Meeting tonight to discuss All Abilities Playground

Residents are invited to a public meeting 6 p.m. May 12 at the Municipal Building to review the results of the recent citizen survey relating to the design of the Village's new All-Abilities Playground.

In addition to discussing the survey results, the project architects are expected to discuss possible design options based on the input received in the survey.

Tampa's second round pick has Salado connections

BY TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Logan Hall likes getting past big offensive linemen. And he is dang good at it.

The University of Houston graduate will board an airplane today headed for Tampa, where he will start what his agent Drew Pittman said could be a stellar career, and one that might someday land him in Canton.

The son of Salado Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Amanda Organ, Hall was the 33rd pick in the 2022 NFL Draft, selected as the first pick of the second round by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to play on the defensive line.

Hall graduated from University of Houston after a high school career at Belton High School. Playing for the Houston Cougars, he was named to the 2021 First Team All-AAC (American Athletic Conference). He started 12 games in 2021 for the Cougars at defensive tackle, leading the team with 13.5 tackles for loss and 6.5 sacks, tied for second in the AAC. He had 48 tackles his senior year, including two games with six tackles (USF and UConn). He registered tackles for loss in nine of his 12 games his senior, including 3 TFL against Tulane. He had sacks in seven different games with 2 sacks against Tulane and against UConn.

Pro football scouts describe him as having size and further growth potential. According to Tony Pauline's NFL scouting report (pro-footballnetwork.com), Hall "fires off the snap with a terrific first step. Immediately alters his angle of attack to make plays against the run... Very explosive, keeps his feet moving and draws the focus of opponents."

More importantly, according to Pittman, is that Hall is a young man of character.

Pittman told me that he is selective in who he represents. Pittman has more than 30 years of experience as a sports agent, including being a founding principal agent for Capital Sports Advisors which recently joined Shark Sports Football. He has represented more than 100 professional athletes.

With Hall, Pittman said, it was "an easy fit. He is someone of high character and high integrity. In the end, it ended up being the right fit."

But the two may not have made that fit if Hall's mom didn't work here in Salado. Organ says that as Logan's star began rising at Houston in 2021, he was being inundated by agents reaching out to him. "He wanted us to help him handle the calls because he wanted to keep his head down and concentrate on playing and school," she said. "We didn't really know what we were doing."

One day Organ was talking about the challenge with Andrea Howard, Salado

Tourism Director. "She told me that there was a sports agent here in Salado," Amanda recalls.

Some time later, Organ took Chamber checks out to Nancy Best for her signature. She got to talking to Sam Best about her son and his prospects of playing beyond college.

"Sam told me he knew Drew. Sam built Drew's home here in Salado," she said.

"I Googled him and found an interview where he talked about representing Mike Minter," she said. Minter played for the Carolina Panthers. He grew up in Lawton,

Oklahoma, where he was in Amanda's mother's high school English class.

"From the interview, I could tell Drew was a quality man and that Christ is an important part of his life," Organ said.

"The connection was spooky," Organ said. "I knew Mike growing up. And Drew represented him in his NFL career."

After the season was over, Hall chose Pittman not only as his agent but as a mentor.

"I'm not the flashiest guy in the business," Pittman said. "If you want 'Show Me the Money!' I am not the fit for you."

Instead, Pittman works with his clients to get them ready for life after football. He helps them with financial literacy and business acumen.

"A pro athlete can make millions during their career," Pittman said, adding that as their agent, he has a heart to "help them build a life after football."

But first is the life during football and Hall's looks bright with Tampa Bay.

"The sky is the limit for him," Pittman said. "He has the God-given tools, but more importantly, he has the

Fed Reserve raises rates 0.5% sending markets into tumble

The Markets

The week that ended on May 6 was another one for the books. Reading the daily headlines about the stock market, a person could easily have concluded that a major market collapse was underway with terms like “panic selling” and “market selloff” being thrown about in large, bold print. The reality was very different. For the week, the Standard and Poor’s 500 Stock Index (SPX) our preferred indicator U.S. stock market valuations, declined a miniscule 0.21%, closing at 4123.34. Yes, the market remains solidly in “correction” territory, meaning that it is down 13.49% from its high mark in early January and down 2.58% from this time last year, but market history is replete with corrections, most of which, like this one, seemed to spring out of nowhere and then “uncorrected” nicely. Critically, Morningstar posted on Friday that, in their opinion, the market is now trading at a 12% discount to fair market value. The other equity index we follow, the CRSP US Mid Cap Value Index, closed out the week at 2472.81, up 0.64%. It is still down about 4.8% from its high in January and down 1.12% for 12 months, but we fail to find any signs of panic.

The yield on the benchmark 10-year U.S. Treasury note rose 7.3% to 3.143%. Because the value of bonds falls as interest rates rise, the result of the ongoing rise in rates can be seen in the 12.39% decline this year in the S&P 500 Bond Index. The good news is that the Treasury yield curve remains generally positive. West Texas Intermediate crude oil (WTI) rose too, up 5.92% to $110.33 as it became ever more obvious that Russian oil was being forced out of the global market.

The Economy

The economic headlines

Market & Economic Update

By Jeffrey W. McClure

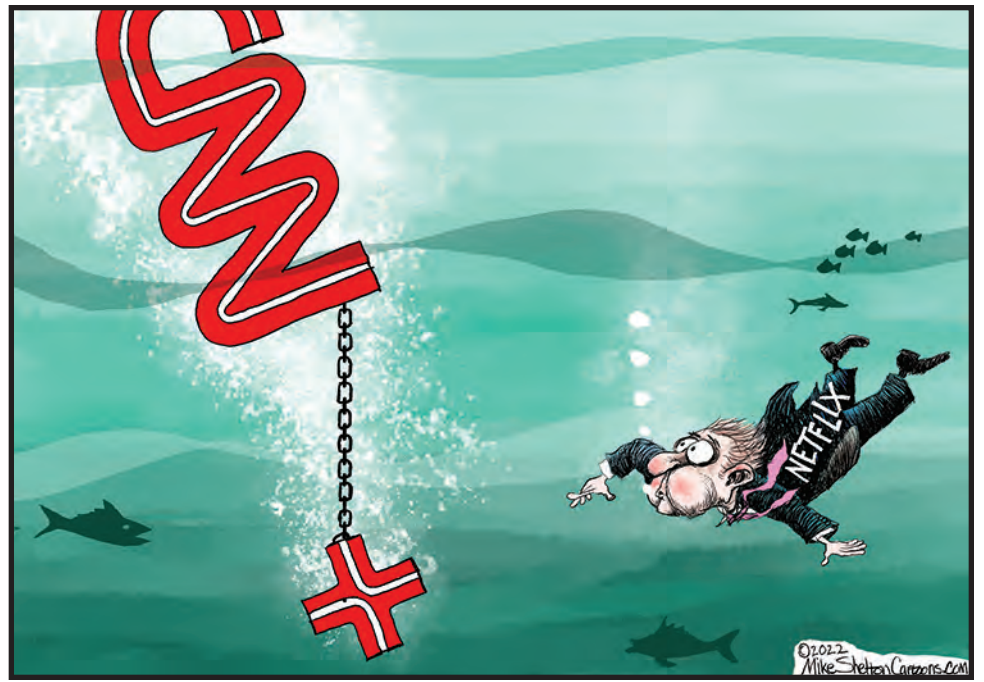

for the week were mostly about the Federal Reserve announcement that the Fed’s short-term rates were being raised 0.5% and that Chairman Powell suggested that there were no 0.75% increases on the table for now. That caused the market to surge upward, but then came the good economic news that spooked the stock and bond markets. The Labor Department announced that the U.S. economy added 428,000 jobs, the 12th month of job growth topping 400,000, while the unemployment rate held steady at 3.6%. Labor also reported that in March we had 11.6 million unfilled job openings and an astonishing 6.7 million people hired while 4.5 million workers quit their jobs. More people employed sounds like a good thing, but stock traders went into a mild panic out of fear that the great employment report would drive the Federal Reserve into raising rates too fast and too far, thereby creating a recession at some point in the future. This is one of those times when good news is seen by the markets as bad news. Of course, when stock traders are in this kind of a mood, any hint of bad news would also be seen as bad news. We have been here before.

Another bit of good news that the markets saw as “bad” was the report from the Institute for Supply Management (ISM) that its non-manufacturing index came in at 57.3 on a scale where numbers above 50 indicate growth in business activity. The drivers were reported to be a surge in new orders and employment. As if that weren’t enough “bad” good news, the Commerce Department announced that factory orders for U.S. Manufactured goods rose 2.2% in April. Non-defense durable goods orders minus aircraft, a key indicator of the future direction of the economy, rose 1.3% in March, revised upward from an earlier 1% estimate. The backside to those numbers was that the Employment Cost Index (ECI) rose 1.4% in March after remaining well below inflation for the previous year. That last number was scary in that the Federal Reserve watches the ECI carefully for signs of the dreaded “wage-price spiral” in which rising wages create rising prices, which in turn spurs wage growth. So far, over the past year, wages have lagged well behind prices, but this does bear watching.

The final doses of bad-good news came as the Census Bureau reported that domestic consumer spending for “real final sales” rose at annualized rate of 3.7% in the first quarter of this year. Notably, that number has been adjusted for inflation, so it is a strong indicator that our economy is still growing at breakneck speed. In an economy like ours where consumer spending is the main driver, historically, that high of a number has never been followed by a recession in the next year.

The bottom line remains that the U.S. economy is running at an astonishingly high rate of speed and has plenty of momentum and fuel to keep on doing so for some time to come. At the same time there is a very healthy, if irrational, strong sense of worry and fear in the markets that counterintuitively suggests that better times lie ahead.

Bringing awareness to issues is not a loss

To the Editor:

Life keeps us so busy, and sometimes finding the time to focus on matters of local, state, and federal government seems a daunting addition to all of our other daily tasks. For those of you that made time to learn about the candidates in our local elections and vote for the ones you thought best represented your values, I commend you.

I also want to thank all of the candidates. The willingness to offer your time to serve the community and take valuable time away from your families, knowing full well that you would likely endure criticisms and sometimes outright libelous attacks as gratitude for your contribution, was no easy feat.

To the election winners, congratulations are in order.

To those who did not win, I say be graceful in your defeat. Remember that bringing awareness to issues of import is not a loss. Change cannot start without awareness, and you made that awareness possible.

To everyone, I encourage you to become or continue to be proactive in the community. There are so many worthwhile organizations in Salado that could use your individual skills and talents. Working together, and with the common goal of benefiting our beautiful village, we can continue to be what sets Salado apart from the rest.

Warmest Regards,
Theresa Howard

A Shocking Assault on the Supreme Court

Rich Lowry

Despite what you might have learned in high school civics, the Supreme Court really only has one role in our system of government -- to uphold Roe v. Wade.

That’s the animating sentiment behind the furor over the leak of a Supreme Court opinion drafted for a majority by Justice Samuel Alito overturning the abortion decision.

Left-wing commentators have hailed the shocking leak of the opinion and said that the Court deserves to be burned down and even ended altogether for the offense of finding no constitutional warrant for one of the court’s most controversial and consequential decisions of the last half-century.

The leak, assuming it’s legitimate (there’s little reason to doubt it) and assuming it came from someone on the left of the court (which seems most likely), is a brazen breach of the Court’s rules in an attempt to sabotage its deliberations.

The Court has been one of the few institutions in our national life that has managed to maintain a measure of self-respect and integrity. Its oral arguments aren’t televised, which always tempts people to play to the cameras. The arguments are invariably civil and substantive, even if intense -- in contrast to what is heard on cable news, social media, or on the floor of Congress. The Court has honored confidentiality as it considers a case and justices write and share their opinions among one another.

The leaker, whether a justice, a clerk or a staffer, clearly intended to engender a huge reaction to try to intimidate a member of the majority into changing his or her mind.

This is how hardball politics works in Congress or in the executive branch, where strategic leaks are the norm and very often no one trusts nobody. It’s completely inimical to the spirit of the Supreme Court, which is supposed to decide its cases as a strict matter of law free of political influence.

Tellingly, almost no one on the left criticized the leak. Instead, many praised it as an act of brave defiance that reflects the gravity of the moment.

This is yet another sign of the hypocrisy of all the Trump-era lectures from progressives about the importance of norms and neutrally applied rules. As soon as a Supreme Court decision might go against them, they abandon all pretense of believing any of that and attempt to bludgeon the Court into submission.

The leak, in its own way, brings home how one of the key assumptions in the Court’s abortion jurisprudence has been wrong all along. It imagined itself settling once and for all a highly contested social issue. In reality, by attempting to take the issue out of politics, it made the fight over abortion even more divisive, while making itself a political football. Now, the issue that it sought to settle has blown back on the Court, perhaps changing how it operates forever.

The leak speaks of the desperation of pro-abortion forces to preserve Roe, and its guarantee of a radically pro-abortion regime everywhere in the United States. It doesn’t matter if it requires a breach of trust at the Supreme Court -- indeed, for many of them, the Court as we know isn’t worth having if it doesn’t uphold Roe.

Never mind if, as Alito’s draft opinion devastatingly demonstrates, there’s no constitutional basis for Roe whatsoever.

The leak must fail. The Supreme Court justices in the prospective majority should get 24/7 security in case the intimidation campaign reaches another level. Alito’s opinion, assuming it’s final and speaks for a majority, should be released as soon as possible -- to send a message that the Court isn’t going to bend to pressure. And everything possible should be done to ferret out and punish the leaker.

The Supreme Court’s loyalty isn’t to Roe, but to the Constitution, and it can show it by issuing the Alito opinion that its critics want to foil by any means necessary.

MEMBER 2022 TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

Thank you to Jeff Kelley for 15 years of service Congratulations to those who were elected May 7

Next week Jeff Kelley completes 15 years of service as a Salado ISD school board member. This ties Darrell Street's record for the longest tenure of any school board member in the history of our school district. We will have a reception next Monday, May 16, from 5:00 p.m. until 5:45 p.m. to thank Jeff for the outstanding job he has done serving our students, school district and community. The reception will be upstairs at the Salado Civic Center, located at 601 North Main Street and it is open to everyone.

Congratulations to Chris Diem, Amy McLane, and Jim Reed for being elected as Salado ISD school board members this past Saturday. Chris will serve in the unexpired (two year) term position that was vacant due to the passing of school board member Jim Hodgins. Amy and Jim will serve in full (three year) term positions.

Over 1,700 voters participated in our school board election. This is the highest number of voters that have ever participated in a May school board election in the history of our school district. The only time we had a higher turnout for a school board election was in 2020 when the State of Texas rescheduled the elections from May to November due to concerns regarding COVID-19. That year our school board election was on the same ballot as the 2020 presidential election so the voter turnout was very high.

There has been some confusion regarding the vacant school board position that is now being filled by Chris Diem. It has been alleged that our school district violated the law by not filling that position within

by Dr. Michael Novotny

180 days. Unfortunately social media is often not the most accurate source of information. I would like to take this opportunity to correct this misinformation.

It is true that if more than one year remains in the term of the position vacated, the vacancy must be filled not later than the 180th day after the date the vacancy occurs (Texas Education Code Section 11.060(d)). However, a special election to fill a vacancy may only be held on either of the two uniform election dates in May or November. When school board member Jim Hodgins passed away in September, it was past the deadline to post a school board meeting to call a November election to fill this position. Thus, the next available election date was this past Saturday, May 7.

The attorney general has concluded that Texas Election Code Section 41.004(a) authorizes a board to hold a special election on the first uniform date following the 180-day period if no uniform date falls within the 180-day period that would allow enough time to hold a special election in the manner required by law (Texas Attorney General Opinion Number KP-0102, 2016). Thus, our school district fully complied with the laws regarding filling this vacant school board position.

While we could have appointed someone to that position, our school board members felt it would be better to allow the voters to decide who should fill that position instead of six of them choosing someone. Furthermore, if someone was appointed into that position, that appointment would have only been for up to six months. Texas Education Code Section 11.060 specifies that an appointed trustee only serves until the next trustee election. Thus, even if we had appointed someone, that position would have been up for election this past Saturday. If you have any questions regarding this or anything else regarding our school district, you are always welcome to e-mail me at michael.novotny@saladoisd.org or call me at 254-947-6905.

Thank you again to Jeff Kelley for his 15 years of outstanding service as a school board member. Congratulations again to Chris Diem, Amy McLane, and Jim Reed for being elected as school board members.

“I’m excited,” Hall said about the move to Tampa, adding that after getting settled into the hotel this week, he will “pretty immediately hit the ground running.”

He will be playing for Todd Bowles, the new head coach at Tampa Bay. And he will be playing with Tom Brady, the greatest NFL

“I am really excited,” Hall said. “I am looking forward to this new chapter in my life.”

“He is in a great place,” Pittman said of Tampa. “Bowles is a lot like Tony Dungy. He has a quiet strength and command.”

Pittman knows about quiet strength and command. For much of his life, he has called legendary college football coach Grant Teaff his father-in-law. Pittman has been married for 28 years to Grant and Donell’s daughter Layne. They have two sons, who both graduated from Salado High School.

Teaff was an influence on Pittman even before the two ever met. “I remember watching him on TV for his last game for Baylor,” Pittman said. “The Bears beat Arizona in the Hancock Bowl. His players lifted him on their shoulders to carry him off the field but he gets down and finds his wife and his daughter Layne and walks off the field holding their hands. That says a lot.”

It does. It speaks to the importance of family.

“She was his biggest fan,” Amanda says of her mom Barbie Barker. She passed away at Christmas time following Logan’s senior year at Houston.

She would likely have been with Amanda, her husband Joseph Organ, as they watched the draft unfold on the TV screen with Drew and Logan, his brother Xavier Hall, sister Aniah Hall, best friend Kayden Stedman, his grandfather Bill Barker and uncle Brent Barker.

This week, Joseph is helping to load up Logan’s apartment (including his dog) to help him get ready for the plane trip to Tampa where he will start the next chapter of his life and continue to do his favorite thing in football. His favorite thing in football?

“Getting sacks.”

At 6-6, 280 lbs. and with his speed, he will get plenty. And his mom, family, agent and new fans in Salado will be there to watch.
