Travelgate & who's in charge

The White House "Travelgate" issue could easily have become "Sayonara-city" and disappeared in the Spring of 1993, had the folks from Arkansas and their slap-happy assistants put their thinking caps on straight.

The White House travel office personnel, along with all the other support staff

Off the Record

by Ken Clapp

Answer to that stupid line of thinking should always be: "Who would you have him hire - his enemies?"

at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, were in place when the Clintons arrived in January 1993. They were inherited from the Bush administration.

These workers traditionally serve at the pleasure of the President. This means each chief executive can employ his "own" people when he takes office thus allowing him to have in-house workers he feels comfortable with and on whose loyalty he can depend.

They are called "exempt" employees - that is, exempt from the civil service's hiring and firing rules.

All the Clintons had to do was to tell those folks, who handle travel arrangements for the press corps, the staff and once in awhile the first family, that they were going to be replaced. Period. End of story!

Under those circumstances and after pink slips went out, there would naturally be certain congressional types who would jump up and say the President was hiring his friends for these White House jobs.

One journalist recently noted that Nancy Reagan personally "fired" her husband's chief of staff - Don Regan. Not much was said other than the continual complaint that Queen Nancy ran things at the White House. And did a lot of other things that raised eyebrows but did not rise to the current level of name calling and scandal-mongering between Hillary and her Republican detractors and their press toadies.

Back to the present and the travel fiasco on Clinton's watch. What took place was Machiavellian at best and stupid at worst.

The White House top staff decided to find an "important", albeit not needed, reason for dismissing the travel group.

Ah-Ha! Perhaps there was a mishandling of funds. Quick, call in the FBI and have a full fledged investigation and then fire the miscreants!

Talk about Ned-in-the-first-primer. Sort of like telling an alleged wrong-

After 53 years of marriage, how can I put my husband in a nursing home? That's like leaving him."

You love your husband. You want to keep him home with you, where he belongs. But deep within your heart, you know you can't care for him alone forever. You feel yourself growing a little weaker, a little more tired. One day, you'll have to entrust his care to a nursing center. And when that day comes, you wonder how you will be able to tell him.

We can help. Not only will we provide skilled nursing care for your husband, 24 hours a day. We will also extend our care to you. With over 20 years of experience, we can help you make sense of this confusing and difficult time.

Call or mail the coupon, and we'll send you a free copy of When Love Gets Tough, a wonderful book about why sometimes the hardest part of caring for someone is knowing when to ask for help.

Salado lost one of its village characters last week when Jackson, the loving and loveable full size registered poodle belonging to Dr. Don and Micki Ellis passed away. Jackson never met a stranger and was well-known throughout the village, whether he was spotted riding in Don's convertible Lincoln as part of a parade down Main St. or visiting folks in their shops or in Pace Park. Jackson passed away noon January 10. His owners will not be the only ones in Salado to miss the fuzzy face and doleful eyes of Jackson, who was loved by all those who knew him.

by Dr. Bob Rotella and Tom Kite, Special Advisors to Chrysler-Plymouth (NAPS)—Tom Kite, like all great golfers, makes a commitment to excellence and trains diligently to improve his skills. But what makes Tom a champion is he knows what to practice and how to practice. When Tom's training, he works hard. But when playing, he stops working on technique and starts trusting what he's trained.

Here are a few tips I recommend to help you train and trust like Tom:

TRAINING:

Improve mechanics: Work on your set-up, alignment, posture, grip and swing. Aim for perfection.

Work on key shots: Spend most of your time on tee shots and from 120 yards in. Understand these are the most important shots for scoring.

Transition: To aid the transition from training to trusting, end every session by hitting shots without any mechanical thoughts. We call this "play practice."

TRUSTING:

Trust your training: Let go of conscious efforts, and allow your swing or stroke to flow.

Put perfectionism aside: Accept that mistakes are part of the game.

Gain confidence: Strive to be more decisive and relaxed as you move from the first tee to the last green.

So, next time you're out there, remember what I always tell Tom—separate training from trusting, and like Tom, you'll enjoy the results.

NEWS AND NOTES

Multimedia: What You Should Know

(NAPS)—"Multimedia" is a buzz word everyone is using these days, but what exactly does it mean? For people with computers it can include any number of educational, fun, and/or stimulating activities. Among these are motion video, desktop editing, and high-quality games with amazing sound effects. The combination of these will lead you to virtual reality (more buzz words).

What is needed for the average person to enjoy the benefits of multimedia? According to experts at Electronic Industries Association, the following equipment is needed for multimedia status:

- Computer monitor
- CD-ROM Drive
- Sound card
- Computer speakers
- Software

Upgrading your computer to multimedia status is quite possible and a lot cheaper than you think. But keep in mind, there are a lot of choices available to the consumer and whether purchasing a computer monitor, CD-ROM drive, sound card, or computer speakers make sure you demo the equipment to verify that it can perform as the packaging and advertising say it can.

Dr. Sue Hanby to address ABWA about her experience at women's conference

What was it really like at the 1995 international Women's Convention in China — the one which raised so much controversy in the U.S. before, and after, Hillary Clinton decided whether she would attend?

Guests are invited to hear the experiences and anecdotes of Dr. Sue Hanby of Temple as she speaks at the 7:00 p.m. meeting of the American Business Women's Association on Tuesday, January 23. Dr.

Hanby attended the 1995 convention in China as a delegate for the United States. She joins the Chisholm Trail ABWA Chapter for its 10th anniversary meeting at La Mansion restaurant in Salado, beginning with dinner at 6:30 p.m. The group was chartered in January 1986.

Austin Scots plan celebration Jan. 21 of poet Robert Burns birthday

Central Texans are invited to join in an international celebration of the birthday of Scotland's most famous son, poet Robert Burns, by attending a special Burns event.

The annual Austin BURNS NIGHT DINNER will be held at 5:30 p.m. Jan 21 at the Senior Activity Center on 29th and Lamar. The public is welcome and guests are asked Successfully wrapping up its ninth year in the Salado area, the chapter has never missed a year in providing scholarships to local students, predominantly graduates of the Salado, Jarrell and Bartlett high schools. In addition to local scholarships, the organization routinely makes contributions to the national organization's Stephen F. Bufton Memorial Education Fund. The SBMEF provides loans and grants to candidates nationwide, including $3000 in grants and an $800 loan provided to students sponsored by the Chisholm Trail ABWA Chapters since 1986.

to bring a covered dish to share. A request for donation of $5.00 with a dish; $10.00 without a dish at the door.

The evening's entertainment will include bagpipers, Scottish dancing, singing, authentic Scottish foods and readings from Burns, a tradition at Burns Night gatherings worldwide.

SHS students hear program on college financial aid

Victor Howard, Assistant Director of Financial Aid at the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor, presented information to Salado Seniors in their Economics classes on Thursday, January 11. He gave each senior a copy of the Free Application for Federal Student Aid and explained step-by-step how to complete the form.

Howard urged students to take the forms home so that their parents could supply financial information and mail the forms as soon as possible. With many colleges using electronic submission, results are available much sooner than in past years. With results being available sooner, colleges deplete their funds to students much sooner.

Students were also encouraged to list all colleges they are considering. Information on the student will be sent to each of the colleges listed from the single application.

At the end of the presentation, Howard answered questions from the students.

moric adventure on the part of the White House and won't hurt too much.

Whitewater is another matter but it is so complicated, thanks to the lawyers involved along with questionable billing tactics and intramural deals, that we may never figure out what was going on and for most voters it was and is an issue that only adds to Clinton's less than stable image.

All in all, the topics outlined above, along with the pending trial alleging Clinton to be a playboy, go to the matter of character and it will be on this basic issue that the President will be judged and on which he will rise or fall.

DEJA VU -

ALL OVER AGAIN

The other day, on the floor of Congress, one of our Texas Congressman, Tom DeLay, the Republican Whip who hails from Sugarland, was popping-off with his normal vitriolic charm about the budget impasse.

The fiery DeLay shouted: "We're in charge. We don't have to negotiate with the Senate. We don't have to negotiate with the Democrats. We don't have to negotiate with the President".

He went on to say: "We are going to fund only those programs we like and those we don't like, we will kill."

When he mouthed those famous words - "We are in charge" he reminded those of us who follow the fascinating game of politics, of almost the same statement made by former White House Chief of Staff, General Alexander Haig, a few hours after former President Reagan was wounded by a nut trying to impress a movie starlet.

"I'm in charge" screamed the distraught Haig to reporters in a jumped up press conference carried live throughout the nation.

Just what we needed when news of the President's plight was first flashed around the world. Fact is he was not in charge. Veep Bush was around and was technically "in charge" or to get right down to it - President Reagan was still "in charge" since he was lucid and able to carry on despite being in the hospital.

Seems like our current crop of congressional GOPers love to be in charge of things, so the best thing to do would be to find something for these right wingers to take charge of, thus keeping them out of trouble and off TV.

How about heading up a blue ribbon committee to study civility in government? Or better yet, chairing a "Ways and Means Committee" seeking real answers to America's real problems other than the current mean spirited "DeLay" type cut-and-slash approach we see practiced daily in Congress.

DeLay's snotty comments are on a par with a third grader who owns the ball and bat and wants to tell the other kids how to play the game.

BACK TO THE DRAWING BOARD

The newly constituted coordinating committee that is riding herd on the matter of incorporation for Salado will meet Jan. 18, with the CTCOG folks, to draw up new plans to bring the vote back before the community on May 4.

The committee is composed of present and immediate past presidents of various village organizations.

Had things worked out properly last month, villagers would be voting this Saturday on the matter of forming a government in Salado.

More on the results of this session next week.

Letters to editor concern Aquifer, columnist

Dear Editor:

The efforts to invoke rules that could help to protect our drinking water and our creek continue. The latest episode was a fact-finding open meeting in Belton on January 10 held by the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Committee's Water Policy and Regulatory Division.

Seven people spoke although any number could have expressed opinions. Possibly 200 people were present, many from Salado.

Of those who spoke five were against the proposal. In general, they said that protection is not necessary, notwithstanding the fact that protection is in place in every other county which overlies the Edwards Aquifer, and that contamination has occurred here.

I believe that some of the points were irrelevant because no one is certain exactly what the dangers are. One speaker even mentioned his discomfort related to a foxhole in Viet Nam. While I unequivocally support our armed forces. What that has to do with our water supply escapes me.

I believe that the real issue is prevention before more significant contamination occurs. One contaminated area—the Salado Texaco site at Thomas Arnold Road—has cost taxpayers more than $150,000 after a five year cleanup, and will cost more as cleanup continues.

Rational steps taken before contamination seem reasonable, whatever the risks, great or small. It is comparable to immunization of our children. By law, we must do this in spite of the fact that children are well when this is done. Poliomyelitis is quite rare and represents a very small risk but the prevention, by law, remains, as it should. Enforced immunization laws (which take away rights) assure us that poliomyelitis and other diseases will remain rare.

Purity of our drinking water and a clean creek are important even if that means we cannot put in septic tanks side by side or construct other equipment with similar potential to pollute on sites that will drain into the aquifer or creek. We can and should give up that right for the common good.

The TNRCC Water Policy and Regulatory Division (ATTENTION Mary Ambrose) is accepting letters about this issue until Jan. 22. The address is: Mail Code 204 P.O. Box 13087 Austin, Texas 78711-3087.

Sincerely,

R.E. Merrill
Salado, TX

Dear Editor.

I always knew Mr Ken Clapp was a Democrat and made allowances for his occasional hyperbole. His latest rant about the "Draconian" idea of children actually participating in the cost of care for their parents sounds as if he is gearing up to be the spokesperson for the reelect Bill Clinton to save America campaign.

For several thousand years people have been taking care of their families without the aid of government. They were not all rich, but chose to forego two new cars at the same time, the children had to work part time to help pay their way through school, Dad sometimes worked two jobs, but they took care of the family, saved for retirement, and paid off a mortgage. Grandma and Grandpa sometimes had to move in with them, but the family took care of their own. My father cared for my grandmother until her death at the age of 93. He could have saved money by selling her assets and spending her savings so the taxpayer could have paid for her care through Medicaid, but he chose to meet his family responsibilities. If the good Lord blesses me with my parents until they are 93 or 193 and they need help making their way, I expect to take care of them. I don't want the government deciding how my parents should be cared for.

It has only been since the great FDR and his ilk that people have given up on helping themselves and instead wait for the government to do it for them. If the typical family Mr. Clapp describes is in fact typical, where did they learn their spending and saving habits? Probably from the same helpful government that has been spending us to prosperity for 40 years. Perhaps both our government and typical family should have learned moderation so there are savings dollars available for emergencies. Instead we have to have it all now, someone else can take care of any problems later.

Now it is "Draconian" to expect people to act responsibly and help take care of their parents by paying a portion of their cost of care. It is "caring" however to take other people's money, in the form of taxes, to pay for the parents of people who do not want to be responsible? I believe the needy should be helped and our country has a proud history of both private and public help for the needy; but I do not believe it is "Draconian" that today's generation may be inconvenienced by actually having to participate in the care and well being of those who brought them into this world and provided for them for at least the first 18 to 20 years of their life.

Sincerely,
Jody Arnold

Sending a child to college can be costly, and based on recent trends, those costs will quadruple by the time a baby born today graduates from high school. But with a little planning and the TEXAS TOMORROW FUND, it can be easier and more affordable than you think.

Now, the TEXAS TOMORROW FUND-the new Texas Prepaid Higher Education Tuition Program-offers a unique way to pay for your children's future college tuition and fees' while locking those costs in at today's levels.

Every family's needs are different, but for thousands of Texas families, the TEXAS TOMORROW FUND offers the flexibility, affordability and peace of mind they've been looking for.

Sign up now! If you start today, you can be ready for college when your children are.

The TEXAS TOMORROW FUND is a unique new program that allows Texas families to lock in the cost of tomorrow's college tuition and required fees at today's prices.

It covers the tuition and required fees at any state-supported college and university in Texas-and it can give a student a big boost toward covering the tuition and fees at a private college or even an out-of-state school.

The Fund is flexible. It offers a variety of plans and payment options, and you can switch plans later if your student's needs or your own financial situation changes.

To enroll in the program this year, you must sign up by March 31, 1996; the first payment is due on May 1.

The Fund pays for tuition and any fees that are required as a condition of enrollment. It does not pay for room and board, books, transportation or optional fees such as lab fees and fees for specific courses.

Benefits may be transferred to another qualified beneficiary or to an out-of-state college or university.

Refunds may be made to the purchaser if the beneficiary dies or becomes disabled, receives a scholarship or chooses not to attend college.

The Fund does not guarantee a student will be accepted by any college or university. Students must still meet all the normal admission requirements of the schools they wish to.

For more information about the Texas Prepaid Higher Education Tuition Program, please call 1-800-445-GRAD.

Enrollment forms and a more detailed explanation of the program are available at local Comptroller field offices, at participating financial institutions, or by writing the TEXAS TOMORROW FUND at: Texas Prepaid Higher Education Tuition Board, Comptroller of Public Accounts, P.O. Box 13407, Austin, Texas 78711-3407

Dear Editor:

The efforts to invoke rules that could help to protect our drinking water and our creek continue. The latest episode was a fact-finding open meeting in Belton on January 10 held by the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Committee's Water Policy and Regulatory Division.

Seven people spoke although any number could have expressed opinions. Possibly 200 people were present, many from Salado.

Of those who spoke five were against the proposal. In general, they said that protection is not necessary, notwithstanding the fact that protection is in place in every other county which overlies the Edwards Aquifer, and that contamination has occurred here.

I believe that some of the points were irrelevant because no one is certain exactly what the dangers are. One speaker even mentioned his discomfort related to a foxhole in Viet Nam. While I unequivocally support our armed forces. What that has to do with our water supply escapes me.

I believe that the real issue is prevention before more significant contamination occurs. One contaminated area—the Salado Texaco site at Thomas Arnold Road—has cost taxpayers more than $150,000 after a five year cleanup, and will cost more as cleanup continues.

Rational steps taken before contamination seem reasonable, whatever the risks, great or small. It is comparable to immunization of our children. By law, we must do this in spite of the fact that children are well when this is

Museum features Alvin Ailey exhibit

The Bell County Museum, located at 201 N. Main, in Belton is featuring a new exhibit, "Alvin Ailey: From Rogers to Revelations". The exhibit focuses on the life of Bell County native Alvin Ailey and his important contributions to modern dance.

A video will feature dances choreographed by Ailey which were inspired by his early life in Texas.

Exhibit opens Feb. 3 and will remain on view through Dec. 3.

Museum hours are 1-5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.

done. Poliomyelitis is quite rare and represents a very small risk but the prevention, by law, remains, as it should. Enforced immunization laws (which take away rights) assure us that poliomyelitis and other diseases will remain rare.

Purity of our drinking water and a clean creek are important even if that means we cannot put in septic tanks side by side or construct other equipment with similar potential to pollute on sites that will drain into the aquifer or creek. We can and should give up that right for the common good.

The TNRCC Water Policy and Regulatory Division (ATTENTION Mary Ambrose) is accepting letters about this issue until Jan. 22. The address is: Mail Code 204 P.O. Box 13087 Austin, Texas 78711-3087.

Sincerely,

R.E. Merrill

Dear Editor.

I always knew Mr Ken Clapp was a Democrat and made allowances for his occasional hyperbole. His latest rant about the "Draconian" idea of children actually participating in the cost of care for their parents sounds as if he is gearing up to be the spokesperson for the reelect Bill Clinton to save America campaign.

For several thousand years people have been taking care of their families without the aid of government. They were not all rich, but chose to forego two new cars at the same time, the children had to work part time to help pay their way through school, Dad sometimes worked two jobs, but they took care of the family, saved for retirement, and paid off a mortgage. Grandma and Grandpa sometimes had to move in with them, but the family took care of their own. My father cared for my grandmother until her death at the age of 93. He could have saved money by selling her assets and spending her savings so the taxpayer could have paid for her care through Medicaid, but he chose to meet his family responsibilities. If the good Lord blesses me with my parents until they are 93 or 193 and they need help making their way, I expect to take care of them. I don't want the government deciding how my parents should be cared for.

It has only been since the great FDR and his ilk that people have given up on helping themselves and instead wait for the government to do it for them. If the typical family Mr. Clapp describes is in fact typical, where did they learn their spending and saving habits? Probably from the same helpful government that has been spending us to prosperity for 40 years. Perhaps both our government and typical family should have learned moderation so there are savings dollars available for emergencies. Instead we have to have it all now, someone else can take care of any problems later.

Now it is "Draconian" to expect people to act responsibly and help take care of their parents by paying a portion of their cost of care. It is "caring" however to take other people's money, in the form of taxes, to pay for the parents of people who do not want to be responsible? I believe the needy should be helped and our country has a proud history of both private and public help for the needy; but I do not believe it is "Draconian" that today's generation may be inconvenienced by actually having to participate in the care and well being of those who brought them into this world and provided for them for at least the first 18 to 20 years of their life.

Sincerely,
Jody Arnold

Layton Black announces for District 54

Vowing to continue his fight for conservative state government, tax relief at the local level and private property rights, State Representative Layton Black, D-Goldthwaite, announced his candidacy for reelection to the Texas House in District 54.

"We passed some very good legislation in the last session regarding welfare reform, private property rights, crime reduction and education. But there are many challenges ahead for the people of this district and the great state of Texas," Rep. Black said. "With help from the good people of District 54, I'm ready to meet those challenges and bring solutions to the table."

Rep. Black, who was first elected to the House in 1989, said he will work to pass a state budget without any tax or fee increases and also push for tax relief at the local level. Other key issues Rep. Black will focus on next session include Medicare and Medicaid reorganization, added protection for private property rights and improvement of the state's juvenile code.

"We're also going to work on legislation that will ensure affordable and accessible higher education for military personnel at Fort Hood," Rep. Black said, adding there are no public universities in the Killeen area.

"Fort Hood is a valuable and stable base that is crucial to the country's military. We need to make sure our military personnel have access to university-level facilities that offer upper-level courses."

Rep. Black also said he would introduce legislation that would allow local governments to control residential care facilities and also work to maintain the Brownwood and Waco district offices of the Texas Department of Transportation.

In the 74th Legislative Session, Rep. Black sponsored or cosponsored key bills that imposed strict ethical standards on legislative caucuses, reinstated "theft of livestock" into the revised 1993 Penal Code and repealed the Texas High-Speed Rail Act, which in turn abolished the Texas High-Speed Rail Authority.

The 55-year-old state legislator was born in Goldthwaite and is a lifetime rancher and owner of a livestock order-buying service.

Rep. Black graduated from Lometa High School and earned a bachelor of science degree from Texas A&M University in 1963.

He is chairman of the House Administration Committee and Sunset Advisory Commission and is a committee member on State Affairs and State Recreational Resources.

Rep. Black also is a member of the State Preservation Board and Texas Legislative Council.

He and his wife, Thresa, live on the family ranch south of Goldthwaite. District 54 includes Lampasas Mills, McCulloch, San Saba and Bell Counties (part).

Festival of Learning Feb. 6

Teachers and students are gearing up for the Third Annual Festival of Learning to be held Feb. 6. at Thomas Arnold Elementary.

This year's theme is a World Fair and students will visit a variety of countries to learn about the history, customs, music, food, crafts and language.

The following countries will be studied: Austria, Switzerland, Greece, United Nations, Africa, England, Scotland, Netherlands, China, Australia, Japan, Mexico, Venezuela, Israel, Egypt, Germany, and Italy.

If you are available to help with the World Fair, call the elementary school at 947-5191 and leave your name, number and the country of interest. Your message will be directed to the appropriate teacher.

According to spokesperson Ellen Frazier, "This is a perfect opportunity to become involved with our school."
