Chamber sets goals, adopts budget

by John Eubanks

Ten goals for 1997 were among several items approved by the Salado Chamber of Commerce's board of directors Jan. 16 during its first meeting of the year.

The hour-long meeting at the Civic Center was rescheduled from Jan. 13 because of icy weather.

The goals approved, with minor changes, by the board members present were proposed during two workshops in December led by new president Tim Fleischer.

One of the goals was to honor the volunteers of the community with an annual function and honor a single volunteer. But after some discussion, the board decided not to single out a volunteer.

Board member David Matthews brought up the concern about honoring just one volunteer.

Fellow board member Lloyd Parks concurred. "Having a mixer to honor volunteers as a whole is a great idea," he said. "It's awful hard to name one volunteer."

The board also approved the proposed 1997 budget that calls for $108,100 in expenses and a similar amount of income. The Art Fair in August will provide the biggest amount of expected income, $73,000 (minus $10,000 in expenses for a net total of $63,000).

The biggest portion of the expenses is $20,000 for salaries. Another $15,000 is allotted to Pace Pace for maintenance and improvement.

The board also approved the treasurer's report from Eldon Miller, who said the year-end treasury balance... was $12,607.85 -- not including two certificates of deposit. That amount will be added to the next report, Miller told the board.

Parks updated the board on the Chamber's annual banquet Jan. 25 at the school cafeteria. He said only 52 tickets had been sold as of the morning of Jan. 16. Normally, 180 would attend, "so we're running real short," he said.

The number of people attending must be known by Jan. 23 so that the proper amount of food can be ordered. He requested that each board member take 10 tickets and attempt to sell them before the deadline.

The guest speaker at the banquet is Paula Brown, a national keynote speaker who will speak on "The Quality Community."

Parks said Gen. Thomas

Schwarz, III Corps and Fort Hood commander, is expected to attend the banquet.

Parks, the chamber's military liaison, said the Army post is planning a Fort Hood-Salado Day sometime in the spring. Plans call for Hood officials to provide buses for a tour of the post.

Parks also updated the board on the expansion of the Civic Center parking lot. He said the project, which was expected to be completed by Jan. 1, has been delayed because of adverse weather.

"We hope to have the parking lot finished as soon as possible," he said.

In other matters, the board approved chairpersons for the following committees: Quilt show (Mary Lynn Totty), Environments (Bill Neinast) and Fam-

It's time to get down to business as usual now that partying's over

Federal lawmakers have hopefully recovered from the President's Inaugural activities and are now in the process of putting the Gingrich matter behind them so work can begin on matters of greater importance like balancing the budget; reforming the mess we call our money-tainted-election-system; securing the social security program including medicare and medicaid and a host of other national problems that occasionally pester our niggling political class while keeping the rest of us awake at night with worry.

The Texas Legislature was not as deeply involved in partying as they kicked off their new session last week since statewide elected officials have two more years before they celebrate their reelection or homegoing as the case may be.

What is currently going on in Austin is the see-saw battle over school property tax reform on the one hand and a need for more education dollars on the other.

How this plays out will determine to a large extent the success or failure of George The Younger and his expected bid for a second term as Governor.

And don't discount the talk gushing forth from GOP mainliners that our Guv is being considered at least for the number two slot in their next

Off the Record

by Ken Clapp

run for the White House.

A lot therefore rides on how well things go during the current session of the Legislature.

And while we are watching how the governor fares with his programs, keep an eye on Democrat John Sharp who continues to salivate at the very thought of being the head man at the Mansion.

He can do a lot of mischief with Bush's programs by the simple expedient of officially proclaiming that money needed by the Guv is not available - which legally kills off-budget spending bills and is the heavy political tool used by many sneaky higher-office-seeking-Comptrollers.

Lot to watch during the 140 days of the 75th session in Austin as well as the seemingly endless, and often mindless, 105th Congressional foofaraw.

CONSTITUTION REWRITE?

House Joint Resolution 29, the current brainchild of Representative Ron Wilson (D-Houston), is perhaps the most politically explosive matter to come before the Texas House in many a year.

Simply put, the resolution which actually calls for another amendment to the Texas Constitution and if passed by a two thirds majority in both houses and later approved by voters, would set up a Constitutional Convention in January 2000, composed of members of the House and Senate sitting as delegates for the purpose of rewriting the current document.

Today's State Constitution was written after reconstruction in 1876 and clearly set up a weak executive and legislative form of government. This was in reaction to the carpet-bag rule following the Civil War and has worked fairly well since.

Most items of importance to citizens have to come before them as an amendment to the Constitution through a popular vote.

This referendum plan has been used well over 500 times since 1876, with 364 approvals and 168 turn-downs.

1974 Convention

Governor Dolph Briscoe, serving in his first term after winning a bitter political battle over Ben Barnes, Preston Smith and Sissy Farenthold in 1972, was, throughout 1973, supportive of the plans being made during his first term to create a new constitution for the State.

Voters had approved in 1972, the setting up of a Constitutional Revision Convention to be held in 1974 with lawmakers sitting as delegates.

During the 1974 convention, made up of super-wrangling legislators, the Governor's interest faded despite the fact the new plan would have been given greater power to the chief executive.

What really worried Briscoe was the creation of annual legislative sessions as compared to our current biennial gatherings and deep-sixing the "Pay as You Go" requirement in our current document.

This all important item in our State Constitution forbids See Record, Page 3A deficit spending which is something our federal cousins are currently looking at through their balanced budget amendment plans.

Briscoe went on to win reelection in November 1974, by a whopping victory margin of nearly 70 percent.

The next year the proposed constitution went to the people for approval with Governor Briscoe leading the fight to kill the new plan.

The Guv used information he had tapped into during the '74 campaign to fight the revised constitution.

He created such a firestorm of protest over the new constitution that it went down in flames by a three to one margin.

Briscoe was ably aided and abetted by his new best friend Bob Bullock who was then holding down the Comptroller's Fortress.

Briscoe also created a slew of political enemies including one John Hill who was serving as Attorney General at the time and who loved the proposed state law system that would have given more power to the Governor - a position he yearned for.

Hill went on in 1978 to defeat Briscoe in the first primary and was in turn beaten like a drum by Republican Bill Clements.

Change Not Imminent

There is great doubt that a convention composed of today's legislators would do any better than was accomplished in 1974. In fact with the unabashed desire for unlimited spending power by many of today's lawmakers there is every chance that the new plan would be a disaster.

In any event, chances are slim-to-none that two thirds of the current legislators will vote to convene a Constitutional Convention especially without the full fledged support of their leaders.

Current House Speaker Pete

Process begins in search for new AD, football coach

Salado High School Principal Sammy Edwards accepted 19 applications for the High School Athletic Director and Head Football Coach position. The deadline for accepting applications was Jan. 20.

Edwards will appoint a committee composed of five members of the Site Based Decision Making Committee (SBDMC) to interview the top applicants for the position.

"The number of interviews the committee will conduct will be based on the quality of the applicants we have re-

Laney and Lt. Governor Bullock were around during the last attempt to change our basic laws-of-the-State and Governor Bush would not care to see a failed debacle on his second term record, and fail it would because the voting public would see through the subterfuge of power grabbing and spending by the legislature in a Texarkana second.

Besides it is more comforting for citizens to know their current Constitution carries very real restraints especially on the authority given to their Governor and Legislators.

VEEP GORE NOT A RAILROADER

Local railroad enthusiast Fred Springer receives a number of train periodicals each month, one of which recently carried a delightful report on a fellow trainman's letter to Vice President Al Gore and the Veep's strange reply.

Seems the writer was interested in having Gore intervene in Amtrack's decision to kill off the famous north-south Texas passenger train - "The Texas Eagle".

This great train that runs from San Antonio to Chicago is now down to three trips a week and reportedly losing passengers and money.

Temple was one of the many stops for the once popular streamliner that has fallen on hard times in recent years.

Texas railroad buffs as well as others who still like to ride the rails were outraged and saddened to learn that the "Eagle" was about to be phased out by Amtrack officials. They immediately went about putting the arm on federal elected officials including our congressional delegation, the President and the Veep.

Vice President Gore's office promptly responded to the aforementioned letter but in a weird sort of way. Gore noted that he was very much opposed to killing off the "Texas Eagle" because he ceived," Edwards said, adding that all Salado ISD employees who applied for the position will be given an interview.

Edwards said she expects interviews to begin in early February.

"After conducting interviews, the committee will come back with a recommendation to me," Edwards said, adding that she will make her recommendation to the board.

Edwards said that she did not know if a recommendation would be made to the board at its March meeting.

was an active environmentalist and conservationalist and certainly wanted to do all in his power to keep our national bird from extinction!

No doubt some staffer confused the "Texas Eagle" train with our symbolic American bald eagle (Halizetus Leucocephalus) and produced a letter that has to go into the annals of train history with a grin and chuckle.

Luckily Gore's office did not confuse the request with the golfing term "eagle" or the hapless author of the simple request for help would have received an autographed picture of Tiger Woods!

ily Festival (co-chairs Rita Brown and Melanie Kirchmeier).

Bea Stewart gave a committee report on the antique show, which will be moved to Pace Park from the Civic Center. The date is May 3-4. Food booths are expected to be available.

The Chamber's Ambassadors are planning back-to-back ribbon-cuttings the morning of Feb. 7: 9 a.m. at Salado Medical Clinic in Salado Plaza and 9:30 a.m. at Salado Haus on Main Street.

Suzanne Petro said the Chamber's Business Association is working on a letter informing non-Chamber businesses of the benefits of joining the Chamber. The letters will be hand-delivered to each business.

Parks also said it's important to have a welcome wagon for new residents, adding that it was tried in the past but didn't last.

In other business, the board after much discussion, decided not to open up the restrooms at Pace Park on weekends during daylight hours.

Among the 10 goals approved by the board was to improve the appearance of Pace Park with the help of local builders, who would do such things as build picnic tables.

"In return we would put a brass plaque on the table saying this was donated by such and such business," Fleischer said.

"And we really need more trees in the park," Ellis added.

Another goal of the Chamber is to improve the appearance of the village by holding spring and fall cleanups in conjunction with other groups.

"What are we going to clean up?" one director asked.

"We're going to clean up the town," Fleischer replied.

The aforementioned goals approved by the board were as follows:

1. Improve the public image of the Chamber of Commerce by better informing the village of the positive role the Chamber plays in the community.

2. Improve the relationship among the various members of the Chamber with periodic Chamber mixers and other activities.

3. Honor the volunteers of the community with an annual function.

4. Increase membership in the Chamber by doing the following: A. Compose and present a newcomers welcoming package to new residents; B. Approach new businesses and old businesses which are not members to join the Chamber; C. Mail a letter to every household and box in Salado explaining the importance of joining the Chamber.

5. Develop a cohesive marketing plan for the village of Salado, complementing the work of the Special Events and Visitor Promotion Committee and Salado Business Association.

6. Improve the appearance of Pace Park with the help of local builders.

7. Improve the appearance of the village with Spring and Fall Cleanups, coordinating and working with other groups in the community.

8. Expand the scope of the Citizens on Patrol committee with a professional coordinator.

9. Improve our Chamber fund-raisers through advertising and marketing.

10. Continue to expand our support and favorable relationship with other organizations and foundations.

New Alzheimer's drug helps many who suffer

Aricept, a new drug approved for Alzheimer's disease, improves the symptoms and daily functioning of many patients.

"In the more than 900 mild to moderate Alzheimer's patients studied nationwide, 80 percent showed improvement of didn't get any worse," said Dr. Rachele Doody, clinical director of the Alzheimer's Disease Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Aricept was tested for five years in clinical trials involving more than 30 centers in the United States. Approved by the Food and Drug Administration in late November '96, it is expected to be available in most pharmacies by mid-Jan. or early Feb.

Doctors measured Aricept's effectiveness by using standard Alzheimer's memory evaluation tests and by interviewing patients and caregivers to assess changes in daily functioning.

"With the drug, we saw patients who became more attentive to their surroundings or who picked up on old routines they had forgotten," said Doody, who lead several clinical trials at Baylor.

The drug contains an enzyme that blocks the breakdown of acetylcholine, a neurotransmitter in the brain.

"Acetylcholine is associated with memory and learning and is deficient in Alzheimer's patients," she said. "Blocking the breakdown helps patients keep more acetylcholine in the brain."

The medication is taken once a day and has few side effects.

"Less than 10 percent of all the patients studied had to stop taking it because of side effects," Doody said. "Mild side effects include nausea, diarrhea and vomiting that often went away on their own."

While it cannot stop the progression or make a patient return to normal, Doody feels the treatment will be beneficial to a great number of patients.

"With the improvement of symptoms or just the slowing of decline, Aricept brings an improved outlook for many patients and their families," she said. "This is not a cure, but it may provide relief while we await a definitive treatment for Alzheimer's."

TABLEROCK HISTORY

Tablerock Festival of Salado is named for a large limestone monolith by Salado Creek. Tablerock, once level, was first a meeting place for Native Americans. In the 1800's it attracted young Salado College students. A flood in 1921 undermined the college students trysting spot causing it to tilt. Today, Tablerock Amphitheater continues to serve as a Salado meeting place.

Youth writes to thank those who responded to bus wreck

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the people of Salado, and others that responded to the bus wreck on Jan 18, near the Dairy Queen.

I happened to be a passenger on the bus that was hit that afternoon and would just like to give my thanks to all those who turned out to help. First I'd like to thank the people that came to the hospital to check on how I was doing. They were Mr. Erwin, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Grimm and Sonny Berry. Also thanks go to Mrs. Wells for staying at my side through the whole ordeal. Tigger Day for keeping me calm and making sure I'd be alright; Sonny Berry for taking care of my sister and bringing her to the hospital so she could be with me. Also I'd like to thank Mr. Oldham for taking the responsibility of driving our bus, and I still have complete trust and confidence in him. I also hope he continues to drive my bus because I'd rather have no one else. Although my greatest thanks goes to God.

Eagles lose to Rogers on the road for first district loss of the season

by John Eubanks

The Salado Eagles basketball team dropped a 73-53 decision to the Rogers Eagles Jan. 17 for their first district loss of the season.

The road loss gave the hometown Eagles a season record of 14-8 and a district mark of 4-1 entering their Jan. 21 home game against Holland. That will be followed by a Jan. 24 game at Lago Vista that starts the second half of district play.

The Rogers game was a battle between two teams unbeaten in district. Salado will get another crack at Rogers Feb. 11 at home in the second-to-last district game.

Asked to assess the game, coach Alan Haire said, "They were stronger than us inside, and we turned the ball over."

Rogers outscored the locals 29-19 in the fourth period after leading 44-34 after three quarters of play. The opposition hit 22 of 28 free throws on its home court, including 14 of 17 in that final period. Salado hit 10 of 14 for the game.

with 22 points, nine on 3-pointers. Chris Michna added nine points.

A Jan. 14 non-district game with Meridian was cancelled because of icy weather.

JUNIOR VARSITY

The JV Eagles captured the Holland JV Tournament Jan. 18, in what coach Randy Fewell called the team's best performance this season.

The JV Eagles, 10-8 on the season, opened with a 57-36 win over Thrall and then beat Jarrell 44-34 in the title game.

Salado's 34-point second half against Thrall nearly matched the opposition's total for the game. Ryan Gillespie led the Eagles with 10 points. Josh Clements added nine.

Salado then beat Jarrell, despite hitting just 10 of 32 free throws. Gillespie had 12 points, and Clements added 11.

The JV Eagles were coming off a 48-41 loss to Rogers, despite an incredible 26-point fourth period. The boys had scored but two points in the third period and 13 in the entire first half.

"That fourth period carried over to Saturday (at the Holland tournament)," coach Fewell said.

Ryan Buckley scored 10 against Rogers. Gillespie added nine.

Lady Eagles beat Rogers, get 20th win for the season

by John Eubanks

The Salado Lady Eagles basketball team opened the second half of district play Jan. 17 with a 45-29 road win over the Rogers Lady Eagles.

The win gave the girls a season record of 20-4 and kept them undefeated in district play with a 7-0 mark.

They entered a Jan. 21 home game with Holland two wins away from matching last season's 22 victories. The Holland game will be followed by four more district games, including a Jan. 24 contest at Lago Vista.

The Lady Eagles had opened the first-round of district play Dec. 3 with a 14-point win over Rogers. The recent 19-point victory gave Salado a sweep of Rogers, after splitting with them last season.

"We played well," coach Larry Salisbury said. "We had just 10 turnovers. That was the big deal."

Although Salado shot just

33 percent from the field (including four of 16 from 3-point range), Rogers managed to hit just 24 percent of its shots.

Salado led 11-8 after the first quarter, 21-12 at halftime and 39-20 after three quarters. Leah Davis scored all of her team-high 10 points in Salado's 18-point third period, after sitting out much of the first half because of foul trouble.

Liz Whiteley added nine points on 3-of-3 shooting from beyond the 3-point arc. Liz Boyd helped Salado rebound Rogers 40-26 by grabbing a team-high eight boards.

The Lady Eagles tuned up for the second half of district play with a 61-31 win over non-district foe Bartlett. The Lady Eagles committed a season-low eight turnovers en route to one of their biggest -- if not biggest -- margins of victory this season.

Although Bartlett did not press Salado, Salisbury said of the low number of turnovers, "That's still remarkable for us."

The Lady Eagles also had one of their lowest free-throw efforts of the season, hitting three of five charity shots.

Salado led 33-15 at halftime on the strength of an 18-point second period. Three Lady Eagles scored in double figures: Boyd (12), Chrystal Whiteley (11) and Katie Punchard (10). Boyd also had a team-high nine rebounds. The 6-2 Davis added a whopping six blocks to the effort.

JUNIOR VARSITY

The Lady Eagles' JV captured its second tournament title this season, winning the Holland Tournament Jan. 18.

Coach John Black's squad opened with a 51-44 win over Thrall on the strength of an 18-point fourth period. Salado had trailed 34-33 entering that final period.

Stacey Krueger led the way with 10 points. Sarah Summers had nine and Brooke Simpson had eight. Lauren Quirk and Sommer Wilson each added seven.

The girls hit better than 50 percent of their free throws (19 of 35), including seven of 11 in the crucial fourth period. Thrall hit four of nine for the game.

Salado then beat Holland 45-20 in the title game, scoring an incredible 25 points in the third period. Summer scored 10 of her game-high 13 points during that period. Quirk added nine points for the game.

- Dried Fruit: fructose and iron in fat-free form.
- Kiwi: vitamin C and fiber.
- Lentils: protein and complex carbohydrates
- Skim milk: Calcium and vitamin D.

Convicted felons got more than $425 million of health care last year

by John Sharp
 Texas Comptroller

Convicted felons sitting in our state prisons enjoyed more than $425 million worth of free health care last year, as 4.5 million law-abiding Texans had no health insurance at all.

Maybe it's about time for prisoners to begin paying some of the costs of their medical bills and give taxpayers a break.

My Disturbing the Peace report proposes just that—a $3 co-pay for each non-emergency visit an inmate makes to the prison doctor.

How will inmates who have no income afford the payments? Well, many of them aren't indigent at all. In fact, the average state prisoner's bank balance is $112. Last year, they spent $49 million in prison commissaries for snacks and other sundries, including more than $900,000 on Dr Pepper alone.

If an inmate is truly indigent, or if the prison doctor ouches for the medical necessity of the visit, he shouldn't have to pay.

Consider this, though: Texas inmates now make an average of 28 visits a year to the prison clinic. According to the Texas Medical Association, ordinary Texans see their primary physician only three times a year.

Why such high health care use-by prisoners? Some of it is due to the fact that they are often less healthy than other Texans. Many come from impoverished backgrounds with limited access to medical care.

Years of poor nutrition, alcohol or drug abuse, and general medical neglect have take their toll.

But there's another reason for such a high number of visits to the prison doctor. A recent study showed that many inmate requests for medical attention are simply a way for them to get out of their cells, while others are the result of mischief or an effort to take advantage of the free service for minor aches and pains.

The co-payment system I propose would cut down on waste and abuse in Texas' prison health care operations and save taxpayers money. But the real reason behind my recommendation isn't to extract less than $1 million a year from inmates; it's to discourage them from purposely misusing prison health care facilities.

Under my proposal, each time a prisoner with an average balance of $112 in his bank account visited the doctor needlessly, he would reduce his own net worth by nearly 3 percent. That might give him something to think about.

In Kansas, where they've already experimented with a version of this idea, the average number of inmate medical visits a year has dropped from 23 to nine. In Arizona, prisoner requests for needless medical visits have dropped 30 percent. New Hampshire's decline—as 32 percent in just the first three months of that state's co-payment program. That's where the real savings are.

At a time when prison sentences are longer and paroles fewer—and now that the largest prison buildup in Texas history is nearing completion—it's time to stop driving up the health insurance costs for law-abiding citizens by letting convicted criminals abuse their sick-call privileges.

Murder, robbery rates have dropped for five consecutive years in Texas

by Dan Morales
 Texas Attorney General

THE RATES of both murders and robberies has dropped for the past five consecutive years in Texas. In fact the state's 1995 annual crime survey shows the lowest murder rate since Texas started keeping state wide statistics, while the robbery rate is at a 10-year low. This is very good news.

We at the Office of the Attorney General feel that Texas' get-tough-on-crime agenda is working to deter violent crimes.

Strengthened law enforcement

The strategy to cut down on violent crime has a number of components. The first was to hire more police - nearly four officers for every 1,000 Texans this year, double the number of officers last year.

Improved policing techniques play a role, too. When local law enforcement agencies ask, we can aid them with technical support in several specialized areas of law enforcement. In addition, sexual assault prevention services are available though our office for training professionals and providing grants for local sexual assault crisis intervention agencies. We also serve as a source of information, publishing Criminal Law Update, a quarterly journal for law enforcement personnel.

While others may debate the causes of the decrease, we believe that a number of other factors have also helped lower the violent crime rate. These include:

Keeping weapons out of the hands of criminals.

Texas' weapons arrest rate decreased 20 percent in 1995 and dropped 15.2 percent the first half of 1996. Firearms are the murder weapon of choice in 70 percent of Texas murders. Convicted felons have been prevented from buying handguns and some of the most dangerous weapons have been taken off the market because of stringent federal gun-control measures.

Citizen involvement. The goal of community policing is to make all members of the community active allies of the police. One good example is TRIAD, the three-way agreement among sheriffs' offices, one or more police chiefs in a county and senior citizen leaders. The program is carried out through Seniors and Law Enforcement Together (SALT) advisory councils. Our Elder Law and Public Health Division plays an active role 'in putting together TRIADs all over the state.

Juvenile justice reforms.

Our office helped build a constructive coalition of diverse practitioners to craft meaningful and effective reform of the state's juvenile justice laws. These reforms have gained national attention for their innovation. They would not have been possible without the hard work of representatives from all sectors of the juvenile jus-

Painter Peggy Byars of Austin brings the warmth of Texas sunshine and the glow of great outdoors to the Scott & White Smith Art Gallery.

Her paintings and lithographs will be on display during the month of February.

The Smith Art Gallery is located on the first floor of Scott & White Memorial Hospital, next to McLane dining room. The gallery is open from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. Mon. through Fri.

Her trademark is the glow of her paintings, an illumination that give her work refreshing brilliance and a feeling of being alive. "Art should involve the total person," Byars said. "One should sense the smells, feel the warmth of the sun, enjoy the fresh and cold water, hear the wildlife."

Ms. Byars will be in the Scott & White Smith Art Gallery from 10 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. from Mon. Feb. 10-Feb. 14, to greet guests and to demonstrate her painting technique.

She has shown in major juried exhibitions at Laguna Gloria in Austin, Kermezaar in El Paso, Texas State Arts and Crafts Fair in Kerrville, Cottonwood Art Festival in Plano and Septemberfest in Midland. Last year, she was named a Top 10 artist and won first place at the Ruidoso Art Festival New Mexico. She is a member of the Texas Wild Bunch, a group of artists devoted to Western realism, and the Oil Painters of America.

She studied with many members of the Cowboy Artists of American Museum in Kerrville, the Texas School of Fine Arts and the Texas Landscape Workshop. She has also studied privately with Paul Strisik of Scottsdale, AZ., and Texas artists Victor Armstrong and Bob Wygant.

Ms. Byars' talent was discovered by her third-grade teacher who recruited her to paint a Christmas mural. Until age 40, she painted strictly for her own enjoyment. When her works started gaining notice through word of mouth, she began to pursue her artistic career. Her works are in galleries in Tennessee, Texas and New Mexico and through the Franklin Mint as limited edition collector plates. A gifted teacher, she conducts frequent workshops and classes for serious students. She has been invited to teach at the Mountain Majesty Workshop in Cloudcroft, N.M.

As she draws on her own sense of inner peace, her paintings endeavor to elicit a sense of tranquility as they draw the viewer into the landscapes. "I want my painting to be a celebration of life. I feel blessed that something that brings me so much joy in creation can bring so much enjoyment to others," she added. For more information about the Smith Art Gallery, call (817) 724-5424 or 724-3189.

tice system: the Judiciary, the probation system, law enforcement and the Texas Youth Commission. The cooperation of those officials and the commitment of legislators to a sound, thoughtful policy in this area produced a truly revolutionary response to juvenile crime. We worked closely with the Legislature in 1995 to reform the system. The tough, new reforms that lawmakers enacted took effect this year.

Crime now has consequences. Violent young criminals will be kept off the street thanks to the doubled capacity of our juvenile corrections facilities. The Juvenile Justice Alternative Education Program for disruptive school students helps keep truancy and dropout rates down. While there is little data available yet to evaluate the impact of these reforms on crime rates, I expect them to help win the war against juvenile crime.

Tougher sentencing laws. The state's tougher sentencing laws doubled prison time for violent criminals and mandated that they spend at least half of their sentences behind bars. Currently, those who use weapons in violent crimes serve an average of 80 percent of their sentences. About two-thirds of sexual offenders serve all of their sentences. Sufficient prison space. It is not enough to arrest and convict criminals. They must be put in prison. Since 1989, Texas has spent almost $2 billion on prison construction, tripling prison capacity. Texas' 135,000-bed prison system can run at or below 98 percent capacity with relatively minor construction until 2002. Last year, the county jails also had room to spare.

The strategy is working. More police on the street, tougher sentencing of convicted criminals and prisons with adequate capacity to hold them, fewer paroles, weapons bans and a watchful citizenry are working. Together, these measures are bringing crime rates in Texas down.

Winter weather can lead to signs of dangerous threat of hypothermia

Although snow is rare in the South, cold winter weather may consist of freezing rain, sleet, and ice, all of which can pose the potential dangerous health threat of "hypothermia."

HYPOTHERMIA

If the body's central (or core) temperature dips to or below 95 degrees F, a person's health may be affected. This condition is referred to medically as hypothermia. The normal body temperature for most people is 98.6 degrees F. When the body temperature drops to between 90 and 95 degrees F, a person is considered to be experiencing mild hypothermia, says Dr. Katherine M. Jew, a certified internal medicine physician and geriatrics specialist at the Scott & White Santa Fe Center General Internal Medicine Clinic in Temple. According to Dr. Jew, "If a person's body temperature dips to between 86 and 89 degrees F, moderate hypothermia is the term for the condition, and if the temperature falls to less than 86 degrees F, the person is in a severe hypothermic state."

Signs of hypothermia

In addition to a low body temperature, symptoms of hypothermia may include any combination of the following:

- Low body temperature
- Pale, puffy skin
- Low blood pressure (medically referred to as "hypotension")

- Slowed heart rate
- Shortness of breath
- Decreased alertness
- Decreased alertness and/or mental confusion
- Decreased reflexes and/or slowed speech
- Decreased pupil reactions (pupils in eyes not dilating appropriately)
- Decreased or increased urination

Heart rhythm problems (or "arrhythmias")

Aspiration (inhaling stomach contents into the lungs)

Low blood counts (decreased platelets and white blood counts)

Acidosis, or reduced alkalinity of the blood and body tissue

Cessation or stopping of breathing

A person in mild hypothermic state will still be able to shiver to increase his body heat production, says Dr. Jew. A person experiencing moderate hypothermia will no longer be able to generate enough body heat; his heart rate falls; shivering slows and muscles stiffen; mental alertness decreases; low blood pressure and heart arrhythmias occur; and breathing and coughing abilities decrease. A severely hypothermic person will appear stiff and cold, and he may even appear to be deceased. However, a person can recover from severe hypothermia if timely emergency care is received.

People at Increased Risk

People who are at increased risk for hypothermia are those who participate in outdoor activities, such as skiing, hiking, hunting, and camping. The homeless are at increased risk, since they don't have adequate protection against the cold.

Another high-risk group is the elderly. "Although the elderly prefer the same environmental temperature as younger people (70 to 75 degrees F), they do not adjust well to rapid temperature drops and have a more difficult time maintaining their body temperature," Dr. Jew explains.

In addition, bone-chilling cold weather is not necessary for elderly people's body temperatures to drop to hypothermic levels, and death can result in only a few hours. The rate at which the temperature changes and the duration of exposure are more critical for the elderly than how low the air temperature is. "Prolonged exposure to even mildly cold temperatures may be harmful and may go unrecognized by the patient as being dangerous," states Dr. Jew.

"Some elderly people have chronically low body temperatures (96 and 97 degrees F) to begin with and are therefore more susceptible to hypothermia, because they have even less body heat to lose," adds Dr. Jew.

"The elderly may even experience hypothermia indoors due to inadequate housing and insulation or the inability to pay their heating bills," she notes.

The Normal Body Response

Normally, when the body gets cold, the heart rate goes up; blood vessels near the skin tighten up; shivering ensues and certain hormones are released. The body responds in this way to prevent heat loss and to increase body heat production.

"However, in the elderly, these normal body responses are altered because of the natural aging process and, therefore, the risk of experiencing hypothermia is greater," says Dr. Jew.

What to Do When Hypothermia Occurs

If you suspect that hypothermia is occurring, take the following steps:

- Remove any wet clothing.
- Wrap the person in warm blankets and give him something warm to drink.
- Get the person to an emergency room. Hypothermia is a medical emergency and should be treated as such.

Medical treatment for hypothermia depends on the complications and the severity of the patient's condition. Left untreated, hypothermia can result in death.

Prevention

The following simple steps can help prevent hypothermia: Follow an adequate diet which includes enough calories to produce the necessary body heat.

Avoid alcohol and other drugs which predispose people to hypothermia, unless prescribed by and discussed with a physician.

Wear sufficiently warm clothing to prevent body heat loss (layered clothing, woollens, gloves, caps, scarves, etc.)

Be sure that living quarters are well insulated and heated.

Keep extra blankets in your car in case you are stranded while traveling.

Obtain good medical care for other illnesses or conditions, such as diabetes, hormone imbalances, heart disease, infections, strokes and other neurological diseases, which can lead to increased risk for hypothermia. Medications should also be closely monitored by your doctor.

Exercise regularly to improve body temperature regulation.

Hypothermia and Other Illnesses

Hypothermia can be confused with other illnesses, such as senility, says Dr. Jew. In fact, when hypothermia does occur, it is often accompanied by other illnesses, such as diabetes or infections. The following conditions may accompany or result from hypothermia: shock; seizures; pneumonia; kidney failure; gastrointestinal bleeding; heart attack, heart failure or cardiac arrest; coma.

Shawn Barreye named maintenance supervisor for Texas DoT in Belton

Shawn Barreye of Anson has been named maintenance supervisor for the Texas Department of Transportation in Belton.

Barreye (pronounced Barry) fills the slot vacated by Debbie Rogers and will maintain all state highways in central and eastern Bell County, including Belton and Temple.

A native of Oklahoma, Barreye is no stranger to the area. He worked as an engineering technician for the city of Temple from 1988-1991. After a short stint in Hurst, was named TxDOT maintenance supervisor in Jones County north of Abilene.

"Shawn has a lot of experience in construction," said TxDOT Area Engineer Jim Cowan. "He should compliment our organization very well."

While born and raised in Oklahoma, Barreye spent some of his childhood in the Lubbock area and later moved there to work in a family-owned roadway construction company. In 1971 he headed south to Austin and worked in construction before joining the city of Austin in 1974 as an engineering inspector and program manager.

Barreye said he has always considered Central Texas "home" and is glad to be back. "I noticed that this particular position came open, and I have always wanted to return to this area," he said.

The Belton section offers Barreye some challenges. "Interstate is probably something that I haven't dealt with yet," he said. "I am also going to try to manage our resources. I want to develop a cross-training program so our maintenance people are diverse, and we develop their skills and abilities."

During Barreye's time away from the office, he works with his cutting and show horses, and enjoys hunting and fishing.

Grief support group offered

The Scott & White Department of Pastoral Services and the Department of Social Work will be offering two four-part grief support group for persons who are grieving the deaths of loved ones.

Participants may choose to attend either session. The first session, held on Wednesday afternoons will begin at 3:15 p.m., Jan. 29. Subsequent sessions will be held Feb. 5, 12, and Feb. 19.

Another session will be held on Thursday evenings beginning at 6 p.m. Jan. 30. Subsequent sessions will be Feb. 6, 13 and Feb. 20.

All meetings will be in the Options Learning Center, 3016 South 31st St., located in the Market Place Shopping Center, Temple.

"Participants will learn strategies for coping and walking through their grief after the death of a loved one." Chaplain Judy Hoelscher said. "Anyone grieving the loss of a spouse, child, parent, significant other or friend is encouraged to attend."

Writer wants to share news with readers

Dear Editor:

I think it would be nice for the non-readers of the Temple paper to know that my mother, Minta Landrum the Orange Lady of Salado was included in the column, "News of Other Years", and to read what she did thirty years ago.

30 Years Ago
In The Telegram
Did you ever try to teach

Spanish-speaking pre-school children English in eight weeks? Minta Landrum, a sixth grade teacher at Reagan School, has. As a result of this Mrs. Landrum and her daughter Ann Landrum a third-grade teacher at Dawson School in Austin, have written a song book for children from the first through the fourth grades. The book is called "Sing Something Different."

I surely would appreciate it if you could put this in the paper.

Sincerely,
Sandra Cannon, her daughter

Editor note: Sandra, Thanks for thinking to send us this information.

40'S Hair Fashion Makes Comeback

The hottest look this season is inspired by the hottest movie of the year, "Evita." Eva Peron influenced an entire generation of women, and her style is now making a strong comeback. Women everywhere are copying her fashion sense, from head to toe.

Her long luxurious wavy hair was her crown of beauty. Her most famous hairstyle featured two rolls on the front of her head, a very fashionable look in the 40's. This very glamorous style is loved by many Hollywood movie stars. It fits perfectly in today's times when glamour and sensuality are on the rise.

Charles Ifergan, salon owner and TRESemmé consultant, offers a few tips on how to achieve the look of the season, whether your hair is short or long.

For chin length hair, set it in electric curlers for a few minutes. After you remove the curlers, separate the hair in three sections. The first section is the whole back of the hair and the top half. Sections two and three are achieved by splitting the front hair into two sections with a middle part. Section one should be slightly teased and each side should be combed towards the middle of the head. To help keep hair in place, use TRESemmé TresGelee. Finish sections two and three (same as long hair) with a generous mist of TRESemmé Extra Hold Hair Spray.

If hair is long, put it in very large sections with electric curlers for a few minutes just to give hair some bend, not curl. Remove your curlers, then separate the hair in three sections. The first section is the whole back of the hair and top half. Sections two and three are achieved by splitting the front hair into two sections with a middle part. Slightly tease section one and tighten in a French twist. Slightly tease section two. Bring it all up and start to roll it toward the middle of the head. Secure with bobby pins inside the roll. Do the same for section three. Try to bring it as close as possible to section two. Finish with a generous mist of TRESemmé Extra Hold Hair Spray.

To achieve great hairstyles, use TRESemmé hair care products—a professional line of salon quality products at an affordable price.

An End To Exercise Excuses

by Joe Dobler
(NAPS)—"Home fitness equipment can make exercise easier, safer, less intimidating and more affordable," says Karen Dixon of Tunturi, Inc.

Here are answers to help you put an end to excuses not to exercise:

Too busy—A home treadmill, exercise cycle rowing or step machine lets you work out on your own schedule.

Can't afford club fees—Prices for quality home fitness machines are within reach of most people and much less than the cost of most club memberships.

No room for equipment—Look for machines designed with a small "footprint," that are portable or can be stored in a closet or under a bed, such as a rowing machine or stairclimber.

Too shy—Some beginners are too shy to go to clubs where everyone appears fit or confident that they know what they are doing.

Tunturi, Inc. offers a full line of quality home fitness equipment. For more information, call (800) 827-8717.

Depression: Don't Ignore It

(NAPS)—During any one year period, 17.6 million Americans or 10 percent of the adult population suffer from some form of depression. The real sadness is that much of the suffering is avoidable with the proper combination of medicine and counseling.

Scientists are learning more about depression every day and a whole range of treatments for different types of depression, from mild SAD (Seasonal Affective Disorder) to more severe depressive state. For instance, SAD is being treated today with the most logical of treatments—bright light. Science has discovered that the darker days of winter bring on depression for some people.

Others are turning to herbal remedies to promote mental health. Explains Robert A. Kay, Ph.D., Director, Nutritional Research, Your Life health products, "There have been over 25 clinical, controlled therapy studies investigating the herb St. John's Wort. All showed noticeable improvement in mental health."

Anyone with prolonged symptoms of depression should see a doctor. Symptoms include a "blue" mood that won't go away; dramatic loss of interest or pleasure in previously enjoyable relationships and activities; and decreased energy level and a change in appetite and sleeping habits, especially if the condition persists for two weeks or more.

Doctors often prescribe a combination of anti-depressant drugs and counseling for the more serious depression. However, for short-term blues, family, friends and others can provide a sounding board to "talk out" feelings of helplessness, isolation and low self-esteem.

Herbal remedies, such as St. John's Wort and Kava Kava have been used for many years around the world to help people deal with these problems.

The traditional use for Kava Kava was to induce relaxation and sleep. Now modern research has investigated the use of Kava and its effects on anxiety. "Kava roots," says Dr. Kay, "are natural muscle relaxants that may have use in anxiety, nervous tension, skeletal muscle spasm, neck tension, some types of headaches and as an aid to sleep." Your Life products are sold in more than 52,000 retail outlets in 50 states including the nation's largest drug, supermarket, discount and convenience store chains.

Remember, if your sad feelings last more than two weeks or are severe enough to be debilitating, it's a good idea to seek professional medical help. You don't have to put up with feeling down.

To learn more about herbal remedies, call the Your Life hotline at 1-800-533-VITA. For more information about the disease of depression, call government-sponsored D/ART (Depression Awareness, Recognition and Treatment) Program at 1-800-421-4211.

BE A VOLUNTEER

A way to support your library

Volunteers make a difference. Volunteers are people who make things happen. Volunteers help to make a Salado a special community. Your library could not function without volunteers.

Fortunately, there is a large group of volunteers who generously support the library by working at the checkout desk, processing books, assisting with computer functions, selecting new books, and generally assisting in the daily function of the library.

Also volunteering their services are the many community minded folk who help with fund raisers, like helping to sort, organize and sell books for the annual Art Fair book sale, and those who perform the many tasks required to make the golf tournament a success.

Last, volunteers serve as members of the board of directors who expend a great amount of time, thought and effort in seeking out ways to help the library function better today and in the future. To all those who support the library by their gifts of any kind a heartfelt THANK YOU.

IF YOU WOULD LIKE TO FIND OUT ABOUT WHAT MAKES THE LIBRARY TICK AND PERHAPS PARTICIPATE IN LIBRARY ACTIVITIES CALL THE LIBRARY AT 947-9191. ASK FOR PATTY CAMPBELL OR MARY LOU WILLIAMS OR LEAVE YOUR NAME AND TELEPHONE NUMBER AND SOMEONE WILL RETURN YOUR CALL.

Just Call for Tax Help

The Internal Revenue Service offers tax help in print, through recordings and automated refund status programs, and through computer. Here are some helpful phone numbers to remember at tax time and all through the year. Numbers beginning with "1-800" are toll free.

- To order forms and publications, call IRS 1-800-829-3676. Most publications, some in Spanish, are listed in Publication 910.
- To get forms and instructions via fax, dial 703-487-4160. Dial from the fax machine for the most commonly used forms.

Taxes Made Easier

Preparing your federal income tax returns can be made easier, just make sure you keep track of all your records throughout the year. You should start with a copy of this year's return. Add to that any canceled checks, receipts and records that will help when you file your next tax return. By keeping your income and expense records in good order, you can save hours of searching at the end of the year and make tax filing a lot easier.

At Moving Time

Moving? Tell IRS. If IRS does not have your current address, your tax refund or any letters about past returns may not reach you. Send Form 8822 as soon as you move. Don't let your refund get lost or returned to the IRS.

- To order a CD-ROM with most IRS forms and publications, call the U.S. Government Printing Office's Superintendent of Documents at 202-512-1800. Ask for stock number 648-095-00004-0.

- To hear recorded tax messages on TeleTax, call IRS 1-800-829-4477. Over 140 messages, some in Spanish, to assist people.

- To get automated refund information, call IRS 1-800-829-4477.* Publications 910 and 579SP (Spanish) have details (*California residents, please check either publication for correct phone number in your area).

- To get tax assistance for the hearing impaired, call IRS 1-800-829-4059. Must have access to TDD equipment.

- To reach IRS services via computer for federal tax forms, publications and other information:

- Access via the Internet—
- World Wide Web <http://www.irs.ustreas.gov>
  - File transfer protocol <ftp.irs.ustreas.gov>
  - Telnet <iris.irs.ustreas.gov>
  - Access by modem 703-321-8020

No Refund?

Expecting a refund, but haven't paid certain bills? Federal law allows your income tax refund to be taken to pay off all or part of your past-due child and spousal support, delinquent student loans, income tax or other federal debts. If your refund was used to pay back what you owe, the IRS will notify you.

Pick the Right Tax Preparer

Finding an income tax preparer that suits your needs can be tricky. You may want to ask yourself these questions during your search to help you make the best choice. How complicated is your tax situation? Do you know others who have gone to the preparer and could tell you about the preparer's service? Will the preparer be there later in the year, or in a year or two, to answer questions on your return? The answers to these questions will help you make the right choice.

IRS Is On-line

The IRS has tax forms, publications and other information available on-line. Access through the Internet via the World Wide Web (<http://www.irs.ustreas.gov>); file transfer protocol (<ftp.irs.ustreas.gov>); or Telnet (<iris.irs.ustreas.gov>). To access by modem, dial 703-321-8020.

Name Changed? Change Number

If you change your name for any reason, such as marriage or divorce, notify the Social Security Administration (SSA). Your name and Social Security number on your tax return must match those SSA has on record, or there can be a delay in getting your federal income tax refund.

Sending Mail to the IRS?

Always check mail to the IRS for enough postage and complete addresses—both the return address and IRS'. Otherwise, the mail could get lost or delayed, and that could cost penalties, interest and frustration.

Missing W-2

Employees should get their Form W-2 by January 31. Those who haven't received their W-2s shortly after that should ask their employer for one. If by February 15 there is still no W-2, call the IRS for help at 1-800-829-1040.
