Celebrate the 'Grand Experiment' on July 4

Tomorrow is America's birthday. Actually the 220th anniversary of what many observers back in the late 18th century called "A Grand Experiment". A label we proudly use to this day.

Sadly, this year's Fourth of July finds many American families in deep mourning. We have just lost some of our sons and daughters in Saudi Arabia and are not sure exactly why! We have been told that those responsible will pay a heavy price but that is small solace to the loved ones who must now carry on alone.

We also find ourselves embroiled in a heated political campaign, on this special day, that is complete with charges of scandal, inefficiency, lack of character, law breaking and stupidity.

All this followed in short order by counter charges of mean spiritedness, greed and uncaring feelings towards those who are managed by those who manage.

One can but hope that at some point in tomorrow's holiday, that will be filled with parades, long winded speeches, rodeos, picnics, Watching Texas' Comptroller, John Sharp, drool when he hears the word "Governor" is much like turning the clock back to the summer of 1978. John Hill had just won the Texas Democratic Party's nomination over two term Dolph Briscoe in one of the nastiest campaigns recorded this century.

Forgetting about the upcoming general election in November, Hill immediately began telling all who would listen what he was going to do when he took over the Governor's Mansion the following January. He put his toadies to work on a proposed two year State budget; explored the cost of a brand new state airplane for his personal use; made plans to redecorate the Governor's Office and began making a list of his buddies who would be appointed to positions of authority throughout state government.

Only thing he didn't do was to watch the feisty, loud mouthed Republican nominee from Dallas. Name of Bill Clements.

And guess who-bit-who in the "gluteus-maximus" on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of 1978?

Hello - Wild Bill Clements! And goodbye, autocratic John Hill.

And thus the out-of-nowhere Clements became the first Republican since reconstruction to take over the reins of Texas government. All this thanks in large part to Hill's imperiousness and super-heated overconfidence plus help given Clements by unhappy Briscoe supporters, who hated Hill with a passion that might have been better used during the primary campaign instead of waiting until that battle was lost.

Not sure what ambulance Hill is chasing these days but his tunnel-visioned arrogance in 1978 made him an unforgettable joke in Texas' politics.

Now comes John Sharp who is positioning himself to run against George W. Bush, the current resident in the Governor's Office as well as only the second GOPer in that job since the post civil war era.

Bush is probably one of our more popular Guvs we See Record, Page 12A family gatherings - someone will think about our great nation in terms of accomplishments rather than shortcomings.

We have freedom to come and go. Worship as we please. Rise as high as our abilities allow. And in most instances there are no legal barriers preventing us from achieving our highest goals.

True, we are far from perfect. We still have to overcome prejudice that has bothered us from early days. You remember that at first we didn't like the Indians. Later, hated the British and Canadians. And then came the immigrants - Irish, Chinese, Italians and others who were quickly relegated to squalor.

Today they have been replaced by people of color, some who speak strange languages and are among our very poorest and not likely to rise above that level.

Despite these shortcomings, we have put men on the moon; we have conquered many diseases and are working hard to lengthen the life span of our citizens. We are economically strong. And we have built every imaginable device to make life easier. We are recognized as the number one leader throughout the world.

America is the light that shines in the hearts and minds of people who are oppressed throughout the world. Otherwise why do so many people seek asylum in this country? Why do others risk death and imprisonment just to sneak across our borders?

And when things go awry anywhere on the globe - who do they turn to for help? You guessed it - the United States of America!

Even our enemies receive aid when they are hurting.

America is unique. America is an experiment in freedom and democracy that works - despite the warts. And America is our blessed home. How fortunate we are to have been given the opportunity to live here and we should spend a moment - especially on the Fourth of July to thank God for giving us

What convention did media attend?

Dear Editor,

I'm not sure which convention Kenn Clapp and those other reporters attended but it was not the same one I attended.

I have just returned from San Antonio where I was a delegate to the biennial state convention of the Republican Party of Texas.

Conventions are interesting, fun, lots of hard work, filled with frustrations, but they do serve a very real purpose. It is an opportunity to meet and hear candidates, to study the issues, and to work toward unity and singleness of purpose in the party and to let our voices be heard by those responsible for future legislation.

The theme of the convention was "76 in '96" with the goal of electing at least 76 Republicans to our state legislature.

We adopted a platform with more than one hundred thirty planks promoting a strong defense, crime victims' rights, prison reform, swift and just punishment of offenders, state sovereignty, reduced taxes, a balanced budget, direct election of state judges, term limitations, property ownership and groundwater rights, quality environment and land management, welfare reform, local control of schools, support of classroom teachers, teaching creation science in public schools, teaching of directive abstinence until heterosexual marriage as the only way to prevent spread of sexually transmitted disease and to build strong family relationships.

Also, allowing prayer on public school property, abolishment of the United States Department of Education, defending, protecting, strengthening, and nurturing marriage and the family at all levels of government, opposition to United States Senate ratification of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child which would transfer jurisdiction over parental rights and responsibilities to international bureaucracies, opposition to promoting homosexuality as an acceptable alternative life style in our public policies, repeal of the no fault divorce laws, return our monetary system to the gold standard, impeachment of federal judges who abuse their authority, insuring that all United States armed forces remain under the command and control of our commander-in-chief and his military chain of command.

Also, support of the domestic energy industry, support of private research and development of alternative energy sources, opposition to making Washington, D.C. the fifty-first state, reform of Social Security, repeal of the "Motor Voter" law, immediate adoption of American English as the official language of Texas and the United States, reform of immigration policies, removal of foreign military bases from American soil, rescinding the Brady bill, honoring citizens' rights to keep and bear arms,

And, respect for and safeguarding the unborn child's right to life, and opposition to genocide, euthanasia, and assisted suicide. All of these issues are very real for Texans and all Americans.

Many current laws have been enacted because citizens at the grass roots level have not been alert and attuned to what goes on in our state legislature and congress. It is only through the convention process that laws will be changed.

There were approximately 22,000 persons at the convention and this many people can make a lot of noise.

Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison received the loudest and longest standing ovation of any of the speakers. Headlines read, "GOP Leaders Adore Hutchison" and described Governor George W. Bush's reception as a "love fest". Headlines in the Village Voice read, "GOP Intolerant at the Convention". That was correct. Republicans are intolerant.

They are intolerant of many things, including creeping socialism in our country, rising crime rates, run-away taxes, loss of individual freedoms, deterioration of the American family structure, corruption in government, big government, erosion of morals and many other serious problems plaguing our country.

But, my good friends who are Democrats are also intolerant of these same things as well and they are proud of it as I am.

Other Salado area residents serving as delegates to the convention were Tim and Lana Brown, Ray Turk, Bora Van Dormolen and Richard Castle. Michelle Lenis, a junior at Salado High School represented Senatorial District 24 as a page. Her mother, Barbara Lenis was a guest. I appreciate being able to serve the Salado precinct as your chairman and as a convention delegate.

Sincerely,
MaryBelle Brown,

Dear Mr. Editor:
Applause! Applause! And hurrah for your recent response to Dr. Pappas' letter. You could not have been more succinct in your efforts to diffuse the thoughts "there are a number of qualities lacking in the Village and that, perhaps, we should load our U-Hauls and quietly leave town". Thank you, but no thank you, there is not going to be a Mass exodus out of the village. Certainly not at the prodding of our critics who came long after we were already here. I do not care to find myself in a confrontational position with my neighbors, because that is not my style, preferring to find reason in debate. It is just not right, however, as our Editor noted not to react to those who choose to chastise us.

Salado is a unique jewel in the heartland of Texas favored by many for 150 years, to be their homes and to raise God-fearing families without being exoriated because of our likes or dislikes. We have lived in harmony, acknowledging the right to disagree, but inevitably reaching the right decisions.

Are there matters in the Village we could improve on? Certainly, but the matters that are better are ten-fold -- nay, one hundredfold -- more than the former. Look around and measure qualities of life that provide us with pride and an unusual life style. Name our neighboring communities, or, for that matter, any place in Texas where you enjoy, and, can be a part of the good work that inures to our benefit, i.e., marvelous civic and meeting center, outstanding public library, top 10 percentile TEA-2A school, the Institute for the Humanities, which is one of a kind in the U.S., our nationally-known Mill Creek Golf and Country Club, recognized gourmet dining, well known and large percentage of population of all types of professional people, demographically and geographically would rank at top of economic indicators and so much more.

As I stated earlier, there are a number of things that require attention that will make our village better. We get there through reasonable assembly and the greatest group of volunteers in the world. Be patient, don't over react and don't scold us, because we are our best at doing good!

Mr. Editor, this is not nearly as eloquent as your letter, but it is intended to reflect the warm feelings of the majority of the pilgrims in Salado.

I have known the Pappas Family for five decades and know them to be honorable, hard-working, diligent people and real patriots of this country. However, I regret that we have differing opinions on the future of Salado.

God Bless Salado and God Bless America!

4-H alumni sought in Texas

When you ask people what football legend Don Meredith and actress Sissy Spacek have in common, the most frequent answer is that they are both famous. What's also unique is that they are both former Texas 4-H members.

The Texas 4-H Foundation and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, at Texas A&M University are conducting a "4-H Heritage Search" to find as many former 4-H members and friends as possible to join The 4-H Friends and Alumni Association of Texas. The search continues through Dec. 31, 1996. "The 4-H Friends and Alumni Association of Texas is being established to identify alumni and eventually help strengthen the ongoing Texas 4-H Youth and Development Program," said Bonnie McGee, assistant to the executive director. "Over the years, alumni have shown support for 4-H in various ways, contributing time, skills, services and dollars."

This new organization allows people to continue their support and enables members to help "today's youth develop such key attributes as leadership, commitment, responsibility, self-confidence and communications skills," McGee added.

Peace is not only better than war, but infinitely more arduous.

SISD Board discusses building needs at meeting

The Salado ISD Board of Trustees voted to repair the high school track, accepted two resignations and hired two teachers at its regular meeting June 18.

All board members were present. Various members of the community were also present including Rod Stockstill, Jim Evans, and Pat Goode.

Rod Stockstill, Elementary principal, reviewed the TAAS scores, noting that 6th grade scores as reported in paper were incorrect. Reading/Language Arts was 91%, and Math was 87%. TAAS scores overall were very good and teachers were commended for their efforts.

Attendance rate for the 95-96 school year was 97%. Sea Camp, recently held at TAE was a success, and Donna Driggers, Elementary Counselor will return July 29 to assume her duties.

Jim Evans gave an update on summer maintenance repairs.

Three students have been employed from the JTPA program. It was reported that the air conditioning system at the high school is in need of service so that maintenance costs can be kept at a minimum.

Another item that is needed is consideration of replacing and/or repairing roofs at both schools. Records show that $20,000 has been spent in the last five years on repairing roof leaks at the Elementary school. It was noted that proposals received last year on a new built up roof at the elementary would cost approximately $48,000. Donnie Jackson proposed that the district review proposals submitted last year and consider possibilities of replacing and/or repairing roofs.

Pat Goode discussed current conditions at the cafeteria and improvements that were needed. Participation in lunch program has increased from last year. The district is looking to include existing snack bar with the school lunch program implementing state guidelines which would allow for meal reimbursement. Goode told the board that additional equipment was needed to continue improving the program.

Superintendent Steven Ervin reported that the ADA for the year was 705.88 and the year end enrollment was 761. He also informed the board that references were checked on Gold Medal Track, low bidder for resurfacing of track, and his recommendation was to award bid.

The board was also asked to return surveys from David Leigh by Friday week for the team building workshop on July 10th. The next regular board meeting was scheduled for July 9th.

The motion was made by Sara Mackie to accept the low bid from Gold Medal Track. Second by Juana Preston. The vote was unanimous.

The board discussed approval of the second year of Workers Compensation Contract with Claims Administrative Services, Inc.-Tyler. Dr. Ervin reported that the district had saved $155,000 in taxpayer's funds over the last three years by going with self-funding of workers compensation insurance. Contract rates from last year have dropped 40 percent and only $13,500 is required to be kept in the account compared to last year's $33,000. The Superintendent recommended approving the second year of the contract with Hibbs Hallmark.

The motion was made by Rita Brown to accept superintendent's recommendation and continue contract, receiving a second from Sara Mackie. It carried 7-0.

The board accepted the resignations of Vicki Cole and Ellen Frazier, on a motion by Donnie Jackson, with a second from Juana Preston.

Roger Hunter made the motion to accept recommendation of High School principal Sammy Edwards to employ John Black and Gary Askins. Donnie Jackson gave a second to the motion. It carried 6-1 with Robert Merrill voting against.

have had in many a moon but does that daunt Sharp. Ohhhhhh, Nooooo! Sharp is too busy getting into every state agency's business and in every newspaper column, TV station and radio program that one wonders if this is one man or a hundred look-alike clones.

Noticed the other day he issued a press release telling us what to eat during the summer and how to prepare a wedding - all this under the guise of saving sales taxes which Sharp is supposed to be out collecting. He is so good to us!

Sharp has used his position as comptroller of public accounts to study every agency in the State. Telling them how to run their shops. How to save money, fire workers and in general making a nuisance of himself and his minions. Probably the most disliked politician in state government right now.

Sharp is so preoccupied with running for Governor that he cannot see defeat staring him in the face. He thinks of himself as invincible and as former U.S. House Speaker Sam Rayburn once said: "Put arrogance and ignorance together in a politician and you will find a man headed for defeat and home".

Anyway - it is interesting to see Sharp plowing ahead on his defiant way to the Governor's Mansion without giving a thought to Gov. Bush's popularity.

And like John Hill - there will be a great and rude awakening next year when Sharp discovers Bush has beaten him like a drum.

This is the price paid by impatient politicians who are tarred with a self anointed arrogance that precludes waiting for their turn at bat!

GOP TURNCOAT

State Democratic headquarters sent out faxes to all media centers last week highlighting the fact that one Jim Marchbanks, Chairman of the Teenage Republicans of Texas had switched parties and is now a card carrying Democrat.

"I cannot participate in, nor will I condone the intolerance of the mainstream, which is the popular thing to do in the GOP," Marchbanks noted in his letter to State Demo party chief Bill White.

His letter continued: "The Republican Party has lost its good motives and now seeks to change people who they feel are not socially acceptable. It is a party that feels no responsibility towards mainstream Americans, only to corporate special interests and its rich contributors."

Marchbanks at 19, was the youngest member of the state Republican Executive Committee.

White naturally welcomed the party switcher and used the occasion to mention President Clinton's plan to help students with their first two years of higher education.

Nothing from the Repubs about this ship-jumper at press time.

Guestroom is very successful

In Central Texas, the Guestroom program isn't very well known to the general public. Most people don't even know such a program exists - unless they or a loved one has had cancer.

The Guestroom program was developed by the American Cancer Society in conjunction with hotels and motels across the country. If a cancer patient is receiving outpatient treatment in a distant city, the American Cancer Society can usually arrange for them to stay at one of the member hotels at no charge. The American Society doesn't pay for the room, the hotels donate the lodging out of goodwill for the community.

In Bell County, there are 8 hotels that are currently participating in the Guestroom program. They are Best Western Inn at Scott & White, Belton Inn - Budget Host, Fairfield Inn, Hampton Inn, Guesthouse Inn, LaQuinta, Ramada Inn, and Scott & White RV Park. The coordinator of this program is Betty Kennedy.

A service like the Guestroom program is just one of the ways the American Cancer Society, Scott & White Hospital, and community leaders are working to diminish the suffering caused by cancer in Bell county.

Congressman Chet Edwards Reports

FOURTH OF JULY, A DAY TO CELEBRATE AND REMEMBER SACRIFICE

On July 4th, two hundred and twenty years ago, 56 courageous men signed the Declaration of Independence and officially announced the birth of a new nation.

By pledging their lives, fortunes and sacred honor more than two centuries ago, they began the greatest experiment in freedom and democracy that the world has ever seen.

The words of that Declaration written in 1776 have inspired people of all nations:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that among those are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Every night at the National Archives in Washington, D.C., that document, the Declaration of Independence, is stored beneath 20 feet of steel and concrete. That hardened hiding place is strong enough to withstand anything short of a direct nuclear attack.

But the lesson of America is that the rights enumerated in the Declaration of Independence are not protected by that piece of parchment displayed in the archives. No, the principles of freedom that Declaration represent have been and are protected by the sacrifices of countless Americans.

Most importantly, that freedom is a legacy that must be passed on to each generation.

The price of America's freedom has been paid by the blood of our people throughout the generations.

They fought for us in the freezing fields of Valley Forge, the hills and farms of Gettysburg, the forests of the Argonne, the beaches of Normandy, the mountains of Korea, the jungles of Vietnam and the sands of the Persian Gulf.

When so many Americans are anxious about the future, I believe it is good for us to also look at the past and present.

Despite all our problems, America is the greatest nation in the world. As Americans, we have opportunity, freedoms and a future that people of other nations only dream about.

As proof of that, not a day goes by that someone contacts me and asks for help immigrating to the U.S. Yet, no American citizen has asked me for help in renouncing their citizenship so that they can leave our country.

I believe that is a good indicator that our nation is still strong to none in freedom and opportunity.

Sure, there is a lot of room for improvement in our government and in our country.

But the Fourth of July is one day when we can all come together as a country to celebrate our blessings.

We should always remember that our nation is strong because our people are free.

That freedom was paid for and is protected by the blood, sweat and tears of millions of Americans.

On this Independence Day, I hope that all of our families will remember our many blessings and those who made them possible.

Salado Alert

All tropical forests will be cleared in 177 years if present deforestation rates continue.

Logging, fuelwood gathering, and conversion of forests are the main causes of the loss of tropical forests.

Estimates state that 16.4 to 20.4 million hectares (a hectare=10,000 meters squared) of forest are destroyed each year.

Rubber, pesticides, and medicines and timbers are among the forest products that will be drastically affected by the continued depletion of the tropical forests.

Tropical rainforest plants may have the potential to fight cancer. The Salado Alert is a public service of the Salado Historical Society Creek Watch Committee and the Salado Village Voice.

Husband-wife artists show floral art at Salado Art Fair

Husband and wife team Kim Federici and Peter Florczak will offer their floral designs in glass at the Salado Art Fair Aug. 3-4 in Pace Park.

Federici and Florczak are owners/operators of Kimpeter Enterprises, which offers creative designs using floral elements to convert the three dimension of nature into two-dimensional images utilizing four motifs: Traditional, Victorian, Contemporary and Japanese.

Traditional design is the reconstruction of florals arrangements as they exist in nature.

Victorian design is an elaborate overlaying of designs to recreate the highly embellished styles of the 1800s while contemporary features abstract designs.

Japanese Ikebana creates contemplative design with ultimate simplicity of form.

"The application of the designs is made in high quality beveled glass," said Federici. "Using these pieces as building blocks, we create mobiles, sconces, individual pieces framed in stained glass, kaleidoscopes and boxes."

"Our use of glass is one technique among several that allows for the presentation of our art. The glass is to our arrangements as framing and matting is to a watercolor," she continued. "Glass is not our primary art form... pressed flower art is. Other techniques include: natural flower pressing in botanical presses, custom dyeing of flowers, copper foiling with decorative solder art, stained glass work and macrame.

Peter attended the University of Illinois and earned a degree in Architecture, Architectural interior and graphics design.

Kim attended Stockton State College and has been a plant shop owner, art therapist and calligraphy instructor.

Just exercise will help keep off the weight

Exercise alone, not diet and exercise, is the key to keeping the weight off, study findings show.

According to a two-year study conducted at Baylor College of Medicine's DeBakey Heart Center, people who exercise without following a restricted diet maintain their weight.

"This confirms what we have known all along — people who diet fail at it because they feel deprived," said Dr. Ken Goodrick, an assistant professor of medicine at the Behavioral Medicine Research Center at Baylor. "By overcoming negative attitudes about exercise, people can learn to enjoy it and appreciate the benefits."

The study consisted of 127 overweight men and women who were placed in one of three groups — a diet and exercise group, a diet-only group, and an exercise-only group.

The first year involved group instructional sessions led by registered dietitians.

After the first year, the diet-only and diet and exercise groups lost the most weight. But the second year, both groups regained the weight. The exercise-only group lost weight and maintained the loss.

Exercise-only participants were taught the psychological and physical benefits of exercise and how to exercise vigorously, not strenuously. They gradually increased their exercise to 45 minutes three to five times a week.

The study findings were published recently in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association.

Landrums attend Huffman reunion

Cy and Minta Landrum attended her Huffman reunion in San Marcos last week end. Forty members were present.

Leonidas and Araminta Huffman had six children - Maxwell (deceased), Calvin (deceased), Elizabeth, Lon (deceased), Minta, and Edward. They were owners and publishers of the newspaper, The Guide, for fifty years, in Eagle Pass, Texas.

The afternoon, an auction of homemade items and refreshments were given (merienda) were held. Corsages were given to the five aunts: Olive (Calvin's wife), Annie Lou (Lon's wife), Ruth (Edward's wife), Elizabeth and Minta, who was given an orange corsage. Elizabeth was especially honored as the oldest member (86 years old) and because she made such a special effort to come to the reunion. She had heart surgery last year and had been very ill.

A member of each family then gave a brief report on his or her family, facts that were shared lovingly in the conversation by the close knit family the rest of the day.

Ann Landrum Hooper (Cy and Minta's daughter), her husband Ralph, their daughter, Genis and her husband Justin will be in charge of the reunion next year.

Cattlemen bailing everything in sight

by James M. Davis
Co. Ext. Agent

Cattle producers are cutting and bailing just about anything they can get their hands on for winter hay. Of course everyone is concerned about prussic acid and nitrate poisoning. We have had way over a hundred phone calls at the office this week about the problem.

I have talked to people this past week that had cows die due to what appeared to be prussic acid poisoning. So the danger is out there and very real.

There is a big difference between prussic acid and nitrate poisoning and producers need to know the difference; before they can manage around the problem.

Management of possible high nitrate forages include:

1. Never turn hungry animals into possible high nitrate forages. Often a producer may 'turn out' temporary forages to help animals in poor condition. They may eat 6.8% of their body weight rather than their usual 2-3%. The combination of poor body condition, high nitrate levels in the forage plus high consumption amounts could be deadly.

2. Nitrate levels remain constant in hay if high nitrates are suspected, cut high leaving the lower portion of the plant. Have the hay tested nitrates. Feed high nitrate hay with an energy supplement or in combination with low protein, or hay low in nitrates.

3. Ensiling forages high in nitrates will reduce nitrate levels by 40-60% when properly fermented. However, high nitrite forages can produce nitrate dioxide (silo gas) when feeding. It is highly poisonous to humans.

4. Renewed plant growth from a rain or irrigation will decrease nitrate levels (however, this could lead to prussic acid poisoning in sorghums discussed below).

5. If problems are expected or if the cattle do not do well or exhibit peculiar health symptoms, have your veterinarian pull blood samples. Nitrates or prussic acid problems can be diagnosed.

6. Green chopping is the most dangerous feeding method from the nitrate toxicity perspective.

Prussic acid, which develops in plants is converted to cyanide in the animal. Symptoms may develop within five minutes of eating plants and death may occur within fifteen minutes. Salivation, and breathing occur followed by muscular tremors, uncoordination, bloating, convulsions and death due to respiratory failure. Prussic acid can accumulate in plants the sorghum family such as Johnson grass, sudan grass, forage sorghums and grain sorghum. It may also form in Bahia, corn, cocklebur white clover and other minor plants.

Management of possible prussic acid forages.

1. When any of the cyanogenic accumulating plant have been subject to drought, freezing or other damage, they should not be grazed unless tested for hydrocyanic acid.

2. Second growth, sorghums should be grazed with caution if growing conditions are poor.

3. Remove all animals from the feed source when, an animal is found to have suddenly died after grazing forages under poor growing conditions

4. Prevent grazing of wilted plants or plants with young tillers.

5. Prussic acid will dissipate if properly cured for hay and not fed for a few months.

The Texas A&M Soils Lab can run test for nitrates. The Veterinary Medical School Diagnostic Lab can run both prussic acid and nitrates ($5 for prussic acid plus $6 for nitrate). To run prussic acid test, the diagnostic lab needs a fresh sample. So, it would be best to drive the sample to the lab located behind the clinic on FM 60 at College Station. The problem with running test for prussic acid is that it tends to 'come and go' in the field.

Remember, nitrate occurs in older leaves and lower parts while prussic acid occurs in young growth. Nitrate can occur in all plants while prussic acid occurs mainly in sorghums. Grazing problems in nitrate occur later when animals consume lower plant parts while prussic acid grazing problems occurs early in grazing periods. In nitrate death occurs usually within 4 hours of digesting high nitrate forage and in prussic acid death can occur within minutes of consumption of forage. Haying in nitrate does not affect level while in haying prussic acid dissipates over time. Ensiling decreases nitrate level and does not affect prussic acid.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, national origin or disability.

It is not enough to have a good mind. The main thing is to use it well.

Museum plans Chisholm Trail exhibit

The Bell County Museum is planning an exhibit about the Chisholm Trail to open in September 1996 and continue through August 1997. The Museum seeks artifacts and information related to the famous cattle drive.

The Chisholm Trail was used for only twenty years or so, but this era produced a long-lasting effect on American culture. The mythology of the American cowboy is continuously featured in art, literature, and advertising. The exhibit will explore life on a trail drive, the cattle industry, and how the short-lived Chisholm Trail contributed to local and U.S. history.

"The Chisholm Trail passed through Central Texas and Bell County, and many Bell County natives participated in the drives," said curator Jodi Wright. "We are interested in obtaining information about people who rode the trail and their experiences. We are also requesting any artifacts which belonged to these individuals that we can use for the exhibit."

"The items on our 'most wanted' list are things used on the Chisholm Trail, such as hats, boots, spurs, saddles, chaps, Dutch ovens, and maps," Ms. Wright said. "We would also like to exhibit photographs of Central Texas taken during the time of the Chisholm Trail, 1867-1885." The Bell County Museum accepts donations of artifacts and will negotiate loans for the duration of the exhibit.

The Bell County Museum is located at 291 North Main in Belton. Hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m. Admission is free. For more information please call (817) 933-5243.

Don't hold the mayo

Don't hold the mayo! Many people are uneasy about eating chicken salad, potato salad and similar dishes at summer picnics because they have heard that foods made with mayonnaise are the most likely to cause food poisoning.

Scientists have shown that adding mayonnaise to foods does not make it more dangerous. Food containing mayonnaise may actually be slightly safer than similar foods without mayonnaise because the acid in the mayonnaise slows the growth of bacteria that cause food poisoning.

However, studies have shown that the acid content of "homemade" mayonnaise may be too low to create comparable protection.

Mixed foods like chicken salad and potato salad, probably got their bad reputation simply because they undergo a lot of handling, during preparation, and this can contaminate them with bacteria.

When the pleasures of a leisurely picnic are spoiled by a bout of food poisoning, sick picnickers are often quick to blame the food. Seldom do they realize that the cause of sickness is more often the handling of the food rather than the food itself.

To play it safe, follow

these tips:

Scrub hands before starting food preparation and between steps.

After using knives and other utensils on raw meats, eggs, fish and poultry, clean thoroughly, especially before using on other foods. Failure to clean is one way to spread harmful bacteria.

Thoroughly scrub work surfaces after raw meats are cut or where raw meat juices have dripped.

Use clean sponges, dish cloths and rubber gloves; over used ones can spread germs.

Refrigerate cooked foods such as chicken, potatoes and ham as soon as they stop steaming. Cooling foods to room temperature before refrigerating encourages bacterial growth. Perishable foods may not be safe to eat if they have been held at room temperatures of 60 F or higher for more than three or more hours.

Refrigerator chill all perishable foods before packing. Keep them in a cooler with ice or commercial reusable cold packs until you are ready to eat. If you use ice, pack the food in tight containers or plastic bags so that it doesn't get wet when the ice starts to melt. Transport to picnic in insulated containers.

Hamburgers or other raw meat should go into the cooler, but keep them separate from other foods. Uncooked meats contain really large numbers of bacteria, some of which could be harmful. The Common food poisoning types of bacteria are sensitive to heat, so cooking will kill them, making the meat safe to eat. These bacteria can cause problems, however, they contaminate other foods such as salads which don't receive further cooking before they are eaten.

Don't hold the mayo. Add it to salad and sandwich mixtures during initial preparation.

At picnics, keep food out of direct sun. To reduce traffic-in and out of picnic hamper, pack food to be eaten first at the top of container.

Don't be tempted to carry leftovers home. It is safer to discard perishables.

For more information on food poisoning, contact the Extension Office in Belton.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, national origin or disability.

Report card in on health of women, children in Texas

Report cards are in, and the records evaluate more than just reading, writing and arithmetic. A new Texas Department of Health (TDH) report card, which highlights the health of the state's women and children, shows improvement in six of eight key areas.

Health indicators with good grades show that more mothers required an adequate number of prenatal visits, the rate for young children is up, fewer infants die before their first birthday and repeat pregnancies among teen-age mothers decrease in 1994 compared with figures from 1988. This six-year span is used for comparison with the goals set for the year 2000, which is six years from 1994.

The percentage of pregnant women Texas receiving an adequate number of prenatal visits rose from 52.5 percent to 67.7 percent. This figure exceeds the goal for the year 2000, which is 65 percent. Infant mortality dropped from 9 deaths per 1,000 live births in 1988 to 7.1 deaths per 1,000 live births in 1994. Goal for the year 2000 is 7 deaths per 1,000 live births. And the number of repeat pregnancies among teen mothers fell from 15.5 to 13.1 per 1,000 total population. The 1994 figure also exceeds the goal for the year 2000 of 14 per 1,000 total population.

TDH programs that identify children and nutritional risk also show a decrease of more than 50 percent in the rate of anemia in these children within four years. The rates dropped from 45.2 percent of children ages 1 to 5 diagnosed with anemia in the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) Nutrition Program in 1991 to 20.5 percent in 1995. Anemia in children, usually caused by inadequate nutrition, can slow brain growth and cause learning difficulties.

Following the intense initiative Shots Across Texas, the levels for the basic series rose from 41.6 percent of 2-year-old children born in 1987-88 to 55 percent in 1994. An even more encouraging figure came from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in 1995 that put the Texas immunization rate for children from 19 to 35 months at 71 percent. The U.S. level was estimated to be 75 the same time.

Recommendation for the year 2000 is to increase immunization levels for the basic series among 90 percent of children under age 2 and 95 percent of children in licensed child care facilities and grades K-12.

On the other end of the chart, the increase in the number of teen-age women age 13 to 17 who are pregnant is one area that needs critical attention. The state rate for teen pregnancy increased from 39.2—per 1,000-female teens in 1988 to 41.5 per 1,000 in 1994 despite the fact that repeat pregnancies among teen mothers fell. Goal for the year 2000 is 38.5 per 1,000 female teens. Teen-age mothers are at a higher risk for having a low birth-weight baby than other women.

Also, the number of Texas infants delivered at low birth weight - under 5.5 pounds increased slightly during the same time period, rising from 6.9 percent to 7 percent. Babies born with a low birth weight often need expensive medical care and are at high risk for developmental problems.

"Better health outcomes don't just happen," said Dr. David R. Smith, Texas Commissioner of Health. "They are the result of many people and organizations working together for concrete improvements.

Women who get early and regular prenatal care, for instance, are more likely to take care of themselves during their pregnancy and have healthier babies. Another indicator is the percentage of mothers who breast-feed their newborns at the hospital. The numbers rose from 49.6 percent in 1988 to 54.3 percent in 1993, the last year for which statistics are available in this area.

"We need to do more than just make Texans aware of health problems," said Dr. Smith. "We need to educate the public about what they can do to be healthier and to have healthier children."
