

The Declaration of Independence

The following text is a transcription of the Stone Engraving of the parchment Declaration of Independence (the document on display in the Rotunda at the National Archives Museum.) The spelling and punctuation reflects the original

In Congress, July 4, 1776

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America, When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature’s God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, --That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.--Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.
He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people
He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers.
He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries
He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harrass our people, and eat out their substance
He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our legislatures.
He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:

For Quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:
For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:
For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:
For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:
For depriving us in many cases, of the benefits of Trial by Jury:
For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences
For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies

For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:
For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.
He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people

Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which, would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

Personal & disposable income up for U. S. workers

It was a heck of a first half in the stock market. Even though the S&P 500 Stock Index (SPX) slipped 0.08% to close at 5460.48 in this, the last week of the first half of 2024, the SPX roared ahead a truly impressive 14.48% for the trailing six months as June came to an end. It is now up 24.76% from a year ago and 27.27% from this time three years ago. Our other U.S. stock market indicator, which we have noticed, seems to provide a better measure of how the U.S. stock market has performed outside of the five or so mega-cap growth stocks that now make up about 1/3 the value of the SPX, the CRSP US Mid Cap Value Index, fell 0.35% for the week, but like its much larger and older cousin, turned in a very respectable 10.58% return for the trailing 12 months.

I think there's a point worth noting here. Historically, when the top few stocks in the SPX have soared this far ahead of the broad market, the final act of the play is often less than pleasant for that index and particularly for the mega-cap growth, cutting-edge technology stocks that have led the soaring charge. Such disbalances commonly go on for years before they suddenly resolve themselves, as they did between 1994 and 2000, but to date, this type of bifurcated market ends with a crash of the highest-flying tech stocks and other growth-oriented stocks, but often with little effect on the underlying, smaller value stocks that make up the foundation of the U.S. stock landscape.

The benchmark 10-year U.S. Treasury note ended the week and the first half yielding 4.36%, 2.59% higher than last week's 4.25%, and a whopping 17.52% higher than the 3.71% yield we saw a year ago. Meanwhile, the very short-term Treasuries continued to dominate, with their annualized yield remaining just

by Jeffrey W. McClure

under 5.5%. West Texas Intermediate crude oil (WTI) climbed to $81.54 per barrel, up 1% from last week and over 17% higher than a year ago.

The Economy

The (almost) always exciting new release from that most dynamic federal agency, the Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA) in the Commerce Department, was the big news this week, at least for economics geeks like us. First, personal income for U.S. workers jumped 0.5% for the month of May, as did disposable personal income. Personal consumption expenditures (PCE) rose 0.2%, a 2.4% annualized rate, suggesting Americans are back to spending less than they are making, a good sign for long-term economic health. The big news, though, was that the PCE inflation index rose exactly 0.0% for the month and only 2.6% from a year ago. For those who do not remember, or were not paying attention, that monthly inflation number has been inching up all year to the degree that there was speculation that the Fed might not just defer reducing short-term rates but instead raise them in the face of growing inflation. All concerned breathed a sigh of relief.

In an anticlimactic burp of information, the BEA released its third estimate for the first quarter's GDP, 1.4% (4.5% in current dollars), and reaffirmed the 4th quarter of last year at an annualized rate of 3.4%. Those two rather esoteric numbers mean that after subtracting inflation and the balance of trade deficit, the U.S. economy has been growing at an annualized rate of 2.4% for the six months ending in March. Moody's estimates another quarter of 1.4% annualized real GDP growth for the second quarter, followed by an acceleration in the third. This slowing to "only" 1.4% annualized growth for two quarters is looking more and more to be the widely predicted "recession." Given the massive traffic jams around the country near major cities, we are glad the growth rate was this muted.

Under the heading of "odds and ends" are the reports that either the US dollar is the strongest or the Japanese Yen is the weakest (or a bit of both) since 1986, as it now takes 150 Yen to purchase a single U.S. dollar. Those who are ancient enough to remember "Back to the Future" may recall those days when the juggernaut Japanese economy was forecast to dominate the world in the decades to come, even as China is supposed to do now. In another bit of unpopular good news, all the 31 big banks tested by the Federal Reserve's annual stress test, in which the simulation was for a severe global recession, passed with flying colors. The scenario included a 10% unemployment rate, a 55% drop in the SPX, and a 40% drop in commercial real estate prices. The immediate result will likely be increased stock buybacks and dividends among major banks.

Once more, we are forced to report that all is well in the U.S. economy, other than for those traveling on interstate highways near large cities. Growth continues in all the critical areas, and there are hints of even better times ahead.

Nikki Haley is still strongest VIP pick

As far as we know, Nikki Haley isn't on the shortlist, nor on the long list.

There's no indication that she's being considered as Donald Trump's VP pick, and Trump forcefully smacked down a report in Axios that the campaign was looking at her.

She'd still probably be the choice who, more than any other possible pick, would help Trump win in November.

By conventional rules, the former South Carolina governor getting the nod would be so obvious as to be completely unremarkable -- she's the runner-up in the nomination fight; she represents a different faction of the party; she provides demographic balance; she has executive and foreign-policy experience; and she's ready, to the extent this can be judged by resume and experience, to be president.

Paint-by-numbers politics would make her a top contender, if not a shoo-in. If, that is, she hadn't criticized Trump in harsh and personal terms during her primary campaign. It's one thing to criticize another candidate's tax plan; and another to say he's "diminished," "unhinged," "saying things that don't make sense," and "not qualified" to be president.

Any nominee would have a hard time swallowing those types of gibes, and Donald Trump is, shall we say, more sensitive to slights than most.

Trump gave as good as he got, turning what should have been a celebratory event the night he won the New Hampshire primary into an anti-Haley revival meeting.

All of this, though, is why her selection would be a shock and a potentially galvanizing moment in the campaign -- it would show Trump to be willing to forgive and forget and put aside his personal feelings in the cause of saving the country from a second Biden term.

It would be an extraordinary grace note from someone who the public doesn't expect it from (although Trump does fairly often bury the hatchet with former critics).

Both Haley and Trump would have explaining to do; Haley more than Trump. He could just say that campaigning is a tough business, and, sure, she said lots of tough things about him, but beating Biden is more important than dwelling on the past. Haley would be forced by the media to do word-by-word exegeses of all her Trump attacks. Her out would be explaining that, whatever she said about Trump, Biden is worse.

Picking Haley would be an olive branch to a small group of Republican-inclined voters who aren't ready to support Trump. It's possible to exaggerate the import of the "zombie" Haley vote in the GOP primaries, given that the zombie dynamic is a common one in primaries and a significant element of her support is coming from 2020 Biden voters. But she definitely has appeal to college-educated and suburban voters, with whom Trump is weak, and anything that helps at the margins could be decisive in a narrow race.

Going with Haley would open up some wallets. She has her own base within the donor class that would be enthused about her pick and newly determined to do whatever it takes to see the ticket prevail.

A downside is that she's a hate figure for the MAGA base. Trump, though, is the most important influence on what his supporters think.

Relatedly, there's the question of whether Trump could trust an emphatically pre-MAGA Republican who hasn't bent the knee in such a sensitive position. That'd be an issue. But Haley would have every incentive to be loyal, unless the wheels come off during the campaign or a second term -- and if the wheels come off, Haley's posture would be the least of Trump's troubles.

Maybe it'd be a short-sighted pick for Trump's governing purposes, but if it helps him prevail in November, how much does that matter? The Trump approach to life is to get through one obstacle before worrying about the next, and dealing with a vice president he's not enamored of when he's back in the White House would be a good problem to have.

Exhibit runs through Feb. 2025

The Vietnam Experience now open at Bell Museum

The Bell County Museum's newest exhibit, The Vietnam Experience, opened June 28. The Vietnam Experience will run from through February 2025. Admission to the Bell County Museum is free.

"We are honored to host an exhibit on the Vietnam War," said museum director Coleman Hampton. "Bell County is home to a vibrant community of military veterans, active duty servicemembers and their families, and programs supporting the United States military. Our museum is humbled by the opportunity to present artworks, artifacts, and photographs related to the Vietnam War to educate and engage Bell Countians," he continued.

Last year, museum staff began conversations with Naval History Heritage Command in Washington, D.C. to host The Vietnam Experience at The Bell County Museum. After meeting sets of criteria for best museum standards and practices, Naval History and Heritage Command approved the museum to host the exhibit.

The Vietnam Experience, courtesy of Naval History and Heritage Command, is a collection of artworks by Navy combat artists.

These servicemembers recorded aspects of naval operations in Vietnam and Southeast Asia. For those who were not there, the scenes depicted give a visual sense of the Vietnam War: the colors, the landscape, the people, and adrenaline-charged combat actions.

In addition, the museum will exhibit uniforms, firearms, photographs, flags, and other artifacts related to the Vietnam War. The artifacts exhibited are from The Bell County Museum permanent collection and on loan from individuals in Bell County.

The Bell County Museum is located at 201 N. Main, Belton, Texas, 76513. Museum hours are Tuesday – Friday 12-5 p.m. and Saturday 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Admission is free.

A special member's reception hosted by the Bell County Museum Association was held June 27.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the Friends of the Bell County Museum, please call the museum at (254) 933-5243, visit the museum, or go to the museum website www.bellcountymuseum.org.

Free disaster legal assistance for Texans affected by April 26-June 5 storms, floods

Free legal assistance is available to Texans who were affected by the storms, straight-line winds, tornadoes and flooding April 26–June 5.

Texans with disaster-related legal issues who cannot afford an attorney may call the Texas State Bar Legal Hotline at 800-504-7030. Hours are Monday-Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Phones are answered in English, Spanish and Vietnamese.

Legal aid may be able to help survivors in the following ways:

- Clarify home ownership/heir's property
- Assist with benefits, applications and appeals
- Support with fraud issues or landlord disputes
- Assist with disability issues related to the disaster
- Provide insurance policy assistance
- Assist community groups that support long-term recovery

This assistance is available to eligible households in Bell and Coryell counties, as well as several others affected by the storms.

Salado community unites for heartfelt fundraiser to support Terri Raines

The Salado community is coming together to support one of its own, Terri Raines, the owner of Main Street Sass, as she undergoes cancer treatment for the second time.

Tyler Bearden at Lucy's Ice House, promises a fun and supportive event filled with music, food, and camaraderie.

"Our businesses are next to each other here on Main Street. Terri and Bonnie have been very supportive from the get-go, and I felt deeply that I wanted to give back," says Tyler Bearden. "Terri's resilience and infectious spirit have been a source of inspiration for everyone, always greeting the day with a smile and a quick wit that keeps us all on our toes."

Live music and food will be available 4-8 p.m. July 13 at Lucy's Ice House, located at 805 N. Main St., with all proceeds benefiting the family of Terri Raines.

Shade Acoustic will perform 4-6 p.m. and Our favorite Bluegrass Band will perform 6-8 p.m.

Limited menu featuring a BBQ Taco Special with the same delicious chicken and carnitas you love, but with a fun twist. Beer and drink specials all day, including $5 pineapple margaritas.

"This event is a celebration of community spirit, where friends, families, and neighbors can gather to show their support for Terri," Bearden said. "Bring your friends, bring your kids, and bring your dollars, as all proceeds will go towards Terri's treatment. It's an opportunity to enjoy great music, delicious food, and fantastic company, all while making a meaningful difference."

If you are interested in helping with the fundraiser, contact Tyler Bearden at Lucy's Ice House at (254) 563-6966.

"Let's come together to uplift Terri," bearden said, "and show her the strength and love of the Salado community."

Eley Buck Davis: paying his dues to buy the groceries

By BARRY ROGERS
WAYNE PR

Salado-based Americana singer and songwriter Eley Buck Davis has unveiled the first track from his soon-to-be-released seven-song record. Titled "Grocery Bill," the song is a poignant reflection on love, sacrifice and the challenges of pursuing one's passion in the face of financial adversity. Inspired by a pivotal moment in his own life, Davis shares, "I met my wife right after I put in my notice at a warehouse job to pursue music. My budget for being a full-time musician and surviving did not include the ongoing date nights. However, because of our commitment to one another, we knew it would help us both financially if we split the grocery bill."

"Some folks say you should sit down and write songs every day, even if some are bad," he said, "but I still prefer to wait for the inspiration."

The song encapsulates Davis' unique storytelling style, blending raw emotion with genuine authenticity. He invites listeners into his personal journey, evoking moments of joy, struggle and resilience: "I've had some incredible highs and lows, but all of that helps me as a songwriter."

Davis, who has already made his mark with three EPs and one LP, has established himself as a prolific songwriter, penning all of the material himself. Reflecting on his creative process, he explains, "Some folks say you should sit down and write songs, every day even if some are bad, but I still prefer to wait for the inspiration."

With influences ranging from John Moreland to Townes Van Zandt, Eley's music transcends genres, weaving together elements of country, Americana and folk. His upcoming album promises to be a testament to his evolution as an artist, incorporating diverse musical styles while staying true to his roots.

As Davis continues to carve his path in the music industry, his aspirations remain grounded. "I would like for the music to allow me to provide comfortably for my family. It would be nice to solely focus on the craft of writing songs."

With "Grocery Bill" serving as a preview of what's to come, fans can expect an uplifting, fun and a deeply personal record that showcases Davis' passion for storytelling through music.

"Every song on the record is an expression of gratitude for someone that I know," he said. "I'm very blessed for the family and friends in my life."

He will appear at the Songwriter Roundup at Wilson Valley Mercantile in Little River-Academy, 6-9 p.m. July 18 with Wes Perryman and John Lomax III.

Fireworks are banned in the Village limits. (ADOBE STOCK)

Have a safe Fourth of July

While Bell County has not issued any kind of ban on fireworks ahead of Independence Day, the Village of Salado reminds citizens that does not allow for the discharge of fireworks within the Village limits. In fact, discharge of fireworks could carry a $500.

For many, barbecues and backyard fireworks are a tradition, and when used responsibly and legally, provide safe family fun. To help consumers do so, TNT® Fireworks (TNT) is providing three easy tips to ensure celebrations are legal, safe and responsible.

• Stay Legal: Local laws vary widely, from the type of product that is legal - to the times in which fireworks can be used. Know your local laws, and only use fireworks that are approved where you live. Local fire departments can provide information about what is legal in your community.

• Be Safe: Be selective when choosing a location. Pick a dry, flat surface such as concrete, dirt, or pavement that is away from structures and vegetation, and is free of debris. Always read and follow the instructions and have a hose or water source ready.

• Act Responsibly: After the show, let your fireworks take a bath to cool down. Soak them in a metal bucket overnight and outside at a site that is away from structures before properly disposing. Have a sober adult handle your display and do not let children use fireworks. Be considerate of neighbors and pets. When the show is over, clean up the area so that it is free of debris.

To keep everyone legal, safe and responsible, TNT recommends the following safety tips:

• Never give fireworks to young children.

• Stay sober. Never use fireworks with alcohol or drug consumption.

• Have a working hose and/or bucket of water nearby in case of emergencies.

• Never carry a firework in your pocket or hold a lit firework in your hand

• Never shoot fireworks from a metal or glass container.

• Keep spectators at a safe distance and never aim or throw fireworks at another person.

• Never place any part of your body directly over a firework – even when lighting.

• Light only one firework at a time.

• NEVER approach or try to re-ignite a firework that doesn't light the first time

• Soak your used fireworks in a metal bucket overnight and outside away from anything flammable

Salado students have success at A&M Central Texas Cybersecurity

Superintendent's Corner

by Dr. Michael Novotny

Congratulations to Salado High School students Segiv Eldridge and Thomas Novotny and Salado Middle School student Nek Ibarra for their success at the Texas A&M University – Central Texas Cybersecurity Camps in June. Their teams won 2nd place for their projects that highlighted the dangers of a virus infiltrating a computer system. Throughout these cybersecurity camps, the students learned about command lines, social engineering, network hardening, web security, multi-factor authentication, and network programming, including Python and SQL injection. They also explored digital forensics, PC activities, encryption, reconnaissance, virus analysis, behavior analysis, cyber analysis, and security failures. Segiv, Thomas, and Nek applied all these skills to their projects.

Thomas Novotny

The bidding:

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

concedes the contract.
Let's say you're West in today's deal, defending against four spades. You cash the king of diamonds and continue with the queen as everyone follows suit. You assume that South has a good seven-card suit for his opening three-spade bid. How would you continue?
Looking at dummy's impressive hearts and clubs, you realize that you can't defeat the contract unless your side can score two trump tricks. All your thoughts should therefore be devoted to visualizing trump distributions that would allow your side to collect a second trump trick in addition to your ace.
You should conclude that if South has the K-Q-J-x-x-x of spades, scoring a second trump trick will not be possible. But if partner happens to hold the singleton jack or queen, you are in business.

So at trick three you continue with a third diamond, and just to be sure that partner ruffs with whatever trump he has, you lead a low diamond rather than the ace! As it happens, partner ruffs dummy's jack with the spade jack, and your ten of spades becomes the setting trick.
