Conflict in Bosnia-Herzegovina is more than just a regional conflict, says expert

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

"Instead of dropping bombs on the Serbs in Bosnia, the international community has been dropping sandwiches and Christmas toys," David Phillips told the Institute for the Humanities in Salado March 13.

Phillips was critical of U.S. foreign policy and United Nations efforts to resolve the continuing "ethnic cleansing" in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

He also pointed out the history behind the hatred in the area and said any permanent solutions must come from the parties involved.

"The historic origins of this conflict can be dated to 1489, the invasion of Europe by the Ottoman Turks," Phillips said. The Serbians saw themselves as the last line of defense between Christendom and the Turks. The Serbs were overrun on June 25 by the Turks, which is today celebrated as a national holiday by the Serbs.

"It was that defeat which put the psychological imprint of being a victim on the Serbs mind," Phillips said. "Because of this battle, the Serbs see themselves as sufferers, heroes and heroines. This is one way they justify their actions against the Muslim Bosnians today."

After World War II, Croats, Serbians and Bosnians lived together as Yugoslavia under the totalitarian rule of Tito, Phillips said.

"After Tito died, the nationalist hatred began to rise again. Milesovich began his career by sowing the seeds of ethnic hatred," Phillips said.

By referendum, Slovenia and Croatia elected by 99 percent to establish themselves as independent states from Yugoslavia.

According to Phillips, the United States diplomats told Bosnia that "the U.S. would look out for its interests. It did not."

Much of the world was revolted by footage of concentration camps in June 1992, which resulted in an emergency meeting of the UN Human Rights Commission.

The UN passed a resolution criticizing ethnic cleansing and calling for the perpetrators to be brought to justice, Phillips said. "But it was to no effect, because there was no political will behind it."

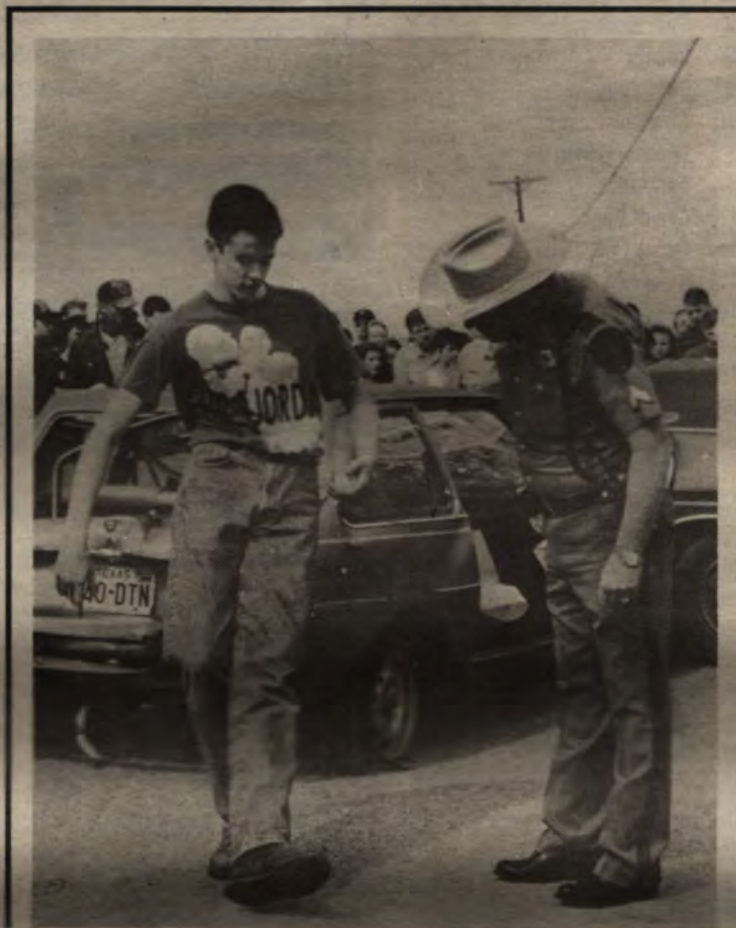

The Vance-Owen plan was the result of a London conference in which 45 nations participated.

The Vance-Owen plan called for the return of refugees to their homes, establishment of humanitarian relief corridors, restoration of property seized by terrorism and the sequester of heavy artillery.

"But despite the tough language of the Vance-Owen plan, it did nothing to stop the killing," Phillips said.

In May 1993, President

An accident involving alcohol was staged for students readying for Spring Break in the school parking lot. The exercise was a harsh reminder of the dangers of drinking and driving.

Historic District committee meets with individuals

The Salado Historic District Committee has met several times with individuals to discuss plans for construction, signs and other work within the Historic District.

Among those the Committee has met with are these:

First Baptist Church: Pastor Mike Bergman came before the committee to discuss plans for the "rest stop" and sign being added to the east end of the church. Suggestions were made regarding the sign. Bergman said the suggestions would be considered by the church.

Andy Phair discussed plans by the Salado Village Artists to renovate the "ag barn" behind the Salado Civic Center. Planned reconstruction would include new electrical, plumbing, insulation, heat and air as well as replacing doors and window glass. Roof repair and paint will complete Phase I.

The Village Artists are planning a fund raising drive to reach $8,000-10,000 for the reconstruction project.

Cindy Ross presented a drawing of a sign and paint chips for Chisholm Trail Ostrich Farms. Ross said this is the first time she has seen the Historic District guidelines and suggested the committee adopt a color chart in keeping with historic communities.

Some of the signs Ross has painted in Salado include Fletcher's Books & Antiques, Royal Emporium, Salado Galleries, Old Town Salado and The Hutchens House.

Mary Fiorenza has moved a 1920 house from the Southwestern University campus in Georgetown to Center Circle Salado. She and her daughter Karen Shaw hope to restore the house and perhaps get an historical marker for it. It may be a bed and breakfast or private home.

Denver Mills met the committee regarding a sign to be placed at the entrance of Tablerock on Royal St. Mills will return to the board of the Tablerock Festival with the suggestions from the historic district committee.

Tim Brown presented his plans for reconstruction of a historic building from Lampasas on Salado's Main St. (next to First State Bank, Salado). The committee told Brown his plans were in keeping with the guidelines and character of Main St. Brown told the committee that every precaution would be taken to protect the live oak trees on the site from harm.

The committee made contact with two others doing work in the village with no response.

"We are grateful at the response to our requests made for people to show their plans for construction work in the Historic District," said committee member Doris Denman. "However, many people who do not respond need to be made aware that not working within the guidelines can be harmful to maintaining the integrity of the

Rock quarry meeting postponed

The town meeting scheduled for March 17 to discuss the planned rock quarry has been rescheduled to April 7, due to a serious medical problem in the Larry Gumpert family.

Anyone considering new construction, additions to existing buildings or renovation of historic structures are encouraged to meet with the Historic District Committee to exchange ideas.

Members are Jack Herrington, acting chair; Carl McQueary, Dale Springer, Doris Denman, Bonnie Smith, George Kolb and Troy Kelley.

Commodities will be distributed 9:30 a.m. March 17 at Salado United Methodist Church.

Don't mess with DRT

Nearly 90 years ago, in the Spring of 1905, the Texas Legislature officially turned the care and upkeep of the Alamo over to the Daughters of the Republic of Texas. This sacred shrine was then in danger of being destroyed by encroaching commercial ventures but, from that date until today, the Daughters - as they are called - have fought to keep the most popular tourist and historic site in Texas alive and well. The challenges have been many including the constant drive to add music and hucksterism to each room and the grounds of the Alamo.

The battle continues to this day as the DRT has drawn a line in the political sand by saying "no" to Hispanic, Native American (Indians) and Black Americans who want to dig up the plaza in front of the chapel seeking the recovery of what they think will be the bones of their ancestors.

These minority groups throw the word "racist" around pretty freely these days and the Daughters were not target exceptions as they were accused of denigrating the Black and Mexican efforts in the battle of the Alamo.

Some current legislators want to turn the Alamo over

Off the Record

by Ken Clapp

to the Parks and Wildlife Commission, however this ploy has been tried and failed many times. Most elected officials, with any sense at all, tread lightly around the DRT since these ladies can land on a person like "Ducks on a June-bug"! They have clout and use it whenever there is danger to their beloved Alamo.

One example of this revered feeling about the Daughters comes from personal experience. It was during Governor Briscoe's second term in the late 70's and I was serving as an aide to the Guv. Word came to us that the several DRT officials were planning to visit the office requesting help. The Governor turned to me and said in no uncertain terms, "If I'm not here when they get here, find out what they want and give it to them!" And he wasn't kidding. Fact is they not only spend their own time and money protecting the Alamo but also the DRT Museum and French Legation - both in Austin.

This fine group of preservationists represent many old line Texas families and can call on massive numbers of citizens to help champion their cause - mainly protection of the Alamo from commercialization and destruction. Not a bad aim - in fact a most unselfish one particularly in this day and time of "political correctness" as folks try to change history and destroy precious icons. Texans should give a deserved "well done" to the DRT. They do good work and spend personal funds and time and deserve more than the cheap shots leveled at them by those always-present critics we find circling most worthwhile volunteer projects. We even have them in Salado.

I like to visit the Alamo. It is quiet and peaceful and you get a feel and sense of history about that great happening years ago. It would be disgraceful to turn the Alamo over to a bunch of politicians and their toadies. We would have a cheapened Disney-like fun house type junk heap within a few years. It must not be taken from the DRT and a word to our officials might just be appropriate as they

National Health Scheme

Chris Matthews, one of the more liberal columnists doing business in Washington recently wrote a strangely conservative piece (for him) outlining why President Clinton's health plan is doomed. Matthews said plainly that Americans don't trust government or the folks who run government and therefore have no confidence in a government run health plan, period! There is a bushel of truth in all that. We are not pushovers when it comes time to put our special and important needs in the hands of "progressive" social planners and fine tuners. Those who do have good health plans and that includes some 175 million citizens don't want these policies tinkered with. They don't want to "have to" change to some government approved programs or be fined like a criminal for not doing so and they sure as heck don't want less coverage when they have a sickness, which is what everyone believes will happen under the President's socialized medicine plan.

I happen to agree with Matthews and feel that all this sound and fury would best be settled by having the government simply buy a health plan for everyone who cannot afford such protection and pay the premium and be done with it. Sort of create a national insurance pool - put those in need and those who are between jobs plus the indigent young and old and see how it works. Eliminate the folks who refuse to work but are able; the welfare cheats and the illegal residents. Do all this and see if the tab is not lower than this universal goal that has been set.

Add to this a plan to get control of the obscene profit taking by drug companies and force the medical profession and hospitals to get serious about their charges once they don't have to absorb charity cases which would be eliminated by a national insurance pool, and we might end up with a not-too-bad-system. All without tearing up the entire population's current health system - which isn't all that bad right now.

Five historic homes on tour in Belton April 30-May 1

Five homes of historical significance to Belton, Bell County and Central Texas have been chosen for the April 30-May 1 Belton Historical Homes Tour.

Homes in order of date of construction are the McWhirter-Walker-Kimball House an 400 N. Pearl St., Baggett-Lastovica Bed and Breakfast, 1019 N. Main St., Beamer-Jones House, 1202 S Beal St., Hammersmith-Clark-Fleischer House, 520 S Main St. and Muehlhause-Potter House, 620 S. Main St.

"We are focusing on the older part of Belton this year," explains Homes Tour Chairperson Berneta

Peeples. "The first homes in Belton were built on the south side of Nolan Creek. Our three homes featured from the south side were all built by local businessmen and have interesting stories behind them."

The Belton Historical Homes Tour will be held 10 a.m.-6 p.m. April 30 and noon-6 p.m. May 1. Admission is $6 for adults, students age six through college $3.

Is a gender gap putting a hole in your portfolio??

Whether a result of nature or nurture, men and women don't see eye to eye on investment decisions. While individuals can't be stuck into strict gender roles, the perception and behavioral differences between men and women regarding money can create significant barriers for couples when developing a sound financial plan.

Understanding your own motivations for making investment decisions may help you overcome underlying gender biases. Many psychologists and financial consultants have cited several key issues as potential financial conflicts between men and women. However, conflict also leaves more room for compromise and balance as couples structure their financial plans.

The Wage Gap

The cap between women and men's salaries may be the most fundamental influence on women's investment decisions. While women account for 46 percent of the labor force, they still earn 26 percent less than men for equal work. As a result, women tend to be less confident about their long-term earning potential than men, which may ultimately influence their investment choices and the level of investment risk they are willing to accept.

In addition, many psychologists have observed that conflicts may arise with couples when one partner earns substantially more than another. Money equals power in many relationships. Yet, experts advise that if financial decisions affect both partners, each partner should have an equal say in the decision-making process.

The Savings Plan Gap

On average, women save less and start saving later than men. Far too many women count on social security, but depending on someone else's investments is risky because divorce rates are rising and wives tend to outlive their husbands by nearly seven years. It's imperative for women who have not established their own long-term investment or retirement plan to start now, and investment broker or other financial consultant can help you get started.

The Investment Gap

Studies have shown that in terms of a basic understanding of finances, there is virtually no difference between women and men. However, their perspectives on using money do vary. Financial counselors have noted that men tend to take more investment risks, such as acting on hot stock tips. In addition, as men's earning potential increases during their career, they are more willing to use money to purchase status items, such as luxury cars or fabulous vacations.

On the other hand, women tend to be careful and patient investors, but are often unwilling to take much investment risk. Also, their spending habits, despite the stereotypical shopaholic image, become more measured as they get older.

As you may see, this are of difference between the genders offers great potential for compromise. In fact, investors should balance their portfolios by combining safe, insured investments with riskier investments that can help you stay ahead of inflation's effects on your money.

More important, however, is that investments themselves are not gender-biased. A share of stock is a share of stock no matter which gender owns it. How and what we learn about money is what makes the difference and creates the "gender gap." Men and women should educate themselves about the investment industry. Hundreds of books, magazines and financial publications are available and all offer a variety of topics with different points of view. Examine your choices carefully and make your investment decisions armed with the facts.

Letters concern Chamber, Incorporation, Humane Society

Dear Editor:

Our article about the Chamber of Commerces' 13 point plan for 1994 pointed out the fact that nothing was planned for the youth.

We consider ourselves very fortunate to live in a community that has a zero percent crime rate, great schools and strong churches. We are totally committed to seeing it stay that way. Ken Clapp's "Off the Record" article completely tries to divert the issue and cause controversy and division among the residents. Salado does not need to be divided but does need to put the youth on the 1994 agenda.

The Pipes Family

Dear Editor:

I am writing in concern, several weeks ago I came to Salado to visit my Mother and found the quiet little town of Salado in an uproar. At first I was worried, because like Armando Lenis I too remember the hard times that arose from the superintendent controversy. It was only after hearing that the call for incorporation was back, that I began to see the events of the past several weeks as a good thing for Salado.

You see as citizens of Salado you sometimes forget how good you really have it. You live in a town where you can go outside at night, and not worry about street gangs. Your children got to a school, where they don't have to worry about getting shot by a classmate. In Salado you enjoy a quality of life that is getting hard to find in this day and age. You must realize that no matter how many civic centers and shops you build, without that quality of life Salado just isn't the same anymore.

I think it is time for the incorporation of Salado. I see incorporation as your only means of protecting the town you now have. Without incorporation, there is nothing to stop the problems of the big city form coming to your town. You must ask yourself how much property taxes is my quality of life worth, how much is my child's future worth, how much is Salado worth?

In closing I would just like to say my hat is off to Mr. Scully. If a good joke is what it takes to get everyone attention, then so be it.

A product of Salado
Jason Buckner

Dear Editor:

This a very late "Thank you" to all the good people of Salado who have once again supported us this past year. Many more cats and dogs have been rescued from a lingering death by starvation or disease because of your generosity.

To those few suspicious souls who have asked us what we do with "all that money." Over the past 19 months we have taken in 89 cats and 27 dogs. Some of these animals were adopted, a few had to be put to sleep because of injury or disease, but the remaining ones are alive and being fed and cared for. Some Humane Societies, such as Temple's, who have no shelter, pay local kennels to house and feed their animals. We do not have the funds to do this, so the animals are kept at members' homes. Right now members are caring for 106 cats, 54 at their homes and 52 at different places in Salado. These 52 cats are too wild to be adopted. We catch them in live traps, have them neutered, vaccinated for rabies, then take them back where we found them. We make the rounds and feed them once a day. We cannot do this with dogs of course because dogs are bigger and noisier, and sooner or later will form packs which can be dangerous.

Our average monthly expense per animal is about $10.00. This includes neutering, food, rabies shot and any medication it might need, such as worm and ear mite medicine or antibiotics for infections. This does not include extra expenses such special foods it might need or cat litter if it has to be penned up. We pen up all new ones and those recuperating from neutering, disease, or injury.

Our monthly average of all money taken in from bake sales, garage sales, the doggie banks placed in certain shops around town, and private donations is $180.00. If you are any good at figures, you know that there is about an $800.00 short-fall in our funds every month. The $800 comes out of members' pockets. One member in particular is quietly going broke making up the short-fall every month. We have receipts for all expenditures, and we will gladly show them on request.

To those of you who have given support in time, money, and kind words, our warmest thanks; to those of you who have been critical, now you know the facts.

Sincerely,

Leah Buzzard

Salado Humane Society

Dear Editor:

I am really mad that only a few of us have to put up with people's cast off animals from Killeen, Temple, Salado and no telling where else. I have my own animal to care for and veterinary bills and shots are not cheap!

Why can't people take responsibility for their animals? Why do a few of us have to suffer for dead beats who get animals and discard them like trash?

If anyone want a wonderful Doberman about 1 year old please come get him. I can't see turning him loose to die on the road and he's to good to kill.

A Citizen Against Dead-beats who dump animals!

During the Lenten season, you don't have to be limited in meal ideas. Tuna, a staple in many households, is versatile, nutritious and easy to prepare in casseroles or sandwiches. For a convenient and flavorful meal the whole family will enjoy, try Creamy Tuna Primavera made with Tuna Helper mix for creamy broccoli.

Creamy Tuna Primavera

- 1 package Betty Crocker® Tuna Helper® mix for creamy broccoli
- 1 1/2 cups frozen mixed broccoli, carrots and cauliflower
- 1 can (4 ounces) mushroom pieces and stems, drained
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
- 1 can (6 1/8 ounces) tuna, drained
- 1 cup milk
- 2 3/4 cups hot water
- 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese (4 ounces)

Prepare mix for creamy broccoli as directed in Skillet Directions on package—except stir in vegetables and mushrooms with the Sauce Mix. After simmering, remove from heat; sprinkle with cheese. Cover and let stand about 5 minutes or until cheese is melted. 5 servings.

Tom Taylor to perform at Tablerock

Tom Taylor will perform at Tablerock's Dinner Concert March 19. A candle-light dinner will be served at 7 p.m. followed by the concert at 8 p.m.

Taylor is a former college instructor and high school teacher who earned his MA in communications from the University of Texas.

Taylor's masters thesis included a one-man play about American folk singer Woody Guthrie, which led to a seven-year international tour portraying Woody.

Having composed over 200 songs for children, Taylor began writing when touring his award-winning play.

Taylor's tour as Guthrie led to numerous film and television roles in such projects as Dark Night of the Scarecrow, Resurrection, The White Lion, Dallas and Lily Tomlin: Sold Out.

Since 1970, he has worked with children as a coach, counselor, and teacher and has held concerts and classroom performances in camps, hospitals, schools and prisons from Great Britain to China. During the school year, Taylor conducts classroom performances and other school-related fund-raisers.

For more information, call Jerry Taylor after 5 p.m. at 947-8735. Tickets are available at Peoples National Bank, Salado and First State Bank, Salado.

Jennifer McHaney is PNB Spirit of Salado winner

Salado High School student Jennifer McHaney has been named the recipient of the Peoples National Bank's spirit of Salado Award for the fourth sixth week.

The award was established to recognize students in grades 9-12 at Salado High School for leadership, citizenship, responsibility, respect for others, willingness to serve in community/school services. The Spirit of Salado Award is presented to one student each six weeks.

Miss McHaney, a senior, is a member of the Spanish Club, President of the Senior Class, and a cheerleader. She participates in band, cross country, volleyball, basketball, track and softball.

Honors include Who's Who among American High School Students, Regional Cross Country Qualifier, 2nd Team All District Volleyball, Regional Track Qualifier, and National Science Merit Scholar.

Upon graduation she plans to attend UMHB, and pursue a career to become an orthopedic doctor.

Jennifer is the daughter of Robert and Mary McHaney.

The recipient received a $200 savings bond, Spirit of Salado Award, and her photograph on display at the high school and bank lobby.

The award presentation will be made by Wendell C. Williams, president of People National Bank.

Clinton decided the U.S. would put pressure on its allies to lift the arms embargo and called for punitive air strikes against Serbian heavy artillery.

"President Clinton sent his Secretary of State out to tell our Allies of our plans. Instead, the Secretary of State came back with depositions from our allies of the lack of support for action in the area," Phillips said. "This is another example of the breakdown between a decision by the President based on principal and the implementation of it by the foreign policy team."

"The problems in the area are not just the inability of the Clinton Administration to adopt a foreign policy, but also the breakdown of leadership in the world, the failure of multilateralism and the decline of the UN in peacekeeping efforts," Phillips said.

"The framework for U.S.

foreign policy came down with the Berlin Wall," Phillips said, adding that everything the U.S. did during the Cold War years was done "in response to an actual or perceived threat from the Soviet Union."

"Since the mid-1980s, the U.S. has been willing to get involved only in neat and tidy military operations like the invasion of Panama and Grenada and Desert Storm," Phillips said. "We are not willing to be involved in the possible quagmire of a regional war."

But the effects of the Bosnia conflict go far beyond a "regional war," Phillips said.

"The neo-Fascism in Germany has been in direct response to the influx of refugees to that country," he said.

"A Balkan war may start with a flashfire in Bosnia and Macedonia if not prevented now. This war could involve many nations," he explained.

The role of NATO and the UN to act in the post-Cold War world is being called into question.

The credibility of the U.S. as the only superpower is at stake in the Bosnian situation, Phillips said.

Phillips called for action on several fronts, including these:

If UN relief convoys are stopped, the UN must be willing to use military force to get aid to the besieged cities.

Refugees must be returned to their homes.

Bosnians must be given access to the Danube River through a corridor through Serbian territory.

The arms embargo must be lifted so that the Bosnians may arm themselves against their aggressors. "The Serbians have proven that they are willing to fight an unarmed enemy," Phillips said, "but they have not proved willing to fight an equally well-armed enemy."

NATO must be on-the-spot to provide short-term protection.

And finally, Phillips said "There must be justice and accountability. Those guilty of war crimes must not be allowed to hide behind their borders."

Phillips pointed out that these are just temporary solutions to a long-term problem.

The long-term solutions "must come from the parties in the former Yugoslavia. The international community can help to stop the killing so that the moderates on all sides can work together for a long-term solution."

SISD Board votes on contracts

The Salado I.S.D. Board of Trustees voted to renew the contracts of its teachers during the regular meeting March 8.

The board voted to renew the one-year contracts of 49 teachers and faculty, following a one-and-a-half hour executive meeting. On a motion by Cindy Fisher and second by Tom Berrier, the board voted 5-1 to renew the contracts of all the district teachers with these exceptions: Doreen McMinn, Jean Moran, and Shaun Miller. Grant Critchfield voted against the motion. All three high school teachers were employed on probationary contracts. Miller resigned his position March 9, according to Supt. Steven Ervin.

In other business, the board voted unanimously on a local policy to comply with the Family Leave Act.

The board also approved textbooks for 1994-95.

Trustees also appointed election judge for the May 7 trustee election. Doodle Bridges will serve as election judge with Lyncal Cabaniss serving as absentee voting clerk and Mary Ribeiro serving as absentee voting judge.

Two three-year terms on the Salado I.S.D. Board are up for election May 7.

Eagles baseballers win tournament, beat Rogers badly

For the first time this season the Salado Eagles exploded for a big inning early in the game, instead of having to come from behind. Salado scored 8 runs on the visiting Rogers Eagles in the bottom of the first and then coasted to a 13-0 victory.

Chris Jackson got things rolling for Salado with a one out single. Three consecutive walks brought in the first run. Back to back singles by Richard Jackson and Brent Cabaniss scored two more runs. A wild pitch allowed the fourth run. After a walk Andrew Voelter unleashed a triple to right center field. Voelter finished the scoring for the inning on a Jason Hosch single.

Salado added a single run
Baseball Assoc.
playday March 19

The Salado Youth Baseball Association will have a play day 1 p.m., March 19 at the Hodge Baseball Field.

Boys have signed up for summer baseball who have not played in Salado before or who have moved up to another age division need to be there for try outs.

This will also be the final day for sign-ups for summer league baseball or softball. The opportunity to sign-up will close after Saturday. Coaches are required to meet after the play day.

in the second and third innings before finishing the scoring with three runs in the bottom of the fourth. Voelter and Richard Berumen were both 2 for 2 on the night. Chris Jackson, Jereme Hosch, and Richard Jackson also collected two hits on the night.

Richard Jackson was credited with the victory for Salado. He allowed only two hits while striking out seven over four innings. Josh Goodnight pitched the last inning. He struck out two batters.

In the opening round of the Salado baseball tournament, the Eagles defeated Holland 12-1. In the other first round game Rogers defeated the Belton J.V. 4-2.

The Eagles started the scoring with three runs in the bottom of the first. Things started with consecutive walks. A Berumen single scored the first run. After another walk a Brandon McGregor sacrifice fly scored a run and a Richard Jackson single drove in the third.

Salado added one run in the second before icing the game with eight runs in the third. McGregor had two hits in the big third inning rally. Jason Hosch, Chris Jackson, Berumen and Richard Jackson all contributed hits in the inning.

Jereme Hosch received credit for the win on the mound for the Eagles. He gave up only one earned run in the fourth inning. He allowed only one base hit during four innings. He struck out five Holland batters. Chris Frazier pitched the fifth inning striking out two batters.

McGregor, Berumen and Richard Jackson all collected two hits apiece to lead the Eagles offensively.

Things looked great for the Eagles after the first inning of the championship game. After shutting Rogers out, Salado was able to push across five runs in the bottom half.

Salado was able to score runs in every inning to stay a few steps in front of Rogers. The Eagles scored two runs in the second, fifth, and sixth innings and added a run in the third and fourth.

Rogers was able to stay in the contest on three unearned runs in the third inning and three more runs in the fourth. The fourth inning runs were earned although they collected only one hit. Rogers received five walks in the innings. They also added an unearned run in the top of the seventh. The final score was 13-7.

Salado collected only six hits on the night. Brent Cabaniss had a scorching rbi triple to right field and Jereme Hosch hit a towering double to left to highlight the Eagles offense.

Richard Jackson pitched the first three innings and left with a lead but did not have the required number of innings to get credit for the win. That went to Goodnight who pitched the next three innings. Chris Frazier finished the game pitching the seventh.

The Magic Stone

Second place essay in Salado's Young Authors Contest

The following is the condensed version of a story written by the second place winners of the Young Authors Contest.

The Magic Stone
by Aldo Rocha, Mandy Tsosie, Chrystin Coe and John Kirk

I was walking in the yard on Sunday afternoon and saw a sparkling pink stone. As I reached down to touch it the stone magically turned from pink to blue, from blue to green and then from green to pink again.

The first thing that came to my mind was to take it home and have my Dad identify it. But, on second thought, perhaps I should keep it a secret. I tucked the stone in my pocket and took it home.

As I walked into my room my Mom startled me when she walked up behind me and asked "Where have you been?"

"Where have you been I?" I repeated. "Uhhh, I've been outside walking," I told her.

"Well, since you're home now, you can clean your room," she said with a stern look.

I sat on my bed pondering to myself. "I wish I didn't have to clean my room," I whined.

I fell back on my soft twin bed and closed my eyes. When I opened my eyes, the room was spotlessly clean!

"Supper is ready," my Mom called from the kitchen. When I sat down at the table I saw that we were having brussel sprouts and broccoli.

I looked at my plate full of vegetables that I hated and mumbled, "Yuck, I wish I didn't have to eat my supper."

I closed my eyes tight and shook my head and when my eyes opened my food had vanished like the invisible man.

"You surely ate your supper quickly," my Dad said.

"Want seconds? Mom asked.

"No thanks! May I be excused?" I asked.

The next morning when I went to school I was surprised when Mrs. Jackson announced that we were having a math test. "But I didn't study!" I exclaimed. As I was fretting over what I had just heard, I found myself wishing that I would make 100 on the test. When Mrs. Jackson passed back our test papers, I was astonished! I had made 100!

At lunch Ben Brooks, the biggest bully in school, picked on me. "I wish you would leave me alone." I told him. To my amazement, Ben cowered off in fear. For the rest of the semester, Ben stayed away from me.

The next Saturday we made a trip to Kentucky to visit my Grandma. She had been sick for the past few weeks. While we were in the car, I thought about all the places we had traveled with her. I wished that she was well again so we could go on more trips with her. When we got to Grandma's house we were astounded when we saw her. She was jumping up and down on the bed and yelling "Whoopie!" She was feeling so frisky that we decided to go dancing.

Through the years I made of lots of wishes, but I never could figure out why they all came true. As I reflected, it suddenly dawned on me that my sparkling pink stone was always with me when the wishes were expressed. What an amazing connection between the rock and the wishes. "Please don't let me ever lose his magical stone," I prayed.

Shiner Leonard is top tramp

The Texas Shrine Clown Association held its annual convention at the YO Holiday Inn in Kerrville, recently.

Local Shiner Billy G. Leonard, was named the top Tramp Clown in Texas. Competition was in costume, makeup and overall appearance.

"BeeGee" has been a clown for the Karem Shrine in Waco for the past 5 years. This is the first time he has placed this high in competition.

The Shiners, through their money raising activities, support the Children's Orthopedic Hospital in Houston and the Children's Burn Center in Galveston. Children are transported and treated at no cost.

Blum addresses Monday Club

March 16, 1994, SALADO Village Voice, Page 15

The Salado Monday Club met March 7 with guest speaker JoAnn Blum, who presented a program on wildflowers of the area. She brought an exhibit of various examples and discussed the methods involved in identifying them.

Blum, a former school teacher, is a native of Waco and comes from a family of nature lovers. She has been in garden club work for 29 years, currently serving in the Texas Garden Clubs as Arbor Day, chairman. The occasion of the 105th anniversary of Texas Arbor Day was recently celebrated in Temple, where it originated in 1889.

JoAnn and her husband Henry have been residents of Salado for 10 years. They are active in local events.

Easter Play set

The Night Before the Cross will be presented at First Baptist Church, Belton, on March 31, 7-8 p.m. The production is free and open to the public.

The play was written by and will be produced and directed by Diane Howard, UMHB Drama Instructor and Brian Stansell, UMHB Drama Division student director. Based on a harmony of the four gospels, the script uses scripture from the Bible. The dramatization presents Jesus Christ's last evening and last supper with His disciples. As Jesus and His disciples participate in their last supper and Passover meal, the audience will also be served communion.

Virginia Kinnison Matthews

This is a third in a series of articles commemorating Texas Women's History Month. It is based on one of the interviews done as a part of the Oral History Project of Bell County Historical Commission entitled "Main Street Salado."

by Marybelle Brown contributor

Virginia Kinnison Matthews and her late husband, Col. Paul Kinnison, moved to Salado in 1963 after Col. Kinnison's retirement from the United States Army. This time period was described by Virginia as being a period of transition in Salado's more recent history. She stated it was a fortunate time to arrive to see and be a part of Salado's change from "the old to the new".

The Kinnisons helped organize and became charter and long time members of a series of organizations that had their beginnings in the mid 1960's. These included Salado Chamber of Commerce, Salado Garden Club, which later became the Ladies Auxiliary, Salado Art Fair, Conservation Society of Historic Salado, which later became known as the Salado Historic Society, Spring Home Tours, and the Monday Club, all of which are credited with helping Salado become known as an historic tourist attraction as well as a center for art and antique enthusiasts.

Col. Kinnison was responsible for establishing the community water in Salado, prior to this everyone had their own individual water well.

The Kinnisons led the clean-up efforts to restore pace Park and make the banks of Salado Creek accessible to the public.

When they arrived dense undergrowth of weeds and brush had completely obscured both the park and the creek banks.

Virginia is credited with being one of the newcomers who introduced art and antiques to Salado.

Salado Easter Egg Hunt set April 2 at Civic Center

Get your baskets ready and tennis shoes on .... the Salado Easter Egg Hunt is set for April 2. Ages 0-10 years will be able to participate. The fun begins at 2:30 p.m. with the hunt to be held at 3 p.m.

Two contests will be

There was a small gift and antique shop in the log cabin near the Stagecoach Inn but when Virginia opened the old Saloon building north of her house on Main Street for sales of art work and antiques, this paved the way for Salado to become known as a mecca for artists and antique collectors and dealers.

Virginia is a native of San Marcos, Texas but her roots in Salado go back 130 years when her great-grandfather, Rev. George Washington Baines was called to pastor the Baptist Church in Salado in the 1860's.

Virginia had heard of Salado all of her life but she first visited the sleepy little village in the early 1960's when she and her late husband came to Ft. Hood, Texas and began to think about retirement and to search for a retirement home.

The Kinnisons had collected antiques throughout their years of travel while Col. Kinnison served in the army. Virginia had dreamed of finding a big old house and restoring it as a retirement home. While visiting in Salado, the Kinnisons met the late Joe Morris and learned that his house on North Main Street was for sale. The Kinnisons moved quickly to latch onto what Virginia describes a "dream come true". The house was purchased in 1962 and the family moved in the following year.

Virginia researched the history of the house and learned that it was built in the early 1860's by James Anderson who purchased seven and one-half acres of land adjoining Salado creek and extending north along Main street when the town of Salado was laid out in 1859 and 1860. Anderson was one of the original members of the Salado Joint Stock Company organized to raise money for building Salado College. He was elected Justice of the Peace in the first election held, an egg decorating contest and a bunny costume contest. Prizes will be awarded in the age categories 0-3 years, 4-6 years and 7-10 years.

There will be popcorn, soft drinks, balloons and face painting.

ever held in Bell County after the county was organized in 1850, a position he held until his death. Anderson was a charter member and elder of the Church of Christ which was organized in Salado on March 10, 1859. Three of his son-in-laws, Jesse Bryant, Miles Adams, and Thomas Jefferson Eubanks, were also original members of Salado Joint Stock Company. Eubanks purchased Lot 10 when the town was laid out and built Salado Hotel, which is now known as the Stagecoach Inn.

The Kinnisons restored the house, now known as the historic Anderson House, where Virginia lives with her present husband, the Rev. George Matthews a Methodist minister.

Some of the Morriss Family's furniture and household items were left in the house when it was purchased by the Kinnisons. Virginia stored these items in the old saloon building next door and later held a "garage sale". This proved to be a good idea and Virginia decided to open a shop selling part of her antique collection as well as some of her own art work. Virginia's paintings of scenes around Salado became popular among collectors.

For years Virginia served as a one-person "information bureau" answering questions and providing information to visitors to Salado. Many people visit Salado searching for their "roots" and Virginia has always been gracious in welcoming them to Salado and in encouraging appreciation for the quaint little village with so much history.

Mary Hill attends exhibit honoring late husband's work

Mary Hill recently attended the opening of an exhibit honoring her late husband John Leslie Hill at the Lone Star Flight Museum in Galveston.

He was honored for exemplary achievements in the design of automatic weaponry. The exhibit displays weapon prototypes and original drawings to visualize the unique process of invention... representing American ingenuity.

John L. Hill was born in Fort Wayne, Indiana on Feb. 25, 1894. He grew up in Louisville, Kentucky and at an early age proved to be very adept with anything mechanical. Upon completion of high school, he went to Detroit and worked in the design department of Packard Motors.

When the first World War began to heat up, he went to Canada and enlisted in the Royal Flying

John Leslie Hill

Corps (Now the R.A.F.). He served as 1st Lieutenant in France and Belgium until the war ended.

Upon returning to the States, he went to Louisiana and worked in the oil business. Over the years, he worked for Carter Oil, Continental Oil and Gasoline Plants, Inc. For 2 years he was vice-president of a pioneer airline started in 1929 by Bill Skelly of Skelly Oil, called Southwest Air Fast Express. As with the oil companies where he was considered an excellent trouble shooter and problem solver, Skelly borrowed him from Carter to handle problems he had with his new airline. He constantly read technical books and became noted for his knowledge of gas and gasoline. He supervised the construction of many pipe lines and gasoline plants in the U.S. and in Canada.

During this period, he patented a method for compressing gas so it could be shipped from the well in containers without a pipeline. However, this was before its time and it was not until the National Tank and The Chicago Stockyards needed his patent, as they were building a ship to carry gas to England. This process is still being used in shipping gas overseas.

He was always fascinated by guns-- the mechanism, not particularly shooting them. In 1948, he began thinking about the Hill Machine Gun. A 9 mm Luger and .380 Auto., lightweight submachine gun designed specifically for law enforcement use.

He manufactured the prototypes himself in a small machine shop consisting of a drill press and a milling machine in a closet in his home. Over the years the various unique features of his guns were patented not only in the States but in European countries as well. His models were admired by all the gun factories in the States as well as by F.N. in Belgium. However, the timing was not right, there were no requirements for a new weapon of this sort during this period, in spite of the enthusiasm of the factories who were all eager to manufacture it if they had orders from the military.

Hill developed some of the most advanced concepts in automatic weaponry. His advancements over the conventional automatic system includes a revolving disk that moves the cartridge into the firing chamber, an ejection system which discharges empty casings through the hand grip, and a revolutionary horizontal magazine. The see through calibrated magazine allows the user to have an active count of the remaining ammo that could be discharged singularly, in bursts or the entire clip at the rate of 400 rounds per minute. These concepts helped produce a weapon with no moving external parts during the firing sequence and consequently decreased the cause of malfunction. The gun is balanced on a pistol grip area making it extremely easy to handle and point. When equipped with a silencer the sight picture is not distorted.

In 1980, John Hill sold the patents to a group in Houston.

He died on Feb. 17, 1991, just before his 97th birthday.

It was made known by Mary Hill that in the past and on certain occasion the ATF was interested in her husband's activities to the extent that Texas Sen. John Tower's help was enlisted to alleviate the situation.

For many years the patents and prototypes had to be stored in safety depositories but currently all guns, prototypes and patents can be found on display at the Lone Star Flight Museum.

Also attending this occasion was John Hill's daughter, Chris Dipalma of Santa Fe and Salado friends Pete and Joann Jennings.

Seafood Safety Tips

by Ilene C. Miller

Co. Ext. Agent

Don't overlook seafood specials during Lent and March, which is National Frozen Food Month. And remember that seafood is no exception when it comes to the importance of proper handling and preparation to minimize the risk of food borne illness.

Follow these tips to select seafood and keep it safe after purchase:

Know your seafood retailer. Buy from reputable licensed stores and markets. If in doubt, ask the seafood market personnel to show you the certified shipper's tag that accompanies "shells-on" products or check the certification number on shucked oyster containers. Shell-on oysters, mussels and clams should be alive when purchased. Shells should either be closed, or if they gape slightly, they should close tightly when tapped on a hard surface. Lobsters, crabs and crawfish should be moving if alive.

Make sure fin fish look moist, have a glossy sheen and slightly translucent color. Flesh should feel firm, not soggy. On whole fish, eyes should be bright and bulging, not brown, milky or sunken. Fish have a fresh, mild odor, not a strong fishy odor.

Make seafood the last item you select before heading to the check-out stand at the grocery store. Stay away from cooked seafood that is displayed directly in contact with raw fish or shellfish. Jars or cans of fresh products such as oysters should be packed in ice up to their lids.

Keep fresh, pasteurized or smoked seafood products refrigerated at 32°F. Freeze raw seafood that will not be used in one or two days. Store live lobsters, crabs, oysters and mussels (shellfish) in the refrigerator, but not in airtight plastic bags or containers. Cover them with damp paper towels. Do not cook or eat shellfish that have died during storage.

Thaw frozen seafood in the refrigerator, microwave or in ice cold water. Do not thaw at room temperature. Bacteria multiply rapidly at room temperature. Before preparation, rinse seafood in cold water to remove any surface bacteria.

Cook fish until done. Fin fish is done when it turns opaque and begins to flake when tested with a fork at the thickest part. Follow package directions when cooking or heating processed frozen foods. Shellfish such as shrimp, lobster, crab or scallops turn opaque when done. Oysters, clams and mussels open their shells when they are cooked.

Just as the consumption of raw food carries a risk of food borne illness, so does eating raw fish (sashimi, sushi and ceviche) and raw oysters, clams and mussels. A common saltwater microorganism, Vibrio Vulnificus is carried at times by oysters, particularly in summer months in Gulf Coast waters. It can be the cause of severe illness and death from some individuals with certain medical conditions. People with chronic liver disease or compromised immune systems should avoid consuming raw or partially cooked oysters.

As with all raw food of animal origin, follow safe food handling guidelines. Keep everything clean. Cook seafood until done

Don't leave raw or cooked seafood out of the refrigerator for more than two hours, including preparation time, and time on the table. And promptly refrigerate any leftovers.

If you would like additional information on safe handling and preparation of seafood, contact the Bell County Extension Office at 933-5305 in Belton.

The Hill Submachine Gun

Matthews

When the Kinnisons arrived, there were only nine businesses located on Main Street. These were the Fletcher's Books, Mrs. Fielder's hamburger place, Grace Jone's shop, Shepherd's Grocery, the feed store, the gin, two gas stations, and the Stagecoach Inn. A beauty shop was located in a private home on College Hill. Salado was still the "ghost town" as it had been known for many years but began to slowly change in the 1960's.

The Salado Chamber of Commerce with Earl Guest as its first president was organized in late 1962 and early 1963. Paul Kinnison was one of the organizers. The early Chamber was not made up of businesses but instead claimed as its members most adults living in the Salado area, who, from its beginning, worked together to achieve major projects which improved the quality of life for residents of Salado as well as attracted newcomers to the area.

One of the Chamber's most ambitious projects was the annual Salado Art Fair. The first fair, patterned after the old pioneer agricultural and stock fairs, and co-chaired Virginia Kinnison and Jack Jones, was held in 1967. According to Virginia, the first fair attracted more than 50 artists and an estimated 3,000 visitors. Vendors sold homemade ice cream, ice cold watermelon and lemonade, homemade gingerbread and sandwiches.

The fair was like "old home wee". Everyone came but one both! The people had to be educated about what art fairs were and that artists would become "starving artists" if no one bought their paintings. Later, crafts were added to the exhibits and the fair became a successful fund-raising project for the Chamber of Commerce.

Virginia co-chaired the Art Fair Committee with Jack Jones for a second year, then Col. Kinnison was chairman for the next two years.

Virginia was one of the founders of the Monday Club which was organized to raise money to purchase needed items for the sanctuary of the First Methodist Church in Salado. The club gradually became a spiritual, social, and educational group and membership was extended to all the women of Salado area.

Virginia Kinnison was also one of the founding members of the Conservation Society of Historic Salado in 1979. This organization later became known as the Salado Historical Society. Other founding members were Doris Denman, Katherine Wilkes, Jacie Simmonds, Thelma Fletcher, Ruth Howe, Elva Jo Stewart and Pat Barton.

The Salado Garden Club with Virginia as a charter member and president was organized for women members of the Chamber of Commerce, with its primary purpose of beautification of Salado. A successful Spring Homes Tour was held. Because of a disagreement among members over purpose and direction the organization was dissolved and was soon replaced by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Salado Chamber of Commerce. The Auxiliary has proved to be one of the most successful groups in Salado with its members volunteering thousands of hours each year in many areas of community life.

Virginia Kinnison Matthews and her family have loved Salado from the minute they first visited it in 1962. They have appreciated its uniqueness and have worked diligently to promote and preserve its history, its scenic beauty, its "country" atmosphere and its natural ability to "treat the commonplace with a feeling of the sublime."

Salado Civic Center plans work on grounds

Planning by the Salado Civic Center Landscape and Development Committee is underway, the committee having met on several occasions to implement a program for both short-range and long-term development of the grounds around the Center.

The committee has established at least three categories of work, attempting to prioritize those areas of landscaping and development that will enhance the beauty and use of the Center. The preliminary master plans with item frames include:

Short Term Action (Spring, 1994) includes: a Civic Center Sign, grass on the front and sides of the building, to power-wash the exterior of the building, shrubs on the front of the building, surface sprinkler-shrubs, and tree trimming.

Intermediate Term Action (1995) includes: Sprinkler; Lawn in front and sides of building, Grass in the back of the building, shrubs at the property line, fence, band stand, Troy Kelley's life-size bronze sculpture

Long Term Action (1996) includes: sprinkler in the back, circa 1850's buildings on the grounds, brick walks, picnic area in the back, and tile front porch.

Additional development programs will be added as professional assistance is provided. The committee is currently talking with firms and individuals who can provide technical advice for long-range planting purposes.

S.R. Greenwood, chairman of the committee, announced the appointment of Lloyd Parks to chair the fund-raising campaign for purposes of funding the project. "I am particularly pleased to have Lloyd accept this important function as he brings the community an extra dimension in our overall efforts and will be very effective in interesting the community in supporting this worthwhile effort," Greenwood said.

Parks responded by saying "Our initial benchmark for fund-raising will be $25,000 with the entire project including the bandstand reaching approximately $75,000."

He further reported that pledges of over $12,000 have been made to date. Pledges may be paid over a 3-year period and may be made in the Civic Center office or by calling 947-0330 or 947-5944.

Members of the committee include JoAnn Blum, Carolyn Britt, William A. Jones, George and Blanche Kevlin, George Kolb, Lloyd Parks, Ed Pollard, Elinor Tope and Advisory committee members Bob Cottle and Ken Clapp.

Greenwood invited anyone interested in working with the committee to contact him at 947-5044.

Something for everyone

Civic Center seeks input from community on use of building for non-structured gatherings

The Board of Directors of the Old Salado School Foundation needs your help. If you are retired and would be interested in helping to develop a program for Saladoans that would include use of the new Civic Center to meet, drink coffee, socialize, play cards or dominoes, or a variety of other non-structured activities on a periodic basis—please fill out the form below and send it to the Civic Center as soon as possible.

Now that the civic center is up and running, it is time, the directors feel, to plan special activities as promised when the renovation of the old school building was first proposed. In order to put a workable plan together, it is necessary to have solid input from those who will be using the facility on a social and recreational basis

Please Complete

Jackson will marry Schneider

Jim and Jeri Jackson of Lago Vista, Texas announce the engagement of their daughter Rebecca Dawn to Neal Dwayne Schneider, son of Reinhard and Eileen Schneider of Thorndale, Texas.

The bride is a graduate of Belton High school and a 1992 graduate of The University of Texas at Austin. She is currently employed as a teacher in Taylor, Texas. The groom is a graduate of Texas A&M University and is currently employed at Commercial Credit Corp. in Austin.

Rebecca is the granddaughter of Dale and Marie Jackson of Salado.

The wedding is to take place July 2 in Thorndale, Texas.
