Dedication ceremony held for Salado Civic Center

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

The Salado Civic Center was formally opened with great fanfare as 329 people attended ceremonies Oct. 9 at the old red school on Main St. Salado.

Salado Chamber of Commerce President Denver Mills served as master of ceremonies, as he was joined on stage by Stewart Smith, president of the Old Salado School Foundation (OSSF), Salado alumnus Morris Foster, Paul Meyer and John Meadows of the Meadows Foundation.

The Meadows Foundation gave $117,000 to the renovation project. The Paul Meyer family gave $39,000 and Morris Foster led the individual donations with $25,000.

Mills also thanked volunteer efforts by Bob Cottle, Patsy Sanford, Ken Clapp, Cathy Sands and Suzi Epps.

A model of Troy Kelley's proposed bronze sculpture, "Salado Children" was on display in the Civic Center.

Kelley proposes a life size model of four Salado children at the flagpole. "The sculpture is designed to reflect the ideals and attitudes of education during the late 1920s and early 1930s when the red brick school was constructed," said artist Troy Kelley.

"The placement of the sculpture in front of the 'old school' will signify to everyone that Salado was founded with certain community values and that the residents still pay homage to those values through art," Kelley added.

Funding for the sculpdonations, according to Kelley.

Elected officials attending the ceremony included State Rep. Diane Delisi, Commissioners Richard Cortese and Robert Shoemaker, Judge Stan Pemberton and Justice of the Peace Don Svadlenak.

Off the Record

by Ken Clapp

Amendment Four has been, and will continue to be, the most emotionally charged proposal coming before voters on November 2. It deals with the hated "I" word - income taxes - at the state level. It needs a lot more study and thinking over by the electorate.

What the proposed amendment claims to do is simple. It would, if passed, prohibit the legislature from passing a state personal and/or corporate income tax unless and until a referendum is held at which time voters could then have the final say as to implementing the tax on income as well as the rate to be levied. A salient point for those promoting the amendment.

Further, all the income tax revenue would go to education. Two thirds to reduce, dollar for dollar, the school property tax and the balance to support state-wide educational programs. These are also good selling points to support such a radical change in our Texas tax system. And lastly, if the legislature - in its infinite wisdom - should decide to raise the income tax rate, they would first have to go back to the voters of the state in referendum for such an increase. Another plus factor for passage of this proposal.

There are some downsides to this adventure into the unknown abyss of taxation, namely the wording of the law that would implement this measure should it pass. It gives the legislature power to repeal and/or amend the income tax measure by a simple majority at any time after a state-wide vote in favor of the income tax. Repeal is fine but the critical word is "amend" and here we don't know what those loonies in Austin might do given their track record in amending things. These guys are capable of messing up a two car funeral. Think what they could do to an income tax once it was put in place!

There is one other puzzling aspect to the proposed law that goes along with the amendment; it gives the legislature the power to repeal the law as noted, but also gives the lawmakers the right to reenact the income tax the next year without voter approval. The rate is not mentioned in the reenactment process which means that we could just be giving our "spend it all" solons a blank check through this mysterious loophole in the proposed law that would implement the amendment if passed.

A lot more politicking will take place between now and the presentation of this amendment to the public on November 2. Business interests in the state are drooling with glee over such a proposed change since they now pay some 60 percent of all ad valorem school taxes. They figure they will get a break if given entry into an income tax setting that could in years to come - thanks to the "amendment" clause in the law - find all sorts of abatements, special exemptions and other reasons for not paying their fair share. Much as they do today with the federal income tax.

This column has long advocated exchanging the property tax for a low rate income tax - provided there were strict limits on the new tax; voter control on all changes in the rates; dollar for dollar reduction of property taxes for income taxes and no special allowances or exemptions given to special interests.

If you believe that our lawmakers can be trusted to implement with honesty and fairness - an income tax that would take the place of the school property tax; that there would be no special treatment for businesses or individuals; that no rates would be changed without further referendum votes by the people; and that all the proceeds from such an income tax would go 100 percent to public education and not drained off in part for special legislative programs then it is recommended that you approve Amendment Four. Otherwise - kill it dead!

Friends Feeding Friends effort begins here

Local effort for the needy begins with a drop box at IGA Village Foods.

Friends Feeding Friends is a joint effort by temple-Belton board of Realtors and KCEN-TV to meet the needs of the poor and homeless not just by words, but by action, according to Bill Bartlett Salado coordinator for the project.

The Fourth Annual Friends Feeding Friends Fund and Food Drive began recently and will continue until Oct. 21.

Last year Friends Feeding Friends was a tremendous success with over 4,00 pounds of food collected in Salado. Salado High School Future Farmers of America helped to collect and distribute the food.

IGA Village Foods was a major contributor as well as other organizations and individuals in Salado that donated food and money.

This year most of the food collected will be distributed by the FFA to needy families and the remaining food will be given to the food pantries in Salado.

A collection box has been placed at IGA Village Foods in Salado and Bill Bartlett asks that when you shop there to please by a can to two extra of food and drop in the collection box.

Local church, school and civic groups are also encouraged to get involved in this project.

If Bill Bartlett has not contacted your organization, call him at 947-5050.

Village Artist of Month named

by Andy Phair
contributor

Salado Village Artists

Egon Friedrich started taking snapshots in 1943. His love affair with the camera has lasted more than 50 years and has blossomed into an award winning affair with the paint brush. October 1, the Salado Village Artists presented Egon as the featured attraction in their Artist of the Month program. With a short trip to either Peoples National Bank or First State Bank located on Main Street, you can view examples of Egon Friedrich's most recent photographic works that are on display.

Egon, a life long resident of the Salado area, has studied with some of the great names in photography, including Cole Weston and the Modern Photography School in Little Falls, N.J. His works hang in the permanent collections of the Salado Post Office, The Salado Chamber of Commerce and Peoples National Bank. He has shown his work with Central Texas Camera Club, the Texas Professional Photographers and with the Village Artists in Salado.

"I'd rather shoot outdoor portraits than most anything," admitted Egon, "but I love to do flowers and landscapes, too." When asked for some tips on taking pictures, Egon stated, "A good photo has to have good composition and impact. Something to catch the eye and draw you in. I like to look for rocks to shoot. Big ones are great, but little ones, like gravel, can have exciting shadows when a tree limb streaks across them. Winter a good time for that."

Although Egon spends most of his time farming, he can usually be found at any public or private function, snapping his candid shots either for commission or maybe just as a pictorial history of our lives.

The Salado Village Artist meet at Tablerock Amphitheatre 9:30 a.m. every Tuesday.

Upcoming Events

The board of the Salado Village Artists met recently to lay out plans for the coming months.

October 19, includes a watercolor presentation from Salado newest artist in residence, Ronnie Wells of Wells Gallery, whose shop occupies the old Post Office building.

Among plans for the new year will be an Open House with the public invited. "We would like to let the Village know what we are all about says president Jimmie Vernon. "And we's like to show off a little too, so we will probably have a few works of art hanging around."

The Artists Club has plans in mind for some art lessons to be offered to the public free of charge. "We'd especially like to target the kids of the area with this, said Jimmie, but of course, we hope the adults will take advantage of it too. Maybe they will go onto to become active members of the Salado Village Artist." The club normally meets (:30 a.m. on Tuesdays at the Tablerock Amphitheatre, but will probably offer some of their classes at the new Salado Civic Center on Saturdays in order to reach a wider range of students.

Nov. 3-5 a watercolor demonstration will be held at Tablerock Amphitheatre featuring Waco artists Mary Barton. This is an opportunity to study with one of the finest area watercolorists, in a casual bring you lunch surrounding. Mary is an award winning, full time painter and teacher who recently showed at the Salado Art Fair.

In the plans for the 1994 season will be a clay workshop with Troy Kelly, an oil demonstration from Bill Zaner, several lectures from area artists, as well as many social, just for fun, get-togethers. The club usually has 3-5 workshops a year which will be highlights in the Salado Village Voice as they are scheduled.

Year-end Gifting can be valuable strategy for investors

(Part 2 of 2)

Gifting can be a very effective component of an individual's year-end tax-planning efforts. And, in light of increases in tax rates, many more individuals are turning to charitable giving this year as a way to control their tax bills. Whether gifting to an individual or a charity, you need to document two essential pieces of information about your gift: the date the gift was made and the value of the asset on that date.

Many investors, particularly those who want to conserve cash, prefer to gift securities. This strategy can have additional advantages if the gifted securities have increased in value, since selling them would result in a taxable capital gain for the giver.

When gifting securities, documenting both the timing and value of the gift is essential. And you must follow certain rules in determining this information. Further, different types of securities require specific considerations when determining their value.

Stocks

When valuing stocks that trade publicly in an established market, the value of that stock equals the average of the high and low selling prices of the date of the gift. For example, if the lowest trading price on a particular date is $10 per share and the highest trading price is $10.50 per share, the value of the stock gifted on that date will be $10.25 for tax purposes. This is true regardless of the closing price of the stock

Mutual Fund Shares

Mutual fund shares are valued at their bid price or net asset value (i.e.,

Mike Miller

the liquidation value of the share) on the date of the gift.

Bonds

In valuing bonds, you would typically use the same method as in valuing stocks (the average of the high and low selling price on the date of the gift). If the only price available for a bond on particular date is its closing price, the IRS encourages investors to use the average between the closing price on the date of the gift and the closing price on the previous trading date.

Bond prices typically fluctuate based on changing economic conditions (e.g., interest rate movements). As a result, it's not uncommon for there to be no variation in the bid price of a bond over a period of several days. If you are trying to value a bond for purposes of gifting, you should ask your investment broker for the bond's high and low bid prices over the two-day period. However, don't be surprised if you find the two prices are the same.

If you would like to gift securities before year-end, consult with your investment broker. He or she can assist you in identifying those securities that might be good candidates for gifts, as well as in developing a plan for effectively transferring those assets to your family or the charity of your choice.

To whom it may concern:

This is to recommend to you Mr. Nick Smith, a house and general painter who does a very good job. It is my understanding that he also does other types of jobs.

I found his labor rates to be very reasonable and his performance as a house painter to be well above average. He works at a rapid rate while at the same time being very careful not to drop paint where it is not wanted, always a nuisance. Having furnished the paint one might expect an overly generous application; however, he was sparing and used no more than required to do a good job.

It is a pleasure to recommend Mr. Smith to you. He is indeed an oddity these days... a man who not only wants to work, at reasonable rates, but to fulfill his contract to the best of his ability.

Jordan discusses ethics & morals in public life at Institute Oct. 10

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

"The role of money in the political system is an obscenity," Barbara Jordan told a packed house Oct. 10 during the first of a series of four lectures on Life's Continuum: Ethics and Morals.

"Ethical principals don't change," Jordan said. "They are enduring. They don't fluctuate."

What does change, however, is the attention paid to those principals by the public. When a public official is not tuned into this attention by the public, that official will be "caught in a snare," Jordan said.

Jordan discussed the downfall of former House speaker Jim Wright. The things Wright did which eventually caused his loss of power were legal at the time he did them, "but the public became attentive to the appearance of impropriety. It is not enough to be legal."

Elected officials, according to Jordan, cannot draw a line between what is legal and what is ethical. "Those two lines must become one," she said.

Public officials are the owners of a public trust, according to Jordan. "It is a very high responsibility," she said. "We elect a person to express our views in a manner that pleases us. We don't want that person to confuse his or her interests with ours."

Public officials are often held to a higher set of standards than many others. "Many times, officials set the tenor of public discourse. His acts have the potential to become a model of behavior for others."

A viable democracy rests on three pillars: an honest public servant with a set of values, an involved and informed citizenry and a rigorous and responsible press.

The set of standards and values of public officials should include these, according to Jordan:

1. Preservation of life.

2. Individual autonomy.
3. Don't lie. "Just tell the truth," Jordan said.
4. Be fair.
5. Care and concern for others.

"Nothing should replace the ideal of ethics and morality in all we do and all we say," Jordan said.

Jordan told the capacity crowd that "religiosity is the place where values are in order. It is okay to discuss about values in context of religiosity. No one has told me that God is partisan... and I don't think that she is," Jordan said with a laugh.

The family is first in line in teaching ethics and values. "We are afraid of spanking today and something is wrong with that.... My mother had a strap when I was growing up. I knew where it was and when I did something I knew was wrong, I knew it would be used. Sometimes the best thing I could do is try to hide the strap," Jordan said with a smile.

Hector returns from NFRW Convention

by MaryBelle Brown
contributor

Kathy Hector of Salado has returned from Las Vegas, Nevada where she attended the biennial convention of the National Federation of Republican women (NFRW).

Kathy accepted the Diamond Achievement Award for the Chisholm Trail Republican Women's Organization of Salado. This award, the highest given by the NFRW, represents two successful years of activity for member of the CTRWO. Only 40 of 180 clubs in Texas received this award.

CTRWO serves as a support group or auxiliary of the Republican Parties of Bell County, Texas, and the national party. Among the activities are voter registration, hostingspeakers on vital topics related to our government and current political issues, working for candidates during election years, and volunteering in a variety of community service projects in Salado and Bell County.

The next meeting of CTRWO will be held 6:30 p.m., Nov. 11 at the Mill Creek Club dining room. This annual meeting will serve as an orientation to new members as well as any women in the Salado area who are interested in learning more about the Republican Women's Group. Men are welcomed as associate members.

For more information, call Jean Westerberg, membership chairman or MaryBelle Brown president.

Work day at Cemetery postponed to Nov.

by MaryBelle Brown
contributor

Work is continuing on the historic cemetery preservation project of the Salado Cemetery Association.

Work includes filling in sunken graves, resetting foot markers, trimming trees which obscure historic gravestone, resetting gravestones which are leaning, repair of broken headstones and general cleaning of gravesites.

The project involves the Old Original Cemetery as well as the 1905 addition. Gerron Hite, architect from Texas Historical Association met with Cemetery Association members and made a number of recommendations of achieving goals of the Association.

Membership is the Cemetery Association is made up of those persons having family members buried in the cemetery as well as those owning burial plots. There are no membership dues. The Cemetery Association is governed by a three-member Board of Trustees. These are Patsy Sanford, Jack Evans and Apple Johnson.

A workday scheduled for Oct. 16 has been postponed and will be re-scheduled in Nov.

Volunteers are needed for the project. Those persons owning burial sites or those with family members buried in the cemetery are urged to clean and make needed repairs to their own lots.

The Bell County Historical Commission and the Bell County Museum are sponsoring a Historic Photograph Day at the Museum 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Oct. 16. People are encouraged to bring in old photographs relating to Bell County communities to be copied for the Museum's archives. The photographs are copied and returned to their owners on the spot.

"This is an opportunity for people to share their photographs with the Museum without donating them. The pictures will be used for exhibits and research," States Museum director Alice Burbank. "We are particularly interested in photographs taken in Bell County between 1880 and 1920." Early schools, businesses, churches, people at work and play, and the Miller Springs-Tennessee Valley area are of particular interest.

This project is being done by the Historical Commission and Museum as part of the Distinguished Service Award program of the Texas Historical Commission. For more information please contact the Museum as 939-6110.

Eagles shut-out Buffs, 35-0

Salado faces tough Liberty Hill team in district showdown

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

The Salado Eagles will face their toughest rival Oct. 15, after a 35-0 blow-out of the Florence Buffaloes in the district opener.

For the third straight week Salado shut out its opponent. The Eagles also put 30 or more points on the scoreboard for the fifth straight week.

Richard Berumen started out the scoring early in the game on a 57 yard TD run on the Eagles first possession. Andrew Voelter booted the extra point.

Jereme Hosch followed with a 35-yard TD run with 7:17 left in the first quarter. Voelter added the extra point to give Salado a 14-0 lead.

Shawn Easley topped off a 62-yard Eagles drive with a 2-yard TD dive. The drive took seven minutes and 14 plays from scrimmage. Voelter was good on the point-after.

Salado led 28-0 at half-time after Jason Hosch's 43 yard touchdown run. Hosch followed brother Jereme's block around end to break into the open field. His run culminated an 80-yard Salado scoring drive. Voelter again nailed the extra point.

Salado's final score came on a 43 yard dash by Berumen with 1:14 left in the third quarter. The run was the cap of a 65-yard drive by the Eagles. Voelter connected for his fifth extra point of the game.

With solid blocking by the offensive line and exceptional games by down linemen Brian Hill and Steven Dunlap, the Eagles rushed 45 times for 492 yards and 20 first downs.

Leading the rushers was Berumen with 9 carries for 151 yards. Both Hosch twins rushed for triple digits. Jason carried the ball eight times for 112 yards while Jereme carried 7 times for 112 yards.

Shawn Easley also had an outstanding game as he carried eight times for 66 yards.

It was a slow night for the Eagle air attack as Richard Jackson connected once on eight tries for five yards.

The Eagles defense had another outstanding effort as it held the Buffs to just 79 yards. In the game, the whole game...

The Eagles also caused three turnovers. Jason Hosch and Shane Johnston each intercepted Buff passes.

Other defensive standouts were Chris

Duzich, who had 16 tackles, 6 behind the line; Berumen, 15 tackles, 6 for loss; Jereme Hosch with 10 tackles.

Salado faces the Liberty Hill Panthers 8 p.m. Oct. 15 at Eagle Field in a district contest. Both teams bring 1-0 district records to the game.

Liberty Hill and Salado were picked in pre-season polls to fight for the second place position in district.

honored for their donation of the land on which the old red school sits. In the early 1920s, Anna Hamblen gave 4 acres for the construction of the Salado school.

Pictures of the family, as well as the old Hamblen homeplace will adorn the walls of the Salado Civic Center, which will house the Salado Chamber of Commerce, Salado Public Library and Salado Historical Society.

"What the Hamblens did 70 years ago is still being appreciated and will still benefit the village," said Mills.

Botangles is a new and totally fun kind of hair salon that has recently opened its doors here in the Village. According to owner Iris Dodge this is one place you can really let your hair down, literally!

"When people come in to my salon, I want them to laugh and just have a good time," Dodge said.

Dodge along with her assistant Fawn Lopez offer a variety of services for everyone. Lopez is the nail artist at Botangles. Fawn uses OPI and Jessica nail products to create a wonderful new look for their customers whether it's acrylic nails, nail tips or just a manicure.

According to Dodge, Botangles is one salon where you will find stylists who are not afraid to try new techniques and product lines.

"We are the new blood if you will," Dodge said. "People are no longer satisfied with the Mom and Pop ways of the past. We like to try new things that our customers will enjoy."

Botangles is currently offering stain glass coloring, designer coloring and designer wraps for hair. These are just a few of the new and innovative techniques Dodge has picked up at hair shows in San Antonio, Houston and Dallas. Dodge and Lopez also specialize in gentleman cuts, clipper cuts and children's cuts.

Dodge uses Joico and Senscience hair products in her salon along with Wella hair color.

Botangles hair salon is one of the few services offered here in the Village and has been greeted with open arms by everyone since it's opening almost four months ago according to Dodge. Dodge has been in the Salado area for 23 years and has no plans to go anywhere.

"Once my profession becomes a job, then I know it's time to retire," Dodge said.
