Dedication of Civic Center bandstand, park Aug. 10

This Saturday, August 10, Saladoans will gather at the new bandstand on the grounds of the Civic Center to the sounds of some great music by the famed Fourth Infantry Division Band under the baton of Warrant Officer Fred Catchings. The program begins at 9 a.m. but planners of the early morning event have suggested that villagers come early for a good seat and also to hear a pre-program concert that will include such great tunes as the Washington Post March and the National Emblem March.

Seating will be in front of the bandstand and under the cool shade of the giant oak trees just south of the civic center.

"This will be a red letter day for Salado" noted Civic Center Foundation Board Chairman Ken Clapp. "Our special guest, Lt. General Thomas Schwartz, will be speaking on the subject of 'Volunteerism' which is most appropriate since he is the leader of a great military organization that is a vital part of the successful all-volunteer armed forces of this nation."

General Schwartz is the Commanding General of III Corps and Fort Hood. He took over his duties as leader of the world's largest tank and infantry base in December of this past year and has been active in various events within the central Texas area.

Clapp continued: "General Schwartz has been especially impressed with the volunteer spirit of Salado and plans to announce during his speech the creation of a 'partnership' between the First Battalion, Fourth Aviation Regiment and the Village of Salado".

General Schwartz, his wife Sandy and a number of other officials from Fort Hood will be on hand for the dedication of the bandstand on the Civic Center complex and it was through his assistance that made it possible to have one of the great military bands on hand to initiate the new facility.

PARTNERSHIP

General Schwartz will introduce the Commanding Officer of the "partner" aviation regiment, Lt. Colonel Doug Eller who in turn will present Salado Chamber of Commerce President Lloyd Parks with a symbol of the Apache Helicopter unit. Parks will officially accept the "Partnership" invitation that is expected to include a number of activities between the combat aviation battalion and the Village of Salado.

The Salado Chamber of Commerce's Board of Directors approved the project unanimously several months ago and noted at that time that they were looking forward to the partnership arrangement.

President Parks and Colonel Eller have met and

Lieutenant General Thomas A. Schwartz
Commanding General III Corps and Fort Hood

drawn up several time-line plans to get the "Partnership" program in full swing in the near future.

CONCERT PLANNED

Civic Center Foundation President Bob Cottle will be Master of Ceremonies of the early Saturday morning program and following the Pledge of Allegiance led by Salado Eagle Scout Lamar Kirk and the group singing of "God Bless America" led by band director Catchings, the Fourth Infantry Band will entertain the crowd with a concert of a number of se-

Recognized: Salado ISD receives results of TEA accreditation study

Salado ISD received word from the Texas Education Agency Aug. 1 that it was an Academically Acceptable District and that Salado High School was a Recognized School Campus, according to Supt. Steven Ervin.

The data used for the accountability tables was attendance and Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test.

Salado ISD students in grades 3-8 and grade 10 take the TAAS test every Spring. The overall district results on the TAAS test for Spring 1996 were these: Reading, 89 percent of 347 students passing; Mathematics, 90.4 percent of 345 students passing and Writing, 92.2 percent of 153 students passing.

Salado ISD had an attendance record of 96.5 percent with 109,972 total days present.

The district also received a recognized acknowledgment from TEA based on high school students college admissions tests results.

Salado High School received a recognized campus rating with a recognized acknowledgment based on attendance, TAAS scores and college entrance exams.

Students in grades 7-8 and 10 taking the TAAS test in 1996 showed the following ratings: Reading, 90.5 percent of 158 students passing; Mathematics, 84.8 percent of 158 students passing; and Writing, 92.2 percent of 103 students passing.

Thomas Arnold Elementary School received an Acceptable campus rating for the Pre-K through 6th grade site.

Students in grades 3-6 taking the TAAS Test in Spring 1996 showed the following results: Reading, 87.8 percent of 189 students passing; Mathematics, 95.2 percent of 187 students passing; Writing, 92 percent of 50 students passing.

"Four years ago, our district goal was to reach 90 percent passing the TAAS," said Superintendent Steve Ervin. "On the way to this goal, we have had personnel changes, a 35 percent increase in the student population, many changes in state mandates and yet we have remained focused on the goal."

"I was very pleased with our current TAAS test results," he added. "They reflect the hard work our teachers and administrators have placed on student achievement. Last year, our goal at the campus level was to improve math. We have had a significant increase in this area. Reading is the focus at the state level this coming year and is also our focus."

"In the last two years we have also accomplished other academic goals. In 1995, we were the class AA UIL State Academic champion and in 1996, we came in second place," Ervin said.

"As we look toward the coming year, our teachers and staff plan to focus on more UIL Academic competition," Ervin said. "We are also very proud of the parents and students in our district. They provide us an opportunity to expand our curriculum and course offerings. The students in our district are the "Jewel in the Crown of Salado."

Welfare Reform & School Prayer

This week's commentary will deal with two highly explosive issues that have been wandering around Congress for some time waiting to explode - Welfare Reform and School Prayer.

Tackling welfare first, we note that by the time this column is in print, President Clinton will, no doubt, have affixed his name to the Welfare Reform Act of 1996. This third version of the year (first two vetoed), has much to be said for it as well as some items found wanting. One thing for certain - it is a landmark change in caring for the underclasses and moves authority for solving the problem from the national to the state level.

Fact of the matter is this bill had to be passed and signed into law. Why? Election day is a scant 90 days away and no one running for reelection this time around wanted to be against reform of the screwed up welfare plan currently in place.

Besides, there are several important, albeit cynical, reasons for the Pres to approve the measure. First, and perhaps foremost, it takes the hot welfare issue away from Bob Dole. Next, in line of importance, is that those affected by the new law have no political action committees to take up for them; they employ no lobby and of course few of them vote!

Liberals fought the bill and most of them in both houses voted against the reforms but come November they have no place to go other than with Clinton. Supporting Bob Dole would be anathema to these left fielders - and they can always hope the new plan will fail and be returned to Washington.

Republicans, if the truth were to be announced, secretly hoped that Clinton would veto this third trip to the plate by the reform package. Certainly it would have given Dole a much needed issue to tout between now and November 5, but that is now a non-issue and dead as yesterday's news.

Speaker Gingrich, in praising Congress and the President, over the pending welfare victory certainly didn't look as happy as his words sounded. He was hoping for a veto to keep some argument alive during the campaign so his party can retain control of both houses of Congress. And that, of course, was one more reason why Clinton decided to approve the reform measure.

The American tax paying public will be pleased for a time with the idea of stopping hard earned dollars headed for the "down and outers" but when the block grant money gets to the States for distribution we may discover that that level of government - not historically known for gentle caring or even fiscal resourcefulness - may start cutting back on their promise to make reform work or begin raising local taxes to make up for any financial shortfall. Then we will see how much we truly like all this "back to the local level" reform business.

And if you think the Jewish, Catholic and Protestant groups in this country are going to be able to take on the task of caring for the helpless to the degree that will be needed if jobs are not available when the work deadlines come up - you are living in a make believe world.

First place, these religious groups don't have the money (contributions are down at all levels this year) and secondly, Churches are not equipped to find millions of new jobs which is the key element in making the welfare reform act work.

So - our welfare system as we know it is dead and nearly buried. But before we close the casket lid, we might want to say a prayer of hope for those affected. Hope there will be jobs for them. Hope their kids won't go hungry. Hope the States will not short-stop the block grants when tax dollars get tight and the "No New Taxes" liturgy reappears.

Every American wants to help those who are in need and the welfare program was designed to do just that more than 60 years ago. Somewhere along the line it was fouled up and we ended with hundreds of programs that just didn't get the job done - in fact exacerbated the problem.

Thus came reform. Now we need to make this brave new adventure in "workfare" function without hurting the ones we want to help. It can be made to work. In fact, it must be made to work!

SCHOOL PRAYER

The move towards passing an amendment to the U. S. Constitution that would overturn three decades of Supreme Court rulings banning school sponsored prayers is currently underway in Washington.

Congressman Dick Arme (R-Irving) has put forward an amendment that would permit student led prayers. If approved by 38 states it would become the law of the land.

Then the trouble would really start. Would the prayer led on the first day be presented by a person of the Jewish faith? Catholic? Protestant? Muslim? Hindu? Buddhist?

The problems associated with all this are onerous and fraught with hard line divisiveness among Americans already separated over many potentially damaging social issues.

What sort of fractious behavior would take place in the schools or at school board meetings when the Religious Zealotites tangle with the Civil Libertarians?

Interestingly enough, most of the school teacher and administrator associations; the major religions in the country including Jewish groups, the Catholic leadership, nearly all the protestant churches as well as the American Buddhists, have come out against the Arme plan to place school prayer in the constitution.

Where much of the current trouble lies, at least in the minds of many citizens, is that all this may just be a plan orchestrated by GOPer Arme and his master Newt Gingrich to create a campaign issue to help the faltering Bob Dole?

If this proves to be the case then we need to mark these so called leaders for what they are and allow this "prayer in school" business to be "closed" as a political issue.

After all, what is the problem in this day and time to continue giving each student a moment of silence each morning at school. Thus giving time to those who do pray and a moment of meditation for those who don't.

"GOOD OLD DAYS"

In the "good old days" each school day opened with a prayer by one of the students. That was just before the principal's announcements and edicts for the day. And right after the playing of the national anthem and pledge of allegiance.

Of course, we had fewer folks back then. And certainly a far less fractious population. Neighbors accepted one another with less contentiousness. And hardly anyone was looking for trouble that might end up in a court of law. Must have been fewer lawyers as well.

But that was then and this is now.

We may not like it but there is no way we can ever be "one" again when it comes to prayer or nearly for) is that at least a majority within each community, state and the nation will protect our Bill of Rights and Constitution and take an understanding attitude towards one another's beliefs and rights.

And as for prayer - we can still go to Church on Sunday. We can still pray at home with our families.

And when we are alone we can turn to our God in prayer.

Probably better to leave prayer that way, rather than mix it up with government and politics which is a good way to ruin what should be a beautiful part of our lives.

AND FINALLY

One thing our readers cannot say this week - that we avoid the hot button issues of the day. Guess is that the comments this week will result in some thoughtful responses from readers because welfare and prayer are important matters to all of us.

Letters to the Editor mean a lot to writers. We encourage them. Proves what has been presented has been read. And that is better than money or a peanut butter and jelly sandwich to a journalist.

Not talking here about the poison pen variety of letters that have to be turned over to law enforcement folks or the postal inspectors.

We have appreciated our readers over the past 30 plus years, especially those who call or write with plaudits, constructive criticism, corrections and even a chuckle or two.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

July 30 marked the 31st birthday of Medicare. For 31 years now, Medicare has provided health insurance coverage to America's seniors and has helped keep them out of poverty. Before Medicare was passed, the elderly poverty rate was 30 percent; today is 12 percent.

Despite the fact that Medicare is wildly celebrated as a success, many in Congress tried to cut it last year. Now they always try and say that their plan didn't cut Medicare, but to me, any plan that will result in our senior citizens receiving less health care while paying more in premiums and deductible is a cut. Luckily, Chet Edwards opposed these drastic cuts.

He has consistently supported reforms in Medicare that eliminate fraud and waste, but he has not voted to kill a program. That has proven so important to the health and wealth being of our senior citizens. As we celebrate the birthday of Medicare, we should pause to give thanks to Chet Edwards for voting to protect it.

Sincerely,

Saladoans partners in Dallas restaurant

One of the newest, hottest restaurants in Dallas' West End is distinctly connected to Salado through two of its partners: Charlie Schriener IV and Gene Street.

The Y.O. Ranch was opened recently in Dallas at 702 Ross Ave., phone (214) 744-3287, by partners Gene Street, owner of La Mansion de Salado and the Good Eats Restaurant chain; Schreiner, the fourth generation of the famous YO Ranch; Charles Goff, whose family has Jan's Coffee Shop on Irving Boulevard, and Matt Martinez, Jr. of Matt's Rancho Martinez and No Place.

The Y.O. Ranch Restaurant is truly Texan in its food with steaks, game, cowboy and Mexican appetizers and entrees on the menu.

It is also truly Texan in its decor. In fact, a late 19th Century barn from Bell County was salvaged and reconstructed as frontier building between the dining room and bar. The hand-hewn cedar beams and tin from the barn accent the restaurant. The barn, which sat on the original Winkler Homestead northwest of Belton, was found by Salado's H.R. Sartor, a real estate agent who sold the property earlier this year.

The barn was taken down and trucked to Dallas West End, where it found new life in the Y.O. Ranch Restaurant.

The Y.O. Ranch Restaurant received a great review in the Dallas Morning News shortly after opening.

"Mr. Martinez did the menu, and there's little on it he hasn't cooked at his other places. But his food just keeps evolving and getting better.... Y.O.s food may knock your boot off," Waltrina Stovall wrote in her review of the restaurant.

"The steaks could give competition to The Palm, which is just across the street. A bone-in ribeye ($23.95) was a massive hunk of meat, and it was cooked as requested: charred outside but blood rare and cool at the center," she continued.

For a cool Texas dining experience, courtesy of a couple of Saladoans, try the Y.O. Ranch Restaurant in Dallas' West End.

Cassie Kite attends FHA National Scholarship Meeting in St. Louis

Cassie Kite, senior at Salado High School, was one of the 250 Texas delegates attending the 1996 Future Homemakers of America National Scholarship Meeting, July 6-12, in St. Louis, MO.

Representing more than 36,000 members of the Texas Association she was among approximately 4,000 delegates throughout the nation, attending the four-day conference. The youth-development meeting, "Imagine the Possibilities" was carried out as the members were inspired to imagine endless possibilities attainable by gaining "skills for life."

Members were encouraged to develop leadership skills, strengthen family values, and increase community involvement. Sessions and activities during the week included STAR (Students Taking Action with Recognition) Event competition, speakers, updates on national programs, introduction to a new national program, Families First and a theme celebration at the conclusion of the meeting.

The 1996-1997 National Officers were also elected during the meeting and included Johnnie Moseley of Lockney, as national president and Beth Cochran of Lubbock, as first vice-president. Texas members were also presented with the "Youth At Its Best" award during the last General Session.

Cassie was elected to serve as 1996-1997 Region 3 vice-president of projects during the regional meeting in January. Attending the National Meeting was one of her many responsibilities as an officer for the upcoming year.

Future Homemakers of America is a vocational student organization for home economics education students in junior and senior high schools. This youth centered organization is the only vocational organization that has the family as its central focus and is an integral part of the home economics curriculum.

Cassie is the daughter of Ray and Mary Kite, of Salado.

Pasta, paintings & pottery at Sorge's

Pasta, paintings and pottery are the ongoing themes intermingled to create an eclectic dining atmosphere at Sorges' Italian Restaurant in Temple.

From their beginning in October 1995, authenticity and careful adherence to traditional family recipes of Angie and Florie Sorge has been the distinguishing mark of the cuisine. Angie's family hails from La Scurgulla and Florie's family from Avezzano, both tiny villages nestled in the hills above Rome. A location where villagers cater to both family, friends and guest with food.

To share these family recipes has long been a dream of their sons, Gary and David Sorge. After finding the location, extracting secrets from other family member and visiting countless Italian restaurants, these two made sure they would do justice to their heritage. The final result is starched white tablecloths, soft glowing lights at each table, soothing music and art.

"Can I get more of that wonderful bread?" is one of the most repeated questions after patrons taste the daily baked foccacia that is served with a seasoned olive oil that begins each meal. Diners enjoy a wide array of Italian homemade favorites, generous antipastos, wedding soup, grilled fish and poultry and surprising specialties from the chef. Wine is served in handthrown ceramic carafes, bottles of select wines served in stoneware coolers. The pottery is the handiwork of David's wife Barbara, who coordinates the art exhibits and advertising for the restaurant.

Italy is well known for its patronage of the arts and the Sorges' have designed into their decor a rotating gallery for local artists. Each artist exhibits for about a six week period. The month of July featured artist was Anizeto Moreno whose Southwestern palates depict his native American-Hispanic heritage through vivid canvases and highly detailed monotypes. His work has shown in galleries in Dallas, Santa Fe and Scottsdale.

Upcoming exhibits include a three man show of Chad Huff, John Cox and Anizeto Moreno, all from Temple. In September a first time showing of oils by Lon of Sweden depicting historic civil war scenes will be on display. Other events will include a showing of women's art and Jesse James.

Works of most artists are available for purchase through the artists. The goal of the Sorges' is to provide a gallery location while all sale proceeds go to the artist. Other funds are set aside to donate to the Cultural Activities Center in Temple.

To enjoy the fine foods and ambience and quality service, Sorges' can be found at 1323 South 57th Street, exit off I-35 in Temple. Lunch is served 11 a.m.- 2 p.m. Sunday and Tuesday through Friday. Dinner is served 5 p.m.- 10 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Mondays the restaurant is closed. Their phone number is 817-899-1492

Seniors are targets

Senior citizens can become primary targets to solicitations. Some companies see the senior population as an easy "sell" for the product they are offering. Many of these companies are well-established and conform to all laws that regulate this activity. Some, of course, do not.

Three types of contacts are usually made: by telephone, by direct mail, and by door-to-door neighborhood sales.

What should you do? Remember, if they call, you can hang up. If they mail you something, you can throw it away (tear it up first). And if they show up at your door, tell them no thank you, and shut it.

Your local law enforcement agency can assist you with any questions you may have about a specific incident that you feel is unethical or unlawful.

week during the school term and perform sacred and secular music throughout the year at schools, nursing homes, churches and for various social and civic functions.

The preparatory Music Program is moving its offices to Central Texas College in Killeen Aug. 12. The Central Texas Girls Choir will hold auditions again in August at CTC. For more information, call 939-4686 or 526-1865 after Aug. 12.

Hood's 1st Battalion, 4th Aviation Regiment Dragons to form partnership with Salado

Lieutenant Colonel Doug Eller is the Commanding Officer of the First Battalion, Fourth Aviation Regiment, a part of the Fourth Infantry Division.

It is this group that will be placed in "Partnership" with Salado by Lt. General Thomas Schwartz when the III Corps and Fort Hood Commanding General speaks at this Saturday's dedication of the newly constructed bandstand.

The program on August 10, starting at 9 a.m. will feature elements of the famed Fourth Infantry Division band, a speech on "Volunteerism" by General Schwartz and the introduction of Colonel Eller to the community.

The complete dedication story is found on page one of this issue of the Salado Village Voice.

Eller's attack helicopter unit is one of four battalions assigned to the Fourth Brigade of the 4th Infantry Division. The group consists of 335 soldiers whose mission, when directed, deploys by sea and air to designated contingency locations, organizes for combat and, when ordered, conducts attack helicopter operations.

The unit, named "Dragons" includes 24 Apache Attack Helicopters, plus 24 officers, 44 warrant officers, 100 non commissioned officers and 167 enlisted personnel.

Some 182 of the men are married so the unit includes that many families who are considered an integral part of the organization.

The "Dragons" utilize diverse skills in their operation including administration of the unit, intelligence work, air and ground operations, logistics and supply, medical, ground and aircraft maintenance, aircraft refueling and rearming, and tactical aircraft operations.

Each Apache has a fighting system that includes a pilot, gunner, day and night sensors and targeting, 30 millimeter guns and the famed hellfire missiles and rockets.

Support equipment includes 60 vehicles, 45 trailers, two aircraft maintenance shops, 81 aircraft armament tool sets and some 25 different diagnostic sets, all capable of being moved on short notice along with the men and aircraft to any part of the world.

The fighting unit trains day and night in all locales and altitudes. The training includes individual flights as well as group flying, simulator work plus the normal field and garrison duty that is part of all military groups.

Colonel Eller noted that his regiment includes three flight companies that spend much of their time in mission planning, aircraft preparation, aircraft missions, recovery and debriefing while his headquarter company takes care of the ground and air operations that support the flying units.

Eller, a young commanding officer, is flight qualified and divides his time between ground duties as well as flying. He noted during his last meeting in Salado, when he and Chamber President Lloyd

Parks were putting together ideas on implementing the new "Partnership" agreement between the Apache Helicopter unit and the Village, that: "I am excited to have had my unit selected to take part in this partnership plan with Salado. My wife and I love the village and we are looking forward to many activities both here and at Fort Hood in the years ahead. This is a great community filled with some of the finest people I have met in my career and I know we are going to do some good and get to know each other better in the weeks and months ahead."

U.S. SENATOR
KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

Revolving Doors of Criminal Justice System Must Stop Sending Child Molesters Back to Our Neighborhoods

Nine-year-old Amber Hagerman was abducted while riding her bicycle outside her grandparents' home in Arlington, Texas earlier this year.

She was kept alive for at least 48 hours before being killed. Her nude, slashed body was found in a creek bed behind an Arlington apartment complex on Jan. 17 — four days after she was snatched away from her friends and family by a man driving a black truck.

The killer of this much-loved and innocent child has never been identified. The entire community remains stunned, saddened and enraged. Her family and friends still mourn. And they live with the chilling certainty that there is a child killer on the loose in their community, in their state — and in their country.

Although we don't know the name of the man who kidnapped, molested and murdered Amber, we do know several unpleasant facts about predators who prey on children like Amber in communities across America: 33 percent of convicted sexual predators report having committed their crimes against multiple victims; 66 percent of prisoners convicted of sexual assaults committed their crime against a child; the repeat rate for sex offenders is estimated to be 10 times higher than that of other criminals. The revolving doors of our criminal justice system have to stop sending violent criminals out on the streets and back into our neighborhoods to prey on our children. Justice must serve the young and most vulnerable among us — as well as those who violate the law.

So it is with the memory of Amber Hagerman on July 24 I co-sponsored legislation to protect this nation's children from sex offenders. The purpose of my bill is to:

- 1) Require life imprisonment for two-time child sex offenders when their cases are heard in federal court, and to encourage the states to do likewise, and
- 2) Provide for a nationwide system of tracking sex offenders, to be administered by the FBI.

This legislation would establish new federal jurisdiction over sexual offenses against children when the person who commits such a crime crosses state lines with the intent of committing a sex offense. It requires life sentences without possibility of parole upon the second conviction of a sex crime against a child in federal court.

One of the primary aims of this legislation is to put these monsters on notice that society will no longer tolerate them in its midst. The bill incorporates earlier legislation I introduced requiring the FBI to create a database that is to contain the addresses and other relevant information on child sexual predators which individual states have collected. The FBI would make this information available to state and local law enforcement agencies. It also would require the FBI to notify local authorities when an offender moves to a new location.

No longer will a convicted child molester released in one state be able to move to another state which has no registry — and disappear off the law enforcement radar screen.

We are going to track these individuals as closely as possible. We intend to take predators off America's streets — and keep them behind bars where they belong.

You gain strength, courage and confidence by every experience in which you really stop to look fear in the face. You are able to say to yourself, "I lived through this horror. I can take the next thing that comes along." You must do the thing you cannot do.

Congressman Chet Edwards Reports

WHY I SUPPORTED WELFARE REFORM

The U.S. House of Representatives voted on July 18th for a welfare reform bill that makes much needed and long overdue changes in the welfare system.

I voted for this welfare reform bill because it rewards work, encourages work and requires work.

This bill transforms welfare into what it should be — a temporary helping hand for the truly needy rather than a permanent handout for those who can, but won't, work.

Here is how it would work. Block grants are established in the bill with the funding and flexibility states need to develop innovative welfare, work and job training programs.

The bill also requires welfare recipients to find work in two years or lose benefits and sets a five year cap on lifetime benefits.

The bill also provides funding for job training and child care to help make the transition from welfare to work.

This is not a perfect bill, but it goes a long way towards requiring able-bodied welfare recipients to work.

By requiring people to work within two years and putting a five year cap on benefits, this bill stops welfare from being a lifetime check for those who can work. At the same time, the plan provides flexibility to see that those who truly cannot work are given the helping hand they need.

The bill also saves tax dollars and reduces the deficit by saving $60 billion over six years.

I hope that over the next several months Congress can continue its work on reform in a bipartisan fashion. Welfare reform isn't a Republican or Democratic issue, it is an American issue.

There has been enough talk about reform. It's time to do something about a welfare system that is broken and all too often makes it more attractive to be on welfare than working.

If House members and Senators from both parties will work in good faith, I believe we can pass into law a welfare reform bill that will crackdown on welfare cheats, help people obtain the skills they need to get a good job and still be fair to children.

That should be our goal.

Try "Time-Outs" For Preschooler Discipline

(NAPS)—Children misbehave on occasion and it's normal for them to test the limits that parents set. Using nonphysical methods of discipline can help them deal with their emotions and teach nonviolent ways to solve problems. If you have a 3- or a 4-year-old at home, here are some parenting tips.

- Make rules that fit your child's age. Keep rules simple. Kids need rules for things like bedtime and playtime and they should have a clear understanding about where they can and can not go.
- Be consistent about rules and discipline. When you make a rule, stick to it. Setting rules and then not enforcing them is confusing.
- Try using a "Time-out." Place your child in a quiet place when he misbehaves. Ask him to sit quietly, usually one minute for each year of age (not appropriate for very young children who may not understand).

Every October the nation's pediatricians and the American Academy of Pediatrics call upon parents to think about the importance of preventive health care. Join them during Child Health Month this year to once again speak out against violence. Help place solutions before problems.

lections from their vast repertoire including: "This is My Country", "Stars and Stripes Forever", "Americans We" and "Deep In The Heart of Texas".

Several of the numbers will include vocal presentations by members of the band.

General Schwartz will then speak and the program will conclude with the introduction of villagers, as well as Compass bank and Sprint-Centel, who had a part in the construction of the new facility next to the center.

Refreshments will be served and guests will be urged to visit the civic center, particularly the newly renovated Foster Room on the first floor as well as the Art Center, home of the Village Artists.

A large display of work by our community artists will be on hand for visitors to see at the art center.

DEDICATION

Master of Ceremonies Cottle noted that the civic center had been dedicated back in 1993, but since that time much more has been accomplished through the direction of the board, with the invaluable help of the community, including paying off the renovation note at the bank. Also, the bandstand has been constructed; a unique brick fence designed and built and the entire front and side of the building outfitted with a watering system as well as the landscaping of over one half of the grounds.

"So we will on Saturday, not only be dedicating a new bandstand, but re-dedicating the entire complex including the art center, the civic center and the grounds for use by the citizens of the Village of Salado as well as those who visit the community from time to time" noted Cottle.

Members of the Civic Center Foundation who are responsible for the operation and maintenance of the facility include Chairman Clapp, President Cottle, Finance Vice Chairman Lloyd Parks, Secretary Wilma Williams and Committee Chairpersons Patsy Sanford and Pete Jennings.

Hulda Horton is the center's manager.

Most of the problems a president has to face have their roots in the past.

The road to recovery following surgery may include a stop in the pool.

"Swimming pools can provide a gentler, less intimidating environment for rehabilitation," said David Brennan, an exercise physiologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "Patients, who have undergone major surgery on the knee, hip or foot, can begin pool rehabilitation sooner than traditional physical therapy."

Water is therapeutic and improves circulation to injured areas. Patients often stay motivated since they can begin rehabilitation as soon as the stitches have been removed.

By using a flotation device patients have complete range of motion, without placing weight on injured limbs or joints. Water-based exercises include jogging and pushing the water in various directions with the arms.

"The pool is an excellent environment for getting people back in touch with how their bodies move," said Brennan.

"They don't have to worry about falling down or putting too much pressure on an injured joint. The water helps patients relax."

Water rehabilitation not only works on the injured body part, it also builds overall fitness, benefiting patients when they begin their normal physical therapy.

Mill Creek Community Assoc. news

From the Mill Creek Community Association

We recently talked with the County Engineer and County Commissioner and learned that they have plans to work in our area soon. County workers will be trimming trees and undergrowth that block the streets from view as we drive. If you would prefer to do your own trimming, please do so before Aug. 15.

The County will also replace the cement street markers that have been "unintentionally" knocked over. These will be replaced with regulation street markers, which should make street names easier to identify. We are also going to have two new stop signs installed and our streets will be striped in the center. The County is being very cooperative and we will be also.

We are once more asking the Sheriff to crack down on speeders, and we are going to take down license numbers of "litter-bugs" and vandals whenever we see them.

The Sheriff has given us some guidelines for golf carts: Golf carts going to and from the golf course are permitted. Golf carts used for "joy riding" and careless play are liable for tickets.

Ladies of Mill Creek: a luncheon and program is being planned for the fall. Mark your calendars for Nov. 7. Details will be forthcoming.

TIL Scholarship

Correction:

Last week's article from The University Interscholastic League about the Texas Interscholastic League Federation Scholarships awarded to three Salado High School seniors incorrectly identified Vinny Michna's scholarship as valued at $3,140. Michna's scholarship was actually in the amount of $12,560, which is awarded at $3,140 per year for four years. Michna was the 1996 State Champion in Number Sense and finished his career with five gold and two silver medals from the UIL State Meet.

In the past two years, Salado High School students have received $31,400 in scholarships from the Texas Interscholastic League Federation as a direct result of their participation in the UIL Academic State Meet.

get, everyone would be a millionaire. But it isn't, and we aren't. That's why we at the Office of the Attorney General have put together the following tips on scams and schemes to avoid.

Pyramid schemes

The granddaddy of all get-rich-quick cons is the Ponzi or pyramid scheme. It's called a pyramid scheme because the person at the top of the pyramid collects cash from all the people at the bottom.

You are enticed to join a pyramid scheme by promises that you will earn a lot of money on a modest investment. You are told that all you have to do is convince friends and family members to make similar investments. In reality, nobody but the con artist makes money in a pyramid scheme. You, like everyone else in the base of the pyramid, stand only to lose money.

A pyramid scheme is a very simple concept. The money of new investors is used to pay off the first group of investors, giving the scheme the appearance of a low-risk, high-return venture. But as more people are recruited into the pyramid, the amount owed grows dramatically, while the pool of potential investors shrinks. Eventually the bubble bursts - and hundreds, thousands or millions are left with little or nothing to show for their investment.

What the law says

A pyramid scheme is not just a foolish investment - it's illegal. Under Texas law, a person who runs a pyramid scheme violates the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act, or may be convicted of a state jail felony.

Pyramid schemes come in all forms, and use a wide variety of appealing names such as "Freedom Associates," "Friends Helping Friends," "World Network Holdings," and "Share the Magic." The names really don't matter - nearly all investors were left with worthless paper instead of sound investments.

One of the more popular schemes is a chain letter that asks you to send $25 every month to several friends as a "gift," and send a comparable amount back to the "home office." The letter claims that the money you receive from people further down the chain is tax free, and that this arrangement will allow you and everyone else in the chain to obtain a monthly income without having to work. But as in all pyramid schemes, it works only as long as new people are recruited to send money to those already in the chain.

The OAG acts

Over the years, our office has shut down numerous pyramid schemes. One scheme, Platinum Associates, sold distributorships for $500 each. The distributors promised to help consumers obtain credit cards for a very low fee, in return for another $500 to use as security on the credit card. The catch? Consumers got the $500 only if they had a life insurance policy and gave Platinum power of attorney to get additional insurance on the consumer's life. Through quick action and hard work, we were able to close down this operation before it took hold in Texas.

New venues

Pyramid schemes are

There are no uninteresting things, there are only uninterested people.

now showing up on the Internet. The Federal Trade Commission recently shut down Fortuna Alliance, a massive on-line scheme. Fortuna promised investors profits of up to $5,000 instantly. According to the FTC, Fortuna stole more than $6 million from roughly 17,000 members and diverted at least $3.5 million to a bank in the Caribbean.

Protect yourself

To protect yourself from Ponzi schemes, remember the following tips:

- Don't expect to get rich quickly. If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.
- Be suspicious of any investment opportunity that seems inordinately complicated. This is often intentional - it encourages consumers to make the investment on faith.
- If you have any doubts about an investment opportunity, ask an investment advisor or accountant to review it for you.

For more information

If you suspect someone is trying to set up a pyramid scheme, please contact the Consumer Protection Division office nearest you, or call our toll-free Consumer Protection Hot Line at (800) 621-0508. You can also find more consumer information on our World Wide Web site at <http://www.oag.state.tx.us>.
