

Water restrictions now mandatory for Salado WSC

Due to severe drought conditions in the area, Clearwater Underground Utility District and the Brazos River Authority have asked Salado Water Supply Corporation to reduce its daily usage by 20%.

Stage 2 makes outside watering restrictions mandatory and prohibits use of water for aesthetic water features.

Addresses ending in odd numbers may water on Tuesday and Friday while addresses ending in even numbers are allowed to water on Monday and Thursday.

According to the Drought Contingency Plan, "Salado WSC will vigorously enforce violations of the Drought Contingency Plan."

Enforcement of this Plan will include the following actions:

On the first violation, a Salado WSC customer will be notified by written notice of their specific violation. Salado WSC may assess a penalty depending upon severity of violation.

On the second violation, the customer may be assessed a penalty. Salado WSC may install a flow restricting device for seven (7) days. Salado WSC may charge customer for cost of installing and removing the flow restricting device.

On the third violation, Salado WSC may discontinue service at the meter for a period of seven (7) days. Normal reconnect fee of Salado WSC will apply for restoration of service.

If you have any questions, you may contact the Salado WSC office at (254) 947-5425.

"Thank you in advance for your commitment to conserve this precious resource, Salado WSC General Manager Ricky Preston stated. "If the 20% reduction is reached in stage 2, we will not have to enact more stringent levels of the Drought Contingency Plan."

Bell Co. Health reports large increase in recent COVID-19 cases

Bell County Public Health District announces a large number of new COVID-19 cases and emphasizes the importance of residents to continue to follow preventive precautions for COVID-19.

Bell County Public Health District received information about a large number of new cases of COVID-19 infection which included a backlog of cases reported from Ft. Hood. The 227 cases date June 3-17, and the vast majority are from the Killeen area. All of these cases were confirmed with PCR testing, and primarily affected people in their twenties.

While the overall number of cases in the county remains relatively low, there has been a steady increase in the number of new cases over the past two weeks. Bell County Public Health District urges everyone to continue to follow precautions including hand washing, wearing a mask in crowded indoor places if you are at high risk of complications, social distancing when in crowds, staying home if you are sick and getting tested if you have symptoms. Vaccination remains our best defense, and booster doses for both children and adults are highly recommended to provide better protections against the Omicron variant, which is the primary variant circulating now.

"COVID-19 is still circulating in Bell County and across the globe. Although we have made progress in this pandemic response, we must remain diligent to keep COVID-19 cases at bay. At this point, we have preventive steps we can each take to protect ourselves and those around us. We encourage you to continue to practice these precautions. The COVID-19 booster is an important tool to gain the fullest protection available at this time, even if you have already received your initial vaccine series," Amy J. Yeager, Public Health District Director stated.

The FDA has now approved both the Pfizer and Moderna vaccines for infants and children 6 months to 5 years of age. Parents are strongly encouraged to contact their children's pediatricians, or the Bell County Public Health District (254-939-2091) to get their children immunized.

Salado Eagles, like hundreds of Texas high school football teams, will be Under the Lights on Friday Night. Brandon Rhyder is shown above with Salado Eagles who will be seen in the advertising campaign for Rhyder's new single "Under the Lights on Friday Night" in the upcoming Dave Campbell's Texas Football magazine which hits the stands later this summer. Shown above are (from left) Drew Bird, Caden Strickland, Darius Wilson, Brandon Rhyder, Dusty Rhiddlehoover, Adam Benavides, and Jaxson Leiskau. Local photographer Janet Maddux captured the images for the ad campaign and cover to the single "Under the Lights on Friday Night," which released to streaming services on June 16.

The opening line of Brandon Rhyder's new song mentions his son by name.

"Dusty runs the local bank. Suit and tie man who would think. He'd catch anything that was thrown his way. Hell, that boy oh he sure could play."

Brandon's song, "Under the Lights on Friday Night" released on streaming services June 16 and features a shot many Saladoans may recognize. Local photographer Janet Maddux captured Brandon, guitar in hand, with the lights of Salado Eagle Field over his shoulder.

Maddux also shot promotional photos of Brandon with his son Dusty Rhiddlehoover and Salado Eagle teammates Adam Benavides, Drew Bird, Jaxson Leiskau, Caden Strickland and Darius Wilson. Word has it that the photo may make its way into the Bible of Texas football when Dave Campbell's Texas Football hits the stands.

In the lines co-written with Fredericksburg songwriter Jimmy Walsdorf, Brandon captures the mystique of Friday night football from small towns to big cities.

"Smaller towns roll up the sidewalks and for three hours, nothing else matters," Brandon told me.

He should know. Brandon grew up in Carthage, a small east Texas town where football is king and rightfully so, with eight state championships in the span of 13 seasons.

"I knew in junior high that I was way too small to play football," Brandon told me with a laugh. "I didn't grow until after high school."

Instead, he played in the marching band, which is also an institution in Carthage. "There were about 800 kids in the high school and 300 of us were in the band," he said.

Brandon played the trombone for Carthage Band

Director Stewart Bird. "He was so much more than just a teacher to me," he said. "He was my mentor and we stayed friends up until his recent passing."

The impact of the high school marching band may be reflected in the song's lyrics: "The fans on their feet, the band and their beat, the sound of the crowd making us believe."

Football without band, twirlers, cheerleaders, dance squad or fans would not be football at all. At least not in Texas where every Friday night, win or lose, is a celebration of community.

Community is what brought Brandon, his wife Kelli, son Dusty and daughter Mahala to Salado five years ago.

Village administrator Don Ferguson introduced Salado Police Chief Gary McHone and his wife Susan to aldermen at their June 16 meeting, a day after McHone officially began working for the Village of Salado.

"The Village is very fortunate to have the opportunity to hire a person with the background and experience that Mr. McHone brings," Village Administrator Ferguson said. "He was chosen from a competitive field of more than 20 highly qualified applicants."

McHone has almost 30 years of law enforcement experience, holding positions ranging from Police Officer to Assistant Police Chief to Police Chief. A large part of his law enforcement career was spent with the Prosper Police Department in the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex. Most recently, he served as Police Chief in the

City of Muleshoe

McHone is a Desert Storm veteran, Master Peace Officer, Certified Public Manager, Mental Health Peace Officer, Crisis Intervention Instructor, and graduate of the FBI Command College. He holds a Master of Criminal Justice Degree.

Gary and his family will be moving to the Salado area in the coming weeks from the Dallas area.

He fills a vacancy created early this year by Pat Boone who left Salado to work in corporate security.

Since incorporation in 2000, the Village of Salado has had five Police Chiefs: Alan Rogers, Jack Hensley, Rick Ashe, Pat Boone and now Gary McHone.

The police department budget is $598,387.46.

The McHones are relocating to Salado.

An Open Exchange of Ideas

Inflation, interest rates may be driving down consumer spending

It was not a pleasant week in the equity markets. As the 10th day of June opened, the Labor Department announced that the U.S. Consumer Price Index was up a stunning 8.6% over the trailing 12 months.

Worse, the index rose 1.1% just in the last month, and even 0.6% when food and fuel were removed to get the "core" inflation measure. The market reaction came as analysts concluded that the Federal Reserve would raise rates by a half-point in June, July, and September. That scenario puts the likely short-term rate at about 3.25% by the end of the year. More than a few companies in the S&P 500 would find their debt service costs each month at that rate higher than their current profits. Those were the companies that led the market down for the week and that news triggered broad automated sell orders across the market. Those sell orders took the S&P 500 from around 4100, where it had been trading on Thursday down to 3900.86 at the close on Friday. The Friday slump left the SPX down 5.05% for the week, 18.61% from its record high on January 3, and 7.98% lower than it was a year ago.

The CRSP Mid-Cap Value Index, not wanting to be left out of the party, fell 5.16% to 2355.80 leaving it down 9.3% from its record high in January and 5.64% from this time last year.

Once more, it is a good idea to keep longer-term returns in mind. After this week's slump, the SPX now has an average annual rate of return of 12.95% over the last three years.

Measuring from the last time the market took a nosedive, in March two years ago, it is up over 74%. While it is hard to stomach, this is very typical historical behavior for the U.S. Stock Market.

RBC Capital Markets issued a report that in their opinion, the S&P 500 will end the year at about 4700, about 20% higher than its current level. That would

Market & Economic Update

By Jeffrey W. McClure

still not put it ahead for the year but would be a great recovery. Let's hope they are right.

The yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury note reacted as expected to the inflation news as it rose to 3.162%. While the Treasury yield curve flattened, it remained positive with the 30-year bond yielding 3.169%, while the 2-year note remained lower at 3.065%. Stocks have clearly taken a hit, but the S&P 500 Bond Index is showing even more pain with that bond index now down 11.24% over the last year and showing an average annual rate of return over the last three years of only 0.57% even with interest reinvested. In a hint of at least less-bad news, West Texas Intermediate crude oil held almost constant for the week at $120.50 per barrel.

The Economy

Clearly the dominant economic news for the week was centered on inflation and guesses on what the Federal Reserve is going to do to eliminate it.

Digging once more into the underlying numbers, it is clearly the price of energy that is driving the train. Motor fuel came in over 49% higher than it was a year ago, and since motor fuel is required to cultivate, harvest, and transport food, that price is getting passed on there. Throw in the 19.5% rise in the cost of private transportation, and the spike in prices we are seeing makes sense.

China announced too that it was once more shutting down about half of Shanghai as COVID cases surged. The combination of the loss of much of the food and fuel that Russia and Ukraine have historically contributed to the world market is driving prices across much of the world upward at the highest rate we have seen in 40 years.

Lest you think that this is something we are feeling only here in the United States, the general inflation rate in the European Union was also announced this week, and it came in at 8.1% with a warning to expect higher numbers in the months to come. Still, there was a glimmer of hope in the Labor Report as the two-month total for core inflation was only 1.1%, equating to an annual rate of 6.8%, still quite high, but trending downward. Moody's is holding to their forecast that inflation will peak this quarter and moderate the rest of the year.

Looking at the rest of the economy, signs are appearing that high prices and rising interest rates may be having the desired effect of getting consumers to buy fewer goods. The U.S. trade deficit shrank 19% in April as imports fell for the first time in nine months, while U.S. exports rose 3.5%. New purchase mortgage applications fell 7% to the lowest level in 22 years, and home sales dropped to a lower rate than before the pandemic, suggesting that the house-price boom is slowing.

The bottom line remains largely unchanged. The economy is racing and booming, probably a bit too much. We are in the bumpy period we forecast would come, but we are still in the largest, most productive, and healthiest large economy in the world. Bumpiness will likely continue this year, but we remain confident that American companies will find a way to profit from this chaos and we will remain on top.

Make today a good one

DR. GLENN MOLLETTE

Let's all try to spend today and the rest of our lives more wisely. With rising inflation, we are all having to spend our hard-earned paychecks with care. Life is the same. We have less life today than yesterday. We don't have as much life to spend today. We are all clueless how much life we actually have left to spend. Even if we have a lot of life left there is no guarantee of the quality of our remaining lives.

Being able to walk, talk, breathe, see, hear and mentally function are all incredible gifts. Try to take care of what you have and even then, life changes beyond our control. We are all susceptible to injuries or diseases that can diminish the quality and end our lives.

Spend time with the people you care about. At least call them on the phone and visit as often as you can. We can all think of people who have departed this life who we miss. The only time you have people for sure is today.

Consider what you really need to make you happy. How much stuff does it take? We spend life accumulating and storing up. Eventually we have to figure out what to do with all our stuff. Do we give it away or leave it for someone else to worry about? Leaving our junk for others to throw away or put in a yard sale may not be a very nice way to treat family or loved ones. Friends of mine from Ohio are now about 82 and recently sold their nice large house and moved into a smaller place. They've spent the last year unloading a lifetime of accumulated things. It's not easy to do but what are you going to do with all that stuff you aren't even using now?

What are the simple things of life that you enjoy? There are aspects of life that we have to do and some that we enjoy doing. If we can squeeze in some of the enjoyable then life is a lot more fun. Often what we enjoy in life is not the exotic or chaotic but often simple routines we do all the time.

Continue to invest in yourself. Take a class, learn a new hobby, and make a new friend. We need the old friends and a few new friends. Old friends often keep us grounded while new friends bring new thoughts and ideas.

Continue to cultivate your faith and the spiritual side of your life. Your life is more than flesh and blood. Being at peace with God and yourself can only make your life feel more meaningful and level.

Life is flying by. Find time to drink a glass of lemonade and sit on the porch. Be sure to savor that morning cup of coffee. Take a walk or ride by your favorite lake or stream. Have a scoop of ice cream. You may or may not have less money but we all have one less day. Make today a good one!

The Kamala Harris Problem

Rich Lowry

The media taboo against talking about Joe Biden's age and the obstacle it presents to his running again in 2024 is finally off.

Which should put a lantern on another looming problem for the Democrats -- waiting in the wings is a deeply unpopular officeholder, who makes Biden look like a prospective electoral juggernaut by comparison.

Democrats can be forgiven for considering the possibility of only Kamala Harris standing between them and a return of Donald Trump and telling themselves, "Well, maybe 80 is the new 75," or, "Biden's always been gaffe-prone, so what's a few more gaffes between friends?" or, "Biden campaigned from a basement in 2020 -- surely, he can campaign from some similarly secluded and safe space in 2024."

Harris is the single best argument for Democrats trying to prop up Biden no matter what. She has been a disaster as vice president, even as she's done nothing particularly noteworthy either good or bad. She's simply a political black hole, whose abysmal ratings reflect not just Biden's troubles but her own profound, inherent flaws as a political figure.

Kamala Harris has the authenticity of Hillary Clinton, the charm of Al Gore, and the common touch of Adlai Stevenson.

She could have been engineered in a lab as a conviction-less opportunist lacking basic political horse sense -- and she more or less was. She came up in a California where the dominance of TV ads makes retail politicking all but unnecessary, and internal Democratic politics is largely based on identity politics. Compared to her, Biden really is Middle Class Joe. The contrast with Chuck Schumer, another Democratic leader from a deep blue state, is instructive -- Schumer had a tough statewide race against a Republican within memory and is aware that not all voters are extremely online "woke" progressives.

Harris could have run as an ideologically interesting, tough-minded former prosecutor in the 2020 Democratic nomination fight -- a little like Eric Adams in the New York City mayoral primaries last year. Instead, she got sucked into the idea that the winning lane would be a couple of ticks to the right of Bernie Sanders. She co-sponsored his "Medicare for All" proposal, before making a confusing hash of her position when she realized the political implausibility of the plan.

She seemed defensive about her record as a prosecutor, which came under withering assault from Rep. Tulsi Gabbard from the left.

Her signature moment -- attacking Joe Biden for his opposition to bus-ing based on her own experience getting bused -- didn't pay the expected dividends because of its self-evident calculation. Harris is a politician who always seems to be reading stage directions out loud. Her laugh, a target of critics, usually sounds forced and highly deliberate, at times bordering on inappropriate affect. It's a valuable political skill to seem at ease even when reaching for the brass ring at the highest level of American politics. Bill Clinton, George W. Bush and Barack Obama all had this ability. Harris has shown no indication that she has it or will develop it.

Biden has done her no favors with her assignments as vice president. Given the foolhardiness of the underlying Biden policies, there was no realistic way she was going to diminish migration at the Southern border. Nor was she going to do anything to get a voting rights bill passed. That said, Harris hasn't mastered any particular issue area and gives the impression of seeking tableaux that will lend to her gravitas without ever succeeding.

On top of all this, she hasn't managed to secure a close, trusted relationship with the president.

Any rational observer could have predicted that Biden's VP pick was going to be particularly sensitive given that, as de Gaulle famously said, "Old age is a shipwreck." Instead, Biden played identity politics by choosing Harris, and it's understandable now that some Democrats would like, against all evidence, to bank everything on Biden's youthful vigor.

in the early 2000s. His first album, Because She Loves Me, was released in 2001.

He admits that he fell backwards into music as a career. Playing trombone in high school, Brandon says he had the chance to continue studying in music in college, but opted for a degree in industrial technology.

However, while attending University of Texas at Tyler, he was hanging out with friends when one of them broke out a guitar.

"I called my dad and asked him if he still had that beat up old Fender in the closet," Brandon said. "He did. And I began to play and to write music. These songs that I had in my head but didn't know I had just came tumbling out."

Singing comes naturally to Brandon. He began singing in the Carthage Church of Christ, where there are no musical instruments. "Your voice is your instrument," he says.

He has opened up for country music legends like Willie Nelson, Charlie Daniels and Merle Haggard. He has played all over Texas, the Midwest and internationally. "Music has given me the chance to see the world," he says

After some years in Austin, he and Kelli moved from Austin to Georgetown to start their family. The two were high school sweethearts in Carthage and will celebrate 28 years of marriage in August.

"Georgetown was still kind of a small town, but it exploded and we wanted to find a small town like the one we grew up in together," he said. "Salado kept popping up. We thought about going back to Carthage or out west, but Salado was where we landed."

Brandon says that they made the right choice, reinforced by how the community came together most recently following the tornado that ripped through Cedar Valley and Southshore.

"We had just 10 days to put together this benefit," he said, adding that he was overwhelmed with the support of the community. "This showed how resilient Salado people are."

Resilient, supportive and adaptable.

Brandon has had to adapt to changes in the music during his two decades in it. "You no longer have CDs to carry to shows," he said. "Everything has moved to streams."

The pandemic also tested the music industry and forced musicians to adapt. Musicians went from playing to sold out stadiums to streaming from their homes.

For Brandon, the minute Governor Abbott allowed small gatherings, he started combining two things he loves: food and music.

Brandon has performed and cooked for people in their backyards or living rooms in intimate Dinner Shows. His next one, in Dripping Springs, will be the 66th Dinner Show for Brandon. "Under the Lights on Friday Nights" will be a great addition to his retinue of songs.

For some musicians, the move to streaming has meant a move away from albums to just releasing streaming singles. Brandon says that the early release of "Under the Lights on a Friday Night" is part of his upcoming 11th album.

"I hope to have it finished for release by the end of the year," he said, adding that he still has three or four songs to fill out the as-yet unnamed album.

While Brandon is planning a tour for the new album, his Friday nights in the fall are dedicated to following the Eagles on the field and the Lady Eagles on the volleyball court. "Hard to believe I have a junior and freshman already," he said.

Time flies. A sentiment reflected throughout the lyrics of Brandon's new song. "Some of the song is about the memories looking back," he said, "but a lot of it is about enjoying the moment, because it is going to be gone before you know it."

Salado Legends spotlights two Legend "come-backs" this week! Ten years ago, these two young men were only 5 and 8 years old. Their mother and father would take them to rehearsals for Salado Legends, and they became one of the cutest parts of the musical. Families participating in this outdoor musical drama, often are reminiscent of the days when they participated in a healthy and educational summer experience of Salado Legends. The performing arts offer everyone a chance to grow and learn about many aspects of people and lifestyles.

Benjamin Kilkenny is only 15 years old. He is a sophomore in high school and is active in theater. His brother, Jeremy is 18 years old and has graduated from Fairfield High School and loves theater and music. He has learned how to play a guitar, and entertainment happens to be one of the best things these two gentlemen do!

This year's cast of Salado Legends will amaze the audience with acting and singing abilities found in all of the ages that perform. Benjamin has one of the lead roles as Cameron McDougal. "Cam" courts a young lady, Sadie Lou, and becomes a soldier in the civil war. The Civil War scene is compelling, and the audience will soon see that both the Union and the Confederate soldiers sacrificed too many to claim victory.

Jeremy Kilkenny plays the role of a Salado cowboy. He is on stage for many scenes and the young ladies in the audience will be keeping their eye on this handsome young man.

Salado Legends show dates are July 23, July 30 and August 6 at the Ta-

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	4 ♠

Opening lead — ace of clubs.

Assume you're declarer at four spades and West leads the ace of clubs followed by the queen. When you play the king from dummy, East ruffs with the five and returns a low diamond. Let's say you win West's nine of diamonds with dummy's ace and return a trump, East following with the deuce. It might seem normal to finesse the queen, but if you did, you'd regret it.

West would take your queen with the king and return a low club, which East would ruff with the nine. You'd overruff with the jack and play the ace, but when East showed out you'd have to lose a trump trick to West's ten and go down one.

In retrospect, it's easy to see that it's wrong to take the trump finesse. West is marked with the king of spades, since he could hardly have opened the bidding without it.

To attempt a finesse that is destined to fail, and at the same time subject yourself to the danger of an "uppercut" by East on the next club lead, amounts to going out of your way to try to lose the contract.

The correct play at trick four is to go up with the ace of trump and then lead the queen, which is the best you can do under the circumstances. In the actual deal, your only losers would be a club, a club ruff and a trump.

The hand dramatically illustrates that when there is nothing to gain and everything to lose by taking a finesse, it is clearly better to reject it.

SALADO WATER SUPPLY GOES IN TO "MANDATORY" STAGE 2 OF DROUGHT CONTINGENCY PLAN

Due to severe drought conditions in our area, Clearwater Underground Utility District and the Brazos River Authority have asked Salado Water Supply Corporation to reduce our daily usage by 20%. Stage 2 makes outside watering restrictions mandatory and prohibits use of water for aesthetic water features.

Addresses ending in odd numbers may water on Tuesday and Friday while addresses ending in even numbers are allowed to water on Monday and Thursday.

If you have any questions, please contact our office at (254) 947-5425.

Thank you in advance for your commitment to conserve this precious resource. If the 20% reduction is reached in stage 2, we will not have to enact more stringent levels of the Drought Contingency Plan.
