Tablerock theater is second home for Makis of Salado

By JACKIE MILLS

Susan Westbrook Maki was born into a musically gifted family and raised in the small town of Milano in neighboring Milam County. Her father, Garland Westbrook, was a singer recording under the stage name "Billy Western" and a promoter of country and gospel music recording artists throughout Texas. Susan grew up around many popular country singers and musicians and developed a great appreciation and enjoyment of music and history.

Susan Westbrook Maki has acted on stage at different times throughout her life and this past summer portrayed "Mama" in Salado Legends. This will be her first time on stage in A Christmas Carol and she is excited that her entire family will be a part of this year's production. She and her husband, Gary Maki, will share two scenes together as he appears for the first time on stage. Her daughters and youngest son are members of the Cratchit Family. Her oldest son who has special needs will appear along-side her in the crowd scenes.

Imparting her knowledge of Texas History and US History at Academy

Middle School keeps Susan busy with the subjects she has loved since she was a little girl. In her spare time she loves to read, travel the backroads of Texas, and raises Australian Shepherds. In addition, she and her family raise cattle in Milano.

Tablerock has become a very special place for the Maki family. Susan confessed, as her family nodded their heads in agreement, "the amphitheater feels like a second home. The people involved on stage and behind the scenes are truly gifted and the comraderie creates a special place right here in Salado. Tablerock is not something you find just anywhere and if you have not yet had the opportunity to experience the magic don't miss A Christmas Carol this holiday season."

A Christmas Carol will be performing its 29th season at Tablerock Amphitheater on December 3, 4, 10 and 11, as a part of the Village of Salado Stroll which has celebrated the Christmas Holidays for the past 61 years.

You may purchase your tickets ahead of time via www.CentralTexasTickets.com or you may purchase tickets at the theater door on the night of the performance with cash or check.

Susan Westbrook Maki.

The Bell County Sheriff's Posse will be on horseback guiding you as you park your car in our free parking lot.

Doors to the Ticket Office and the Concession stand and indoor restrooms will be open at 6:15 p.m.

Adult tickets - $15, children 12 years and under - $3., Student tickets - $5. The show begins at 7: p.m. The concession stand volunteers will serve ham and cheese sandwiches, hot coffee and cold drinks, nachos and hot dogs.

Study: 7 out of 10 crypto buyers are buying from themselves to drive prices

The Markets

After all the drama in the financial and market headlines for the week, one would think that the S&P 500 Stock Index (SPX), representing the U.S. stock market, would have taken a heck of a hit. As is so common though, when all the smoke and dust cleared, the Index had only declined 1.22% to 4538.43. While the total decline of the past two weeks does add up to 3.42% and leaves the SPX only up 0.07% for the trailing three months, it is still up nearly 21% for the year and almost 23% from this time last year. The other index we follow, the CRSP Mid-Cap Value index, declined 1.37% for the week but remains, like its bigger cousin, up almost 21% for the year. The reported causes for the market decline were fears that the new Omicron COVID variant would somehow devastate the economy and Fed Chairman Jerome Powell's Senate testimony that the Federal Reserve would need to discuss accelerating the reduction in monetary stimulus as it reduces its bond buying on the open market. Traders reportedly were afraid that the Fed will raise rates too much and too soon and kill the economic expansion.

The benchmark 10-year U.S. Treasury note yield, reacted to the reported threat of higher rates by declining over 8% to yield 1.357%, once more proving that stock and bond traders come from different universes. That ten-year rate, although still quite low by historical standards, remains a whopping 47% higher than it was at the beginning of 2021. West Texas Intermediate crude oil (WTI) prices spent the week in a slow, irregular slide to end the work week at $66.26, down about 2.5% and down over 18% in the last month. Apparently, the threatened release of oil from the national reserves of the U.S., China, and others has OPEC+ spooked and they decided to increase oil production by 400,000 barrels per day.

The Economy

The big noise in the economic news for the week

Market & Economic Update

By Jeffrey W. McClure

was the discovery that another COVID variant, named Omicron, is already in place around the world. Early data on this newcomer suggests that it is quite a lot more transmissible but, if anything, less severe than the currently dominant version, Delta. The term "noise" is appropriate as while a lot of words were written and broadcast about Omicron, we really don't know much about it. Most of the noise included the terms "may" and "could" in the warnings rather than "has" and "will." The man probably most responsible for the development of the Pfizer vaccine, the founder of BioNTech, Ugur Sahin, stated that while the new variant will probably make it more likely for unvaccinated people to be infected, it was unlikely to cause severe illness in those who have gotten both initial shots and a booster. President Biden followed up with an announcement that lockdowns were not in the plan. It looks more and more like this new variant, rather than being a catastrophe, may mark the beginning of the end of the COVID crisis.

What did not receive much broadcast and print notice was that on Friday, the U.S. unemployment rate dropped to 4.2%, well within the range economists consider to be "full employment," the target the Fed has had since the pandemic began. The report that the economy only produced a "seasonally-adjusted" 210,000 new jobs in November did make the headlines, but that number is, in our opinion, inaccurate. First, the non-seasonally adjusted number was 780,000, then buried in what has to be the weirdest jobs report we have ever seen were some other numbers that are revealing. First, the percentage of eligible workers who are in the job force rose to 61.8% as 600,000 workers joined the force, the highest it has been since the pandemic hit. Second, wage growth slowed to a 0.3% gain from October, breaking the 0.5% monthly rise we had been seeing. That reduction in wage increases suggests that inflation is not driving higher wages and we do not appear to be in a wage-price spiral. Third, and very critically, the household survey indicated that not 210,000 but a massive surge of 1.1 million more people found employment in November than in October. The dramatic difference may be a result of the reported difficulties the Labor Department is having getting employers to report hiring.

In a couple of side notes: Shoppers spent heavily on Black Friday despite their reportedly reduced confidence. A careful study of the cryptocurrency markets found that as much as 7 out of 10 trades may be people buying from themselves to drive the price of crypto coins higher. The inflation bump we are experiencing appears to not be a result of the government's stimulus as inflation in the Eurozone and other areas is also breaking historical records. And at least some of the current labor shortage appears to be caused by formerly hourly workers starting new businesses. 4.54 million new businesses were formed from January through October of this year, increasing the officially self-employed number 56% to 9.44 million.

The bottom line is that the U.S. economy appears to be in great shape and roaring ahead with plenty of momentum. Bull markets indeed climb a wall of worry, and those worries keep popping up. We should all be concerned when the bad news disappears but so far, the wall seems to be holding up quite well as does the U.S. economy.

Thanks to the community for supporting the Historical Society Homes Tour

On behalf of the Salado Historical Society, thank you to the Salado villagers and all the visitors who supported our annual Christmas Tour of Homes!! It was a great success! With the pandemic scare, we were a little hesitant that people would attend in the numbers they did.

As in any endeavor to raise monies, it literally "takes a village" to be successful. Especially in our case, the homeowners who volunteered their homes to have guests enter and view their Christmas décor were outstanding! Five homes representing Christmas and home décor from 1860's to a brand new home just recently completed, plus our historical cabins, offered something for everyone. The homeowners truly outdid themselves with unique decorations and family treasures displayed. To them and the numerous volunteers who assisted in showing the homes and selling tickets, a HUGE thank you for your generosity and graciousness in opening your homes and heart, greeting guests. We are very appreciative as well as those attending with your sharing of the Christmas spirit and helping to bring all of us back to enjoying each other and celebrations after the preceding months of isolations.

Also, a tremendous thank you to the organizers, volunteers and participants of the Salado Christmas Parade with the kick-off of celebrations, the shop owners, and everyone who participated with their attendance and support of all events. The excitement and joy of Christmas has been and continues to be truly felt by all. We appreciate everyone. Many visitors commented that Salado is definitely a very friendly and enjoyable place with plans to return throughout the year.

Have a very Merry Christmas and a Joyous New Year!! God bless us everyone.

Posada recreates journey of Joseph and Mary

Las Posadas, the nine day Christmas tradition observed in Spain, Mexico and the Southwest United States, will be celebrated as La Posada, a one day event, in Salado during the community's Christmas Stroll. La Posada will assemble 5:30 p.m. Dec. 11 at Salado College Hill. The procession begins at 6 p.m. ending at the St. Joseph's Episcopal Church. The public is invited to take part.

The Spanish term means inn, place of lodging or accommodations. In some ways the spirit of Las Posadas is similar to the English custom of caroling.

It dates back 400 years in Mexico and recreates the journey of Joseph and Mary to Bethlehem.

Each year the same drama is played out. Though thoroughly rehearsed, what will happen will seem fresh and exciting to the young people taking part. Dressed in period clothing, they will begin at the gate to the old ruins on College Hill and then lead a candle light procession down Main Street a distance of two miles. Along the way they will stop to ask for lodging and a place to rest.

Of course there is no room at any inn until they reach St. Joseph's Episcopal Church. There, too, The Reverend Lynn Osgood will apologize at first for the lack of lodging.

Then The Reverend Lynn Osgood will have a thought. He will lead the couple to a stable behind the church. There he will offer to settle them in for the night in mounds of hay.

Participants are members of St. Joseph's Youth Group and Spanish language students from Belton High School. They spend weeks practicing the para pedir posada (searching for lodging) in a call and response chorus. Barbara Yanez-Smith, a Spanish language teacher, gave a loose translation of the words. The first chorus asks for a place to rest: "Let me in, my wife is Maria, she is the Queen of Heaven."

The second chorus responds, "Well, if she is the Queen of Heaven why is she out in the middle of the night wandering about?"

At the final destination there is unison of choruses.

"Entren santos peregrinos - come on in, we had not recognized you - we now see you're Jose and this is your wife Maria."

Each year nearly 200 participants take part. Afterwards they gather in the church courtyard for tamales, empanadas, hot chocolate with cinnamon and fruit punch. Small children get to bat a piñata for the candy inside.

St. Joseph's Episcopal Church is located at 945 Main St.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Opening lead — ten of hearts.

The defenders' primary goal is to defeat the contract. In planning the defense, therefore, a defender should automatically reject any lie of the cards that does not allow him to achieve that objective, while at the same time seeking one that will.

Consider this case where South arrived at three notrump on the bidding shown. His jump to two notrump without a genuine spade stopper was somewhat irregular, but no better bid was available.

Declarer took the heart lead with the queen — East playing the discouraging four — and led the jack of diamonds. West won, East following with the deuce, and was faced with the problem of what to do next. Had he continued with a heart, South would have had no trouble scoring 10 tricks.

But West instead shifted to the king of spades, after which declarer could no longer make the contract. This extraordinary play — no other return could have stopped South from getting home safely — had a sound basis. Its purpose was to cut declarer off from dummy's long diamonds, and it succeeded admirably. Whether South won the king with the ace or ducked it (in which case West would continue spades), there would be no entry available later to cash the diamonds.

Two important ingredients went into finding the winning defense. First, East's play of the deuce on the first diamond indicated that he had an odd number of cards in the suit — most likely three (and declarer, therefore, with two). Had East held a doubleton, he would have played his higher diamond first to show an even number of diamonds.

Second, the king-of-spades lead was made in the hope that East had the queen (or South the queen doubleton). Unlikely as this was, West could make no other assumption because to do so would have amounted to a concession of the contract. West therefore did what had to be done to achieve his objective and was well-rewarded for his effort.

Texas may unknowingly be bringing deadly, invasive pests and diseases along through their firewood. (TEXAS A&M FOREST SERVICE PHOTO)

Prevent the spread of tree pests and diseases by not moving firewood

BY LEIGHTON CHACHERE
TEXAS A&M AGRILIFE SERVICE

The Texas A&M Forest Service urges all Texans, and especially outdoor enthusiasts, to help reduce the spread of oak wilt and wood borers by taking preventive measures and being cautious when collecting and purchasing firewood.

As Texans travel for hunting or camping trips, they may unknowingly be bringing deadly, invasive pests and diseases along through their firewood.

Many impactful tree-killing pests present in Texas forests live and breed inside firewood. Some wood borers, such as the invasive emerald ash borer and red-bay ambrosia beetle, have caused devastating impacts, practically wiping out entire tree species from some regions of the country. The emerald ash borer, currently present in north and north-eastern Texas, has already killed millions of ash trees across the eastern U.S.

The redbay ambrosia beetle keeps spreading west, killing redbay and sassafras trees along the way. Similarly, native pathogens such as oak wilt, have killed oak trees in Central Texas in epidemic proportions.

Avoid transport or firewood

Each of these forest pests cause severe ecological and economic impacts over time. While they can all spread on their own, accidental transport by humans can move them greater distances, sometimes quickly jumping state and county lines.

Firewood is one of the main ways many of these pests are moved, regardless of age or seasoning. Even wood that looks clean and healthy may still have insect eggs or fungal spores that can start new infestations.

"We can all limit the spread of forest pests," said Demian Gomez, Texas A&M Forest Service regional forest health coordinator. "The best rule of thumb is to burn the firewood close to where it's bought or picked up. Moving firewood can
