Community raises money to restore WW II-era hangar

by Tumbleweed Smith

The old building was weathered, showing its age. It was literally coming apart at the seams. Its twin next to it was doing the same thing. But coming to the rescue was a group of folks who realized the significance of the two old structures and didn't want them to suffer a prolonged and undignified death.

So if things go according to plan, one of the new structures will be restored by the end of the year. Material from the other will be used in the restoration. The result will be HANGAR 25, a museum in Big Spring, Texas dedicated to the training of bombardiers and pilots.

The Big Spring Bombardier School opened at the beginning of World War II and closed in 1946. In 1952, the base was reopened as Webb Air Force Base. Webb closed in 1977. Residents of Big Spring feel that the military played such an important role in the city's history that the hangar should stand as a physical tribute to the role it played in our country's war efforts.

Many veterans have retired in Big Spring and many come back to remember. With the addition of the Hangar to an already outstanding Vietnam Memorial, Big Spring should be seeing more veterans who spent time in the military at either the bombardier school or Webb.

The restoration committee, headed by Jerry Worthy, has proven to be a capable money raiser. The application for a grant to restore HANGAR 25 was approved by the Texas Department of Transportation. It was one of only 55 selected as a "significant historical monument" from the 387 applications submitted. The HANGAR 25 project has been followed with great interest by the Texas Historical Commission.

HANGAR 25 will receive 80 percent of the architect's estimate of $573,600 to restore the hangar. The community raised the other 20 percent without any public funds. Part of the money was raised by selling memorial plaques for $50 which will decorate one wall of the museum. The plaques honor anyone who served in the military or had some connection to it. The sale of T-shirts, caps and food at various events brought in more donations.

Restoration plans were done by CADCO architects of Abilene, Tx. The restoration work is being done by Lee George construction of Big Spring. Completion is due in November.

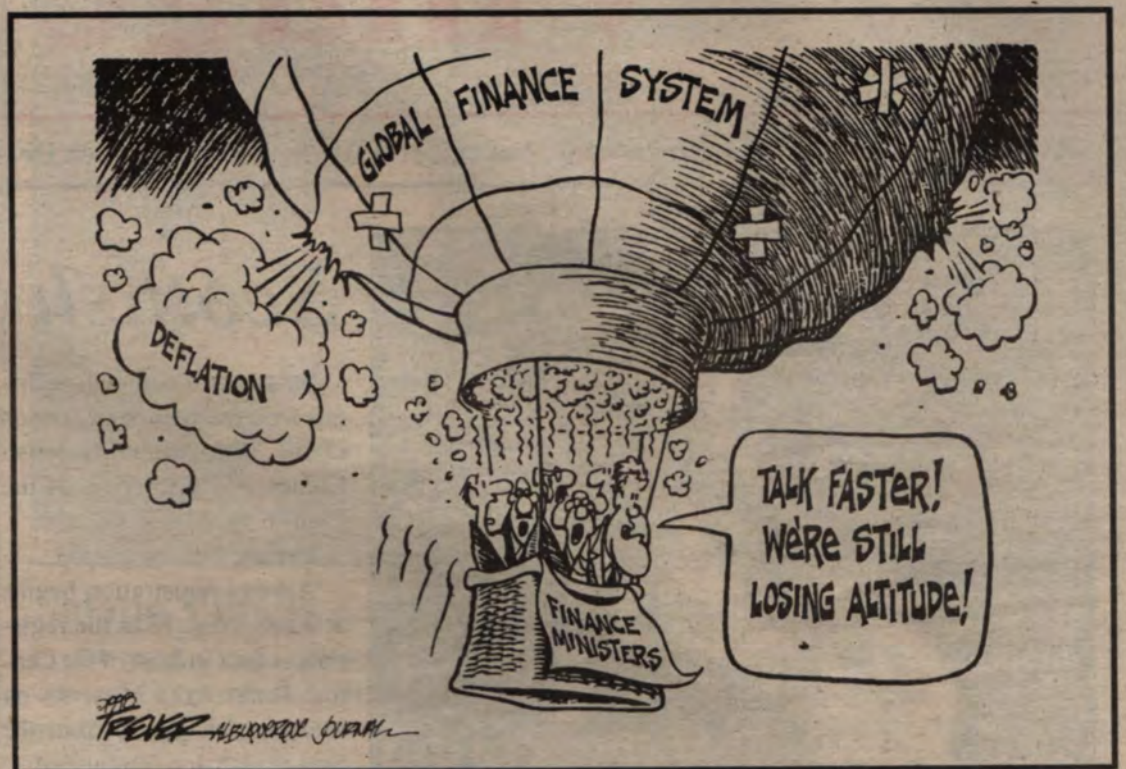

The restored hangar will be one of a kind in Texas. The museum's emphasis of training planes and aids will fill a vacuum not covered by any other flight museum. It will include a comfortable community meeting room.

Planes used in the training at Webb will be displayed in the hangar once it is completed. These include AT-11, T-28, T-33, T-37 and T-38. Also, an F-104 from its 331st Fighter Interceptor Squadron stationed at Webb is being considered.

The call is out for memorabilia related to the base from 1941-1977. Inquiries should be mailed to Nelda Reagan, HANGAR 25 RESTORATION PROJECT, PO Box 2925, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

FORUM

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Pundit never met an election he didn't like (nor a good line)

The mid-term elections are now history and by the time this column is printed, readers will already know the outcome of yesterday's statewide vote.

Next week we'll try our hand at projecting the impact winners will have on state and national politics in the days ahead.

For now we offer an item written by Will Rogers, (our favorite political observer of all times) and since it is apropos to the blues versus happiness of the morning-after-election-day, we pass it on to you: "Ain't it funny, we can see a friend or neighbor go out, make investments and other fool things, risk life and money and never say a word. No advice or comment. But when this same friend votes? Why, we got to tell him about it, for he's kinda ignorant and narrow-minded, and don't see things our way!"

While on the subject of government, it was reported in Austin that two of our fearless Texas lawmakers - Bill Ratliff (R-Mt. Pleasant) and Bob Junell (D-San Angelo) have all but completed their personal re-write of the Texas Constitution and plan to unveil it sometime this month.

The revision, discussed with a less than nice shot of approbation months ago in this column, has been done in part by students at San Angelo college and in part, no doubt, by a host of lobbyists. One thing for sure, it will have one thing in it we all should fear, namely the dreaded boogie-bear known as "annual sessions of the legislature?"

by Ken Clapp

Lawmakers feel compelled to spend as much time in the state capitol as possible, only this time around they will want to be paid the big bucks for their trouble. That in addition to a taxpayer supported full retirement/health plan that is one of the best in the nation.

So gentle readers - hang on to your hats. Or more importantly, hide your pocketbooks because the looney-tune days are almost upon us and with a constitutional rewrite on tap - there will be new ways galore, on how to spend money, each and every minute of the 140 day session scheduled for an early January blast off.

Once more we quote Will Rogers, who is again on target about a matter at hand, namely rewriting a constitution: "I guess, when the boys get the (national) Constitution all fixed up, they'll start on the Ten Commandments, just as soon as they can find somebody who has read them!"

BUSINESS SLAPPED BY SEC CHAIRMAN

What a shame that it took Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman, Arthur Leffitt, Jr., to call American business to task for lying to stockholders and the public in their annual reports and quarterly earnings statements.

This appeared in the October 12, issue of Business Week, and went on to quote the revered chairman of SEC: "Earnings accounting is a game of nods and winks." And further: "Integrity may be losing out to illusion."

Reason this is scary is that investors in the stock market pay a lot of attention to annual reports published by all reputable companies and to learn that these same reports are phoney or rigged or shaded, borders on criminality.

Correcting this mess is more important to our economy than all the shucking and jiving done by Fed Chair Alan Greenspan. He can keep the dollars moving but he can't mend the public's distrust of business. This is something only business can do and had best get started - if we can tear them away from counting unholy profits as they downsize people and services.

Trust is earned and once lost is hard to replace. America's entrepreneurs may have lost sight of all this in their "public be damned" headlong race for dollars over quality and service - but consumers have long memories and once riled, will turn on business to the point that commercial advertising spinmeisters - working around the clock - will take years to repair.

Commission? All of these worthies have sent word to the bewildering consumer to just give them a call if anything goes wrong or a question needs answering.

Recently a call was made to each of the above entities, using the free "800" numbers handed out with such pride. Problem was that the civic center's long distance carrier had been switched, without permission, and our dander was not only up - but way out in space.

First call was to our LD carrier and after a 15 minute wait, preceded by a menu greater than one found in New York's stylish "21" restaurant, we finally got to talk to a human being who passed us on to the locals.

The local adventure was even more disastrous. First came the expected long wait, followed by the menu selection routine and finally - (we are now 25 minutes into this call) - we were told in no uncertain terms (by a machine) that due to the heavy traffic we could not be helped - so "call back another time"!

Please note that these are phone companies we are discussing, who don't even have enough phones to take care of their customers, which is an anomaly worth remembering!

Last but not least, in our pilgrimage to the never-never land of redress, we called the PUC. These folks kept us waiting for 30 minutes before we were able to air our complaint against the illegal "switching" done at our place of business.

From all this we have come up with a new phone number that is more appropriate for these folks, who hold themselves out as a refuge for the hapless consumer: 1-800-Who Cares!

Capps retires from post office after 28 years as rural route carrier in Bell County

Arthur Wade Capps of Salado officially retired from the U.S. Postal Service Oct. 30 after 28 years as a rural route carrier in Bell County.

Capps started delivering mail as a substitute carrier on Oct. 14, 1967, and did so until Oct. 30, 1971. He resumed those duties on March 1, 1975, and remained as a substitute until Oct. 4, 1980. During that time, he started auxiliary route 7 in Belton.

He took over route 3 in Belton on Oct. 4, 1980 on a permanent basis, and on Oct.

13, 1984, transferred to Salado's route 1, where he remained until this year.

"It's all been pretty good," the amiable Capps said. "I had a lot of good customers. I looked forward to seeing them. They wanted to pass the time with me, and I'll miss them."

He wanted his customers to know that he "appreciated carrying for them and just wanted to put something in the paper to thank them."

As for what he'll do now, Capps said, "I got my farm and cattle at home."

Deciding who would win the costume contest was not an easy choice for Dale Kehn. The "Boo Bash" held in the parking lot at Brookshire Brothers brought many little ghost and ghoulies. With the Salado Volunteer Fire Department running the games, the day was a great success with all the children departing with a prize. Cold drinks, pumpkin shaped cookies...what kid could ask for a better way to begin the Halloween celebration.

To continue the spirit of the event ...Guess the names of the ghoulies to the right and win a free lunch at Brownings Cafe. The first one to call the Salado Village Voice with all the names wins 947-5321.

A Brief Visit With Pastor J. Floyd Franks

The Hubble telescope has provided us with dramatic pictures of the farthest regions of the heavens. Photographs show clouds of interstellar hydrogen gas towering nearly 6 trillion miles high.

After viewing space through the Hubble, astronomers used words like awestruck, overwhelmed, and amazed to describe their reaction. These are also appropriate responses for us as we think of the greatness of the One Who created the vast universe and Who "commanded and they were created" (Ps. 148:5).

He is the One Who loves us and sent His Son to be our Savior. He is the One Who has blessed us with all good and perfect gifts (James 1:17). He is also the One before Whom we must all appear one day to give account of our lives and of whether we accepted or rejected God's Son (Romans 14:12). Truly the words awestruck, overwhelmed and amazed will be inadequate to describe the scene. Accept Christ as your Savior today and live a life pleasing to this awesome God. Rachel McGregor SHS volunteer of the year as selected by national group Rachel McGregor was the Salado High School volunteer of the year in the Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program.

Sponsored by the Prudential and National Association of Secondary School Principals, the awards recognize outstanding community service. McGregor is now eligible for the Texas youth volunteer of the year awards. Two State Honorees, one middle-level and one high school student, will each receive $1,000 award, a silver medallion, and travel to Washington, D.C., for recognition ceremonies with one parent or guardian in May. Other honorees may receive bronze medallion or Certificates of Excellence.

At the Washington event, 10 National Volunteers of the Year will be named by a national panel of judges, each receiving an additional $5,000, a gold medallion and a crystal trophy for his or her school.

"We are delighted to recognize young people who make contributions of their time and talent to their communities," said Prudential Vice President Bob Fallon. "They are role models for their peers and deserve to have the spotlight focused on them."

McGregor was recognized for her work on the Hospitality Booth for artists at the Salado Art Fair.

"These School Honorees practice a lesson we hope all students, as well as adults, will emulate -- that volunteering within the community is an essential part of one's life," said NASSP Executive Director Thomas F. Koerner.

State honorees will be named in February.

The Prudential Spirit of Community Awards are supported by the American Association of School Administrators, the Council of the Great City Schools, the National Middle School Association, the National School Boards Association, the National School Public Relations Association, National 4-H Council and Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.

Eagles start off quickly in 37-14 win over Florence Buffaloes in game 9

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

Brent Hansen's opening kick return of 76 yards was an indication of things to come in Salado's lopsided 37-14 win Oct. 30 at Eagle Field over the Florence Buffaloes.

Salado took advantage of Hansen's return, scoring on the second play from scrimmage on Taylor Hutton's 14 yard jaunt at 10:57 in the first. The PAT failed, giving Salado a 6-0 lead.

Florence took the lead on the next series of plays, driving the ball 64 yards on 17 plays with Flea Montemayor running in from the 3 with 1:50 left in the first. Montemayor's pass to Carter Hill on the point after try gave the Buffs their only lead of the night, 8-6.

Florence's lead was short-lived however, as the Eagles drove 72-yards in just seven plays with Ryan Gillespie dashing in from the 2. Key plays in the drive included a 22 yard run by Hutton and a 27 yard Gillespie pass to John McLaughlin. The two-point try failed, giving Salado a 12-8 lead with just 11 ticks left in the opening period.

Salado scored three times in the last five minutes of the first half.

Michael Schoepf blew the game open on his 74-yard touchdown reception. Brian Butscher gave Schoepf a terrific open field block at the Eagle's 30 to clear the way. McLaughlin ran in for the two-point try for Salado's 20-8 lead with 4:28 left in the half.

After the Salado defense held Florence to just one yard on the next series, Tigger Day returned the Buffaloes punt 45 yards to their 20 yard line. Facing fourth and four to go, Gillespie ran out of the pocket to find Schoepf for a 14 yard touchdown pass. Paul Lucas booted the extra point.

Rory Oldham set up the Eagles' last score of the half when he intercepted a Florence pass in spite of his broken left hand.

Two interference calls and a roughing the passer call brought the Eagles to Florence's 6 with time running out. Lucas kicked the 23 yard field goal with no time left on the clock to give Salado a 30-8 lead going to the lockers.

Salado and Florence kicked the ball back and forth throughout the third period until Hutton fell on a Florence fumble with 6 seconds left.

The Eagles then drove 55 yards in eight plays to score. Lucas' catch going over the middle on fourth and 6 gave Salado a fresh set of downs at the Florence 29. Gillespie ran up the middle on a quarterback draw from the 25 with 10:30 left in the game. Lucas' PAT was good, giving Salado a 37-8 lead.

Florence would score with 8:51 left in the game on a 26-yard Montemayor run. The PAT failed.

Salado travels to Troy to face the district-leading Trojans at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 6. If the Eagles defeat Troy and Holland wins its last game, all three teams will have just one loss in district.

If the Eagles lose, they will likely be the third place team, which is good enough to make the playoffs.

Salado spikers to open playoffs Nov. 7

by John Eubanks

Salado High's district championship volleyball team will open the playoffs Nov. 7 at a time and site that will change depending on what team the girls play.

The Lady Eagles (14-9) will play the winner of the match between Elkhart and Hull-Daisetta. Results of the Class 2A first-round playoff match Nov. 3 at Groveton were unavailable at press time.

If District 17-2A runner-up Elkhart defeats Hull-Daisetta, the third-place team from District 18-2A, Elkhart would play Salado at 7 p.m. Nov. 7 at Bremond, about 40 miles east of Temple.

If Hull-Daisetta wins, Salado would still play Nov. 7 but at a time and place that would not be determined until after the Elkhart-Hull-Daisetta match.

Should the Lady Eagles defeat either team, they will advance to the regional quarterfinals Nov. 9-10 at a time and site to be determined later.

Salado won the District 20-2A title with a 6-0 record, after placing last in the four-team district last year with a 1-5 mark.

Under the tutelage of third-year coach John Black, the Lady Eagles have gone from 0-6 in district in '96 to capturing the school's first district championship in volleyball and appearing in the playoffs for the first time.

The girls played two warmup matches before the playoffs: Oct. 31 at Blanco and Nov. 2 at Abbott.

The team played those matches without senior Katie Punchard, who injured her knee Oct. 28 in basketball practice. She was to be examined further on Nov. 3. Her status for the playoffs is questionable at best.

Last year, Punchard was a first team all-district volleyball selection and was named the basketball's team most valuable player.

Black said she was "playing strong" on the back row this season. In the team's win over Academy in the regular season finale Oct. 24, a Punchard kill in game three tied the score at 6-6 after her team had trailed 6-0. Salado went on win the game, 15-13, and preserve its undefeated district record.

Punchard is one of five seniors who were on the team as sophomores. They have won more matches this season (14) than they did the last two years combined (10).

"This is a great bunch of girls," Black said. "It's good to see all their hard work come to fruition."

Eagles set to face Trojans

by John Eubanks

The Salado Eagles wrap up the regular season Nov. 6 at Troy against the league-leading Trojans.

Game time is 7:30 p.m.

It is a game many thought in August would be the one to decide the District 26-2A champion.

They were right -- in a round-about way.

Salado's 47-14 loss to Holland in week seven took some luster off the Troy game. But a Salado win will make the Eagles no worse than district tri-champs, depending on the outcome of the Holland-Academy game.

Troy is atop the district at 4-0, followed by Holland and Salado at 3-1.

The Trojans (8-1) have outscored nine opponents 299-110, or an average of 33-12 a game. They were deemed by many to be the district favorite after moving down from Class 3A this season.

Karin Colwell advanced to sectionals of PP&K competition in 12-13 age division

Karin Colwell, a Salado seventh-grader, won her age division at the sectionals level of the NFL Gatorade Punt, Pass & Kick football competition Oct. 17 in Temple.

But she failed to qualify for the team championship in Dallas later this year.

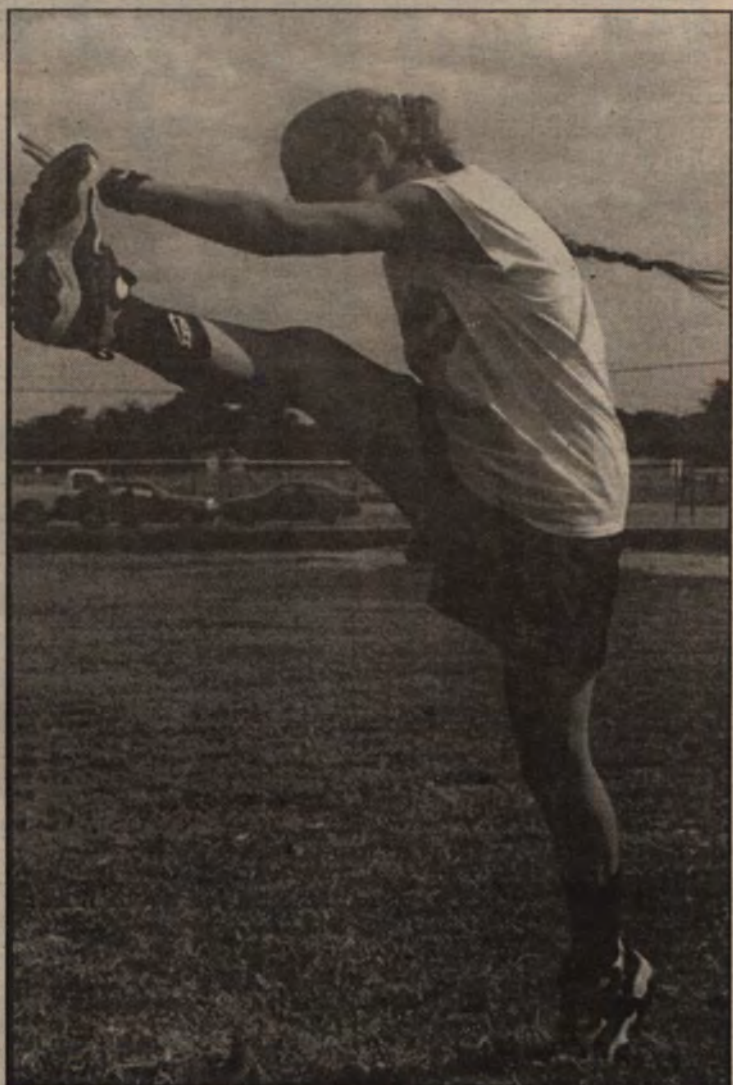

Her score of 177 was 11th best among the girls in her age division from 20 sectional competitions in Texas and southwest Oklahoma. The top five scores advance to the next level.

Karin's mom, Angie Colwell, reported that Karin would have had a higher score but shanked her kickoff. Participants get one try at kicking the ball from a tee, punting the ball and throwing it.

Karin advanced to sectionals after placing first in the girls 12-13 age division at local competition in Salado Oct. 3. Her score was 263. The top score in her division from all 20 sectionals was 269.

Karin advanced to the team championships the past two years in the 10-12 age division, winning it two years ago when she finished sixth in the nation.

She was among seven Salado youngsters who quali-

Subvarsity grid teams win two of three games

The Salado High subvarsity football teams won two of three games at Florence Oct. 29.

JUNIOR VARSITY

The JV Eagles (4-4-1, 2-2) lost 34-7, after trailing 12-7 at halftime. The Eagles were inside the Florence 5 late in the first half, but failed to score.

Gordon Smale was credited with Salado's lone touchdown.

EIGHTH GRADE

The eighth-grade Eagles (5-3, 4-0) won 18-14 to set up a district championship game at home Nov. 5 against Troy, also 4-0 in district.

The Eagles led Florence 12-0 at halftime as Stenhen Fewell scored on an 8-yard run, and Jarrod Whitfield added a 5-yard run. In the fourth quarter, Whitfield caught a 55-yard TD pass from Fewell.

Offensive standouts were Whitfield, Evan Durham and Ross Cravens. Defensive standouts were Kyle Salisbury, who had a fumble recovery, Lane Wolf, Cody Quirk and Fran Ruiz.

SEVENTH GRADE

The seventh-graders (5-3, 3-1) defeated Florence 26-6 as Scott Bates scored three touchdowns and threw for another one.

Salado scored first on a 35-yard pass from Chase Simpson to Bates. That was followed by a 42-yard pass from Bates to Simpson. Bill Tubbs added the two-point conversion.

After Florence scored to make it 14-6, Salado scored just before halftime on a 60-yard run by Bates. He added a 65-yard TD run in the third quarter.

Offensive standouts were Shane Pipes, Luis Trujillo and Josh Wright. Defensive standouts were Tubbs, Cale Cox and Evan Clements.

Eagles

Salado (6-3) has outscored the opposition 227-134, or an average of 26-15.

"It's going to be a tough game," Eagles coach Joe Mullins said. "Troy's big and strong and fast. We'll have to play one of our better games to beat them. But I feel like the kids will play hard."

Mullins praised the team's effort in last week's 37-14 win over Florence.

Tackle Brian Butscher was named offensive player of the week. Lineman Jon Robbins was named defensive player of the week.

Troy is coming off a 27-0 win over Academy (2-7, 2-2).

Salado opened district play Oct. 9 with a 40-0 win over Academy.

Should Academy upset Holland -- and do so by 14 points -- and Troy defeat Salado, three teams would be tied for second. A coin-flip would then determine the second and third-place teams.

The top three teams advance to the playoffs. Even with a loss to Troy, the Eagles are in the playoffs as long as Holland defeats Academy's Bumblebees. The 'Bees have been outscored 263-95 so far.

If the Eagles make the playoffs, they will likely play either

Winters or Goldthwaite of west central Texas. Winters is ranked among the Top 10 in Class 2A.

DISTRICT STANDINGS

Troy	4-0	8-1
Holland	3-1	7-2
Salado	3-1	6-3
Academy	2-2	2-7
Florence	0-4	2-7
Johnson City	0-4	0-9

Last week's results: Troy 27, Academy 0. Salado 37, Florence 14. Holland 49, Johnson City 17.

This week's schedule: Salado at Troy, Academy at Holland, Johnson City at Florence.

Shuttle launch brings back memories of days gone by Memories can eat at you or they can sustain you. Depends on what you wash them down with.

Watching the launch of the Discovery space shuttle carrying John Glenn into orbit last week brought back enough memories to set off warning lights from head to toe.

Verses and versus John Eubanks

As I sat watching the launch in the office breakroom with Marilyn Fleischer and Judy Shumate, I glanced at my Timex digital watch and noticed the day's date, Oct. 29.

I couldn't help but think of Sept. 29, 1988 -- 10 years and a month earlier -- when I went outside the newspaper office of the Boca Beacon in Cape Haze on Florida's west coast, and watched the white contrails beneath Discovery climbing into a beautiful blue sky from clear across the state.

It was NASA's first shuttle launch since the Challenger accident in January of '86.

As I peered into the Florida sky with my new co-workers that historic day in '88, I couldn't wait to call my mother in Texas to wish her Happy Birthday and tell her about the day's events.

Of course, the big news was my official hiring as the paper's new editor. It was announced during a staff meeting that was interrupted by our desire to go outside and see if we could spot the shuttle.

My scheduled two-week stay at the newspaper on a trial basis was cut in half by the paper's new owners, a husband-and-wife team who were anxious to turn the laid-back fortnightly (published every two weeks) into an ambitious weekly by the end of the year.

The new editor from Texas would have to work hard to win over the holdover staffers who had gotten used to having two weeks between editions.

The newspaper covered the Gasparilla Island community of Boca Grande, an eclectic mix of well-to-do retirees, starving artists and salt-of-the-sea fishermen.

If the "born-and-raised-here" natives weren't upset with the newcomers (and vice versa), they were mad at the newspaper, the tourists, the developers, even the fish that weren't biting.

You developed a thick skin and a poker face, or you didn't cut it.

I had been out of work for eight months because of a series of events only God knows why, so I was prepared to dig in my heels and make a go of things.

That first paycheck in more than 30 weeks was a sight for poor eyes. The first purchase was lunch at a local diner with boss man Dusty. He had his dick of the menu.

The following months would have their share of memories: delivering papers by boat to outlying islands, taking aerial photos of the island from a seaplane, holding an injured bald eagle while interviewing the guy who was nursing it back to health.

The standing-room-only town hall meetings on controlling the island's growth were great entertainment.

There were constant rumors of various personalities visiting the island incognito. (The year before, winter visitor Katharine Hepburn had granted the newspaper an interview, on the condition the story not be printed until after she left the island.)

Nothing worth experiencing comes easy, of course. A month before getting the job, while visiting my best friend from school days who lived on Florida's east coast, I met a green-eyed woman who flat out stole my heart.

I convinced myself it would never work and, with stomach lodged in throat, headed in the direction of Texas. A week at the Golf Motel in Fort Myers near Florida's Gulf Coast -- "No, mom, it's not on the gulf, it's near a golf course" -- was spent searching for a job.

Deep down, I was hoping for a reason to stay in Florida, hoping against hope that happy endings -- or at least happy middles -- really do happen.

My blue Chevy pickup was headed north out of Fort Myers on U.S. 41 that seventh and final day when -- I kid you not -- a chance meeting with a couple looking for an editor to run their newspaper changed the course of one truck and several lives.

That was Saturday. I was at work on Monday. A week later, on Sept. 29, I had a title to go with the job.

A year later in late October, having come home to Texas, I married the green-eyed woman who had stolen my heart and exchanged it for a ring.

I wouldn't trade that first year together -- and the previous year -- for anything behind Doors No. 1 or 2 or 3. The last year together? Well, that's another aptly titled Verses and Versus.

But I can tell you with certainty that there was once upon a time when I looked into a clear blue sky, saw a rocket heading toward space and felt as if I, too, were on top of the world.

Youth Fair boosters still selling tickets for Nov. 14 reverse raffle, its main fund-raiser

Youth Fair Boosters have been seen in the village, tickets in hand, raising money for the children in Salado involved in 4-H, Junior FFA, FFA and FHA.

Youth Fair Boosters are selling tickets for the Nov. 14 reverse raffle at the Bell County Expo Center Special Events Room. The reverse raffle is the group's main fund-raiser to purchase projects of Salado students sold at the Bell County Youth Fair and Auction.

The top three prizes in the reverse raffle are $5,000 in travel vouchers for top prize; $2,500 in travel vouchers for second prize and $500 in travel vouchers for third prize. But these prizes do not go to the first names pulled from the pot.

Rather than the first ticket pulled being the winner of the grand prize, all tickets are pulled with the last remaining ticket being the winner; hence the name reverse raffle. A maximum of 200 tickets is sold for the event. Prizes are drawn throughout the evening donated by area businesses and individuals until the final 10 tickets are left.

A ticket holder may auction their ticket at any time during the drawings. In past years, tickets have brought $500 and more, with the Youth Fair Boosters receiving a portion of the sale.

If your ticket is drawn from the pot, you can buy your way back in for just $5, but this is done only once.

The Youth Fair Boosters reserve one of the final 10 tickets, which will be auctioned off before the last 10 contenders are brought forward and their tickets drawn one at a time. During this time, each ticket holder is given a chance to sell their lot to the highest bidder with the Youth Fair Boosters receiving a portion of the sale price.

These events generate lots of fun and excitement for the participants as tickets are drawn and the crowd has the chance to bid on the few remaining tickets being offered.

Tickets will admit two for the evening with catered Barbecue Dinner, cash bar and dancing after the raffle. Tickets are available to those 21 years and older.

All Youth Fair Booster Club members have tickets for sale, as well as 4-H and FFA leaders.

If you would like to support this group, call Carol Fleck at 947-8988 to buy your tickets.

Students to learn dangers of drug abuse

Emergency room physician Dr. Larry Alexander will speak at Salado ISD 8:30-10:30 a.m. Nov. 6.

Dr. Alexander will discuss the dangers of drug abuse with Salado students. He will speak to fifth-eighth grade students at 8:30 a.m. and high school students at 9:30 a.m.

Parents and community members are encouraged to attend either session.

Dr. Alexander is an emergency room physician with the Baylor School of Medicine in Dallas. He has spent most of his free time educating youths in the Dallas/Ft. Worth area on the consequences of drug abuse.

Dr. Alexander has spoken to tens of thousands of students and parents about what he witnesses on a daily basis. His straightforward, explicit approach, coupled with his genuine concern, has made him one of the most sought after speakers concerning the youth drug crisis.

On a local and national basis, Dr. Alexander has made numerous television and radio appearances, discussing the magnitude of the current drug problem. As a guest on CNN, Nightline, Dateline and other prime time shows, he has become a widely recognized authority on the topic.

Salado Village Artists invites all to watercolor workshop

The Salado Village Artists invite you to participate in their watercolor workshop 9 a.m. Nov. 6 and 7 by prominent Texas artist Ed Hoag.

Hoag is a signature member of the Texas Watercolor Society and Western Art Association. The workshop is open to anyone interested in the arts, whether a beginner or an advanced painter.

Hoag's work is representational with elements of impressionism as he endeavors to share with the viewer his impression of the time and place of the subject shown. He states that, "like a good book, a truly fine painting must reward the viewer with something new every time it is enjoyed."

His work has been accepted in regional, national and international juried shows and exhibitions. He is represented in a number of collections.

He has studied under artists such as Harold Phenix, Bob Wygant, Lowell Smith, Martin Greele, Bruce R. Greene, Larry Weston and Don Andrews.

Galleries in Kerrville, San Antonio and College Station represent his work.

In addition to his work as an artist, Hoag continues to teach in the College of Architecture in College Station, where he is an Associate Professor of Landscape Architecture. He is active in the College Station community, teaching classes for adults and children. He also conducts workshops throughout central Texas.

The cost of the workshop is $110 per person. A deposit of $40 is required prior to the workshop with the remainder due at the time of the workshop.

You may register by sending $50 deposit to the Salado Village Artist, PO Box 303, Salado, TX 76571. Specify Ed Hoag Workshop.

A supply list will be mailed to each registrant.

For more information, call Sharon McGlasson at 254/947-4545.

It was in the cards for Oylers to start their family-owned business, Fairway Golf Carts

by John Eubanks

Richard and Sara Oyler, owners of Fairway Golf Carts in Salado, were playing cards with friends one day back in the 1980s, when one of them asked Richard what he planned to do when he left the Army.

Richard figured he would get a government job or work for the post office.

But he was also "revved up" about having a little shop of his own, where he could tinker with small engines and restore golf carts and such.

When he finally retired from the military, Richard took the sure bet and went to work for the U.S. Postal Service. But his heart was in another zip code, so to speak.

To satisfy his urge to tinker, Richard bought a 1950s-era Cushman cart and restored it. Someone offered to buy it, and he sold it.

He got another one, painted it blue and white Dallas Cowboys colors, and sold that one. "Hmmm," he thought. "This is interesting."

He then bought two golf carts to restore, selling one and keeping the other.

When a golf company rep asked him if he would like to be a golf cart dealer, Richard was hesitant at first. Deep down, he didn't want his hobby to become a job.

But it was an offer he could hardly refuse, so he tried it part-time while still working at the post office. It was so successful that Sara decided to quit her full-time job and concentrate on the business.

Their son, Jamie, decided to leave his job with the prison system and join the business as a mechanic. Daughter Memori soon followed.

Richard was now at the point where he had to either remain with the post office or concentrate full-time on the business.

He opted for the business. It's grown so much, that after 11 years at their Harker Heights location on FM 2410, the Oylers decided to relocate

Johnstons' home, Morning Glory Farm, on Christmas Home Tour in December

When you visit Sandy and Terry Johnston's home, Morning Glory Farm, during the Christmas Home Tour, be sure to keep an eye out for little fairy people. There is not only a beautiful little shingle-roof house nestled in a tree trunk that Terry built for the wee folk but a special garden created by Sandy to entice them as well. This lovely whimsical attitude guides Sandy in all her decorating and creations in her home. One of Sandy's deepest beliefs is that "little children are given to the world so that adults will always believe in fairies, moonbeams, and angels."

Morning Glory Farm was a dream come true when the Johnstons purchased the 96 year old farmhouse in 1982. Living in Dallas at the time, Sandy and Terry and their two children, Shawn and Brady, visited Salado frequently and fell in love with the little village. Tossing out the remark to a Realtor friend on one such visit, "If you ever have an old house on some acreage for sale, give us a call, resulted in their buying Morning Glory Farm two weeks later.

The farmhouse was built in 1904 in Bartlett, Texas by the Zapalek family. It was moved to its present location around 1980 by a Salado couple who began its restoration. They did a great deal of work on the old house but before they could live in it an employment opportunity took them elsewhere. The Johnstons bought the house and continued the restoration.

The house is filled with

to a building more than double the size of the old one. It opened Aug. 4.

A ribbon-cutting was held Oct. 10 at the business on Robertson Road, just off the southbound I-35 service road.

The Oylers are dealers for Club Car and Yamaha golf carts, and several of them line the showroom. Used carts are also available.

Fairway Golf Carts carries tires, batteries, parts, accessories and trailers. They also repair and rebuild golf carts. (Jamie is now one of four mechanics on staff.)

With three 18-hole courses planning to open within a 20-mile radius of Salado, Richard said the business is in a prime location.

The Oylers have had customers from all over the country, many of whom see the large "Fairway Golf Carts" sign while driving on I-35.

Some are from Mexico, where there's talk of developing golf. There was even a couple from Scotland who dropped in to visit.

Word of the business could spread far beyond where the Oylers imagined when they started it in 1987.

Certainly farther than they imagined the night Richard, while shuffling cards, was asked what he would like to do when he left the service.

It was apparently in the cards the whole time.

Fairway Golf Carts is located at 1220 N. Robertson Road, just off the southbound I-35 service road, behind Cowboy's Barbecue. Business hours are 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday and 8:30 a.m.-noon Saturday. It's closed Sundays. The phone number is (254) 947-4065.

many family heirlooms - collections of fine china, old books, teddy bears and antique toys, to name a few. Nearly every item and furnishing in the home has a story behind it. The Grandmother Room will have a "little Austin tree" honoring the newest member and delight of the family - baby Austin, five-month old son of Shawn and her husband, Todd.

Outside under the live oak trees, the garden is filled with many flowers and plants - 65 antique roses, herbs, and, of course, morning glories! Sandy's shop, which Terry built for her, is covered by climbing antique roses. The setting is most lovely and tranquil. When you visit you'll understand why Sandy believes that her children grew up in a "fairy tale house."

In addition to all the delights of the house and garden, Mr. & Mrs. Santa Claus will be in attendance at Morning Glory Farm during the tour so bring your camera for a snapshot to put in your own memory book.

The Salado Historical Society has other wonderful homes and historical structures on its Christmas Home Tour this year. Cortes discusses traditionalism

Institute for the Humanities Nov. 1

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

Tradition, Ernesto Cortes, Jr. says, is the living ideas of the dead, while traditionalism is the dead ideas of the living.

Cortes discussed how he has run head-on into traditionalism disguising itself as tradition during his 30 years as an activist and organizer.

Cortes said that another obstacle he faces in his work with the Industrial Areas Foundation is changing people's perceptions of time.

"The CEOs relative time period is the next quarter. The politician's relative time period is the next election cycle. The bureaucrat's relative time period is the next budget cycle. The grandmother's relative time cycle is the next generation," Cortes said, adding that as activists "We must learn to teach others to adopt the grandmother's relative time period."

Speaking of himself, Cortes said he is pessimistic in the short run and hopeful in the long run; however, he added that he is "nervous about our attitudes toward children, not just here in America, but around the world. We have a tremendous amount of poverty, mostly children."

But what gives Cortes hope is the number of people who are willing to step up to the challenge. "I would never have thought that we (IAF) would be organizing in Plano. We are finding congregations we couldn't even talk to 10 years ago who are now receptive to us."

Cortes discussed the changing role of America's schools in the past decades. Following the Industrial Revolution, schools were to develop workers. "Henry Ford felt that if he paid his workers well, they should be satisfied with mind-numbing work," Cortes said. "Our economy at that time was based on production of goods. Today's economy is based on services, which includes low-paying, low-skilled services and high-paying, high-skilled services."

Earlier in the century, Cortes said, many young men learned to read by joining the Army. These were not skills they carried with them to the workplace.

Which meant the workplace, like the Army, had to invest a great deal of money in its workers for basic skills like writing and math.

"Under Robert McNamara's leadership, the military raised its entrance requirements for financial reasons," Cortes said.

Which meant that schools had to produce graduates who had basic literacy and numeracy. But, in today's emerging information economy, this is not enough.

Today's students will need other "soft" skills when they enter the workforce; problem solving, presentation skills, working as a team.

"If these new skills are what is going to be required in the coming years, who will train the teachers to teach those 'soft skills' to the students?" Cortes asked. This should be how we think about public education.

Schools should not only create workers for the economy, but should teach culture and teach citizenship. "This is the one place I hope my son and daughters can learn what the U.S. is all about, or at least what it should be," he said. The biggest danger to that end is "an inert people. People who are unwilling or unable to engage in argument. Self-absorbed people who are withdrawn so much that they cannot have an open discussion," he said.

When this happens, Cortes said, we develop a culture of contentment, a culture of narcissism in which we become more and disgusted and withdrawn from the democratic process.

"Then elections become more about marketing than ideas," Cortes said, equating modern-day elections to the Cola Wars of the 80s. "They're just selling a product," he said.

The solution is an educated, engaged citizenship which is led by issues, not sound bites.

In order to have an educated citizenship, schools must be freed to teach. "Most of our principals are forced to become compliance officers, not managers," he said, adding that this is our own fault, because "we have given the power to the State Board of Education and legislators to adopt more and more regulations."

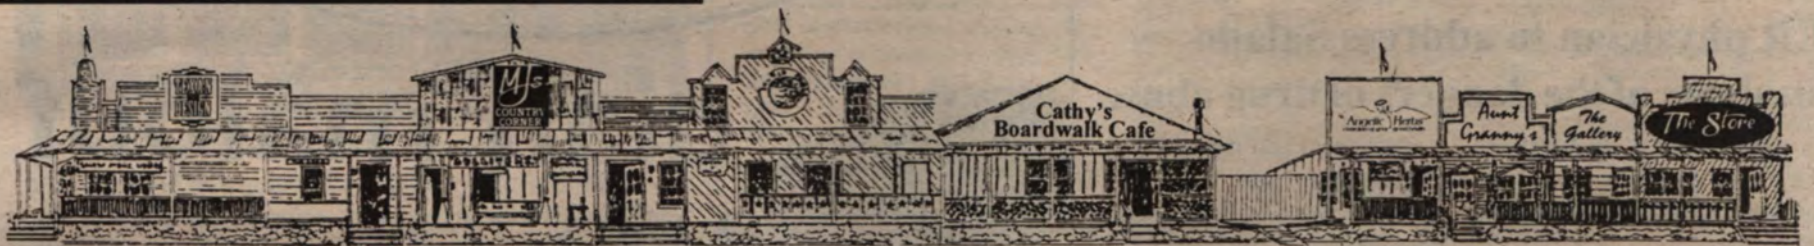

"We can't micromanage schools from a central location," he said.

Cortes recalled Zavala, a low performing school in Austin. The new principal told the parents the truth about why the school was low-performing.

"Parents began organizing, attending school board meetings, asking questions and meeting in homes and churches to discuss how to improve their school. Eventually it got to the point where one board member called the principal to tell him to rein in his parents. I can't, they're out of control, the principal said. Zavala has become a blue ribbon school, one which is a model to other inner city schools.

This, Cortes says, may be how a community can "create the kind of culture in the schools where creative imaginative people are given the opportunity to challenge and teach our children."

Garrett tells Lions all about the weather

by John Eubanks

Rusty Garrett, chief meteorologist for KWTX-TV Channel 10 in Waco, told the Salado Lions Oct. 28 that next spring's storm season could be rough.

Garrett addressed the Lions during their luncheon held the second and fourth Wednesday of each month at Creekside Restaurant in Mill Creek.

While speaking on a variety of weather-related subjects, Garrett noted that because of the recent El Nino and La Nina weather patterns, long-range forecasts predict that "this coming spring storm season could be particularly severe."

Texas leads the nation in confirmed tornadoes, with some 200 a year. Many more touch down in unpopulated area and go unobserved, Garrett said.

"Predicting weather in Central Texas is very challenging," said Garrett, who's been doing it for 17 years, nearly 10 at Channel 10.

It's even more challenging in an area prone to thunderstorms, as evidenced by the Jarrell tornado in May 1997 that left 27 people dead.

"Most tornadoes travel southwest to northeast," he said. "Jarrell broke that rule and traveled from north and northeast to south and southwest."

And while most tornadoes travel at 15-30 miles per hour, the Jarrell tornado traveled at a mere 5 mph.

It was rated an F5 tornado, the strongest on a 0-5 scale, with winds of 250-300 mph around the vortex, or center of circulation.

It was the tornado's slow movement that allowed a man who lived outside of Jarrell to go against conventional wisdom and outrun the tornado. Garrett said the man decided to drive off in his pickup instead of going into his "sturdy, concrete storm shelter, with a lid that was a ton in weight," Garrett said.

"God bless him, that was the best thing he could have done. The roof of that shelter was gone, and it probably broke into a million pieces. The (tornado's) suction power evacuated everything out of that shelter."

Few tornadoes are F5, Garrett said, mentioning deadly F5's in Waco in 1953 and Wichita Falls in 1979 as examples.

"Most are F0 and F1," he said. "Most are survivable."

Garrett normally spends four days a week addressing elementary school children as part of Channel 10's Project Tornado. Since children are usually fearful of storms and tornadoes, Garrett adds a bit of humor when telling the kids where to go in the event of a tornado.

"We tell them to go to the bathroom," Garrett said. That usually draws giggles from the kids.

Garrett said the bathroom is normally the safest place to go, above ground, because the pipes, plumbing and bathroom walls help deflect debris.

Nearly 78 percent of tornado injuries and deaths are caused by collapsing walls and roof structures, Garrett said, while nearly 90 percent of the Jarrell victims died from flying debris.

Other good places to ride out a tornado are interior closets and hallways on the ground floor.

Garrett said Channel 10 is firmly dedicated to getting the word out when severe weather occurs. As storms were brewing that Tuesday afternoon of May 27 when the Jarrell tornado hit, a member of Channel 10's management team elected to return to regular programming.

"We lost a lot of viewership over that," Garrett said, while stressing the station's commitment to weather coverage.

He said the station has put a lot of money into the latest weather technology, including the Doppler 10 live radar, which has 250,000 watts of radar power.

Garrett praised Bruce Thomas, chief meteorologist of the competing NBC affiliate, KCEN Channel 6, for his work the day of the Jarrell tornado. (Thomas was on the air most of the afternoon and earned accolades for his work. Earlier this year, he accepted an offer to work for a Kansas City TV station.)

Garrett said he's not always popular with viewers when he has to interrupt programming to give a weather alert. Especially when a storm is not in their immediate area.

"That causes a lot of angst on the part of our viewers," he said. "Particularly when Oprah's on or the Guiding

Garrett said he's rarely aware of what's showing on TV when he's monitoring the weather. But he realizes there are times, for instance, when viewers are about to learn the identity of the murderer on the movie of the week -- only to hear Garrett cut in and announce, "This is a News 10 update."

But, he stressed, he would rather someone be mad at him for interrupting programming than to be mad at him for not warning them about a storm.

"I was raised in Texas with a lizard skin, so I can usually take it," he said.

In a phone interview the next day, Garrett was asked about the winter forecast for Central Texas. He said the long-range forecast last June-July called for a warmer, drier winter. But new data released in September indicates a milder and wetter than normal winter.

"I would tend to agree with that," Garrett said, noting that the influence of La Nina would project wetter Pacific systems our way (as opposed to colder Arctic systems).

But, he stressed, "That is certainly, certainly subject to change."

Reporter's notebook: Partly funny conditions prevailed during the Lions' program, with a better than 50 percent chance of laughter.

In his opening comments, Garrett said that when he was invited to speak, he told a Lions official that he normally talks to kids in grades Pre K-5th grade.

"I was told if I slow down a little bit with this crowd..." Garrett said, amid laughter.

Jim Naylor, who introduced Garrett, opened up the question-and-answer session by asking, "Who's Oprah?"

Without skipping a beat, Garrett said, "And what's a Guiding Light?"

After Garrett's address, Lions president Eldon Miller told about the Indian who would regularly predict the weather for the less informed pale faces.

Then one day he told them he couldn't do it.

"No can tell," he told them.

"Why?" they asked.

"Radio broke."

Gathering

The Scottish Gathering "is always intended to be a family event," Scottish Games organizer Cile Ambrose said. "We respect the Inn's policy of no pets and we stress no alcohol on the grounds."

Sunday

Activities Nov. 15 begin with a church service 9-10 a.m. in the Longhorn Room.

It will feature the "Flowers of the Forest," a memorial service for friends and family who have passed away during the past year.

Following the services, the various competitions begin, including the pipe band contest, the drumming contest (both at the Village Green) as well as the "Over 18" Athletic Games at Robertson Plantation.

Continuing this day will be the Wee Scots Games on the Village Green and Scottish vendors at the Scots Hall of the Clans and at College Hill.

Following the Pipe Band Contest will be the Parade of Bands and Tartans starting between 2 and 3 p.m. This stirring and colorful parade down Main Street, with bagpipes and drums playing, wraps up the three-day event.

The Annual Scottish Games and Gathering of the Clan benefit the Central Texas Area Museum.

The annual affair "came about as the perfect fund-raiser for the museum, since this area was settled by many Scottish families," said Mrs. Ambrose, whose ancestors (including Col. Sterling C. Robertson) are among those who settled the area.

Grounds fees for the three-day event are $2 on Friday, $6 on Saturday and $5 Sunday, for adults.

Children 10-16 are $2 Friday and $3 Saturday and Sunday. Those under 10 are free.

There is a separate ticket price for the fingertip supper Friday, the Ceilidh on Saturday afternoon, the Tattoo Saturday evening and the Tartan Ball that follows.
