or inclement weather, the festivities will move to the auditorium at Temple College.

The arts and crafts show is a major fund-raiser for Chisholm Trail Chorus, a non-profit organization of more than 50 women who share a love of music and devote much of their time to the craft of singing unaccompanied four-part harmony, barbershop style. Chorus members live in 15 Central Texas communities between Austin and Waco and rehearse weekly at the Cultural Activities Center in Temple. The chorus' annual concert will be held 7 p.m. Oct. 23 at the CAC. The theme is "Salute!--A Musical Tribute To Our Nation's Military."

The beginning of the school year is a time when many children start re-negotiating their allowances with their parents. For many families that means arguments about what it costs to "keep up" with the other kids, or what chores merit an increased allowance.

But the question of allowances for teenagers and young children is not simply a matter of money. It is a matter of teaching your children some of the money management skills they will need as adults.

Extension specialists who work in the area of family financial management suggest the following as good general practices for handling your children's allowance so they'll learn money management skills.

* An allowance should meet the child's actual needs and if your budget allows, also provide for a few personal desires, some money to share and some to save.

* Involve your children in determining their allowance needs by using a simple budget plan which includes both fixed and variable expenses, income sources and savings.

* Give teenagers the opportunity to earn some of their money, but you should not give them financial rewards for good behavior, grades or routine family chores. Your children's cooperation should not be put on a cash basis. However, you can work out a business arrangement so that they can earn some money by doing extra household work.

* Don't replace 'lost' money your child intended for personal spending. If your children must borrow money from you, let them borrow against their allowances. This will teach them that it costs extra money to borrow and that the amount borrowed (plus interest) must be paid from future allowances.

* As teenagers increase their earnings from jobs outside the home, it may become appropriate to adjust or discontinue allowances, depending upon their needs.

* Encourage your child to save for long-range goals like Christmas gifts, big purchases, travel and college expenses. Encourage them to save first not last and to do so on a regular basis.

* Help your teenager open a savings or checking account and learn the kinds, costs, purposes and limits of credit.

Extension programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, national origin or disability.

UMHB Golf Tournament Sept. 27

Dr. Jerry G. Bawcom, President of the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor, will host the 19th Annual President's and Pastor's Golf Tournament on Sept. 27 at the Leon Valley Golf Course in Belton.

The golf tournament is open to the public at a cost of $35 which covers green fees, cart rental, on-course refreshments, and a steak dinner. Trophies will be awarded for winners and special categories.

The tournament is not a fundraiser, it is for fun and fellowship. The format will be 18 holes, select shot by four member teams, in a "Florida Scramble" which is low scoring team declared the winner.

Each year the university has a large number of people from the local community participate in the tournament. According to Dr. Stephen V. Wyrick, Chair of the UMHB Religion Department, the university hopes to have 80 involved this year.

"We see this as a great time of fellowship and leisure for our friends in the community and we hope to have more people than ever in this year's tournament," said Dr. Wyrick.

Jo Bird only flies in a vehicle

like that.

Jo Bird has been stopped for speeding in Rockdale. She lives three miles from the city limits and has a tendency to drive a little fast when she goes to town. Her husband, Jack, on the other hand, is a slow driver. "He's a real menace," says Jo. "He does not believe in turn signals."

Another time they were creeping along and Jo was thinking that someone was going to crash into them from behind. "I was afraid one of those duellies was gonna cream us and knock us all the way to California."

One day Jo and Jack were in town in Jack's pickup. That's sort of a rare thing because Jo usually does not do pickups, especially those duellies, the ones that have four wheels in the rear and look like if they run over something in the street they'll turn around; come back and eat it. "Those things will run you right over," says Jo. One did and totaled her car. Anyway, she and Jack were doing some errands and Jack was driving real slow in downtown Rockdale. Jo leaned over and asked her husband, "Hon, who we sneakin' up on?"

Jo said, "I think we've got a problem over here, Hon."

Jack slowed down even more and asked Jo what she meant.

Jo told him, "We've got a dog running along wettin' on the wheel."

When Jo was growing up, her dad used to call her Dude. She was the oldest of six children in the family. "One time I was trying to tell three of the younger kids they would get hurt if they jumped off a chicken house on our property. That thing was about six feet tall, about as tall as my daddy, who built the thing."

"Those kids were just determined that they were gonna climb up on that chicken house and jump

Antiques...Antiques... & More Antiques

Q: I bought a humidor at an auction because I liked its looks. It was made about the turn of the century from wood that is intricately and decoratively carved. The auctioneer call it "fretwork" and said it was made from a pattern. Was fretwork once a popular craft?

A: Between 1880-1920, a pierced scrollwork known as "fretwork" was a widespread hobby. Stores that sold scroll saws, blades, and attachments also sold fretwork patterns. Hobbyists and school children used the patterns to carve scrolled designs from thin pieces of wood that were made into small decorative items such as clocks, knickknacks shelves and humidors.

Q: Two appraisers have looked at my mother's antique German doll. They disagree about who made it. One said the mark on the doll's head belongs to Simon & Halibig. The other said it belongs to Schoenau & Hoffmeister. The mark is made up of the initials S and H on either side of a five-pointed star with the initials PB inside. Underneath is the year 1923 and the word "Germany."

A: The mark on the doll's head belongs to Schoenau & Hoffmeister. The "PB" inside the star stands for Porzellanfabrik Burggrub, the factory founded in 1901 by Arthur Schoenau and Carl Hoffmeister to make bisque heads for their own dolls and for dolls made for other manufacturers.

Schoenau & Hoffmeister closed in 1953.

TSTC offers free seminar on company's complying with environmental regulations

Company representatives that need to learn about complying with environmental regulations can learn about the subject from those that know it best at a free seminar on Oct. 20 at Texas State Technical College (TSTC).

TSTC's Environmental Health & Safety Technology department and environmental company Terracon/HBC Inc. will present the seminar (along with a free lunch for registered participants) from 9 a.m.-3 p.m., in the TSTC Student Services Center.

Representatives from Terracon and the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission's (TNRCC) Small Business Assistance Program and Compliance & Enforcement Division will provide the latest updates on basic environmental regulations affecting business and industry.

The seminar will cover what business people will experience when the TNRCC inspects their facilities. It will also cover resources available to help individuals meet environmental compliance obligations. Speakers will discuss topics such as air compliance, emergency response spill reporting, storm water (inspection, sampling, testing and pollution prevention planning), waste characterization/hazard determination and Sara Title III Tier Reporting.

Those attending will meet a portion of federal personnel training requirements for hazardous waste generators and those seeking storm water permits. Participants can also earn one Continuing Education Unit (CEU), equal to one-fourth of a credit toward earning or maintaining accreditation as a Certified Hazardous Materials Manager.

Seminar registration is due by Oct. 11. For more information, or to register, write to Jerry Atlas, Environmental Health & Safety Technology Department, Texas State Technical College, 3801 Campus Drive, Waco, TX, 76705. You can also call (254) 867-3438 or tollfree (800) 792-8784, ext. 3438.

"We expect a wide variety of professionals from across the state to take advantage of this opportunity. Providing this seminar is just another way TSTC is working to fulfill the state's need for environmental training. We are always looking for ways to maintain active industry ties as we train tomorrow's environmental and safety professionals," EHS Instructor Jerry Atlas said.

TSTC's Environmental Health & Safety Technology (EHS) department offers an intense curriculum with the opportunity for students to choose from three specializations in Environmental Compliance, Health Physics and Safety Compliance. The demand for graduates, in any of TSTC's Environmental Health & Safety programs, far exceeds the supply of qualified EHS technicians, making graduates a hot commodity for employers.

Texas State Technical College in Waco is part of the only state-supported technical college system in Texas. Other campuses are located in Harlingen, Marshall and Sweetwater. With more than 40 instructional programs in critical and emerging technologies, TSTC is preparing a workforce to meet the demands of industries and businesses. For more information, visit TSTC on the World Wide Web at www.tstc.edu or call (254) 867-3371 or toll-free (800) 792-8784.

"I'm supposed to be Mom's smartest kid, see. I got up there and jumped off to show those three kids that it really would hurt them. And Boy, was I right. Next time I woke up I was looking up into three little bitty faces looking down at me, terrified because they thought they had killed me. That jump knocked me out colder than a cucumber."

She never had any trouble about that chicken house again.

Jo encourages visitors to call before they come to see her. If you drive out to see her without warning, she's liable to come to the door in her gown, robe, woolly socks and Big Bird T-shirt. "No make-up, no hair-do and no personality," says Jo. "I've even had people jump back, look startled and say, 'Jo, is that you?' Who do they expect? Liz Taylor?"

Jo is fun. She laughs a lot. Her sense of humor is world class. She is an excellent story-teller in describing her everyday experiences. She wants her tombstone to read "She had a good time." Seems fitting.
