Over 210 attend Jan. 25 Salado C of C Banquet

"Looking back over my first year in Congress, I remember something Tiger Teague told me when he first encouraged me to run for public office," Chet Edwards told over 210 people gathered for the 27th Annual Salado Chamber of Commerce Banquet.

"He told me the first six months I would wonder how I ever made it to Congress.... And the next six months I would wonder how the others ever made it to Congress," Edwards said with a grin.

Rep. Edwards recalled his experiences of his first year in U.S. Congress: "I started the year casting my vote in the most difficult decision Congress made to authorize the President to use military force in the Gulf. It was Congress at its best: the debate was over conscience, about what is right and wrong. We voted on what we thought was for the good of the country, not for the good of any one political party or special interest group."

Edwards recalled the end of his first year in Congress: the end of communist Soviet Union.

Edwards, who sits on the military affairs subcommittee and the veterans affairs sub-committee, said jokingly that he was "most respected not for my speeches or committee assignments, but for winning the long drive contest at a Congressional golf tournament."

Edwards said he came to three conclusions during his first year in Congress: the world is at a turning point, all of us must become involved in the political process and "despite all our problems, we are still the greatest nation in the world."

Retiring Chamber president Pete Jennings and retiring directors Charles Bakke, Becky McAulay and Tyler Fletcher were honored at the Chamber banquet.

Retiring Chamber secretary Wilma Williams was also honored at the Banquet. The Chamber awarded Williams with a $1,000 check for her 10 years of service. Now retired, Williams said she plans to travel.

Point Break

starring Patrick Swayze, Keanu Reeve
& Gary Busey
Our rating: 1/2

by Tim Fleischer Editor-in-Chief

If not for the tightly shot action sequences and tough fight scenes, Point Break would be one more dog for Patrick Swayze to add to his long list of stupid movies. Remember Next of Kin?

Point Break has a very silly premise of a gang of surfer dudes who rob banks to pay for their search for the "killer waves." Swayze is the guru of the gang, who steals for the excitement and to tell "all those people trapped in their little metal boxes on the freeway that they're still breathing..."

What a bunch of malarkey. To make matters worse Keanu Reeves, the complete loser from Bill and Ted's Stupid movies, stars as the hot-shot FBI agent who goes undercover as a surfer to catch the thieves.

Gary Busey (perhaps the only actor of the three) stars as Reeves hardened partner who suspects surfers are the "Ex-Presidents" who have robbed 30 banks in three years, all during California's summer (i.e. surfing) months. That and a little sand in the shoes gives you a stupid theory for a pretty stupid movie.

Despite its faults, Point Break has exciting, well-shot action sequences, which save the day.

A good case for elected judges...

Once again, our feckless State Legislature has proven its inability to take on any major problem and solve it to anyone's satisfaction least of all an intrusive judicial system. Solving citizen's real concerns rather than those conjured up by fuzzy thinking lawmakers seems so far removed from the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government as to be all but forgotten. Except, of course, during election year. Which is why we bring up the most recent Three-Stooges-type farce between lawmakers and the lawyers that hit the ground this past week.

This time the courts have pontificated that the money dragged from our pockets for higher education has been misapplied by our elected and appointed Pooh-Bahs in Austin as they divvied up the funds between the colleges and universities in north and south Texas! Not enough for the minorities in the south the court said, as it gave the lawmakers until the end of the next session in 1993 to even up things. The potentially pitiful wails from the Texas and the A & M Systems will herald the start of a new tax-and-spend effort for our brain factories.

In case you forgot, this is the fifth intrusion by the courts in the affairs of state in recent years. Let's review. We are currently holding our breath until the courts determine if the "Robin Hood" plan of equalizing elementary and secondary school dollars is constitutional. If not, then the legislature and/or the courts will go back to the drawing board and try to come up with another cockamamie idea to steal from the "haves" in order to placate the "havenots." The tax dollars you have already paid into this new system through the County Education Districts may be declared null and void and unless the courts offer some sort of expost-facto protection you may have merely "contributed" and thereby lost your 1991 tax dollars already paid to date. Hopefully the courts will not be that stupid (although we are not betting the homestead yet) and a way to give you credit for taxes paid will be found. The lawmakers have been working now for eight years and nearly that many special sessions and still haven't got equalization right yet. They have increased our taxes each time but the money does not seem to get passed out correctly-- or so say the courts.

No doubt the courts will force all school tax dollars to be sent to Austin to be mixed with the State appropriated bucks and then sent back to school systems on an equal per-pupil basis with little if any local enhancement permitted.

Court-injected activity three is the fiasco we shall pleasantly call redistricting. In case you didn't notice, Salado is now part of newly created Senate Dis-newly created Senate District 26 which runs from the north end of Bell County south to below Bexar County and includes parts of Austin and San Antonio and bits and pieces in between. And who drew up this monster? Dr. Frankenstein? The State Legislature as pre-

Your Voice: Letters to the Editor

From Humane Society

Dear Editor:

We members of the Salado Humane Society were overwhelmed with the response to our sale last Saturday. Not only did we get hundreds of very nice goods donated but the donaters came back and bought. Thanks to a lot of caring people the sale raised over $1,000.

We wish we could thank everyone personally, but one person must be mentioned, Jeff Alridge, who manages the Satterwhite Homes in this area, not only loaned the use of his smaller log home, but helped fetch and carry and made himself so handy we couldn't have done it without him. Thank you all Salado!

Sincerely Leah Buzzard Salado Humane Society

From local firefighter

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank you for publishing several letters in the last few weeks praising the Salado Volunteer Fire Department. I read them with great pride and satisfaction.

The SVFD has 19 active volunteer firefighters who are able and willing to respond to any emergency situation (at 3:30 a.m. it takes a lot of willingness). Of these 19 we have two Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT) and one in EMT training at Scott and White Hospital, one Emergency Paramedic, with one enrolled in Emergency Paramedic Training Program at Central Texas

College (it will be at least another year before he is certified).

The SVFD is housed in a new station on I-35 North. The station was built to house up to 6 vehicles. At this time we have two brush/grass fire trucks, one booster/rescue truck, and one pumper truck (capable of 1,000 gallons of water per minute, but is aged and nearing its recommended replacement date).

Our communication and alerting system was replaced by Bell County this year with an up to date system. Now each vehicle has a two-way multi-channel radio. The firefighters are alerted by pagers that are "tone-activated" from the Belton Fire Department Dispatcher. This in itself was a great improvement over listening for the fire whistle. We are too short of these pagers for everyone in the department to have one though.

Most of the Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) that firefighters wear has been replaced in the last few years to PPE that meets the requirements set forth by the National Fire Protection Administration (NFPA). some of our PPE still does not meet NFPA standards, but we are working on it.

The SVFD is an all volunteer, non-profit organization. We opened on funds from Bell County and donations from the community to cover most of our expenses.

We will be there when you need us, and we will do the job as professionally as can be done by any department

But it could not be done without the support the community has shown to us in the past. Your generosity at our fundraisers has always been more than hoped for. It is a great feeling to know that our community is behind us. Thank you one and all for your show of support

Sincerely Wayne Rutherford

Ask Dr. Peterson Applied kinesiology

Applied kinesiology muscle testing can also be used to find food products which are detrimental to your health. For example, if you are sensitive to a specific food coloring, you will show a weakening of the tested muscle after chewing the food coloring.

There is a considerable difference in the nutritional value of food and/or nutritional supplements when chewed as opposed to being swallowed with water. Studies have shown that food and supplements swallowed without chewing are not as effective as those which are chewed. Many types of research indicate that there is an absorption and stimulation of nerves during the chewing process. When your doctor uses applied kinesiology to test you for different nutritional items, he will have you chew the item. Then he will immediately test a muscle to determine if the nutrition changes function. It is not even necessary to swallow the product prior to testing for any functional change.

The potency of the nutritional item you take is very important. There are times when certain body changes are desired that a high potency product is necessary to override a problem in the body. At other times, it is important that the dosage be low for optimum results. In this instance, nutrition is being used in a true nutritional format—within the balance of nature. Proper usage of nutrition can be determined by applied kinesiology testing. If a nutritional product is not correct, a strong indicator muscle will weaken when you chew it,.

The Key to Your Nutritional Health

Eat Properly. Eliminate "junk" foods, preservatives, refined foods, etc., as much as possible.

Think prevention. Use nutritional products as indicated by laboratory procedures and applied kinesiology.

Man of La Mancha will be presented in Feb. by Temple Civic Theatre

Temple Civic Theatre will perform "Man of La Mancha" Feb. 12-16 and Feb. 19-23. Evening performances at the theater at 2413 South 13th Street are at 8:15 p.m. and matinees are at 2:15 p.m. Tickets are $10 and will go on sale to the public on Feb. 10. Seasons members may reserve seats beginning Feb. 3. Reservations may be made by calling 778-4751 or going by the theatre Box Office.

This musical classic written by Dale Wasserman, lyrics by Joe Darion and music by Mitch Leigh has charm, gallantry and delicacy of spirit. "Man of La Mancha" features Don. Quixote in his inspiring quest for the impossible dream.

First written for television, "Man of La Mancha" was later written for the Broadway stage. It is now one of the most honored musicals in American theatre. Opening on Nov. 22, 1965, it ran for 2,328 performances in its original engagment. Winner of the New Yorkl Drama Critics Circle Awards as best musical of the 1965-66 season, it also received five Tony Awards, including one for best musical play

Director Suzanne Hudson-Smith said, "It must seem hopelessly naive in its espousal of illusion as man's strongest spiritual need, the most meaningful function of the imagination. This is the quality that makes 'Man of La Mancha' a play for all times."

Rep. Edwards says Japanese Speaker out of line with recent slur against US

U.S. Representative Chet Edwards (D-Waco) responded recently to statements made by Japanese Speaker of the house Yoshio Sakurauchi. The Japanese leader characterized the United States as "Japan's subcontractor" and stated that the rest of the world may tell America, "You're no good."

"Slanderous statements like these have no place in international relations," Edwards said. "The Japanese seem to have forgotten that following WWII the United States helped them rebuild their country. This is a heck of a way for them to pay us back."

In addition to the above remarks, Sakurauchi said many American workers are lazy and illiterate and that U.S. workers "turn out so many defective products." He went on to say that it is dubious whether Japan can buy as many U.S. products as it promised President Bush two weeks ago. That view was echoed in separate comments by Japan's prime minister and the chairman of Toyota Motors who said that Japan had not made a firm committment to Bush to buy more American cars.

"I'm insulted by these Japanese slurs about us and our products," Edwards continued. "They'll sell their products here, refuse to sell ours in Japan and then call us names. It's time to get tough with the Japanese on trade. If they won't sell our rice in Japan, then let's leave their Toyotas rusting on the dock in Tokyo Bay."

Jack Hardin and LaVora Stewart present Doris Cottle with a painting she won last week.

Salado Village Artists give painting to local winner

Local resident Doris Cottle was the winner of the oil painting awarded last week by the Salado Village Artists. Her name was drawn at a regular meeting of the art club by this year's show and sale
chairman, Egon Friedrich.

"This painting has an interesting and rather varied background", explained Jack Hardin, pres. of the organization. The winter scene entitled "Winter Snow" was painted by LaVora Stewart and donated to the Salado Historical Society, originally to raise funds for their organization. When the Society discovered that the artist were in need of funds to cover increasing expenses, they redonated the painting back to the Artists. Donations were accepted during the Christmas Stroll and other functions to increase the club's building fund.

Hardin said, "This kind of support fosters and encourages local artists."

In other news of the Salado Village Artists, the public is invited to a reception 3-5 p.m., March 2 at Tablerock to honor the artists chosen to show works at the Temple Cultural Activities Center. This will be a juried show with the winners chosen from a collection of not more than five entries per artist.

scribed by our Constitution? Oh, no-o-o-o. It was two Texas GOP federal judges that's who! Calling the state's plan too partisan and hurtful to minorities, the judicial panel got busy. And now we have districts that lend themselves to the election ofguess what? That's right, more Republicans! Collusion between the judges and some GOP legislators is being alleged so the end may not be in sight.

In the meantime, it is bye-bye Senator Temple Dickson and hello Senator Whoever. Also bye-bye to any hope of help in the Senate in our new district since Salado will be part of the "Throw-away" rural areas in the new order of urban voting strengths.

system operation and the Mental Health and Mental Retardation agencies that now, after years of court supervision, are on the verge of being released from this new form of federal bondage.

Not a Good System

This lackadaisical approach to legislation coupled with judicial branch acting out a Big Brother role in deciding what is best for citizens of this State is enough to turn voters against any feeling they might have of bonhomie towards our elected leaders. The excuses are many and come in waves from each separate but unequal branch of government but the end result is an over-costly form of regulation that ends up coming from the judicial rather than the legislative and executive divisions.

One way to stop all this foolishness is to go for term limitations in a last ditch effort to stop the proliferation of office holders whose only ambition appears to be the collection of campaign funds and winning the next election. It may also be necessary to elect all of our jduges rather than the current combination of election and lifetime appointments we now have and which may not be serving us as well as should be expected.
