Final town hall meeting held on incorporation of Salado

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

"As a planner, I believe you should control your own destiny as a community, before someone forces your destiny upon you," Jim Reid from the Central Texas Council of Governments told 200 Saladoans gathered for a town hall meeting Aug. 29.

The meeting was the final in a series of three such meetings to discuss the future of Salado and whether that future should include incorporation of any or none of the village.

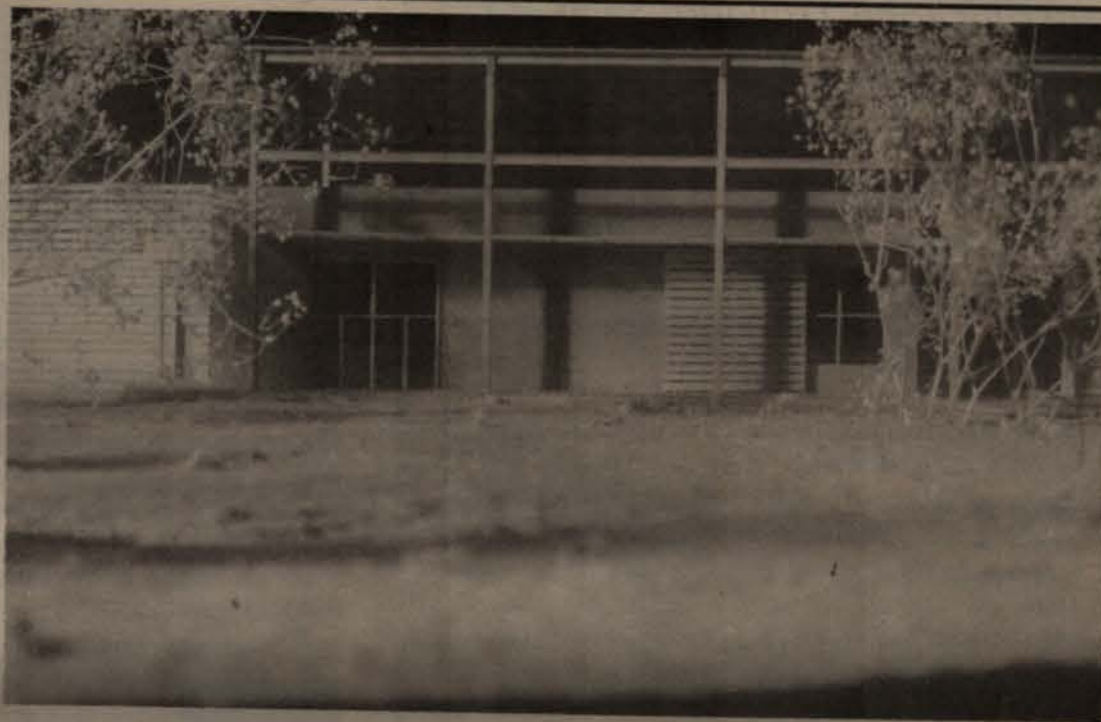

"I was contracted to do this study by the Salado Chamber of Commerce in order to remove some of the bias and emotions surrounding this topic," Reid said.

After presenting information on costs of city governments for towns of less than 2,000, sales tax information on Salado, and property tax information, Reid said that he favored incorporation of "the village as a whole."

According to Reid, Salado is very fortunate to have taxable sales within the village up to 10 times the amount of taxable sales for like-sized cities.

If the village were incorporated and 1 percent sales tax collected, the city government could realize $168,000 in revenues from the sales tax.

"This figure is growing by approximately six percent each year," Reid said.

Drawing Sept. 21 benefits Service Center

by Marilyn Fleischer
Managing Editor

The Salado Community Service Center Benefit Ice Cream Social, Raffle and Silent Auction is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Sept. 21, with the drawing of tickets to begin at 7 p.m.

The last ticket drawn will win the Polo Green Achieva. To be entered in the drawing, tickets for $100 each are now on sale. The purchase of a raffle ticket ensures your entry in the drawing and admits two to the evening social.

General admission tickets may be purchased for $25 each person.

The Salado Community Service Center will be built on 4.6 acres given as a gift by C.B. Hodge family in 1986.

It is "a beautiful location and spot for our building according to Grace Jones, president of the Salado Community Service Center Foundation.

Architect for the project, Larry Speck was the lead architect of the Austin Convention Center and was named as one of the Top 100 architects in the world by Architectural Digest.

The Center will include a main meeting hall of 3,000 sq. ft. with an adjacent smaller meeting hall of 1,500 sq. ft. For very large meetings a wall between the two meeting area can be temporarily put into recesses so that a 4,500 sq. ft. hall can be utilized.

In addition the Center will feature a dressing area, a large storage area, a kitchen and porches looking out onto the open field.

This loose collection of forms according to Speck, "will not be bulky and massive but approachable".

Tickets can be purchased by contacting Mike Cameron 947-5845, Buck Pruitt 947-3899, Joe Quiroz 947-5659, David Stanford 947-5020, Natalie Tolley 947-0326, Gloria Hodge 947-5312, Joan Satterthwaite 947-9147, Doug Willingham 947-5242, Larry McGregor 939-1823, Nettie Faye Ray 947-9955 or Grace Jones 947-5555.

Jones invites everyone to come enjoy an evening of fun with friends and neighbors while supporting a community project.

Fund-raisers have been held through the years to aid in the completion of this project that will serve the entire village.

Library now computerized

The Salado Public Library is fast becoming a principle electronic information center in the community. Together with the school libraries it will provide access to public, school and university libraries and to the world wide informaton sources.

The computer committee has nearly completed the bar-coding of books and video tapes and entering them into the collection database. New bar-coded patron cards are about ready for distribution. They'll take the place of your old one.

The merging of the collection and patron databases from the high school and the elementary school with the public library's databases will be completed in early September.

Public access computers at both schools and at the public library will be available to search these collection databases.

If you have a shool library or public library patron card you can borrow books or tapes from either institution. If you haven't applied for a patron card in the past, come to the Salado Public Library and fill out an application. Patron cards are free, but you must have one to borrow books and tapes.

If you can't get to the library during its business hours. (Mon.-Fri. 1-5 p.m., Sat. 9 a.m.-1 p.m.) fill out the application and mail it to the library. Your card will be waiting for you at the library a few days after your application is received.

Our rating: **

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

Pulp Fiction just doesn't live up to the hype. Why it was nominated for any Academy Awards will always remain a mystery to me. It's just not that good of a movie.

It relies completely on shock value and violence, with the exception of performances by Samuel L. Jackson, as a criminal who wants to give up the life and walk the earth, and Bruce Willis, a prizefighter who has double crossed the mob and wants to get out of LA.

John Travolta offers the viewer little in his performance as a heroin-shooting gangster. But then again, what could a heroin-shooting gangster have to offer?

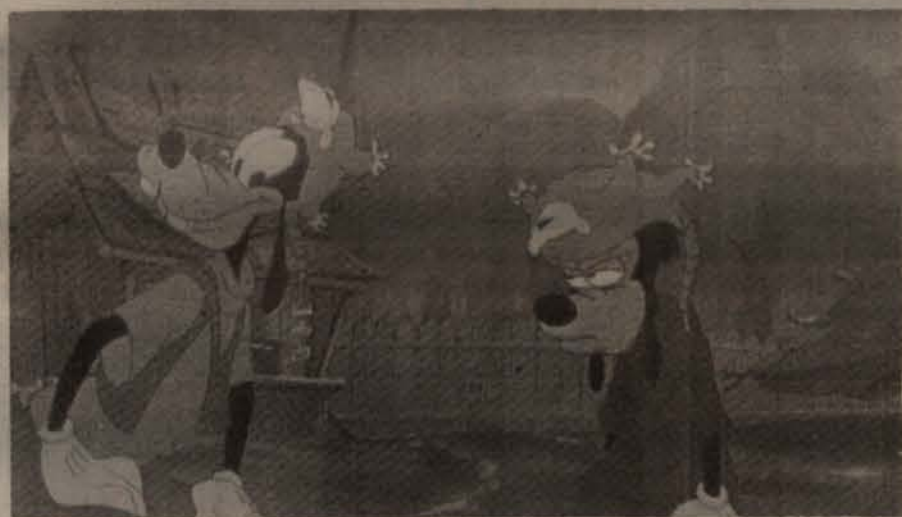

Written and directed by Quentin Tarantino, the mind who brought us such films as Reservoir Dogs and True Romance, which are wrought with violence, Pulp Fiction follows this pattern.

Without the performances of Jackson and Willis, who seem to be the only characters in the movie with any emotions whatever, then Pulp Fiction would be a complete loss. Jackson's sermon to a young criminal at the film's end is terrific, but not enough to warrant watching the preceding hour and a half of filth and garbage.

Off the Record

by Ken Clapp

The easiest way to start a major media flap these days is to yell "racism" and see what shakes out of the mob or off a tree limb. Happened last week in Amarillo when State District Judge Sam Kiser told a Hispanic mother to speak English as well as Spanish in her home in order to help her five year old daughter become better able to compete in school.

He said failure to do this was a form of "child abuse" and would be dealt with accordingly. Naturally a fire storm of invectiveness followed.

This all happened while the judge was overseeing a divorce proceeding during which the father of the youngster alleged that the mother was speaking only Spanish in the home thus penalizing the little girl, he feared, when she started school this year.

Kiser hopped on this and issued his "child abuse" dictum. He might have been better advised to just tell the mother, in chambers, to speak both Spanish and English in the home, put it in the judicial order, and let it go at that.

"Abuse" in many ways is actually a correct way to describe what was going on in that Amarillo family as well as in millions of other families across America - but it is such a hot button issue these days that it allows some folks to try and uncover deeply hidden and nefarious reasons behind what should have been a simple and helpful directive.

The judge was promptly hit by charges of "racism" by the child's mother, her lawyer and of course a Mexican American lawmaker - this one from Alpine, some 434 miles from Amarillo and in an entirely different legislative district!

The jurist also got slapped by Attorney General Dan Morales who claims Kiser was "trivializing real child abuse".

Not wanting to delve too deeply into such an esoteric debate or put too fine a point on the matter, it does seem clear that what the judge was trying to say, in a clumsy sort of way, is exactly what teachers for years have been reporting as a major educational problem - namely that children who start school without a working knowledge of English fall behind quickly and many times, never catch up.

This, of course, is one reason for the federal bilingual education courses in the schools as well as the head-start program - all designed to help kids learn and speak the language they will have to master in order to pass tests, finish school, get good jobs and make a success of their lives.

These sometimes effective, albeit costly, educational programs would not be necessary, if all children had, what used to be, an average five year old's working knowledge of English when they hit kindergarten.

Forty years ago in Texas we found that where there were large numbers of non-English speaking children entering school for the first time, they were required to spend two to three years in the first grade trying to learn English before they were allowed to move to the next grade thus putting them far behind from day-one.

Many dropped out by the time they were part way through junior high since they were physically more mature than their peers and felt out of place.

This was a tragic waste

On Aug 30., a regular agenda hearing of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) was held in Austin. Present at the meeting were a number of Salado residents supporting a petition requesting that the rule making authority of the TNRCC pertaining to control and/or abatement of potentially polluting activities be extended to include that portion of the aquifer which is situated in Bell County.

Also present were attorneys representing a number of land owners in the area who see the imposition of any such regulations as a threat to private property rights.

Supporters raise concerns about possible degradation of water quality resulting from continuing development in the recharge zone (which covers a large area in southern Bell County). At stake is the health of the ground water resource which supplies water to several thousand consumers as well as the springs in Salado Creek.

Opposition at this point is largely based on philosophical grounds. Opponents cite what have been widely perceived as excessive and unreasonable attempts at environmental regulation by the TNRCC in other situations (such as the attempt at protection of habitat for the golden cheeked warbler) which ultimately resulted in the groundswell movement by landowners to protect themselves from any acts of government which

Cen-Tex Bird Society to meet

The Cen-Tex Bird Society is hosting the Texas Exotic Bird Mart, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Sept. 16, in Waco. It will be held in the Fine Arts building at the Heart of Texas Fair complex. Admission is $3.

Breeders from all over Texas will be showing and selling hundreds of exotic cage birds for pets and for breeding. Birds will include everything from finches and canaries to cockatoos and macaws. Accessories for pet bird owners will also be available--cages, feed, books, toys, health and nutrition aids, etc.

threaten to further erode the body of rights traditionally attached to property ownership. They also point out that patterns of land use in the recharge zone are such that no imminent threat to the aquifer exists.

Legitimate concerns exist on both sides.

All agree on the importance of the Edwards aquifer to our region. And there seems to be no dispute over the fact that the geologic context of the aquifer is such that it is vulnerable to contamination or that such contamination could have far reaching impacts.

However, the persistent growth in government in recent decades and the proliferation of agencies which in one way or another touch almost every aspect of our daily lives have caused many to cry "Enough! Leave me alone." This is particularly true of land owners because, historically, agricultural interests have taken a beating at the hands of the environmental movement. Many view the TNRCC as the epitome of a bloated bureaucratic monster which, once empowered, is answerable to no one and is capable of doing great harm to the interests of the private citizen.

And yet these sticky questions persist. Who will insure the protection of a shared resource, such as an aquifer, if not the state? And must such protections come at the expense of property rights?

These are tough questions we may all have to consider if the TNRCC acts in favor of the petition at next week's meeting. The commission could move to conduct a public meeting in Bell County in the near future to receive local input or could first direct TNRCC staff to conduct technical studies to determine what, if any, conditions exist which would necessitate the imposition of regulations.

Stay tuned.

Dear Editor,
 I am writing you to ask our fellow Saladoans to support two upcoming events which will benefit Salado's youth: Sept. 21, raffle party to benefit the proposed "Salado Hall and Park", a project of the Salado Community Center, and the Oct. 7, Salado Family Festival to benefit the Salado Youth Association. In the past 15 years Salado has seen many changes--some good and some not so good. One of the most positive changes has been the influx of young families to a town known previously as a "retirement community". These families represent not only the healthier aspects of Salado's inevitable growth but, more importantly, its future.

While we're busy trying to preserve Salado's many historic resources, a cause with no shortage of champions, let's also try to think ahead and make an investment in Salado's future--its youth.

To the Editor:

This is in reference to the "Wanna Bet" portion of Ken Clapp's Off the Record printed in last week's paper. First of all let us remember everybody is entitled to their own opinion.

My personal opinion is that we should not be laying bets as to whether or not our students can make a go of this thing or not. Rather we should be encouraging them to work and be able to see accomplishments from their work as this is the American way. I have never written an article to be printed in the paper until now, but I feel this was an uncalled for jab at our students, parents and school trustees.

It is my understanding that this was not "taken away" from the Lions Club. The Lions Club agreed that if the "in school groups" wanted the opportunity to try this endeavor they would be in agreement with it. After all, the money taken in will benefit many many students in a vast number of ways.

As for myself and my family, we feel the school board deserves a BIG pat on the back. They have allowed the schools to be refurbished in many areas over the summer months. If you haven't visited the schools lately, maybe you should. You will notice freshly painted walls & lockers, new flooring and many other positive things. It is a good beginning, and a job well done should go to the many workers that labored at the school this summer to accomplish the things the board wanted to see happen before the start of school.

of time and talent then and remains so to this day. Although we do not today retain children in the first grade until they speak English - we do know the difficulty of teaching English as a second language in the primary levels.

We also know that today's drop-out rate is way too high among those who are language impaired.

The term "racism" is sometimes used for political gain by those who seek votes. It is unhappily true that within many Hispanic communities we find some who feel the push to learn English is somehow a slap at their background and a put-down of their native language.

Fact is, having a working knowledge of more than one language is a big plus in today's global economy and should be encouraged, provided the first and most basic language is English.

No reason why Hispanic children should not be well ahead of the game if their parents place equal emphasis on both languages.

When this does happen, kids do well in all subjects and succeed in their chosen field of endeavor. All without resorting to hiding behind the bush of racism.

This also begs the question - why does this hatred and name calling about language not happen to Asian Americans or many European ethnic groups that come to America?

Could it be because one of the first things they seem to do upon arrival, is quickly learn their new home's mother tongue?

In fact, most high schools and colleges are finding that the smartest kids on campus these days are immigrants or first generation students from the Pacific Rim Nations who quickly mastered the language and are out in front on all levels of achievement.

Incidentally, these same children retain their former language and therefore are well versed in two languages, thus giving them a leg up should they decide to enter the field of international business, the government's foreign service or the teaching of foreign languages.

It also allows these Asian young people to converse freely with the older members of their families thus maintaining ancient traditions as they create new ones in America.

Our national goal should be to encourage all parents - regardless of hyphens - to teach their kids English through daily use in the home, well before they are signed up for kindergarten so they will have the basic tools to learn all that is required in this fast moving society and world wide economy.

The use of English as a working tool has certain social as well as economic and political implications. Failure to recognize the importance of this could bring us face to face with hate-filled mobs in the next century filled with millions who are under educated, rarely employed, ruined by welfare and ready to revolt because they cannot compete in a high tech society.

Eagles open season with tough schedule

by Tim Fleischer
 Editor-in-Chief

The Salado Eagles football team opens the season this week 8 p.m. Sept. 8 in Riesel against the #6 ranked AA Indians.

Their schedule doesn't get too much easier than that as they face Moody the following week, who has a 6'7" 308 lb. lineman, "one of the best 2A linemen I've ever seen," according to Head Coach Dan Wasik.

Then, they face the 3A Liberty Hill Panthers in an annual grudge match followed by a visit to the #1 ranked 1A Thorndale Bulldogs.

Finally, after facing Axtell, the Eagles get to settle into district play, where they are picked to finish second (after a second place finish last year to Rogers).

But this year, Rogers must come to Salado. The Eagles lost in Rogers last year in a game with some of the worst officiating in recent memory.

The Eagles will bring a different offensive look to these teams this year. Rather than the running-attack of the wing T, the Eagles will play out what Wasik calls, "a wannabee one back offense from Ross Rodgers at A & M Consolidated," which will balance the run with a passing attack.

According to Wasik, a running attack will not go far in the play-offs without the threat of the pass.

The new offense will be geared toward shiftiness and speed, Wasik said.

Starting offensive linemen are the following:

David Dunlap, 195 lb. returning starter, senior, at center.

Gabe Soto, 250 lb. returning starter, junior at guard.

Matt Tubbs, 220 lb., returning letterman, junior, at guard.

Jerry Ratliff, 240 lb. returning letterman, senior, at tackle.

At left wide out will be Christ McGregor, a junior moving up from Jayvee, and William Culp, a senior, 2 year letterman.

At right wideout are Leslie Glaeser, a senior letterman, and Tim Powers, a first year junior.

Shawn Reichert (senior letterman) and Jerome Peoples (senior, 2 year letterman, returning starter) will share time in the slot back position.

Cody Hall (junior,

Jayvee player, 150 lbs., 4.6 40 yard dash); Shawn Easley (senior, returning starter, 4.7 40 yard dash) and David Berumen (junior, returning starter, 170 lbs., 4.7 40 yard dash) will share time at the running back position.

David Kirk will handle the fullback position, which will line up behind the quarterback or behind the tackles, depending on the opposing defense.

Joshua Goodnight (junior, returning starter, 195 lbs. 4.6 40 yard dash) will start at the quarterback position.

The Eagles will again utilize the 5-2 defense. John Woolard, 200 lb. sophomore, will play nose guard, while Eric Lopez, 175 lb. junior and Shawn Reichert, 180 lb. senior, will play at the tackles.

Jerry Ratliff will return to defensive end, where he was an all-district player last year. Kurt Salisbury, Clint Arnold and Christ Frazier will also play defensive end.

backing up the linemen will be Rusty Wasik, returning first team all-district, and David Berumen, 2nd team all-district.

Jerome Peoples, Wesley Glaeser and Robin Traweek, will play at the corners.

You will see Shawn Easley or Daniel Mashburn at the strong safety and William Culp at the free safety.

Culp is "one of the best free safeties in the state," according to Wasik.

The Eagles will be in the hunt at play-off time, but must first make it through at rough set of non-district opponents.

| 2 (2 1/2-3 lb.) chickens, skinless | 1/4 tsp. black pepper |
| 4 chicken breasts (optional) | 1/8 tsp. celery salt |
| 2-3 c. water | 1/8 tsp. thyme |
| 4 celery stalks & leaves | 1/8 tsp. marjoram |
| 1 slice onion | 1/8 tsp. savory |
| A few peppercorns | 2 tbsp. chopped pimento |
| 1 tbsp. salt | 4 hard cooked eggs |
| 1 c. chopped onion | 1 (10 oz.) pkg. frozen mixed vegetables, thawed |
| 1 c. flour | 2 tbsp. chopped parsley |
| 6 c. chicken stock | Pie crusts (4), unbaked |
| Salt | |

Cook the chicken in deep pot with 2-3 cups of water, celery, onion, peppercorns and salt until tender. Remove chicken from stock. Cool; remove meat from bones and put chicken bones back in pot. add enough water to total about 1 1/2 quarts of stock. Simmer, covered, for 1 hour. Strain and chill stock. Remove fat from top of stock and save. (May be done a day ahead.)

Melt chicken fat (1/2 cup) in large skillet. Saute chopped onion until golden brown. Add flour and mix well. Gradually add chicken stock (6 cups). Season with salt, pepper, celery salt and optional seasonings. Heat and taste for seasoning and stir until thickened. Add chopped pimento and diced eggs to saucer. Cut chicken in serving size pieces and arrange in pie crust. Sprinkle with uncooked vegetables and pour sauce over all. Gently stir with fork to allow sauce to mix well with chicken. Sprinkle parsley over top (or add to pie crust). Cover with top crust and bake at 375 degrees for about 1 hour. Bake an additional 20 minutes at 425 degrees, or until crust is browned.

*Using all white chicken meat is very good. Also, I have lined a 13 x 9 inch dish with pie crust instead of pie plates. This recipe is a favorite of all and will serve at least 8-10 people. Enjoy.

Two retire from department of Transportation

Two employees from the Texas Department of Transportation's Bell County maintenance office took advantage of a legislative incentive and retired last week.

Bobby Luther of Belton and Alfred Macek of Morgan's Point Resort left leave their positions in Belton at the end of August. Luther, a crew leader in charge of traffic signals, retires with 34 years of service. Macek, who installed and replaced signs, had 33 years.

"We will miss Bobby and Alfred. The experience and knowledge they have in highway maintenance is not quickly replaced," said Maintenance Supervisor Debra Rogers. "We wish them a long and enjoyable retirement."

Both Luther and Macek are looking forward to retirement. "I enjoy working and doing things, so I plan to stay busy," said Luther. "I will probably do a lot of work around the house."

Luther and his wife, Frances, have two sons and two grandchildren. Macek hopes to spend some of his retirement time fishing, as well as doing work at home. He and his wife, Johnnie Jo, have six children and eight grandchildren.

The two Bell County retirees were among 12 others from the eight-county Waco District retiring under the incentive plan, which was extended by the Texas Legislature in this year's session.

Beginning of school brings myriad of questions to center

With each fall and the start of school come other annual experiences: craft projects, head lice, colds and flu — all with a potential for accidental poisonings.

"Certain types of accidental poisonings occur more often than others during certain times of the year," said Marcel Stipetic, a registered pharmacist and a certified specialist in poison information with the Central Texas Poison Center, based at Scott & White. "The back-to-school season is one such period."

Not surprisingly, the ring of the school bell can also mean the beginning of the cold and flu season and higher incidence of head lice. So, parents may stock extra supplies of cough and cold preparations, fever-reducing medicines, lice shampoo and other medications. School children may also have added exposure to craft materials such as glues, paints, crayons and inks — all with possibility for hurting children if they are used incorrectly.

"The problem is that increased use also increases the potential for accidental poisonings," Mr. Stipetic said. He gave examples of typical questions that the Central Texas Poison Center receives at this time of year:

"My 3-year-old just drank a bottle of adult-strength cough medicine. What should I do?"

"My 13-year-old was using some lice shampoo. She got some in her eyes, and now they are burning. What should she do?"

"I turned around for just a minute to answer the phone. My 4-year-old ate some Tylenol. Should I take her to the hospital?"

"My 7-year-old just drank a bottle of her baby sister's antibiotic medicine. Should I make her throw up?"

The answers to all these questions can all be answered by making a free phone call to the Central Texas Poison Center from anywhere in Texas: 1 (800) POISON1, or 1 (800) 764-7661

The phones, staffed 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, are operated by nurses and pharmacists and who have specialized training in poison information and toxicology. The center maintains a computer database of 900,000 commercial products listed by common and brand names to help callers identify dangerous substances, he added.

The Central Texas Poison Center is a poison emergency treatment and information resource that provides comprehensive information and assistance to anyone. The center can provide poison information to physicians and health-care professionals as well as to parents, grandparents, teachers, day-care workers and sitters.

Scott & White Memorial Hospital and Clinic is one of the nation's largest medical centers, with about 440 physicians. Scott & White's mission is to deliver personalized, comprehensive, high-quality health care enhanced by education and research. The institution consists of the main site in Temple, and 15 regional clinics situated throughout Central Texas.

Sixty percent of the calls to the poison center concern children age 5 and younger. "Children are especially at risk because they are apt to explore everything. Sometimes youngsters believe these products are good enough to eat," Mr. Stipetic said. "For example, cough medicine may look like grape juice or pain pills may be mistaken for candy."

"Children are naturally curious," Mr. Stipetic said. "They touch, smell and taste things as a part of learning.

The typical home is filled with many products that make life easier and more pleasant — that is, as long as they are not eaten by children."

An ounce of prevention goes a long way to reduce and eliminate accidental poisonings, Mr. Stipetic added. He gave these handy tips to parents:

Anticipate your child's curiosity and abilities. Keep medicines and other potentially harmful substances locked up whenever possible. That includes art and craft supplies, cosmetics, household cleaners and prescription and over-the-counter medicines

If the phone rings or if you are interrupted while using a medicine do not leave your child unsupervised. Take your child with you. It takes only a second for a child to swallow something that could be harmful.

Teach children never to put anything in their mouths without knowing what it is and whether it's OK to eat.

If you suspect your child may have ingested a substance, call the Poison Center immediately. Do not do anything until you have talked to a Poison Center staff member, Mr. Stipetic said. "A quick response and treatment can often mean the difference between life and death — especially with children," Mr. Stipetic emphasized.

"Don't rely on what the bottle label or an antidote chart says. Some of these have incorrect information," he added.

The Poison Center serves 1.8 million Central Texans and encompasses the 30 counties in Texas Public Health Region 7. The center also distributes free educational materials such as pamphlets and a poison prevention guide. To request these items,

Restricting fat from diet may lower men's risk for prostate cancer, study says

Men who restrict the fat in their diets may lower their risk for prostate cancer.

That's the indication of a six-month study to determine if limiting fat intake to 20 percent of total calories would reduce levels of prostate specific antigen, a blood marker used to indicate the risk for prostate cancer.

"In patients with really elevated PSA, we observed a 10 percent reduction," said Dr. Don Kadmon, a urologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "We hoped this study would tell us if there was a downward trend in PSA levels associated with a lower-fat diet. We wanted to know the feasibility of conducting a larger study with a larger reduction of fat intake, perhaps as low as 10 percent."

The average PSA reduction in study subjects was one point. "That's not a huge amount," Kadmon said, "but it was a measurable drop, and perhaps such drops in PSA levels have a cumulative effect."

Prostate cancer, the major cancer killer in men 50 and older, occurs significantly more often in black men than in white men.

"I think that in prostate cancer it makes all the sense in the world to address prevention rather than treatment and cure," Kadmon said, "because there is worldwide epidemiological evidence that extraneous factors, most likely including diet, make a difference."

Black will chair sunset commission

AUSTIN—Texas House Speaker Pete Laney has named Representative Layton Black, D-Goldthwaite, chairman of the Texas Sunset Advisory Commission. Representative Black's term as chairman of the 10-member commission extends Sept. 1, 1997.

"I appreciate Representative Black's willingness to take on additional responsibility as chairman of this important commission," Speaker Laney said.

The Sunset Commission reviews agencies due to be abolished under Texas Sunset Act. The review process includes public hearings and a formal report with findings and recommendations from the commission. Under the Sunset Act the agencies will expire unless the Legislature takes specific action to keep the alive.

Nineteen agencies are scheduled for review before the 1997 legislative session, including the Texas Department of Transportation, the Department Protective and Regulatory Services, the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse and several criminal justice agencies.

Representative Black represents House District 54, which covers McCulloch Mills, San Saba and Lampasas counties and part of Bell County. He has been House member since 1989 and is chairman of the House Committee Administration.

In 1984, the village had $6.4 million in taxable sales, $16.8 million in taxable sales in 1994 and a projected $19 million taxable sales in 2004.

"But I don't think sales tax alone would generate enough money for a city government in Salado," Reid said.

Reid said that property values reach $88.8 million within boundaries of two square miles of a possible incorporated Salado.

The property values within the possible historic district incorporation of one square mile would be about half that amount, or $44 million.

The tax base of $88.8 million would generate $222,000 if taxed at the maximum of 25¢ per $100 valuation for one type of incorporated city, $1.33 million if taxed at the maximum of $1.50 per $100 for another type of incorporated city, or $511,000 if taxed at the state average of 57.5¢ per $100 valuation.

Yet, the tax rate Reid used for a "mock" budget for a city of Salado's size was much lower than the above figures: 14¢ per $100 evaluation to generate $124,000.

If the historic district were incorporated, then the property tax would be 20¢ per $100 to generate $89,000.

The budget comparisons of the two square mile area and the one square mile area differed in the property tax areas and road maintenance cost.

The cost of road maintenance within a two square mile area would be $40,000 per year, while the cost within the one square mile historic district area would be just $30,000.

"But whether you incorporate the whole village or just the historic district," Reid said, "the budgets would look a lot alike because you would have many of the same costs: police, salaries, operating and the like."

"I have not discussed not incorporating the village as much as I have incorporating the village for the simple reason that you folks already know what happens when you don't incorporate, which is what you have now," Reid said.

"If the consensus of the community is not to seek incorporation of any kind, then you should pursue legislative protection of the historic district to give teeth to the guidelines which have been set to date," Reid said, adding that he felt the legislature has not been receptive to date to pursuing this type of legislation.

If the village chooses not to incorporate, then Reid recommended approaching the city leaders of Belton to reach a mutual agreement that Belton would not annex south of a certain point to keep Salado's identity. "You would have to promise that if the village were ever incorporated that you would not annex property north of that line, as well," Reid explained.

Reid recommended incorporating the village as a whole to "spread the cost of the city government among more property owners" and "to keep the community united."

If incorporation of the whole village should fail, Reid recommended that all get behind incorporation of the historic district so that protective measures could be put in place for the historic district.

During the open discussion period of the meeting, some pointed out that the sub-divisions within the village had protective covenants and deed restrictions to protect property owners interests.

"But someone can build a massage parlor, trailer park or convenience store just outside of your subdivision," Reid replied, "which would adversely affect your values within that subdivision."

Larry Sands pointed out that while there were covenants and deed restrictions within the subdivisions in Salado -- namely Mill Creek, Victorian Oaks, Royal Oaks, and Carriage House Estates -- there were no such covenants and deed restrictions for the historic areas of the village.

While Reid's recommendations came before tallying any of the votes of people living in the village, a final recommendation will be made later this month.

Reid said that in his final report he will recommend that all groups involved in the study have a "cooling off" period until at least the end of September before any petitions are presented to the County judge to call for an election.

U.S. SENATOR
KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

Medicaid Reform Affects Every Texas Taxpayer

Twenty-five cents of every dollar Texas taxpayers send to Austin are spent on Medicaid, the government program that provides health care benefits to the poor. Even worse, Medicaid is the fastest growing part of the state budget.

The biggest cause of skyrocketing Medicaid costs — which are increasing at three times the rate of private-sector health-care costs — is federal overregulation. But under the current proposal before Congress for reforming Medicaid, Texas taxpayers are fixin' to take an even bigger hit in the pocketbook than they do now.

Medicaid is currently a federal-state matching program controlled from Washington. Converting Medicaid from a top-down matching program into federal block grants administered by the states is the right concept for achieving reform. Allowing Texas and other states to run their Medicaid programs without interference from Washington will result in a much more efficient and cost-effective health-care delivery system.

But if Texas taxpayers are to get any real relief, the allocation of Medicaid block grants must be fair, and they must take into account the high rate of population growth in states like ours. One current plan to revamp Medicaid bases the block grants on past spending levels and ignores future growth, while the Texas population is expected to increase by 20 percent by the year 2000.

This would force the Legislature to make difficult choices in order to compensate for a ballooning Medicaid shortfall.

Even though Texas has managed to keep its Medicaid costs, per beneficiary, significantly lower than other large states, we have been rowing against the strong tide of population growth. In 1993, for instance, total Medicaid costs for Texas increased by 16 percent, the slowest increase in the five preceding years!

This summer I led the fight to obtain fair funding formulas for the welfare block grants that are being enacted. And the stakes are even higher in the case of Medicaid because the amounts involved are nearly 10 times as large.

Shortly after Congress reconvenes, I plan to put forward a Medicaid block grant formula plan that will ensure the equitable distribution of these federal funds. My block grant formula will account for population growth, as well as need.

Otherwise, under a formula based on historical spending patterns rather than growth, Texas with more than 3.2 million people living in poverty will receive only $4.5 billion in federal Medicaid funding while New York, with 2.9 million people living in poverty, will receive $9 billion.

Unless Medicaid block-grant formulas are made equitable by factoring in each state's rate of growth, Texas will end up with less funding to meet the needs of more and more people. Federal resources must be allocated where the people are — and where they will be five or 10 years later.

Bag lunch can be economical & nutritious

The brown bag lunch is a real inflation fighter and time-saver for families. A prepared meal eliminates the time and travel involved with going out to lunch for employed adults and gives an opportunity to plan economical and nutritious foods for school lunches.

Lunch Containers:
Safety is the watchword in selecting a container for brown bag lunches. A paper bag is safe if the meal can be left at room temperature or if the foods are stored in insulated containers for packing.

Pack lunches only in paper bags that have been purchased for that purpose and don't use the bags more than once. Sacks used for carrying groceries may be contaminated with bacteria that causes food poisoning, such as salmonella from raw chicken.

Packing Pointers:
*Buy fresh fruits in season that only require washing in preparation for lunch. To avoid cooking, use vegetables such as tomatoes, carrots, cauliflower and peppers, that can be eaten fresh.

*Use convenience foods such as ready-to-serve meats, sliced cheeses, peanut butter and prepared sandwich filling. Don't forget, you can use convenient supper leftovers for packed lunches.

*Keep a variety of purchased breads on hand rather than making them from "scratch." Also, provide assorted crackers and chips as bread alternates for a variety of taste and texture.

*Select small containers of yogurt, fruits and puddings or single-serving cans of tuna, shrimp or salmon that can be packed in the lunch for an occasional change in the menu.

*Make big batches of sandwiches ahead of time in assembly-line fashion and then freeze them. They will keep at least 2 weeks. For non-soggy sandwiches, spread softened butter or margarine evenly to the edge of each slice of bread. Good fillings are meat, poultry, sliced cheese, cheese spreads, tuna and salmon salads, peanut butter, nut spreads and egg yolk mixtures. Pack frozen in lunch box and they

Tom Taylor will perform Sept. 10 at Tablerock as the second in a series of programs sponsored by the First Baptist Church of Salado.

Taylor performs Sept. 10

The second of the September Sunday Nights Series will feature Tom Taylor's Family Concert 7 p.m. Sept. 10 at the Tablerock Ampitheater on Royal Street, west of the Salado shopping district.

This series is provided at no charge as a service to the community. Each Sunday's performance offers inspirational entertainment suited for the entire family.

Due to the natural setting of the ampitheater, those attending should bring a lawn chair or blanket. In the event of rain, the performance will be held in the Thomas Arnold Elementary Cafeteria.

Tom Taylor, composer of more than 600 songs, and author of five books for children, has worked with young people since 1970. He has performed in schools, camps, prisons, and hospitals throughout the United States, Canada, Scotland, England, China, and other countries. He has performed on film, radio, and television.

Taylor is an independent consultant for ProEd Productions in Belton, presenting programs for seminars, workshops, conventions, fund-raisers, etc. He also serves as artist-in-residence for individual schools and districts, providing concerts, mini-sessions on poetry, and storytelling programs.

An inspirational and motivational speaker, Taylor combines his speaking presentations with his original songs, often writing a new song specifically for the host-groups particular need or emphasis. Those attending the performance will find him to be highly entertaining, well prepared, and enthusiastic, presenting an enjoyable and uplifting program.

The Salado September Sunday Nights Series is underwritten by the First Baptist Church of Salado.

Dr. Carver to direct next TCT play

Dr. Raymond Carver, a Salado resident, will be guest director for the Temple Civic Theatre production of Harper Lee's To Kill a Mockingbird (adapted by Christopher Sergel), at the Temple Civic Theatre, to be presented beginning Nov. 2. Auditions (open to all) will be held at the theatre, 7p.m., Sept. 17-18.

Carver says the play is about a young black man (Tom, 18-30 yrs. old) who has been wronged and a lawyer (Atticus, in his fifties) who seeks to right that wrong while his children (Daughter "Scout", pre-teen, and son, Jem, pre-teen) watch and learn about life, justice and injustice.

The well-known movie starring Gregory Peck features other characters from the novel, a sheriff, a redneck father and his daughter, a public prosecutor, a judge, a farmer, a black minister, neighbor ladies, as well as unique characters: Calpurnia, a black housekeeper, "Boo" Radley, the ghost next door, and "Dill", a precocious little boy.

Dr. Carver recently retired from his job at Angelo State Director of the University Theatre where he taught for twenty-eight years and wrote plays produced off-Broadway and in Hollywood. He is a graduate of the Yale School of Drama and a member of the Dramatist Guild.

*To avoid the morning rush, pack lunch containers the night before and refrigerate, adding hot or frozen foods the next morning.

*Buy beverages at school or work or pack small frozen cans of fruit or vegetable juice with your lunch. The frozen cans will keep other foods cold and still be cold for lunch.
