Response positive to trash & treasure sale by merchants

"Response has been tremendous," stated Publicity Chairman Melanie Kirchmeier, for the Merchants Committee's "Trash 'n Treasures Sale" to be held Sept. 5 on the Old Salado School grounds. "The citizens of Salado are really supportive of the renovation project and are anxious for work to begin."

She further reported that a number of people have responded to the news that there will be a sale of new, unsold merchandise donated by local and area businesses with all proceeds to benefit the renovation. Also, anyone interested in helping the project can donate anything. In addition to new merchandise, there will be antiques and other good used items. They are not accepting used clothing or junk. All items must be reasonably priced and become the property of the Merchants Committee upon receipt. No items will be returned to the donors.

If you have a donation to the Salado Merchants "Trash 'n Treasure Sale" to benefit the Old Salado School Foundation, just contact one of the following people: Melanie Kirchmeier, Ann Gardner, Becky McAulay, Sherry Pilgrim or call the Chamber of Commerce at 947-5040. They will be happy to make arrangement for pick-up of your items.

Grace Jones celebrates 30 years in Salado

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

"My gosh, there's a feed mill across the street!" Grace Jones recalls this reaction of American designer Geoffrey Beene on his first visit to her fashion shop in Salado.

But since the time Grace Jones opened her shop in Salado Aug. 16, 1962, a great deal has changed about Salado.

The feed store has been replaced by Shady Villa, a collection of fine shops.

The old grocery store located directly next door to Grace Jones houses a fine antique shop started more than 20 years ago by Thomas Wilkes and continued today by Robert and Doris Denman as the Royal Emporium.

While much has changed in Salado, much stays the same. Grace Jones recalls being in love with Salado many years before opening her dress shop here. "Everyone used to come to the creek and to Tablerock. The other kids would carve their names in the old Tablerock."

While Jones did not leave her mark on Tablerock, she has left her mark on Salado, Texas, and the fashion industry.

With clients from around the state and nation, Grace Jones name is easily recognized in all society.

But making that name has been no easy task over 30 years.

In fact, when she began her ambitious endeavour, her friends from New York and other fashion cities wondered aloud why in the world she chose Salado.

They may have also wondered why she chose to house her dress shop in an abandoned building which needed to be completely rebuilt. All that was left standing of the old Salado

Lions hear about survival

The world renowned survival training program of the U.S. Air Force was the subject for discussion at the regular monthly meeting of the Salado Lions Club, on Aug. 12 at Mill Creek Country Club.

There are several members in the Lions Club who were former military pilots during wartime - three of them having been shot down and subsequently captured.

Sgt. Bradley K. Casper from Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene, conducted the program. Sgt. Casper has been a U.S.A.F. Survival Instructor for seven years.

In relating the history of survival training, Casper pointed out the fact that military services of the Western World have come a long way in concerted efforts to rescue downed airmen compared to the days of WWI when fighter pilots were not issued parachutes because policy makers feared that this means of escape could undermine pilot's aggressiveness.

In 1971, the Air Training Command consolidated the jungle, tropics, water, arctic and land survival schools, and formed the 3636th Combat Crew Training Wing (Survival) headquartered at Fairchild Air Force Base, Washington. The Wing became the sole manager for all Air Force survival training.

Flying personnel of the Army, Navy and Marines may also attend the U.S.A.F. School. All flying personnel of the Air Force must complete survival training.

Wayne's World

Our rating: *

by Tim Fleischer
Editor-in-Chief

If you watch six hours or more of MTV per day or spend that much time hanging out in the malls, Wayne's World is the perfect movie for you. In fact, the two characters Wayne and Garth probably bear a striking resemblance to you.

But for the rest of us, Wayne's World is incredibly stupid. What makes a slightly humorous five-minute skit on Saturday Night Live becomes very tiresome in an hour-and-a-half movie.

The only funny part of the movie was the three-minute segment in which Wayne, Garth and buddies sing Queen's Bohemian Rhapsody. The other 90 minutes stink.

Yet if only 17- and 18-year-olds who have nothing more to do than hang in malls or watch MTV watch this loser, Wayne's World will make a nice profit, which is all Paramount Pictures cares about, anyway.

If there is no further judicial tampering with the State's Senatorial Districts, Salado's next representative in the upper house of the State Legislature will be Temple Dickson.

How all this came about is much like Alice's adventure in Wonderland or even akin to the serpentine machinations of a Machiavellian misadventure. It all started back in January of this year when a three-judge panel headed by U.S. District Judge James Nowlin rejected the Legislature's redistricting plan and substituted one of its own - drawn up by Nowlin and according to State Democrats, with the illegal help of certain Republican lawmakers for the purpose of tilting the balance of power in the Senate. Oh, how the Demos howled as they cried foul and other things! The GOPers smiled serenely and the primaries went forward with Bell County linked to District 26 (from number 24) whose power base was in San Antonio. Nominees in the 26th district were Democrat Carlos Higgins, Austin, and GOP Jeff Wentworth, San Antonio. Wentworth is still fighting his way through the courts relative to his alleged ineligibility to serve if elected. Bell County's Senator - Temple Dickson - was pitted against Bill Sims in a far west Texas region much to his dismay since Sims trounced our man and effectively put him out to pasture.

by Ken Clapp

But hold on! May 15, and an investigative panel from the 5th Court of Appeals took a look at Nowlin's part in the redistricting mess and concluded the judge had acted poorly and was duly reprimanded. His plan however stayed in place up until July 29, three short weeks ago, when a three judge federal panel in Washington opined that the original Legislative plan, that had been knocked down by Nowlin, was in fact correct and everything went back to square one! Now it was time for the GOP to gripe and moan and like banshees they ranted and raved all the way to the courthouse doors where they are currently seeking redress and return to the Nowlin plan and possible control of the Senate. That action is set for late August when the matter will be viewed one more time.

Now comes the interesting part. With the District lines back where they started - Bell County returned to District 24 with no one in place as a candidate from the Demo party. The GOP had not put forward a candidate so all that was left was for the state Party committee to name a winner and guess who drew the lucky bean - you got it - Temple Dickson! Talk about Texas politics being like Texas weather! Here is a classic case in point!

How long all this will last is anyone's guess what with more two-stepping on the way when the matter returns to court late this month. Hope they get things settled before we go to the polls on Nov. 3rd.

A chance encounter in a nursing home between dowdy housewife Evelyn Couch and resident Ninny Threadgoode leads to an unexpected friendship. Ninny tells Evelyn a story of two women who lived half a century ago in the town of Whistle Stop: the fiercely independent Idgie and the gentle Ruth. Idgie stands up to a charge of murder in a time when a woman's place was considered the kitchen. Idgie's courage inspires Evelyn to take charge of her own life.

Scott & White offers basic baby care class

Scott & White will offer a Basic Baby Care Class to the community beginning Sept. 3. The classes are designed for expectant mothers, but are open to anyone. They will be offered monthly at varying locations in Temple.

Each one-hour class will cover topics such as infant handling, feeding, diapering, bathing, cord and circumcision care, fevers, safety, infant stimulation and consumer products. Due to shorter hospital stays for new mothers, often there is very little time for teaching how to care for the newborn infant. These classes are intended to provide teaching for those who desire more information regarding baby care.

The first class is 7 p.m. Sept. 3 in Sid Richardson Auditorium at Scott & White. Following classes will be offered the first Tuesday of each month. The locations will be announced prior to each meeting. For more information or reservations, please call 773-3363.

State Bank building were two walls.

But Bryant Reeves, a student at that time at Texas Tech, designed a beautiful shop utilizing the natural limestone and architecture of the old 1911 building.

The result of his work and the work of Leland Towry, of Holland, who constructed the building, helped to quiet critics.

What turned Grace Jones' critics into her fans was Grace Jones and the philosophies given to her by her family: "My father taught me to never compromise and that you cannot afford not to have the best. He was right," Jones said.

Her father also taught her that "there was nothing I could not do." This translated into a two-year stint as a pilot during World War II and an eight-year career as a fashion model.

She read about the need for female pilots to relieve stateside men needed in combat in Look magazine. Her father encouraged her to pursue it, which she did. She delivered AT-6 airplanes and ferried other planes up to B-25s at Love Field.

Her eight year modeling career gave her "a marvelous background to meet all of the players and to establish a network."

With that base network, Jones has created a name that will not soon be forgotten in an industry that can be forgetful.

The name she has created for herself is based on the personal service devoted to her customers.

This service has given her a list of customers which reads like a Who's Who, but unlike many others in the world of fashion, Jones never indulges that list. She protects the privacy of her customers, which is another reason that they flock to this small village from New York, Dallas, Austin....

No longer do her critics tease her about choosing such a small community for her fashion shop. Instead, they come here to enjoy the serenity of the creek, the slow pace of Salado and the personal service provided by Grace Jones.

Last Year's Prediction

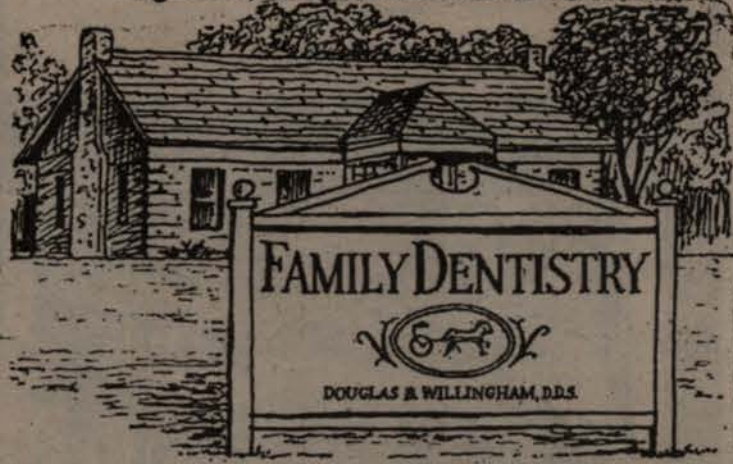

Last year this column predicted that the Rail Authority set up to monitor the Bullet Train would cause a major scandal in Austin and sure enough just last week we woke up to screaming headlines to the effect that the Texas High Speed Rail authority - charged with supervising the Bullet Train until it goes under the aegis of the Railroad Commission in 1995 - had mismanaged funds to the tune of close to a million bucks including small items like $440 for bottled water; rented pot plants for offices they use, ordered personal photographs; $25,000 on furniture; thousands for chartered planes and hotel suites on up to the large one - $700,000 for legal fees. Now - bear in mind we are talking here about a staff of one director and four peons. And legal work that should have been done free by the Attorney General's office.

By setting up the rail authority the way they did, the Legislature was asking for trouble. The Bullet train company - Texas TGV - was to pay the cost of the agency designated to supervise them until such time as they became part of the Railroad Commission - three years hence. A classic case of the fox guarding the hen house! Uproar, followed by the director resigning under fire, and state officials involved fading the heat by pointing out they were somehow out to lunch and could not be blamed. Same song second verse!

Now that the scandal has come and gone - we are going to go further out on a limb and predict that should this boondoggle become a reality the taxpayers of Texas will end up paying for the bonds and maintenance and upkeep of the massive rail system. Part of the reason for this far-out foretelling was gleaned from a report by Railroad Commissioner Bob Krueger given to the Austin American States- man recently. It noted in part that once the rail system becomes operational - the trains would have to daily haul every person that currently uses the airways and roads going from Dallas, to Houston to San Antonio to Austin to Fort Worth. That means every traveler would have to quit driving and flying buy a ticket and take a train - just to pay the interest on what is expected to eventually be a $10 billion outlay. That is, of course impossible to visualize - empty roads and planes. So who then will pay the interest and all that goes with running a railroad. You guessed it, brother - the taxpayer.

This is one project that needs to be deep-sixed before we end up paying for it like we are doing for the defunct Savings and Loans and banks that went belly-up due to poor supervision and non-regulation in the free wheeling Reagan years. Enough should be enough! And that's -30- for this week!

Breakfast reduces cholesterol

Ilene C. Miller
City. Ext. Agent - H.E.
 A new study shows that children who skip breakfast have significantly higher blood cholesterol levels compared to children who eat morning meals.

Researchers looked at the breakfast habits of more than 500 children (ages 9-19) and divided them into six categories: skipper; ready-to-eat (RTE) cereals with fiber; traditional breakfast of eggs bacon, sausage, waffles or pancakes; chips or sweets; other RTE cereals and mixed breakfast.

Breakfast skippers were found to have cholesterol levels 7 percent to 8 percent higher than those who ate breakfast. Dr. Ken Resnivow, director of child health research with the American Health Foundation in New York City and conductor of the study, found that the group consuming RTE cereal with at least 2 grams of fiber per ounce had the lowest cholesterol levels. Those consuming chips and sweets had the highest.

Encouraging children to eat breakfast can pay off. The morning meal provides energy and can help the child concentrate during study or play. However, it may be difficult to get some children to eat the traditional-type breakfast like bacon and eggs or cereal. Trying a little breakfast variety can encourage a child to look forward to morning meals.

Here are some suggestions:

*Make a shake for breakfast -- combine milk, fresh fruit (bananas, strawberries or peaches) and ice in a blender. Before serving add a dash of cinnamon.

*Make popsicles from low-fat yogurt. Pour fruited yogurt in popsicle molds and freeze on a stick.

*Serve sliced apples or crackers with a dip made of peanut butter, cream cheese, honey, raisins and flaked coconut.

*Serve leftover spaghetti, chicken or pizza (hot or cold).

*Bake a potato and top with grated cheese, steamed vegetables or chili.

*Serve bagels and English muffins. spread with cream cheese or peanut butter and top with chopped bananas or crushed pineapple.

*Make kabobs with combinations of cheese, fruit, sliced or cubed cooked meat. Be sure to remove toothpicks before serving.

*Sprinkle flour tortillas with grated cheese and broil. Tortillas can also be served with other combinations such as potatoes, cheese and eggs.

USDA says skip supplementals, focus on four food groups for kids

Children will get the vitamins and minerals they need if parents side-step the supplementals and focus on the four major food groups, says Dr. Kathleen J. Motil at the USDA's Children's Nutrition Research Center in Houston.

"Even the most finicky eater will get enough vitamins and minerals with a varied diet including meat, dairy products, grains and fruits and vegetables," say Motil, assistant professor of pediatrics at Baylor College of Medicine.

"Children's vitamin and mineral preparations really treat the parent rather than the child. They provide parental peace of mind," she said.

Motil urges parents to exercise caution if they insist on over-the-counter supplementals.

Vitamins can be potentially toxic, she warns. More is not always better, and megadoses of vitamins can be harmful.

Motil believes supplementals should only be given under the care of a physician for specific medical reasons such as a chronic illness, teen pregnancy or eating disorders.

However, she points out that a pediatrician may decide to recommend a fluoride supplement, available alone and in combination with vitamins, if there is insufficient fluoride in the drinking water.

For parents who want to leave supplementals behind, Motil provides the following dietary refresher:

To make sure your child gets adequate iron, serve red meat and liver, poultry and fish, legumes, fortified cereals, enriched whole-grain breads, dark-leafy vegetables and dried fruits.

Calcium is found in milk, cheese, yogurt, salmon and broccoli.

For vitamins C, try citrus fruits, green peppers, tomatoes, broccoli and strawberries. Cantaloupe and apricots are rich in vitamin A.

The B vitamins can be found in meats, fish, poultry, grains, and cereals, sweet potatoes, bananas and eggs.

If parents are concerned about their child's eating habits, Motil encourages them to consult their pediatrician or a registered dietitian who specializes in children's nutrition.
