Absenteeism, reluctant customers affect business

The Markets

Our consistent if sometimes eccentric stock market barometer, the S&P 500 Stock Index (SPX) finished the week at 4458.58, down 1.69% from last week's record high. The Index is now up 18.7% year-to-date and has doubled from its bottom in March 2020. It's hard to call a market decline good news but considering that all the major investment banks came out this week with warnings that the stock market was overpriced and likely to see a correction soon, a mere 1.7% decline is mild. Interestingly, both gold and bitcoin fell too. The CRSP Mid-Cap Value Index joined in, declining 2.13% to 2459.01, but is still up 19.84% year-to-date.

The yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury note rose 7.6% to 1.335%, meaning that bond prices fell too (bond prices move inversely to rates). The benchmark note's yield, like the stock market, has almost doubled in the past year. West Texas Intermediate crude oil (WTI) did eke out a wee gain of 0.55% to $69.62, and like the stock market and bond yields, has nearly doubled in a year.

The Economy

There were two storylines that dominated the economic news for the week. The louder one was that literally all the major investment banks both here in the U.S. and in Europe, posted warnings that the economic growth rate earlier predicted by them and just about everyone else was declining. The second echoing story was that the logistics and supply problems that were widely expected to start clearing up by Labor Day weren't and were possibly getting worse.

Underlying both stories was the harsh reality that the Delta variant of COVID-19 is causing disruptions across the world. The measure of the severity of this surge can be seen here in the U.S., where we are keeping fairly accurate records. The seven-day average daily death rate from COVID in America has risen from its low of 168 in the early summer to last week's 848 according to Johns Hopkins. That is still well below the 2,500 per day mortality rate back in February, but it is ominously still rising each week. Here in Bell County, Texas the weekly death rate rose to 34, a tie for second place since the pandemic started. Anecdotal reports, including the Federal Reserve's Beige Book, indicated businesses were pulling back, and in some cases closing, in the face of increased COVID-related absenteeism and a reluctance of customers to use services where face to face contact was expected. Several major corporations that had forecast a return to regular office business by Labor Day are now saying it will come at the end of year, maybe. While the rising hospitalizations and deaths in the United States appear to be slowing our rate of growth, the disease's impact in Asia is far worse. Across the world, the economic effect looks to be tied to the vaccination rate and the efficacy of the vaccine used.

Market & Economic Update

By Jeffrey W. McClure

The global impact is, for our economy, more than a statistic. Closed ports and factories in Asia equate to a supply constraint here, and following the law of supply and demand, a limited supply is causing prices to rise. The Commerce Department reported that the U.S. Producer Price Index for final demand rose 0.7% in August. Perhaps more significantly, the price of goods, as opposed to services, rose a full 1% in one month. That rise puts the overall Producer Price Index up 8.3% from a year ago and wholesale goods up over 12%. Notably, core inflation has not risen anywhere near as fast as the producer, or wholesale prices causing profit margins for businesses to be compressed. The concern is that lower profits can mean lower earnings in the third quarter, which could be a trigger for a market correction. As the disruptions and shortages are being primarily created by a temporary factor, COVID-19, there is little sign of a long-term inflationary trend, but in the shorter-term there is a potential for some bumps.

In case we didn't have enough to worry about, Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen officially warned Congress that the Treasury will run out of money in October unless Congress acts to raise the debt ceiling to cover the spending that Congress has passed into law. As has happened in the past, members of the party that doesn't hold the White House are threatening to block passage to make the administration look bad. The actual government shutdown from a failure to pass an increase in the debt ceiling has only happened once, but the threat is enough to unsettle the markets.

Despite the pandemic and the damage wrought by hurricane Ida, our economy continues to grow at a rate we have not seen since the early 1980s. The threat at this point is that estimates of a higher growth than it looks like we are going to get may cause some speculators to bolt from the market creating a correction. If that happens, as in the past, it will almost certainly be a passing blip when seen in retrospect. The Wall of Worry needed for a healthy bull market is still in place. We remain optimistic.

Biden's Words

"Mistakes were made."

That's a passive-aggressive phrase that politicians and others have used since time immemorial to deflect blame. Suggesting amorphous "mistakes" implies that others are at fault. President Bill Clinton was a master at speaking wishy-washy passive-aggressive, but it was not just Clinton. As you might guess, Richard Nixon was too, and Ronald Reagan, all the way back to Ulysses S. Grant speaking about corruption that rocked his administration.

And Joe Biden is no slouch either. He combines passive-aggressive with aggressive-aggressive. First of all, his very appearance before cameras several times for speeches to the nation during the messy Afghanistan withdrawal was aggressive, if not laudable in and of itself. He declared that he was taking "responsibility" for the mess -- the mess being the decision to abandon the country.

"Responsibility" seems to be a forthright word, but it is certainly less impactful than "blame." Blame is something Biden spreads around to others, particularly the Afghan army that surrendered faster than you could say "turned tail and ran." And it's for the U.S. officials who overestimated the Afghan soldiers' willingness to fight a respectable battle against the Taliban.

Biden explained his choice in a particularly "buck stops here" style, perhaps because polls supported his decision to withdraw from a war that had gone on for 20 years: "I believe this is the right decision, a wise decision, and the best decision for America."

Your Voice

Letters to the Editor

"I was not going to extend this forever war," he went on, "and I was not extending a forever exit."

As for the 13 American troops and nearly 200 Afghan civilians killed by an Islamic State subsidiary suicide bomber, he carefully called the U.S. forces "heroes" and made it a point to at least meet with the families of those slain, in Dover, Delaware, during the "dignified transfer" ceremonies, even those who bitterly opposed his conduct of the withdrawal, which they blamed on him.

It was his effort to finess a gruesome story that has not yet been told. It will take years to unfold and can depend on events whose outcomes we cannot predict. Will the administration be successful in evacuating the remaining American citizens and Afghan allies who want to escape? How will future diplomatic and economic decisions play into this, during the Biden presidency and beyond? How will this be an issue in a future election? How will Republicans play it? Right now, they are all over the map.

Nebraska's Sen. Ben Sasse, not normally a partisan, was unusually harsh about the commander in chief's handling of the withdrawal:

"There is clearly no plan. There has been no plan. Their plan has basically been happy talk. People have died, and people are going to die because President Biden decided to rely on happy talk instead of reality."

There is a cliché that the "fog of war" confuses and influences an understanding of current events. How will history treat Joe Biden's decisions about Afghanistan vis-a-vis his predecessors since 9/11? There are predictions that the Taliban will again take over, spawning a wave of attacks against the United States by newly emboldened terrorists hiding out in Afghanistan.

Perhaps domestic issues will overtake the memories of Afghanistan or, for that matter, international issues, too. How will Joe Biden's rhetorical and political skills influence whatever happens? We must write about something.

Will natural disasters and their relationship to climate change be exploitable? And the pandemic. For the moment, the Afghanistan story has run its course. At the moment. What will take its place? Will anything need to take its place? Now it's up to the pundits to chew on it for a while, then the historians. For starters, they can assess Joe Biden's use of rhetoric.

No, Afghanistan Not the End of American Power

Rich Lowry

It's hard to imagine more humiliating images than what we've seen in Afghanistan in recent weeks, from the hasty evacuation of the U.S. Embassy in Kabul to the chaotic scenes outside the airport.

Our surrender to a band of AK-47-bearing guerrillas after 20 years has, understandably, occasioned autumnal thoughts about American power.

Even the Soviet Union, on the cusp of full collapse, managed to get out of Afghanistan in good order and leave behind a government that endured for several years.

What does it say that we couldn't match that?

Writing in The New Yorker, Robin Wright says the pullout may serve as "a bookend for the era of U.S. global power." Allister Heath, editor of The Sunday Telegraph, argues that "the botched exit is merely the latest sign that the American era is ending." Francis Fukuyama says the images in Kabul "have evoked a major juncture in world history," although he thinks "the end of the American era had come much earlier."

There is no sugar-coating our defeat in Afghanistan and the abject position we put ourselves in during the final days. The withdrawal is a blow to our counterterrorism capabilities, our prestige and our geopolitical position.

For all of that, though, no one in the world has the formidable advantages of the United States, which still outstrips everyone else, including China, on every material metric that matters.

Great powers don't go away easily. The British could be forgiven for thinking that it'd be all downhill after losing their American colonies in a long war joined by their traditional rivals France and Spain. Instead, British imperial power had not yet peaked.

Our exit from Saigon in 1975, to this point the touchstone for modern American defeats, was followed by Communist advances all over the map. Yet, within 20 years, we'd win the Cold War and ascend to unprecedented global power.

We are still blessed with an extraordinarily favorable geographical position, as a continental nation with friendly neighbors, access to two oceans, enormous reserves of oil and gas, and vast amounts of arable land. We produce about a quarter of global GDP, a share that has held up over the years. We are responsible for an astonishing 40% of all military spending in the world. It was ridiculous that Biden made a bragging point of the evacuation, but it's true that no one else would have been capable of such an operation.

We dominate the list of top universities in the world.

There is no country people would rather come to. A Taliban spokesperson interviewed on Iranian TV, when challenged why so many people want to flee Afghanistan, rightly pointed out that if American planes were taking people out of Iran, there'd be a rush for the exits there, too.

In his book, "Unrivaled," Michael Beckley of Tufts University and the American Enterprise Institute rebuts the notion that China is overtaking us.

American workers are more productive than workers anywhere else. China's labor productivity has improved, Beckley writes, "but remains half that of Turkey, lower than Mexico's, and roughly on par with Brazil's."

We have demographic challenges, but other big powers, especially China, will be aging faster. Over the course of the century, Beckley notes, China will lose half of its workforce, or 470 million people.

Our alliance system is an enormous force-multiplier, a network that, according to Beckley, "encompasses 25% of the Earth's population and accounts for 75% of world GDP and defense spending." China's formal ally, in contrast, is North Korea.

None of this is to deny that the contemporary United States is racked by self-doubt, poisonous politics and institutional failure.

It is only to say that if we are determined to squander our global position, it will take much more time and folly to do it. A further downward slide, like the disastrous withdrawal from Kabul itself, will be a choice, not an inevitability. Rich Lowry is editor of the National Review. (c) 2021 by King Features Synd., Inc.

Don Barthlow, General Manager for the Salado Airport, presented a program at the Salado Ladies Community League meeting Sept. 9. He shared his passion for flying serving as a helicopter pilot in the Army. He explained the airport, a 50-acre private facility, is self-funded. The organization has completed Phase One, selling 60 lots for individuals who want to have their own hanger and condo on the lot. The runway is in the process of being paved. In Phase Two, he and his fellow owners want to develop a golf cart path and a walking trail, as well as an onsite sewer system. There will be public access to the airport, but pilots are advised to call ahead in case there is construction equipment nearby.

Combined Men’s Breakfast Demonstrate unity

Fifty men from Grace Salado and Christ Community Church in Harker Heights gathered on Saturday, September 11 in Grace’s newly renovated fellowship hall to share a time of prayer, worship, teaching, good food and fellowship. Special thanks were given to Jim Lassiter, Dave Laws and Sam Ramsey for their roles in completing the renovations in time for this unique men’s event. Also, two wonderful volunteers Sheila Goings and Mary Hendrix, who helped serve the men their breakfast.

Following an welcome and opening prayer by Grace’s senior pastor, Jason Goings, the men were challenged by pastor Stephen Watson of Christ Community Church to a brief, yet challenging study from 1st Corinthians 13, the love chapter. In recognition of 9-11, table discussions were centered around the men’s personal experiences, their reactions to the event, and how that day changed their thinking and lives.

Worship was led by Sam Ramsey and Jason Chick and supported by a team of musicians from both churches.

The meeting served a prelude to a combined men’s retreat on October 14-16, where the men of both churches will go to Forest Glen Springs in Rosebud for teaching on God’s command to men, as found in Genesis 2:15 (to work and to tend). Focusing on those two specific characteristics of manhood, the men will be challenged to fully understand their meaning, and discuss how it should look when applied to their lives. The event was ended in time for the men to be able to attend the tribute to Salado’s first responders at the Salado Civic Center.

For further information Grace’s men’s activities, please contact Ron Hendrix at 858-344-2963.

Sons of Republic donated an historic painting to Salado Public Library

The Heart of Texas Chapter #26 of the Sons of the American Revolution, donated a historic painting to the Salado Library on September 11.

The oil painting titled "Old Salado" was painted in 1922 by Mildred Barton Law, the daughter of early Salado pioneer Dr. Welborn Barton. The painting was owned by Compatriot Joseph William Love, III, of the Bernardo de Galvez

Chapter #1, SAR, in Galveston, TX.

Compatriot Love's ancestors were from Salado, so he wanted the painting returned to that community. He contacted the Heart of Texas Chapter and asked them to donate the painting to the Library in memory of his Salado ancestors. A year after his request, due to COVID protocols, the painting was picked up in Galveston by the chapter president and donated to the Library, as requested by Compatriot Love.

The 100 year old painting depicts Salado in 1879 when the town had a foot bridge across the creek, a non-denominational co-educational college, the first Grange in Texas, the Shady Villa Inn, and creek springs. These sites are now noted Texas Historical Commission Landmarks.

Opening lead — four of diamonds.

Everyone is occasionally guilty of becoming enamored of a particular hand and overestimating its value. All players should, of course, strive to keep such excesses to a minimum, as steady overbidding is a serious fault in anyone's game. The best policy in bridge is to try to bid your hands as accurately as possible — neither overbidding nor underbidding them — but this is not always easy to do.

Consider this deal from the Italy-U.S. match in 1951. Howard Schenken was South for the American team and, at favorable vulnerability, decided to open one club.

He found his partner with a huge hand, and North never did stop bidding until a small slam was reached. Schenken did everything he could to slow his partner down, but North had the bit firmly in his teeth and refused to let go.

The Americans were exceptionally lucky on the deal because, as the cards were divided, the slam could not be stopped. West led a diamond. Schenken won the trick with dummy's queen, finessed the jack of clubs, led a heart to the queen and cashed the A-K of trump. When he next led another heart, West took the ace, and that was that. Declarer had 12 ice-cold tricks.

Schenken would have gone down had West held the queen of clubs or had East held the Q-10-x-x of trump, or had East held the ace of hearts, or if West had led a spade initially and East had the king.

North was extremely pleased by the favorable outcome, which was attributable for the most part to his optimistic series of bids. But he knew he had dodged a bullet, and no doubt vowed not to press his luck quite as much in the future.

Sirenas of Salado Style Show benefits All Abilities Playground in Pace Park

In support of the All Abilities Playground in Pace Park, the Sirenas of Salado hosted a fashion show Sept. 12 at Pace Park Pavilion.

The event featured fashions by Christy's of Salado, jewelry by Benton's, food by The Barton House Restaurant, table design by Ivory Bell Floral and fashion show decorations and design by Souer.

Ann Harder and Christy Goodfellow emceed the fashion show.

Sirenas of Salado Auxiliary Board formed in the summer of 2019 to facilitate a way for local youth to participate in the development of important projects in the village, to be a part of the volunteer workforce that it takes to make Salado a wonderful place to be. When Sirena Fest began raising funds for an all abilities park, the board decided to activate a youth ambassador program in Salado and ask the high schoolers if they would support the playground by raising funds, volunteering their time and using their skills to aide in the construction of the park.

A new generation of Salado and Sirena enthusiasts is continuing to honor the Legend of Sirena while raising money for an All Abilities Playground in Pace Park.

Sirena Fest will be Oct. 2 along Salado Creek. The mermaid parade was canceled but there will be a Pet Parade on the grounds of Barrow Brewing at 11 a.m.

Jennifer Abraham, owner of The Dog Spot in Salado, is organizing the Pet Parade. Awards will be given for Best Costumer, Largest Pet and Smallest Pet. Follow Sirena Fest on social media for details. The Dog Spot has a link to the online pet parade registration form on their Facebook page.

Tiffany Schreiner, along with several other local business owners have organized an event that will bring whimsy as well as educational elements to children of all ages on Oct. 2 with the annual Sirena Fest.

Sirena Fest will run 10:30 a.m.-5 p.m. October 2 and will include educational booths, merfolk-themed arts extravaganza and live music.

Other highlights include, face painting, interactive arts activities, food and stilt walkers.

Food and retail vendor space is still available for the Sirena Fest. You can sign up by emailing emilyshepperdjohnes@gmail.com. Booth space sizes and costs are these: 10x10, $55; 10X20, $100; Food Truck, $125. The Fest already has the following merchant booths filled: Candles, Freshies, Color Street, Scentsy and Paparazzi.

The goals of Sirena Fest are to highlight the legacy of Sirena in Salado, educate children on creek habitat and conservation, delight kids of all ages with the magic, whimsy, and artistry that the Village of Salado has to offer, and finally to raise money toward an All Abilities Playground. To date, Sirena Fest and supporters have raised more than $300,000 towards the All Abilities Playground, including $150,000 Texas Parks and Wildlife grant and $50,000 commitment from Village of Salado

This festival is aimed entirely at children and families, hoping to encourage children to think outside the box, dream wild imaginative dreams, and fulfill them.

Jackets score 2 quick TDs to put game out of reach

BY TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Stephenville Yellow Jackets scored two touchdowns in the last 30 seconds of the first half to take an unsurmountable 31-14 lead over the visiting Salado Eagles Sept. 10, the second coming on a kickoff that rolled into the endzone and was recovered by Ben Kirbo. The Yellow Jackets went on to win in convincing fashion 48-21.

Prior to that, though, the teams seemed evenly matched as the Eagles scored on their opening drive of eight plays with quarterback Hutton Haire bulling in from the 1 yard line to cap the 82-yard drive. Daniel Chtay kicked the point after. A 54-yard run by Seth Reavis, tackled by Bradley Beaty at the Stephenville 7 yard line to prevent the touchdown, set up the touchdown at 7:43 in the first.

Salado kicked to Stephenville and after Ryder Lambert hit Kyler Eudy in the backfield for a screen, the Salado defense swarmed on Eudy's fumble to take over at their own 47 yard line. Stephenville stiffened its defense and forced Salado to punt.

The Jackets then combined passes by Lambert and runs by Tate Marusk for an 11 play drive culminating in a 20 yard strike by Lambert to Coy Eakin with 2:31 left in the first. Corbin Poston knotted the score at 7-7 with his kick.

The Eagles were stifled again and punted from their own 30 yard line. Lambert found Eakin for a 41 yard touchdown pass with 10:41 left in the first and Poston's kick gave the Jackets their first lead of 14-7.

Salado drove from their own 23 to the Stephenville 34 yard line where a fourth down pass by Haire went incomplete. Stephenville took over and settled for a 23 yard field goal and a 17-7 lead with 3:31 left in the half.

Three touchdowns were scored over the next 200 seconds, following a touchback on the ensuing kick. Caden Strickland punched the ball for 5 yards before Reavis scampered through the defense before they knew where he was and sprinted for a 70 touchdown with 2:51 left in the first half. Chtay closed the gap to 17-14.

Lambert used his arm and legs — and two timeouts — to get to the Eagle 13 yard line and then found Kallan Kimbrough for a touchdown with 36 seconds left in the half. Poston made it 23-14. He then kicked the ball behind the Salado receivers who watched it stop at the goal line and then tried to get to it before Kirbo fell on it in the end zone for a nail in the coffin of Salado, taking the halftime lead of 31-14.

After forcing the Jackets to a three-and-out series to open the second half, Salado drove to the Jackets' side of the field, where they coughed up the ball at the 35 yard line.

The Jackets took 10 plays to drive 65 yards, scoring on Lambert's 12 yard pass to Julian Iribarren with 4:13 to go in the third. Poston's kick gave Stephenville a 38-14 lead.

The Eagles drove to the Jacket 18 yard line but could not convert the opportunity, turning it over on downs

PUBLIC NOTICE Explanatory Statements for the November 2, 2021 Constitutional Amendment Election

Proposition Number 1 (HJR 143)

HJR 143 proposes a constitutional amendment expanding the circumstances in which a professional sports team charitable foundation may conduct raffles to raise money for the foundation's charitable purposes. The proposed amendment would allow professional sports team charitable foundations of organizations sanctioned by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association or the Women's Professional Rodeo Association to hold charitable raffles at rodeo events.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the professional sports team charitable foundations of organizations sanctioned by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association or the Women's Professional Rodeo Association to conduct charitable raffles at rodeo venues."

Proposition Number 2 (HJR 99)

HJR 99 proposes a constitutional amendment allowing the legislature to authorize a county to issue bonds or notes to finance the development or redevelopment of an unproductive, underdeveloped, or blighted area within the county and to pledge for repayment of those bonds or notes increases in property tax revenues imposed on property in the area by the county. The Texas Constitution gives the legislature the power to authorize an incorporated city or town to issue such bonds or notes but does not expressly give the legislature the power to grant that same authority to counties. The proposed amendment also provides that a county that issues bonds or notes for transportation improvements may not pledge for the repayment of those bonds or notes more than 65 percent of the increases in ad valorem tax revenues each year, and a county may not use proceeds from the bonds or notes to finance the construction, operation, maintenance, or acquisition of rights-of-way of a toll road.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing a county to finance the development or redevelopment of transportation or infrastructure in unproductive, underdeveloped, or blighted areas in the county."

Proposition Number 3 (SJR 27)

SJR 27 proposes a constitutional amendment barring the State of Texas or a political subdivision from enacting, adopting, or issuing a statute, order, proclamation, decision, or rule that prohibits or limits religious services. The proposed amendment would apply to religious services, including those conducted in churches, congregations, and places of worship, in the state by a religious organization established to support and serve the propagation of a sincerely held religious belief.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to prohibit this state or a political subdivision of this state from prohibiting or limiting religious services of religious organizations."

Proposition Number 4 (SJR 47)

SJR 47 proposes a constitutional amendment changing certain eligibility requirements for a justice of the Supreme Court, a judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, a justice of a court of appeals, and a district judge. The proposed amendment provides that a person is eligible to serve on the Supreme Court if the person, among other qualifications, is licensed to practice law in Texas; is a resident of Texas at the time of election; has been either a practicing lawyer licensed in Texas for at least ten years or a practicing lawyer licensed in Texas and a judge of a state court or county court established by the legislature for a combined total of at least ten years; and during that time has not had the person's license to practice law revoked, suspended, or subject to a probated suspension. The same eligibility requirements would apply to a judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals and to a justice of a court of appeals. The proposed amendment further provides that to be eligible for appointment or election as a district judge, a person must be a resident of Texas; be licensed to practice law in Texas; and have been a practicing lawyer or a judge of a court in Texas, or both combined, for eight years preceding the person's election, during which time the person's license to practice law has not been revoked, suspended, or subject to a probated suspension.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment changing the eligibility requirements for a justice of the supreme court, a judge of the court of criminal appeals, a justice of a court of appeals, and a district judge."

Proposition Number 5 (HJR 165)

HJR 165 proposes a constitutional amendment allowing the State Commission on Judicial Conduct (SCJC) to accept complaints or reports, conduct investigations, and take any other authorized action with respect to a candidate for a state judicial office. Currently, the Texas Constitution only permits the SCJC to take such actions as to persons holding a judicial office.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment providing additional powers to the State Commission on Judicial Conduct with respect to candidates for judicial office."

Proposition Number 6 (SJR 19)

SJR 19 proposes a constitutional amendment establishing that residents of certain facilities have the right to designate an essential caregiver with whom the facility may not prohibit in-person visitation. The proposed amendment would apply to a nursing facility, assisted living facility, intermediate care facility for individuals with an intellectual disability, residence providing home and community-based services, or state supported living center. The proposed amendment also would authorize the legislature to provide guidelines for these facilities to follow in establishing essential caregiver visitation policies and procedures.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment establishing a right for residents of certain facilities to designate an essential caregiver for in-person visitation."

Proposition Number 7 (HJR 125)

HJR 125 proposes a constitutional amendment permitting a person who is 55 years of age or older at the time of death of their spouse who is receiving a limitation on school district property taxes on their residence homestead on the basis of a disability to continue receiving the limitation while the property remains the surviving spouse's residence homestead.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to allow the surviving spouse of a person who is disabled to receive a limitation on the school district ad valorem taxes on the spouse's residence homestead if the spouse is 55 years of age or older at the time of the person's death."

Proposition Number 8 (SJR 35)

SJR 35 proposes a constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to exempt from ad valorem taxation all or part of the market value of the residence homestead of the surviving spouse of a member of the United States armed services who is killed or fatally injured in the line of duty. The Texas Constitution provides a property tax exemption to the surviving spouse of a member of the armed services who is killed in action, but the current exemption does not include members of the military who die during their service due to injuries sustained that are not combat-related.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for an exemption from ad valorem taxation of all or part of the market value of the residence homestead of the surviving spouse of a member of the armed services of the United States who is killed or fatally injured in the line of duty."

CTC Fine Arts hosts art exhibit "Invisible Wounds"

The Central Texas College (CTC) Fine Arts department announced it will host an artist exhibit featuring the works of sculptor and art therapist Peter Buotte. The exhibit, "Invisible Wounds," features a series of digital-rendered sculptures and photographs of U.S. combat veterans who have experienced traumatic brain injury and/or post-traumatic stress. The display will be available September 14 through November 16 in the upstairs art gallery of the CTC campus library in Killeen.

Art Therapist Peter Buotte

Buotte, a contemporary sculptor, retired combat veteran and national board-certified art therapist, brings to the forefront the imperceptible and unseen struggles of today's veterans who have served in Iraq or Afghanistan since 2001. "As a therapist I get to encounter the invisible consequences of war each day," said Buotte. "As an artist, this series intends to make visible the inner, invisible experience of today's veteran who served in Iraq or Afghanistan since 2001."

"Invisible Wounds" was part of the "A Salute to Veterans" art display at the Temple Cultural Activities Center in Temple last year and previously exhibited at the Texas State Capitol in Austin during Veterans' Day weekend in 2019. Two of the sculptures included in the show were on display at the National Veterans Art Museum in Chicago, IL.

The exhibit embraces veterans of all services, ranks, genders and heritages. While the subjects in the exhibit are not Buotte's patients, each service member has been described as displaying an act of courage by selecting a facial gesture and posed as a sculpture. Buotte has also created a "Spirit of Survival" page on Facebook with nearly 300 followers of his five-year art project.

As coordinator of the Healing Arts Therapy program with the U.S. Department of Defense, Buotte works in the Creative Forces®: NEA Military Healing Arts Network at Intrepid Spirit Center/TBI Clinic, Carl R. Darnall Army Medical Center on Fort Hood. In December 2016, he completed 28 years of combined active and reserve service in the U.S. Army, culminating as a lieutenant colonel with five combat tours overseas.

Buotte fosters a safe, supportive environment for therapeutic self-expression for active-duty military patients who have post-traumatic stress and/or mild traumatic brain injury. He leads individual and group art therapy sessions with the clinical approach of strength-based cognitive-processing. On the effectiveness of art therapy, Buotte noted, "At its deepest, the art therapy process can go beyond the verbal - and even beyond the recognizable image - in order to emotionally engage with the patient/client."

A meet-the-artist reception will be held in the CTC upstairs art gallery 4-5 p.m. September 16. The exhibit and reception are free and open to the public.
