

BoA rejects disannexation election petition

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado aldermen unanimously approved a resolution rejecting a Petition for Disannexation of Land at their July 21 meeting. John Newman threatened litigation through a letter distributed to the board on July 21.

“Taking up the Disannexation Petition after a delay of 140 days with no prior notice to the Circulator, and therein the Petitioners, is continuation of a bias against your constituents residing in the southern neighborhoods, who are mentally and physically bearing the brunt of the contrary development within Sanctuary. It is governance by ambush and an invitation for disaster,” Newman stated in the letter. “If you adopt the proposed resolution, litigation will soon follow.”

Newman further asserts in the letter: “The courts have ruled that “the metes and bounds description necessary to meet the requirements of a deed is not necessary” for a boundary description. The disannexation statutes do not mention, much less call for, a Licensed Land Surveyor to prepare or certify petition metes and bounds.”

Local Government Code stated in Sec. 43.143. “DISANNEXATION BY PETITION AND ELECTION IN GENERAL-LAW MUNICIPALITY. (a) When at least 50 qualified voters of an area located in a general-law municipality sign and present a petition to the mayor of the municipality that describes the area by metes and bounds and requests that the area be declared no longer part of the municipality, the mayor shall order an election on the question in the municipality.”

Village administrator Don Ferguson told aldermen that after receiving the petition, the village contracted with a licensed surveyor to plot the area based upon the metes and bounds described in the Petition for Disannexation. “The petitioner provided a map and a metes and bounds description,” Ferguson said. “The image, once plotted by a licensed surveyor, the metes and bounds did not meet. The petition is not able to be validated because it is not accurate.”

Newman addressed a 2017 Petition for Disannexation that aldermen called for despite possible issues with the metes and bounds description of the area to be disannexed.

“Then City Attorneys Alan Bojorquez and Linda Sjogren advised the City of the same, and out of justifiable fear of losing in court, that Board voted 4-1 to place the 2017 Disannexation Measure to a vote,” Newman stated. “If this resolution is adopted, the petitioner’s Attorney, who has been prepared to litigate this exact issue since 2017, will immediately seek relief in the courts, will easily get this resolution overruled, and you will be under a court order to call for this vote.”

Attorney Linda Sjogren advised the board in 2017 that “The downside of approving the election would be getting challenged,” Sjogren said. She added that the downside of not calling the election is “you will be challenged.”

“There is case law for annexation, not for disannexation, that says if the metes and bounds don’t close, you don’t have a described area,” Sjogren said.

The 2017 Disannexation Petition described an area that was principally Mill Creek and the northern portion of Salado. It failed by a vote of 707 against to 116 for with 44% of registered voters within the Village casting ballots.

Prior to taking action July 21 to reject the Petition for Disannexation, aldermen took public comment.

“I am deeply concerned about zoning and what can happen around us and police protection,” said Douglas Nelson, who lives in the area proposed for disannexation. “The idea that 57 votes can bring forward something like this is repugnant to me as a homeowner. I appreciate that you take this as seriously as you have.”

Newman, who led the effort to bring the Petition for Annexation and delivered it to Mayor Michael Coggin in February this year, does not live in the area proposed for disannexation.

Texas Sales Tax Holiday is Aug. 5-7

Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar is reminding shoppers they can save money on clothes and school supplies during the state’s sales tax holiday on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 5-7.

State law exempts sales tax on qualified items — such as clothing, footwear, school supplies and backpacks — priced below $100, saving shoppers about $8 on every $100 they spend. The dates of the sales tax holiday and list of tax-exempt items are set by the Texas Legislature. “Most Texans won’t hear the back-to-school bell for another month, but it’s never too early to take advantage of the opportunity to save money on everything from book bags to ballpoint pens,” Hegar said. “With inflation driving prices higher on just about everything, this sales tax holiday provides Texas families some small relief managing the costs associated with kids heading back to the classroom. As the father of three school-aged children myself, I know how these expenses can add up.”

The Comptroller’s office estimates that shoppers will save $112 million in state and local sales tax during this sales tax holiday.

Apparel and school supplies that may be purchased tax-free are listed on the Comptroller’s website at TexasTaxHoliday.org.

During the annual sales tax holiday, qualifying items can be purchased tax free online or by telephone, mail, custom order or any other means (including in-store purchases) when either:

- the item is both delivered to, and paid for by, the customer during the exemption period; or,
- the customer orders and pays for the item, and the seller accepts the order during the exemption period for immediate shipment, even if delivery is made after the exemption period ends.

Texas’ sales tax holiday weekend has been an annual event since 1999. ha

Salado Museum seeks sponsors for Scottish Gathering, Highland games

Salado Museum director Dave Swarouth announced that the Museum is now accepting sponsorships for the event.

A $200 dollar donation will have your company name and logo on a 4’X4’ banner that will be displayed on the fence at Thomas Arnold School that surrounds the Gathering. And you may keep the banner.

“It is a “win-win” for you and us as a considerable number of individuals go to the Gathering and your name and logo will be one of the first things they see,” Swarouth said. “This is our major fundraiser for the year, and you can benefit as well.”

Other sponsorship levels are available:

Entertainment Stage: $250 for 4’X4’ Banner.

Athletic Games: $250 for 4’X4’ Banner.

Aldermen give go-ahead to Quick Trip development

By TIM FLEISCHER
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Salado aldermen July 21 unanimously approved pursuing a development agreement with QT South LLC relating to the annexation of a 5.87 acre tract of land located at the northwest corner of the FM 2484 and I-35.

The Oklahoma based company is proposing to construct a Quick Trip Travel Center on a vacant tract of land currently located in the Village of Salado’s E-T-J.

The facility will feature a full-service kitchen along with a complete menu of grab and go fresh food items.

There will be fueling bays for regular motor vehicles and large trucks. The travel center is expected to employ approximately 50 people.

The proposed development agreement requires the annexation of the property into the Village.

The proposed development agreement requires the developer to meet certain landscape and lighting requirements. It prohibits overnight truck parking and allows a one hundred feet tall free-standing sign. The sign height exceeds the maximum allowable sign height of 20 feet for a property on Interstate 35.

The typical Quick Trip Travel Center is 5,200 SF, but the Salado center will be approximately 8,000 SF.

In other business, aldermen approved the Construction/Final Plat and Construction Plans for Sage Hill at Amity, a residential development that will be located between West Amity Road and FM 2484 in the E-T-J of the Village of Salado.

Sage Hill at Amity is a proposed 22.89-acre residential development. This will be a single-phase development with approximately thirty (30) lots. Access to the proposed subdivision will come from Few Oaks Drive. Water for the subdivision will be provided by the Salado Water Supply Corporation while wastewater services will be provided by onsite septic facilities.

The Village Engineer reviewed the proposed plat and plans and found them to be in compliance with provisions of the Village of Salado’s Subdivision Ordinance.

Aldermen approved a $5,000 expenditure for the improvement of Bluff Road, to be matched by the homeowners association on that street.

The board authorized the expenditure of $13,931.82 to replace heating and air conditioning equipment at the Village Municipal Building.

Aldermen authorized a letter of commitment for the purchase of two new patrol vehicles. The vehicles, if approved in the 2023 FY budget, will be two Chevy Tahoes. “This gets us on a wait-list, rather than waiting until the FY goes into effect on Oct. 1 and waiting nine months from that date,” Village administrator Don Ferguson said. “If we do not approve the purchase during the budget, we pull our names from the wait list. There is no financial commitment at this time.”

The board authorized hiring two additional School Resource Officers, partnering with Salado ISD on the program. This will put one officer at each of the school campuses.

The board approved $4,296 (plus shipping) for the purchase of solar powered LED stop signs at the intersection of West Village Road and Williams Rd.

The board pulled discussion of the All Abilities Playground from the agenda. The board tabled a proposed change in zoning on a property in the Historic District until its Aug. 4 meeting.

Markets react to fears of moves by Fed Reserve

The Markets

The S&P 500 Stock Index (SPX) gave another hopeful hop for the week ending on July 22 by rising 2.55% to 3961.63. That close puts the Index up 8.04% from its low of 3666.77 on June 16, but still down 17.35% from its top in early January. From one year ago it is down 16.88%, but up about 28% from three years ago. Such is the nature of U.S. equity markets over our history. There are ups and downs, but, particularly in the post-World War II stock market, even in the short term down periods, if one looks back a few years there is a clear gain. It is certainly an open question as to whether June 16 will be seen as the bottom of this bear market. There is historical support for seeing that date as the bottom but there are other precedents that suggest at least one more down leg is needed before the final turn. The other equity index we follow, the CRSP Mid-Cap Value Index, closed at 2312.19, up 2.53% for the week and down just under 11% from its top in January. It remains down 4.26% from a year earlier.

The yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury note continued its downward slide, dropping another 5.6% to 2.761% as the collective wisdom of the bond market participants was that high inflation is indeed a passing thing and both it and interest rates will not rise as much over the next decade as was thought earlier. With the 2-year note at 2.920%, the critical 2 year to 10-year part of the Treasury yield curve remains slightly inverted. That mild inversion is an element in the growing consensus that there is now a 50% chance of a mild recession sometime in the next 18 months or so. Like interest rates, the price of West Texas Intermediate crude oil (WTI) inched downward, slipping 2.7% to $94.92 per barrel. The national average gasoline price for regular followed suit as it declined to $4.41 from over $5.00 a month ago according to the American Automobile Association. Here in Central Texas, the average price at the pump had come down to a delightful $3.84.

The Economy

The focus of the week's economic news remained on inflation, interest rates, and whether the Federal Reserve would plunge the U.S. economy into a recession in its attempts to dampen demand and thereby reduce inflation. There is no shortage of opinion on those subjects, but there are some things that are supported by the facts.

While we hate to use this phrase, it is different this time. The last time we had high inflation, back in the 1980s, the reason for the rise in prices was excess demand. Simply put, a large portion of the U.S. population was getting large wage increases without increasing output. At the same time, the industries supplying the things that were being bought were almost exclusively here in the U.S. and neither output nor productivity were rising. Two things cured the inflation contagion, one in the short-term and the other in the long-term. Short-term, a dramatic increase in interest rates crushed demand. Longer-term, moving industrial production to low-cost areas in Asia increased supply and forced a reduction in prices.

This time around, as the pandemic set in, we had a recession and unemployment surged. It now appears that the three sets of stimulus checks did a fair job of replacing the lost consumer spending power, but consumers suddenly shifted to buying goods rather than services. The pandemic simultaneously caused a supply shortage of those goods from sources in Asia. The other major factor, which is credited with much of the inflation surge this year, was Russia's invasion of Ukraine. As it happened, just as European and U.S. consumers broke free from the pandemic restraints with a surge of new spending, the invasion abruptly reduced the supply of petroleum, grain, and fertilizer. The combination of consumers coming out to spend, Russia's oil being embargoed, and a resurgent pandemic in China created a sharp conflict between supply and demand. It is classic economics that a surge in demand meeting a restriction in supply will create a rise in prices.

It is important to note that were this inflation episode to have been caused by the government stimulus bills enacted here in the U.S., inflation would be much higher here than elsewhere. At present, consumer spending here in the U.S. is about what it was projected to be before the pandemic. Europe, where there were no stimulus bills, is seeing as high or higher inflation as the United States. The problem facing the Federal Reserve is that decreasing demand here at home does nothing to address the global supply shortage. Fortunately, the Fed is aware of these issues, and we can reasonably hope to see the cure not be more painful than the disease.

Meanwhile all the economic indicators are suggesting that U.S. economic growth is moderating but still strong. Employment continues to rise at an historically high rate, unemployment is near a record low, and debt levels are falling.

Raising the Minimum Wage Strengthens Our Economy

By RON GUILLOT

America just celebrated a shameful anniversary. July 24th officially marked 13 years since the federal minimum wage was last raised, a record of congressional paralysis so long it's reached historic levels. We are now living in the longest period without a minimum wage hike in our country's entire history since the introduction of a federal wage floor in 1938.

Despite significant increases in worker productivity and cost of living since 2009, the minimum wage has stagnated at just $7.25 an hour, only $15,000 a year for a full-time worker. This is so low that it not only sentences minimum wage workers to lives of crushing poverty and insecurity but also impacts the communities they live in, damaging the health of our economy and society. This is simply unsustainable.

Congress's inaction has created a permanent underclass of millions of Americans living in working poverty. It's time for Congressional action to right this wrong.

Over the last 13 years, we've seen a drastic shift in our economy, an international pandemic, historical inflation, and supply chain issues. It's absurd to think that workers can survive on the same wage created to meet the minimum requirements of living back when Lady Gaga was number one on the pop charts.

$7.25 an hour was already inadequate in 2009 and is not even close to a livable wage for any American in 2022. In 93% of US counties, a person earning the federal minimum wage cannot afford a single-bedroom apartment.

That shouldn't come as a surprise, considering that when adjusted for inflation, the minimum wage today is worth 27% less than it was in 2009. That means full-time employees must work almost 11 more hours each week to meet the basic living standards of 13 years ago.

The minimum wage simply no longer does what it was designed to do: ensure that the low-income employees make enough to get by. With stagnant wages and skyrocketing inflation it has left low-wage workers to fall further and further behind.

The argument for raising the minimum wage is not exclusively a moral one: the success of many state and local minimum wage hikes show that everyone stands to benefit from raising wages. If we look at the states that have already raised their minimum wage, we see what we already know; workers, local businesses, and economies benefit from increased wages.

We live in a consumer-based economy, meaning that every time people buy necessities like gas or groceries or spend money at shops or restaurants in their communities, they invest in their local economies. American businesses depend on consumers being able to spend money in their local communities, but too many American workers make too little money to meaningfully participate in the economy. Giving millions of workers more spending money is a clear and effective economic stimulus that helps us build a better economy from the bottom up rather than trickled down.

Congress's inaction on this issue would be shameful but understandable if this were a politically toxic issue, but the popularity of minimum wage increases makes their paralysis even more baffling.

Raising the minimum wage is one of the few remaining bipartisan issues, popular among red and blue voters alike. The vast majority of Democrats (85%) and independents (72%) believe the federal minimum wage should be raised, and even a 52% majority of Republicans agree. In a divided society like ours, it's rare to see legislation such an overwhelming number of people agree on. Since 1997, every single minimum wage increase put directly to voters has passed, even in deeply red states like Arkansas, Missouri, Alaska, and others.

Congress has a responsibility to the American people that should come before any promises or deals made with lobbyists, corporations, or donors – just about the only people in America who oppose raising the minimum wage. If Republican and Democratic voters agree that hard-working Americans deserve a raise, their legislators should enact legislation that reflects those values.

This country cannot afford another year of a stagnant minimum wage. The clock is ticking - every day, millions of Americans are working harder but falling further behind. It's time for Congress to act and ensure this is the last year a $7.25 wage is the law of the land.

The Most Self-Destructive Force in the World

Without a doubt, the climate-obsessed green movement is the most stupidly self-destructive force in the world today, leaving a trail of irrationality and folly wherever it goes.

Consider its recent record of destroying the country of Sri Lanka, making Western Europe needlessly vulnerable to Vladimir Putin's energy blackmail and stoking higher energy prices in the U.S. that have contributed to the fastest decline in real wages in 40 years.

The greens are rapidly making up ground on the socialists as the modern world's foremost economic and social saboteurs (and, of course, the two now work hand in hand).

If a hostile actor were to consider the best way to harm a society from within, it would unquestionably be to increase the sway of climate alarmists and other environmentalists who believe it is their righteous duty to make it harder and more expensive to power a modern economy, as well as to build and grow things.

They seek to throw the gears into reverse on the millennia-long human quest for cheaper, more abundant and more reliable sources of energy, while putting new obstacles in the way of other human endeavor.

Since they are fired by a quasi-religious vision of an existential climate crisis on the verge of ending Planet Earth, they reject cost-benefit analysis, not to mention basic realism. The resulting wreckage is all around us.

Sri Lanka achieved one of the highest ESG, or Environmental, Social this winter, at the same time that renewables have proved not ready for prime time (they are too intermittent, among other technical problems that won't be solved anytime soon).

In its wisdom, Germany decided to shut down the source of energy that is clean, reliable and doesn't require dependence on an authoritarian state hostile to the West -- namely, nuclear power. It fell prey to the environmental left's superstitious hostility to nuclear. Even now, Germany is going ahead with shuttering its last three plants. It is turning again to coal to try to fill the gap this winter, underlining its disastrous mistake in prematurely eschewing such proven sources of energy in the first place.

Here in the U.S., of course, Biden pledged to "end fossil fuel" back in 2019, a promise -- given our prodigious reserves of oil, gas and coal -- that would make almost as much sense as Russia or Saudi Arabia pledging to do the same. Even as inflation, with energy prices leading the way, destroys Biden's presidency, he and his supporters are determined to pursue a climate agenda that will drive up costs and create inefficiencies at home while doing next to nothing to affect global temperatures.

It makes no sense, but for the greens, that's never been a particularly important criterion.

KEVIN MICHAEL EDWARDS

DECEMBER 27, 1973

JULY 13, 2022

Services for Kevin Michael Edwards were held Saturday, July 23, 10:00 am at Broecker Funeral Home Chapel with Dr. Robert Pendergraft, officiating. Burial followed in Salado Cemetery.

Kevin was born on December 27, 1973, to Barbara and Michael Edwards in Memphis, Tennessee. The family moved to Texas when Kevin was 4 years old. He attended Salado schools and graduated from Belton High School, Temple College, and North Texas University at Denton, TX.

Kevin was always a busy, curious person with a keen dry sense of humor, commenting on everyday matters. He worked from an incredibly early age land mowing; fiberglass, metal polishing, welding, building engines and boats, etc. He could make most anything go smoother and faster. He worked on numerous machines and valued his impressive inventory of Snap-On-tools.

Kevin was running a boat business by the age of 22, and later a bail bond business, and a repo company. He was known for his hard work, integrity and dependability. Kevin always helped others: family, friends, or someone stranded on the roadside.

Kevin was a talented craftsman with exact standards. He fished, hunted, and raced boats; he came from a racing family. In recent years his love was geared toward desert racing. His desert racing truck was his pride and joy.

The last few years, he was also busy developing land to be used for his offices and a new storage unit facility. His plans were to build a home facing the lake and he wanted his mom and dad to, also, build a home on the property. Kevin was always full of plans.

A couple of his favorite expressions were: "Get it done" and "Edwards' never quit."

In May of 2021, he was diagnosed with lung cancer, although, he never smoked. Kevin fought the battle for over a year, but he kept going and believed, until the end, that he would get better. He loved and was always ready to help his family.

Kevin is survived by his parents, Barbara and Michael Edwards; sister, Michelle Edwards Komnenovich and husband, Dan.

Services are in the care of Broecker Funeral Home of Salado. Please sign the guestbook: broeckerfuneralhome.com

The Czech Heritage Museum & Genealogy Center recently formed a new Community Engagement Board. The board will support promotional, programming and fundraising efforts for the museum.

"We were really in need of local community leaders," said Susan Chandler, museum director. "I approached people who had already expressed to me a heart for preserving history and heritage, who value having a museum in the community and, or who hold a real love for Czech and central European culture," said Susan Chandler, museum director. "Every person I asked responded yes with enthusiasm," Chandler said.

Board member Jeremy Jirasek of Jirasek Realty has been observing the rapid population growth in the area. "We've doubled in size in 30 years," Jirasek said. "I don't know if people that have moved to Temple would be aware of this Czech heritage that we have in our community without the Czech Heritage Museum."

Jerry Haisler is also serving on the board. "The reason I'm willing to be involved is that I think the Museum and collection of things that represent Czech culture is our legacy and important to keep and maintain. We've made a lot of progress to get to where we are, but now we need to move to the next level. We need a broader audience and now we have some synergy going with many people who bring their circles of influence. When you get with a network of people, you can do things that are not attainable with one person or a select group," said Haisler.

The Museum is also calling for volunteer docents and tour guides. "We are looking for people who enjoy talking with people and are willing to learn Czech history and share their own cultural experiences," said Chandler. "We've made signing up for volunteer hours easy. You can sign up in three-hour increments and plan ahead. If all you can give is a few hours per month, we'll take it," said Chandler.

The Curious Life (and Death) of Elmer Aiken

By CAROL WILSON
LOCAL HISTORIAN

James H. Aiken, (hereafter J. H.) was only 10 when his father Hermon died but he became a highly successful stock raiser and farmer and a man of influence in early Salado just as his father had been. He was born in 1850 and married Louisa Catherine Damron in 1874. The couple had six children, split equally by gender. This story is about their first child, Elmer, a son in whom they no doubt placed much promise. But a series of unfortunate events set a sad course for Elmer Aiken's life early in his adulthood.

If J. H. Aiken hoped that his oldest son would carry on the role of leadership in Salado that the Aiken family had assumed for many years, he was disappointed. If family history is correct, Elmer Damron Aiken was at odds with the family when he left home as a young man. He headed for Galveston but according to early Salado resident Felda Shanklin, "had a terrible experience in the Galveston flood in 1900." After that troubling event, Elmer headed for California via train but another catastrophe, so severe that it cost him an arm, foiled his plans. Even then his streak of bad luck was not over.

Two years later, on September 5, 1902, fifty-one-year-old J. H. Aiken left his Salado home for Galveston on a heavy mission: that of retrieving the body of his first son, then age twenty seven. Since his horrific accident, Elmer had managed to recover and steer his life in a positive direction. He had worked his way up to the position of manager of the prestigious Tremont Hotel in Galveston. But on the night of September 3, Elmer had vanished after entering the gulf waters for a moonlit swim. Other bathers, numbering about twenty, had seen Aiken enter the water

Elmer Damron Aiken and his son John Aiken (now buried in Shannon County, MO.) Elmer was married to Zella (Maxey) Nicholson, who is also buried in Shannon County, MO. (findagrave.com by franksfoil) about 9:15 and an attendant on the beach reported that Aiken had failed to retrieve the clothing, keys, money and prosthetic arm he had checked for safekeeping. Friends and family were surprised to learn of Aiken's drowning because he often boasted of his skill as a swimmer despite his handicap. Authorities launched an extensive but fruitless search for the body and sent word to Aiken's father in Salado to come at once.

On Friday, September 5, as J. H. Aiken made his way toward Galveston, authorities were again trying frantically to reach him before he read this happy yet startling headline in the Galveston Tribune:

REPORT OF AIKEN DROWNING FALSE

A quick telegram was dispatched to a town along J. H. Aiken's path to Galveston redirecting him to Houston where Elmer was confined to a hospital bed for observation.

Elmer Aiken was no stranger to hospitals beds. In March of 1901, on that ill-fated trip to California, Elmer had come very near death. While attempting to swing from the moving train at a station near El Paso using an overhead bar, the unfortunate young man had fallen beneath the wheels. His left arm and right foot were crushed, necessitating the amputation of his mangled arm, but it was becoming increasingly obvious that a severe blow he had suffered to his head might also be a source of problems. Dr. Smith, Aiken's friend and attending physician at the Houston hospital, had little doubt that this was the case.

The full mystery of Elmer's disappearance was never solved. He had arrived at the Houston hospital on the day after his disappearance, asking for help. By coincidence, the doctor on duty, Dr. Smith, was a personal friend who recognized Aiken at once. Of the long list of questions authorities launched at him, Aiken could answer very few. His last memory before he disappeared was of drinking a glass of lemonade on the beach before he entered the water. He did not know how or why he had gone to Houston. Investigations revealed that he had made the journey by train and booked a room at Houston's Belknap hotel at about midnight. The hotel's desk clerk confirmed that Aiken was dressed in a "perfectly presentable suit" and had registered under the name Johnson.

If blackouts or other episodes of lost time plagued Elmer Aiken in the years that followed, there is no public record. For a decade following his disappearance he managed to prosper, settling in Memphis, where he established his own life insurance firm. In 1903 he married and in May of 1909, welcomed a son. But the happiness Elmer Aiken had finally achieved did not last. Just six months after the birth of his son, Elmer's father, J. H. Aiken died suddenly of a heart attack. In 1912 Elmer suffered a simple fall in the bathtub that resulted in a wound that worsened until it poisoned his blood. He died at his home in Memphis on June 28, 1912. He was just 37 years old.

Free student heart screenings offered

Is your child at risk for sudden death? Students who take part in athletics, cheerleading, marching band, drill team, swimming or other activities are encouraged to get their heart screened for possible genetic heart conditions such as hypertrophic cardiomyopathy (HCM).

Waco Cardiology Associates will be offering free heart screenings and a community health fair for children ages 14-189:00 a.m.-noon on Aug. 6.

HCM is a genetic heart condition that usually does not impair physical activity but is a set-up for potentially fatal rhythm problems that may occur during strenuous exercise. HCM is difficult to diagnosis during a physical examination but is easily detected with an echocardiogram.

It is estimated that 1 in 250 students are at risk for heart abnormalities. A cardiovascular screening is designed to evaluate the potential risk of sudden death from a cardiac abnormality.

Waco Cardiology Associates' team of Cardiologists, Interventional Cardiologists and Clinical Cardiac Electrophysiologists will be offering heart screenings on Aug. 6, which consists of a two-dimensional echocardiogram (picture of the heart) to detect HCM. This screening is not included in standard pre-participation sports physical examinations and is valued at over $300, but free to all participants.

Waco Cardiology Associates limits their scope of practice to adults only but is offering this student heart screening to keep children in McLennan, Bell, Bosque, Coryell, Falls, Hamilton, Hill and Limestone counties safe to take part in their desired activities.

For information, email HR@wacocardiology.com or call (254) 399-5431.

Texas Prepaid Tuition Program Newborn Deadline Approaches

Texas families have through July 31 to enroll their newborns at 2021-22 prices in the Texas Tuition Promise Fund®, the state's prepaid college tuition program. Newborns are children younger than 1 year of age at the time of enrollment.

With the Texas Tuition Promise Fund, participants can purchase tuition units and lock in the costs of undergraduate resident tuition and schoolwide required fees at Texas public colleges and universities, excluding medical and dental institutions, based on today's prices.

For additional flexibility, the plan also can be used at Texas medical and dental institutions, Texas private colleges and universities, out-of-state colleges and universities, career schools and registered apprenticeship programs, where tuition is not locked in and the benefits and payouts would be based on the Transfer Value.

Enrollment at 2021-22 prices closed on Feb. 28 for children 1 year of age and older. The next annual enrollment period begins on Sept. 1, with new contract prices based on Texas public college costs for the 2022-23 school year.

Complete plan information, including the plan description and agreement, current sales prices, enrollment forms and more, is available at TuitionPromise.org or by calling 800-445-GRAD (4723), option 5.

The program's outreach team also offers free webinars that provide an overview of the plan and discuss the different tuition unit types and payment options, as well as provide information about Texas Match the Promise Foundation matching scholarship opportunities. Go to the Texas Tuition Promise Fund website for information about how to register to attend upcoming webinars.

of the following locations:

Temple Main 1901 SW HK Dodgen Loop, Temple, TX 76502

Killeen 3801 Scott and White Drive, Killeen, TX 76543

Self-Pay Cost is $40 per exam, and to compete in UIL sporting events, student athletes must have a medical exam complete.

CTC to host new student orientations

Central Texas College (CTC) will hold new student orientations to provide students an overview of policies, procedures, class delivery and other information relevant to their success in the fall semester. Students only need to attend one of the three scheduled orientations and can choose a virtual or in-person option.

The first orientation is a virtual session on 5:30-7:30 p.m. Aug. 2. Students can sign up at <https://ctc4.me/NSO-Fall22virtual1>.

An in-person orientation will be held 9 a.m.-noon Aug. 10 in the CTC Science Center (Bldg. 257), Room 1075. Sign-up is available at <https://ctc4.me/NSO-Fall22>. The final option is a virtual session on Thursday, August 18 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. The sign-up link is <https://ctc4.me/NSO-Fall22virtual2>.

Each session will provide information on CTC's student email system, EagleMail; an introduction to Blackboard, the school's online learning management system; financial aid, scholarship and grant opportunities; academic advising; tips for being successful in class; safety and security; Title IX and other available student and academic services. A faculty panel will also be held to give students the opportunity to hear from instructors about classes, academic programs and more. The discussion will be followed by a question-and-answer session.

"Students do not have to attend all three new student orientations, as the same information will be covered in all three sessions," said Mariceli Santiago, director - CTC Student Life and Activities. "We are offering multiple sessions in different platforms so a student can select the one orientation that best fits their schedule and comfort level."

During each orientation, students will also learn about virtual career cluster sessions they can attend during the first weeks of the fall semester. "Each of our six career clusters encompass numerous fields of study or career paths," said Santiago. "Whether a student has already decided on a career, has a passing interest or is completely undecided, the career cluster sessions will provide information on job opportunities, earning potential, degree and certificate plans and requirements and other factors which may help the student in their career decision-making and study choices."

HANDLE WITH CARE

South dealer. Both sides vulnerable. NORTH ... WEST ... EAST ... SOUTH ...

The bidding: South West North East ... Opening lead — nine of hearts.

Some deals require extremely delicate handling if declarer is to get home safely. Today's deal provides an example of the precision technique that might sometimes be needed.

West leads the nine of hearts against four spades. When the nine holds, West continues with a heart, ruffed by South. What should declarer do next?

If he makes the mistake of leading a low spade to dummy's ten, he will end up a trick short of his goal. West follows low, and East wins the ten with the king. East returns a heart, and South must now lose two more trump tricks. If he ruffs the heart low, West overruffs with the nine; if he ruffs high, West simply discards and scores the ace and nine later.

Instead, declarer should cross to dummy with a diamond at trick three and lead the deuce of spades toward his hand. East's best play is to follow low, and the queen loses to the ace. Let's assume West returns a diamond. South wins with the ace but is not yet out of the woods. He must still be careful not to lead a low spade to the ten. If he does, East wins with the king and returns a heart, and once again West's nine becomes promoted.

To prevent this, declarer must be sure that the second trump lead also comes from dummy. After taking the ace of diamonds, he should cross to the queen of clubs and lead the four of spades. East wins with the king as South follows low.

Declarer is now fully prepared to cope with East's heart return. He ruffs with the jack, leads a spade to the ten, picking up West's nine, and takes the rest of the tricks.

If South proceeds in the prescribed fashion, the opponents are helpless. It is simply a matter of proper manipulation of the trump suit.

Virtual septic system maintenance clinic set

Lampasas River Watershed Partnership, partnering with the Texas A&M AgriLife will offer a free virtual clinic on septic system maintenance for homeowners from noon to 1:30 p.m. on Aug. 4.

The class will be held virtually through the Microsoft Teams platform. There is no software download required to join. To register, go to www.lampasasriver.org; participants will be sent a link to join after registering.

"Home septic systems, also known as on-site sewage systems, or OSSFs, are used to treat wastewater before it is dispersed on the property and are typically found in rural areas or areas that are not able to connect to a municipal waste collection system," said Ryan Gerlich, AgriLife Extension on-site sewage facilities program specialist, Bryan-College Station. "Systems that are not functioning properly can contaminate our waterways with bacteria and other pollutants."

A free virtual clinic on septic system maintenance will be Aug. 4.

shed encompasses parts of Mills, Hamilton, Lampasas, Coryell, Burnet, Bell, and Williamson counties.

For questions, contact Prcin, 254-774-6008 or lprcin@brc.tamus.edu. For information about septic systems in Texas, go to <http://ossf.tamu.edu/>.

Funding and support for the Lampasas Watershed Protection Plan is provided through Clean Water Act nonpoint source grants from the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality, the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Understanding septic systems

The clinic will provide a basic understanding of the operational and maintenance activities of a septic system and explain how activities within the home impact septic systems.

"There will be a short presentation over health and safety considerations, how to care for and feed the system, and general maintenance procedures," said Anish Jantrania, Ph.D., AgriLife Extension specialist in Temple and associate professor in Texas A&M's Department of Biological and Agricultural Engineering. "The remainder of the clinic will offer participants the opportunity to ask questions in an informal and interactive manner."

Lisa Prcin, AgriLife Research associate and Lampasas River Watershed coordinator, Temple, said the clinic will also discuss implementation of the OSSF components of the Lampasas River Watershed Protection Plan.

"We have secured federal grant funds, available to offset the costs of repairing or replacing failing septic systems within the watershed," she said.

Prcin said that twenty failing septic systems have been replaced in the watershed this year and that although funds are depleted in the current project, a new project is expected later this year.

Lampasas River protection plan

Failing septic systems were identified by the Lampasas River Watershed Partnership as a potential source of bacterial contamination in nearby streams and waterways. The septic system maintenance clinic is offered as an educational component of the Lampasas River Watershed Protection Plan.

The protection plan was developed and implemented by the Lampasas River Watershed Partnership, a collaborative effort by local stakeholders, AgriLife Research, the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board, and Texas Commission on Environmental Quality to address water quality concerns within the Lampasas River watershed.
